Syracuse had 34 inches of snow on the ground, including 13½ inches that fell Sunday. The weather bureau said it was the worst storm there since 1935. More was forecast.

Niagara Falls, Batavia, Rochester, Jamestown and Elmira, in the western part of the state, were buffeted by blizzard-like conditions but managed to keep their airports open. But beyond the suburbs, however, great veils of snow formed monumental 15-foot drifts that staggered snow plows.

Near Frewsburg, in the southwestern tip of the state, a motorist was rescued Sunday after his car had been stranded for 12 hours in a drift. He was only 300 feet from a farmhouse but was unable to see it through the blowing snow.

Vancouver Chinatown's Jilted Lover Wants Mail-Order Bride Sent Home

VANCOUVER (CP) — Chinatown's jilted lover, 21-year-old Nah Suey Ning, says he will see immigration officials today and ask them to deny his ex-fiancee, 19-year-old Yu Tsui Mee from Hong Kong.

Miss Yu, a mail-order bride whose marriage with Mah was arranged by the couples parents after a long courtship by mail, set Vancouver's Chinese community buzzing last week when she refused to go ahead with the ceremony.

The Chinese Benevolent Association, Chinatown's leading organization, said Miss Yu would be a breach of a strict Chinese code. Officials called a meeting to discuss claims by Mah's parents for compensation.

Mah Suey said she refused to go ahead with the wedding "because our personalities are different" and because Mah wanted to go through the ceremony immediately after she arrived, without a period of courtship.

The disappointed groom told a different story.

"The day after she arrived, she told me she wanted to marry another man and go to live in Regina," he said. "I called it off. And I want compensation for the cost of bringing her to Canada."

Mah said it took him two years to save enough from his $120-a-month wages to bring her to Canada.

Vancouver's Chinatown is "the second largest Chinese settlement outside Asia. But Chinese girls are scarce and many are brought from Hong Kong as brides-in marriages arranged by their families.

Officials of the benevolent association said they felt the girl's action might endanger this practice.

McCUTCHEON SISTERS INVITED TO SKATE AT TRENTON CARNIVAL

A signal honor has been paid the Quinte Figure Skating Club, when Peggy McCutcheon, 8, and sister Jean McCutcheon, 9, daughters of Dr. and Mrs. William McCutcheon have been invited to appear at the Trenton Figure Skating Carnival to be held on Friday and Saturday of this week at the Community Gardens in that town. These junior misses have been skating since they have been old enough to shove a pair of skates and have advanced far in their chosen field. The children will skate solo numbers and also combine in a duet. Those attending the carnival will be in for a treat. Jack Dickens, who always supplies humour to local carnivals with his antics on ice, has also been invited to appear on Friday evening.

CHAMBER WARNS AGAINST FIRM

The Chamber of Commerce warns Belleville and district citizens to be on the lookout for a firm of "canvassers" operating in this area and soliciting people to invest $100 in a natural gas project.

Robert G. Hamilton, secretary-manager of the Chamber, asks anyone approached by the firm to call his office at Woodland 3-3941.

He said the firm has assured at least one Prince Edward County man that his $100 will be well rewarded as results and tests already conducted in the project have been excellent.

Mr. Hamilton said the Ontario Securities Commission has confirmed his alarm. The Department of Mines has received numerous complaints about this firm dating back to 1947 and a number of convictions against it have been awarded.

TOMMY CARRUTHERS NAMED DIRECTOR OF GOLF ASSOCIATION

T. A. "Tommy" Carruthers has been appointed Director for the Quinte district by the Ontario Golf Association. The district extends from Kingston to Oshawa. Mr. Carruthers attended the annual meeting of the Association in Toronto at which time the open championship was slated for the Cataraqui Club of Kingston this year. His appointment as director by the president was made recently.

SNOW RESPONSIBLE FOR MINOR CRASHES

City and provincial police reported a quiet weekend in Belleville and district.

Snow was said mainly responsible for a number of minor accidents in the city and on the highway but only one accident involving personal injury was reported.

This occurred west of Deseronto Saturday night when a car occupied by Glenn and Elgin Brant, R. R. 1, Deseronto, left the highway and went into the ditch. Both men were treated for minor injuries.

LES DIGBY NAMED TO SOCCER COUNCIL

Les Digby, president of the Bay of Quinte Soccer League, was named to the council of the Ontario Soccer Association at the annual meeting in Toronto Saturday.

THE GLASS THAT CHEERS

MADRID (CP) — Hotel waiters told a court Thursday they became irritated when Yano Ruiz kept crunching beer glasses with his teeth. They threw him out of the hotel. Ruiz was fined $5 for drunk.

Ben Fuller Honored on 92nd Birthday

On Saturday evening a happy event took place at the home of Mr. Ben Fuller, of Byron Street, when 19 friends and relatives assembled to honor him on his 92nd birthday, and to present him with a grand old gentleman with useful personal gifts, for which he was most appreciative.

The first part of the evening was spent in cards, and the latter part at the home of Mrs. George Butcher, just across the street from Mr. Fuller's home, where a delicious supper was served from a prettily appointed table centred with an all - white birthday cake, bearing the legend Happy Birthday, Mr. Fuller," the gift of Mrs. Hazel Lieser.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. George Greatrix, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Greatrix, Mrs. Myrtle Greatrix, Mrs. George Wood, Mrs. George Butcher, all of Belleville; Mrs. Ross Fuller and son, Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. William Bartley and granddaughter, Marjorie Anne, Mrs. Fred Thompson, of Shannonville, and Billie Stapley, and Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Stapley, of Oshawa.

Mr. Fuller is enjoying the best of health, and keeps abreast of the times by the daily paper. At the close of the evening, he did a tap dance to the delight of those present.

All extend to Mr. Fuller congratulations on reaching his 92nd milestone and best wishes for his 100th.

Dogs in City Must Pay Way

Every dog in the city must pay its way!

That is the attitude to be taken in Belleville this year as city dog catcher Charles Thorn who will make a house-to-house canvass just to make sure there are no canine free-loaders.

The reason for the house-to-house canvass is enforcement of the city dog by-law requiring all dogs, regardless of age, sex or breed to have a dog licence.

And any person than one dog is involved keeping of canine pets can come expensive.

Licence cost for the first male dog is $2 and for each additional male dog in the one household, $4. Licence for the first female is $4 and for each additional female, $6.

Kennel licences when all dogs are purebreds is $10 per year.

PREFER TO WORK FOR IT

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Burglars who tore open a safe at a Tampa business firm during the week-end must have been mighty keen on their work. They ignored the $1,000 in Bancroft and Chick Funeral Home, Frankford; the funeral checks and left behind $233.

Five Alarms Of Minor Nature Over Weekend

City firemen were called out on five alarms of a minor nature over the weekend.

Sunday the reels were called to Hillcrest for an over-heated stove and another alarm from Canniston started the reels on the way to that village. Here, however, the trouble was remedied before the arrival of firemen.

A blowtorch being used to thaw pipes was said responsible for a blaze which called firemen to the Club Commodore at the fairgrounds. The blaze was beneath the floor.

Another run was to Catherine Street for over-heated stove-pipes, while early this morning firemen were called to South John Street for what was thought to be coal gas. Investigation revealed the trouble to be sewer gas backing up into the house.

District Artist Has Unusual Hobby

The Canadian Institute of chemistry would like to see those laymen take up rock collecting, or, to borrow the words of a Phoenix editorial, "to collect and study rocks instead of merely crunching them under foot."

Rock collectors are known as "rockhounds" and among the current crop is found the name of Arnold Meyers, district artist, Belleville, R. R. 1, Consecon, Hastings County and the Trenton and Belleville districts are honorans for the amateur rockhound.

Closely related to mineralogy and rock collecting, is the hobby of cave discovery and exploration. People who do this are called "spelunkers". This science, or hobby, is related to mineralogy in that caves are formed from, and reflect in their colors the mineral bodies, through which water percolates.

Mr. Meyers has been invited by the National Speleological Society of America, of which he is a member, to write an account of his experiences in the caves of Yucatan and Guatemala. To for the society's journal, the "Bulletin". Several illustrations and a map, drawn by the author, are included in the publication.

Early in September, he and a friend from Petrolia will spend 2 weeks combing the caves in Lanark and Renfrew in search of mineral samples and rocks, if desired, also, to investigate Colquhoun's Cave, located on a branch of the Little Mississippi River.

225 Enumerators Start Listing Riding Voters

A total of 225 enumerators started counting noses in the riding of Hastings South this morning and by Saturday night of this week will have been expected to have listed all persons entitled to vote in the March 31st federal election.

Riding returning officer William VanTassel today urged that householders in the riding give every co-operation to the enumerators when they call. Only by giving the information asked for can voters assure that their names will be on the voting list correctly.

The number of polls in the riding has been increased from 125 to 148 for this election and the number of enumerators has been increased accordingly. In urban areas there are two enumerators for each poll and in the rural area one enumerator for each poll.

In Belleville there are 106 enumerators and in the town of Trenton 48.

Saturday urban enumerators were sworn in, while rural enumerators were sworn in during the past week as they called at the office of the returning officer to pick up their materials.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market moved lower for the second straight session during moderately slow morning trading.

Industrials were a point lower on index and western oils lost more than half a point. Base metals eased one-quarter of a point while golds managed to gain almost as much.

The 11 a.m. volume of 771,000 shares was faster than Friday's 728,600 at the same hour but below the average total for most of the sessions in the last two weeks.

Ogilvie gained 3½ points at 29 on a couple of sales among industrials and Ford A lost two points at 74 on a single sale. Union Gas was up a point but all other changes were fractional with gains holding a slight numerical edge.

Trading in the mining list was narrow-ranged.

Algom added ¼ at 14¾ among high-priced uraniums but Gunnar lost as much as 15¾. Nesbitt was up 15 cents at a new high for the year at $4.95 but Imperial fell 13 cents at $8.95 among coppers.

Western oils were easier with Bailey Selburn losing 40 cents at $8. Fargo gained 30 cents at $5.70 on a few sales.

New CAS Receiving Home Inspected at "Open House"

Approximately 200 city and district residents took the advantage Saturday afternoon to inspect the "open house" for the new Children's Aid Society receiving home at 73 Highland Ave.

This week the new receiving home is open for operation and in the words of Mr. Bruce Kerr, CAS superintendent, it is a welcoming felt need of the local society.

"I am very proud of the new receiving home," said Mr. Kerr. "It is far beyond the normal conception of a Children's Aid Society receiving home. The home has been completely done over, new facilities added and rooms are all decorated with the view of appeal to children."

Mr. Kerr said the new home would be used for initial admissions to the CAS and also as an observation centre where they will stay awaiting arrangements for foster homes.

Next for the home is evident from the fact that last year 114 children were taken into care with no permanent receiving home in which to give them initial care.

Supervisors of the new receiving home are Mr. and Mrs. O. B. MacMullen of Belleville. CAS officials stated at the receiving home will be treated as family members with every effort being made to create a home atmosphere.

Saturday visitors at the receiving home were welcomed by Mr. C. B. Morgan, CAS chairman and members of his board. The home was planned by Mrs. E. E. Follwell. Following an inspection of the new home visitors were served with tea.

ROOM ACCOMMODATE TEN

The new receiving home has accommodation for ten children. Sleeping quarters for seven have been made to appeal to the small boys and girls, who will be using them.

A downstairs playroom has been provided, while for nursery needs there is a fenced outdoors playground.

A complete new kitchen and laundry room have been provided for the receiving home; a complete re-wiring job has been done and the furnace completely renovated. New bathroom and toilet facilities have also been provided.

The home was purchased in August and since then renovations have been in progress, the program only recently having been completed.

Many city and district social and welfare organizations have assisted in furnishing the new receiving home.

The washer and dryer combination was provided by the Soroptimist Club, the three sofa beds were a gift of the Phi Phi donated four modern cribs and high-chairs, while the Catholic League donated the money required for new drapes.

Many other organizations have made cash donations to assist in furnishing the new receiving home.

Conservatives Open Drive With Election of Officers

The election campaign of Lee Grills, South Hastings member in the last parliament at Ottawa began officially Saturday night at the annual meeting of the South Hastings Progressive Conservative Association held in the Kiwanis Centre.

Senator George White of Metcalfe spoke on behalf of Mr. Grills and the Progressive Conservative party in calling that Prime Minister Diefenbaker had fulfilled many of his promises made prior to the June 10 federal election. Mr. Grills, he said, "deserved this riding by the result of the last election."

Election of officers of the association saw Senator Sam Curry of Tweed received acclamation as president, as did first vice-president William House of Trenton; 2nd vice-president Art McCarey of Tweed; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. Douglas Atkins; 4th vice-president, Mrs. Kenneth Vivian and 5th vice-president, Miss Lottie Warham. Mrs. Ruby Fleisher of Middle Nort Park, Trenton, was elected sixth vice-president.

Harry Morrow was re-elected treasurer and Raymond Gunsolus was re-elected secretary. Members are T. L. McCullough and Clarence Jewell.

Secretary Gunsolus was honored for his exemplary service to the party and the association by Senator Curry. Grants, immediate past president of the association, and author of the resolution presented a silver tray to him.

Said Mr. Grant: "Mr. Gunsolus has been a tremendous help over the past six years."

Ray Hill was elected chairman of the P.C. association in Batawa.

Discussion was heard of the possibility of holding a provincial election convention in Trenton Memorial Gardens, but vice-president House suggested the city be held elsewhere in the riding as the Prime Minister is expected to be in Trenton some time before March 31.

Finally, it was decided to hold a the convention in the auditorium of BCVS "at the earliest possible date," likely within two weeks. A special speaker will be named later.

Mayor Gerald Hyde was present at Saturday night's meeting and said that on March 31 "Lee Grills will get the majority he got last June dwarfed by his new majority in the coming election."

Mr. House said it is "almost definite" that Prime Minister Diefenbaker will be addressing a plastic rally in Trenton some time before the election.

Senator Curry said Mr. Grills will be the only Conservative elected in the election race in South Hastings. Mr. Curry thanked the officers and members of the association for their assistance and support prior and in the last election.

Senator White said that Prime Minister Diefenbaker did not make any promises last year "to catch votes. He was sincere and he has fulfilled many of his promises. The remainder will be fulfilled after the election in March."

Sen. White urged all Progressive Conservatives in the riding to work immediately to re-elect Mr. Grills, because "I hope the electors of Canada can say the policy is having three or four political parties in Parliament." Canada's destiny as the P.C.'s believe, is held in the unity of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

Mr. Grills paid tribute to Senator White as elected like a brother to me since I entered politics." Because of the "tremendous help" of Senator White, minister of External Affairs and M.P. Hastings-Frontenac, Senator White has, on occasion, represented Dr. Smith's constituents.

Mr. Grills paid a special tribute to the complishment about causing elevation of "the Liberals might go back to Ottawa." He asked his supporters to begin immediately to send him back to Ottawa as member of parliament for South Hastings.

Mr. Grills announced that Jack Ireland will again manage his pre-election campaign.

Mentioning William VanTassel as the new returning officer, Mr. Grills said: "We now have a 42-year-old P.C., instead of a 72-year-old Liberal as in past. I guess it just happened that way."

Bear Cubs Clinch Second Place By 7-5 Win Over Belleville Club

TRENTON — Trenton Bear Cubs clinches second place in the Junior "B" league Saturday night in a rough battle that saw Trenton take a 7-5 victory over the Belleville Lanark-Bellina.

There were 27 almost-evenly-split penalties handed out in the encounter, seen by almost 400 fans in the Trenton Community Centre. But close refereeing rather than excessive rough play accounted for the trips to the sin bin.

Trenton scored two goals in the first period and about midway during the early stages of the second Lanza to surge ahead of Belleville and grasp a lead which wasn't threatened until the opening minutes of the final period, when Belleville edged within one goal of tying the score.

With the score reading 6-5 Trenton after Allan Elliott, two minutes of the third period, Frank Caume took a neat pass from Trenton centre Gerard Vickers to drive a shot past Gillen in the Belleville nets and help Trenton two goals ahead. There were only eight minutes remaining in the game when Belleville fought, but failed to cut the home club's lead.

The only injury of the game saw Al Wright, captain of the Belleville club, carried of the ice on a stretcher after he was hit in the solar plexus by a puck. Falling forward he struck his head on the ice and lost his full consciousness before the first aid crews arrived. He is in Toronto General Hospital with a fractured skull.

TRENTON SCORES EARLY

From the opening minutes of the game, Trenton fought to fasten their grip on second place in league play. At 3.34 in the first period Anthony Scaletta took a loose puck in front of the Belleville net and scored in the opening goal that brought Trenton fans to their feet in a roaring way.

Centre Bob Carradus made it two goals for the Cubs and made an unassisted drive past Gilby at 14.34. There were no other goals scored in the first frame, but the action paved the way to the penalties and second period that saw seven goals four for Trenton and three for Belleville.

But the first period kept the penalty box seats warm. There were 13 penalties handed out by referees Jim Williams and Jack Wannamaker — 10 in addition to 22 minutes in penalties in a 20-minute period. Seven of the penalties were handed Belleville, while Trenton players made the other four trips to the "cooler".

But the tables turned, in the second period when the Trenton squad managed to get six penalties to Belleville's three. Guy Austin and John Beatty were the main offenders for Trenton. They drew two penalties each. Jim Beatty made a fast-thinking "in reverse", He was handed a third period penalty in the last period.

Trenton began scoring at the start in the second frame and took a firm lead when Lewis Leonard got past Jean Austin before the period was two minutes old. It was a see-saw battle until Caume netted the scoreboard read 6-0 for Trenton when he passed through into the net with an assist from Harvey Scott.

RAPID FIRE GOALS

J. Gil. Belleville centre broke through the Trenton defence 2 minutes later to wipe the zero off the Belleville scoreboard and injected new hope into his teammates.

Caume with an assist from John Pshehnicky and Vickers, scored from Trenton at 14.28 and Roger Drake made the tally 6-3 with an assist off Scott and Burleigh before Belleville shot into scoring form.

In the last minute of play in period Belleville came through with two rapid-fire goals. The first was scored by J. Elliott and the second by Kerrush. The score read 6-3 for Trenton as the period ended.

Belleville opened the third period with a three-player drive through the Trenton defence that ended in a goal. The time was 1.29 Elliott, Gill and Kerrush were the attackers and Kerrush scored the goal.

Gill also figured in the second goal of the stanza. He gained an assist when Pat Asselstine scored the fifth and final goal for Belleville at 7.44. That was Gills' third assist.

With the score at 6-5 the Trenton fans saw four minutes of frenzied play which ended in Caume, assisted by Vickers, cinched the victory with a goal at 11.54.

The third period was not unlike the two previous as far as penalties were concerned. Each team had its share with three Trentonites keeping the box seats warm, assisted by four Belleville players.

Firemen Called Out Three Times On Sunday

TRENTON — Firemen were called out three times Sunday to separate fires in near-zero weather.

Their first call came in at 10.23 a.m. when the cab of a locomotive began burning the C.N.R. roundhouse flames from the cab at one time caught the rafters of the building on fire but were quickly squelched. Cause of the fire is not known.

Firemen said there was, for a time, danger of the engine exploding but the cold water from the two hoses cooled the old "iron horse" off. When they arrived the whistle of the engine was blowing continuously. An estimate of the damage to the Trenton-used roundhouse and the engine was not available.

Firemen had just returned to the roundhouse when they were called to the home of Bill Potts, 20 Bay Street, where the chimney was burning. Firemen and one truck had the fire under control in a couple of minutes. That call came in at 2.10 p.m.

At 5.28 p.m. they were called to 181 Byron Street, where an oil burner was overheating and was quickly returned to normal.

With the temperature staying around 10-above all during the day, Fire Chief Ernest Bowbotham from the north firemen stayed on the alert knowing most furnaces would be taxed to their limit keeping homes warm.

VICTIM OF CAR

Flight Sergeant E. Carl of 77 Lorne Avenue reported to town police officials that as he was proceeding north on West Street about 7.40 a.m. a small dog ran under the rear wheel of his car and was killed.

He said the dog was not wearing a tag and he did not know to whom it belonged. It was the second dog killed by a car this year. Five others have been reported hit during the same period.

FIS Defeated By Falconbridge

TRENTON — Falconbridge Falcons won their second exhibition game with the F.I.S. team 6-3 yesterday at the Community Centre. They won the first at Falconbridge during December of last year 7-6.

A Fife was the big gun for the visitors, getting a hat trick with two counters in the first period and one each period. He also assisted in one other.

Other goals for the winners were by J. Rhude, J. White and an "import" known as Voelimeckie. They all scored singles.

Bob Swanston, Ted Miller and Bob Henderson counted for the home team, each getting singles. The losers only managed to score one goal in each period.

Flight Lieutenant Bob Wigett, coach of the local RCAF team, used the exhibition game as a competitive practice to try out different line combinations. He also used three of his goalies.

In the first period he used goalie Paul Hope, in the second, Bob Prescott and W. G. Leslie in the third. It was Hope's "bad day", with the visitors getting four of their total during his tour of duty between the pipes. Both let in one.

The F. I. S. play again tonight when they meet the Falcons in their own series. The Rockets and Falcons will also battle for top spot in the Big Four series tonight, at the Community Gardens.

CHALICES STOLEN

BOSTON (AP) — A thief smashed his way into St. Mary's Catholic Church Sunday night and stole seven gold chalices valued at $1,400. Police said the chalices were 16 inches high and were made of 14 karat gold.

Forced from her Toronto home into a robbers' car, Mrs. May Lawson, wife of a city supermarket manager, foiled plans of two thugs to use her as a hostage in their plot to rob the supermarket. Alone in the back seat of the car, Mrs. Lawson, 31, whiled until the knife - wielding thug took his eye off her as the driver stopped at a stop sign. A member of three, Mrs. Lawson jumped from the car and escaped outdistancing the robbers in her flight across snow-covered fields for help.

PRICE SPREADS QUESTION

The royal commission on food price spreads has decided to delay public hearings until after the Federal election.

The commission, we believe, was wise to make this decision. If it had gone through with its plans to open hearings March 19, the evidence it heard might have become fodder for the election campaign. Aside altogether from the fact that not all of the evidence the commission will hear would have been available for consideration before election day, there is grave reason to doubt whether the complex question it is studying is one which can properly be solved by public debate.

There is one point, though, which might be considered at this time. "The Printed Word" says that "it is difficult to see what farmers' organizations expect to gain from an investigation into the spread between the prices they receive at the farm for their produce and the prices paid for the same produce by a customer of a retail store." It then proceeds to argue that, providing the price the grower receives "is a fair return for his costs and profit," it is no concern of the farmer what the retail buyer pays for the goods the farmer produces.

"The Printed Word" supports this contention by supposing that the Niagara grower of peaches gets 50 cents a basket at his orchard and that this is a fair price. If the peaches sell for $1 a basket in Toronto, it says, the grower gets half of the consumer's dollar. If the price goes to $1.10, the grower will get only 45.5 per cent of the retail dollar, but he will be no worse off. With the price at $1.10 a basket, few consumers will buy and this will result in price-cutting, which might lower the price to 90 cents a basket, giving the producer 55.5 cents of the consumer's dollar, but leaving him no better off.

This is an interesting argument, but the average producer will have a suspicion that if the retailer who bought peaches at 50 cents a basket and planned to sell them at $1 a basket suddenly finds that he can get only 90 cents a basket, he is likely to attempt to buy the next patch of peaches at 45 or 40 cents a basket.

In any event, the big flaw in the argument is the supposition that the amount the producer is paid represents "a fair return for his cost and profit." The contention of many farmers' organizations is that it does not, and their interest in the price spread is based on the not unreasonable contention that when these spreads are large they result in the price to the consumer being so high that he curtails his purchases, lowering demand for the produce the farmer raises and further depressing prices.

It might be that the farmer, if he were assured of getting a fair return for his costs and profit, would not give a hoot what price the consumer had to pay for his produce. But until this assurance is given, the farmer has good reason to believe that the price at which an article sells has some affect on the volume of sales to the consumer and that, in its turn, the volume of sales a retailer makes has an affect on the volume of the produce he buys from the farmer and the price he is prepared to pay for this produce.

VOTES FOR VARIETY

If variety is the spice of life, life would be very spicy if Norman Hartnell had his way. Queen Elizabeth's principal dressmaker was asked to give his opinion about skirt lengths. With the wisdom of Solomon, he delivered a judgment which, while perhaps it settles nothing, should certainly satisfy everybody.

"The best length in skirts is the length that which is cut off to suit the legs of the wearer," he decreed.

That leaves the hemline wavering between low low and high high.

"If the law of gravity were suddenly suspended," says a Canadian Press story, "the Explorer and the Russian Sputnik would shoot away into the unknown reaches of space. So would you, and Nikita Khrushchev, and John Foster Dulles."

Sounds like an excellent idea and we were all set to campaign for a suspension of another of those unnecessary laws until we realized, with a start, that when the Canadian Press writer says "you" he means us.

Many delinquent children act about as their parents do, which is what makes the problem so tough.

LOVE

Truth went forth on a search one day
For the source of love, that he might say
He had found its depth and its breadth for aye.

He met a miser, bent and old,
And his mission to him he promptly told.
"Love," said the miser, "is yellow gold!"

He sought a maiden young and fair,
With orange blossoms in her hair,
Who whispered: "My love is waiting there."

To a struggling youth at last
Truth came;
As he toiled and studied and spoke his name,
"Love," said the youth, "is a thing called Fame."

"Love!" mocked a man with features sour,
Before whom others were made to cower,
"Love, yes, love is worldly power."

A pale, weak woman Truth
chanced to see,
Rocking a baby on her knee;
"Only a mother knows love," said she.

What Could Court Do?

Ottawa Journal

In Montreal this week a girl of 16 years was sentenced to a two-year term in the penitentiary when she pleaded guilty to threatening her brother with a razor.

This is the sort of case calculated to arouse the ire of humanitarians, who will do away with all the facts—the penitentiary for a mere child! But let us look at the circumstances that confronted Judge Armand Cloutier in Quebec City.

Since she was 12 the girl has defied all control. A stay of close to two years in a cottage-type school for delinquents was shortened 17 times by escapes. She has been in and out of jail, has had psychiatric treatment, ran away after the death of her grandmother's home in another city, was completely unmanageable at her own home, all efforts had failed, says the Montreal Gazette, "to cope with her uncontrollable temper, lying, stealing, and defiance of rules of authority" and Judge Cloutier had a probation officer's report before him, and the findings of a psychiatrist of Montreal Juvenile Hospital which said: "if she is to be helped at all she must be in a setting from which she cannot escape, preferably one in which she can be kept busy."

The penitentiary appeared to be the answer. It is a situation that challenges what else could the Judge have done?

Going to Be A Long Year

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

The accelerating accumulation of holiday greetings has a tendency to overwhelm the calendars which also arrive at this time of year. And since Leap Year is the occasion for Pope Gregory are on hand to speak a word in season to the calendar users, we make bold to pinch-hit for them.

The year is new to one and all: Do not be taken in by those 1958 calendars with their conventional 12 months, 52 weeks and 365 days. They are all wrong. Technically the U.S. Chambers of Commerce, 1958 will have at least 13 months and 171 weeks. (The electronic calculator still is counting the days.)

Many of the calendar printers have not gone much beyond including Mother's-Day-in-May, birthday, Mother's Day and Father's Day, those who want to be up-to-date will have to do their own marking. They should, for example, mark off the Bachelor's Day and June 4 as Old Maid's Day, if they will write to the U.S. Post Office. They also get straight on Father-in-Law's and Mother-in-Law's Day, National Grandparents' Day and Kids' Day also Teen-Agers' Day and National Baby Week. The pets of the family seem somewhat neglected with International Cats Week and National Domestic Rabbit Week are among the few scheduled.

The kitchen calendar is the one which ought to be marked most carefully by those who do what went to be out of step. There will be Kraut and Frankfurt Week, Donut Week, Pancake Week, Pretzel Week, White Bread Month, and also International Weight-Watchers Week.

And that's not all. Who wants to miss Egyptian Week, Saint Hodog Month—not to be confused with National Dog Week —Contact Lens Month, National Long Underwear Week, Clean Oil Month and Tavern Month?

"If he's been such a pal to me, how come I can't get a turn with the sled?"

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

NOT LIFE — BUT LIVING

Life does not hang heavy on the souls of mortals make up the ground-work of time.

of those who are living more in living than merely in life.

I sometimes think of death as something that is always around. For we are all travelling toward it daily — whether we think of it or not. But to think of it as something to be feared or avoided (which is natural) is to burn up the precious years that are ours.

Not life — but living is the real adventure!

Thrills are things which come from within — from what we see or experience from without. It's living right in the heart of happenings; and being a part of them which brings to us our sense of ownership over triumphs.

Few things are so constructed that they can be saved. At least for any length of time. Even the most enduring, the huge structure, the magnificent moving city will sometime crumble — and be but a memory of what the past has to say.

Men's lives — to the most active and triumphant one — are all in the end woven into an even story closely akin to that of what the age worked out. Like the tiny bits of sand which compose the beach are long, easy and mostly alike.

Let us keep right on getting up in the morning, washing our faces and eating our meals, because we're going to our several works — but let us not get upset at the end of it all. Let us not measure or weigh our acts or doings and then stand and boast their special merit. Let us rather do and dare and dig — and then commend them to our couches — to rest for another day!

Let us keep right at the job — at living — and be glad and happy and helpful — so the last sleep shall be filled with sweetened odors and our long rest shall find us at peace, and falling sun in its setting.

Then we can say that we lived!

Miss Green, superintendent of the Belleville General Hospital, will attend a meeting of the Ontario Hospital Association which will meet in Hamilton today. Miss Green is a member of the association's committee on constitution and laws.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McGrattan of Grand Sable, have left to spend some time in Gananoque after visiting their son, Mrs. J. N. Hoskin of this city.

Mr. Fred Herity, Lewis St., has returned home from Hamilton where he spent a few days.

Good farms in Prince Edward County are worth considerable money at the sale of the late Asa Wallbridge's farm, one to-day. Exceeding some 50 acres and the old homestead at Cherry Valley sold for $5,000 and Lot 30, Front Ross, it is reported for $15,000.

Mr. Asa Anderson of Selby, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Anderson, Patterson St.

Best Brains Are Exported

Windsor Star

Reliable figures indicate more than 3,000 engineers left Canada between 1951 and 1958. This represents almost one-third of the graduating classes of that period; it is the equivalent of 10 percent of the total engineering pioneers.

During these five years, too, 800 other scientists left this nation.

Most frightening is that this emigration of Canada's best brains is increasing. In 1951, the graduating engineers who left constituted 11 percent of the graduating class; by 1957, the figure climbed to a staggering 30 percent.

Most of these leave Canada for the United States. One incentive is higher salaries, but there is another reason. As Dr. Robert L. Bryce, chairman of the Technical Service Council, has pointed out: "They leave Canada because they want more positions in their field of interest."

There are three methods by which this outward flow of talent could be reduced. They are:

Secondly, Canadian industry could expand its research facilities to attract science graduates and keep them at home.

Thirdly, the federal government could increase its grants to the National Research Council, universities and private industry where it is shown private industry can best do the job.

For years, in opposition, the Progressive Conservatives called for more government aid to research. Now they have a chance to do something about it.

Sea Serpents Are Deadly

Manchester Guardian

Sea serpents are rarely seen in western waters, and are still thought by some people to be a myth. But around Malaya they are common enough, and fishermen are on their guard for them. As they are poisonous, sea snake is their chief enemy.

Two Penang doctors, writing in The British Medical Journal, say that of 140 cases which they studied, 41 were fatal.

Some victims have died because they were not suitably treated. Others, fishermen commonly treated the snakes with herbal brandy (made from herbs in rice wine) and also avoided smoking, talking and eating for 24 hours after the bite. Malay fishermen rely mainly on incantations. Chinese, however, drink the urine of Malays.

Sea snakes are commonly taken in net fishing. "The first action on hauling in the catch is to spot the snakes, pinch them up quickly by the tail and throw them overboard. They are never killed. Some fishermen use lines baited with hooks and these usually catch no more than 20 serpents on a line of 300 hooks. They must be used in time rather than try to get the serpents off the hook.

There are hospitals of a more formidable beast, the "ular bekrang". It is so big, unfortunately that if it bites the rudder of a boat all the people in the boat will die. Some claim to have seen this snake, always in deep water at the fishbuns a few times, one claims to have survived a rudder bite.

Madison Ave. Invades UN

Wall Street Journal

It's happened.

Madison Avenue, only a few blocks from Wall Street in point of quarters anyway, has succeeded in planting a foot in the very-hallowed-with-olive vernacular in the world of international affairs.

Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, in answer to a question about his recent conferences with French officials, said he had reviewed "all matters which may, so to say, pending United Nations-wise."

And we can only wonder if it will end "Madison Avenue-ese." Is it unreasonable to assume that other phrases of the Dag will be adopted by the diplomats along with slogans and catch — words?

We can envision a Soviet spokesman proposing that the U.S. plan to increase aid to various from Curtain countries. He might declare, "it is time to give communrades to live modern. We are giving them some of our newest planes and tanks because we care enough to send the very best. Soon all Communist lands will have that forward look and the feeling will wave wherever particular people congregate."

A U. S. delegate may retort, "The priceless ingredient of any foreign policy is the honor and integrity of its maker. You can be sure U.S. aid, bought with the American taxpayer's green stuff is to use against Russia, the whole world is to have a treat instead of a treatment will depend on the fear that made the cow famous."

But perhaps it would not be a bad thing after all for advertising, United Nations-wise, to be employed for years. It might turn out to be the last hope for the United Nations to achieve togetherness.

Here's Real World Series

St. Thomas Times-Journal

If you mention the world series to people in the United States or Canada he immediately thinks of the baseball series between the two baseball teams. No other team can challenge for the world championship. If the winner of the International League, in which Canadian teams take part, were to demand the right to compete, he would be laughed to scorn.

During the past year or so, soccer teams representing many countries have been competing for the right to take part in a world tournament in Stockholm, Sweden, next June. The countries which have qualified to reach the world championship are Argentina, Brazil, Paraguay, Mexico, Russia, Hungary, Austria, Czechoslovakia, West Germany, Sweden, Yugoslavia, England, Scotland and Ireland.

Nearly $1,000,000 in advance ticket sales are already "in the bag".

No doubt about that being a real "world series."

Personal Health Talks

Vitamin B And The Alimentary Canal

Physiologically, vitamin B maintains the tone of involuntary muscle through the alimentary canal, from the gullet to the stomach and intestine, the heart and the arteries.

Tone means firmness, elasticity, functional efficiency.

The more refined the diet, the greater the need for a good daily ration of vitamin B to supplement the diet.

Most of the calories in the diet of most Americans today come from refined white flour and refined white sugar. Nutrition and health authorities agree that this diet supplies insufficient vitamin B to maintain the tone of involuntary muscle in the stomach, intestine, heart and arteries.

Wheat from which nothing is removed in grinding, milling or refining, is the richest food source of vitamin B.

I do not mean to imply that restoring wheat to your everyday diet in place of part of the refined white flour and refined white sugar on which you now subsist will immediately give you good circulation and good digestion, but I do assure you that your earnest efforts in this direction can do no harm.

One of my peculiar notions is that an optimal daily ration of vitamin B complex (specifically two or three times as much vitamin as nutrition authorities believe necessary to prevent manifestations of nutritional deficiency disease) plus the other vitamins that grow with B1 and a little manganese and iron gluconate, gives many vicitims of real or iatrogenic (doctor-caused) weak heart the tonic effects they only hope to get from digitalis. Fool proof heart tonic, I call it.

The same optimal daily ration of vitamin B complex is good medicine and not a cure-all, but experience has shown should take daily the year around. And so I consider it a must for any one constipated, bilious, nervous or ed colon (otherwise called spastic colon or "mucous colitis.")

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A year ago, some lifelong friends, whom we used to see three or four times a week when they lived a few miles away, moved out to one of the fashionable new suburbs on the far fringes of the city.

About the same time, some other members of the family circle moved to a small town 82 miles away.

In the past year, we have visited the old friends, who live twelve minutes away by the suburbs, nine times. But we have visited those who live 82 miles away, fourteen times in the city.

To reach the village dwellers, 82 miles distant, we have to drive seven minutes from our house to the entrance of a by-pass highway, and in four more minutes, we are on a great four lane highway that leads through lovely countryside a matter of an hour from the hearth and home of our kindred.

But to reach our suburban friends, we have to fight our way twelve miles through frantic big city traffic, night or day; in and out of belts of traffic lights, around cloverleafs, past forty intersection traffic lights; watching out for a hundred stop streets and other signs and symbols; backing and filling at the most jammed intersections out of which at any moment a driver may break in the hands of a youngster may lurch.

We should all live either five minutes from downtown, or else eighty miles away.

Strength for The Day

By DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

RELIANCE ON THE FINAL OUTOME

Some of us have the reform complex. We lose patience with the imperfections of human life, the stupidity and wickedness of man, the way intolerable things are allowed to drag on for centuries afflicting God's children, when a little intelligence, courage, and faith in God and each other would keep these things from being discard. "Why not?" we cry, "and why not right now?"

Jesus spoke a parable touching this situation. It is called the parable of the weeds and the wheat. A farmer sowed good grain, but while he slept his enemy came and sowed tares — or weeds — and in due time both wheat and weeds grew up. "Shall we go and root up the tares?" inquired the servants of the farmer. "Nay," replied the farmer, "lest while ye gather up the tares ye root up also the wheat with them. Let both grow together until the harvest: and in the time of the harvest I will say to the reapers, Gather ye first the tares and bind them in bundles to burn them: but gather the wheat into my barn."

The point is that which can be corrected and should be as quickly as possible. But some will not be corrected. Wheat and tares will grow together until the end of the age. Then destruction for all that is evil and imperfect, and cherishing for all that is good.

There will be a harvest. On that we are to put our reliance.

His Silence Honest One

Christian Science Monitor

Homer Croy, author, says the Associated Press, has just returned to his home in Denslow, Denslow, from whom he had borrowed it when they were fellow students at the University of Missouri 49 years ago. No note of explanation accompanied the book.

Crude of Mr. Croy? Before we accuse him of churlishness let us consider the case. Perhaps he said:

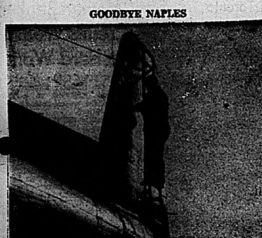
"I found the book so absorbing I could not put it down." (Mr. Croy is no illiterate; his friend would know he could have read it a hundred times in 50 years.)

"Every time I saw you or passed your house I thought of that book but never had it with me."

(Perhaps Mr. Croy and Mr. Denslow live in different towns a thousand miles apart as they do now.)

"I got buried under a pile of mail and magazines and I just came across it." (Plausible excuse for a writer; but these piles do get cleared out biennially, by one's wife if not by oneself.)

"I enjoyed it so much I loaned it to a friend and he has just returned it. Here it is, pass." There couldn't have been (we such borrowings in one lifetime.)



The only honest thing Mr. Croy could have done he has done; return the book with no comment, leaving his friend to forget his pique, if any, in wondering as we are, what on earth did happen.

GOODBYE NAPLES

The last of the RCAF C-119's based at Naples receives an external check from LAC F. M. Koll of Edmonton before its return to Canada. The RCAF's No. 114 Communications Flight has been based at the Italian airport in the shadow of Mount Vesuvius for more than a third of a century ferrying supplies to the United Nations Emergency Force in Egypt. Its role is now being taken over by commercial airlines, although another RCAF unit, based at El Arish in Egypt, will remain to provide other air services to the UNEF.

PEARSON

4. The present 20-per-cent corporation income tax on small companies would be reduced to 10 per cent on the first $10,000 profits, saving these businesses about $25,000,000 a year.

5. Present rates of depreciation would be increased by between 50 and 100 per cent on capital expenditures started in the 1958-59 fiscal year beginning next April 1.

AID LABOR, YOUTH

In addition, Mr. Pearson promised special aid for municipalities, farmers, labor, Canada's youth and pledged to expand social security measures.

For children outlining studies, the family allowance would be extended to age 18 from the present 16. Unmarried women and widows would be able to get old age assistance of $55 a month at the age of 60 instead of the present 65. Unemployment insurance would be provided for illness as well as for being laid off.

A national forestry board would be set up to study the effect of automation or employment, and to plan long-term construction projects. Board representatives would include industry, labor, agriculture and universities.

New transportation ventures would be launched, including a $60,000,000 rail branch to Great Slave Lake in the Northwest Territories.

BOOST FARM AID

The government's support prices for barley, now 58 cents a pound, would be boosted to 63 cents. Wheat, oats and barley would be brought under "definite price supports."

A total of 2,500 Canada scholarships and 7,500 Canada bursaries would be provided for university students, along with a university loan fund. Each scholarship would be worth $1,000 a year for four years; the bursaries $500 a year for four years.

During the first year of operation, there would be 40,000 scholarships and bursaries available, costing $25,000,000 a year.

The awards would be based on competitive ratings and granted in consultation with the provinces working through the national conference of Canadian universities.

Mr. Pearson said there may be other proposals by the Liberals at the ampaign proceeds. At various periods during the campaign he would elaborate on the details, but would include these followed resolutions passed by the Liberal party convention last Jan. 14-16.

He Wins Bonus For Telling Little Secret

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A civilian employee of the United States Air Force received a $3,100 bonus today because a suggestion he made has saved the government about $5,000,000 in two years.

William H. Hembree, engine inspector assigned to the Southwest Airmotive Corporation here won the cash award for discovering that the air force and the navy had been flying the same type of light bomber — a B-25 Mitchell — for 12 years without realizing that parts for the planes were interchangeable between the services.

U.S. Could Send Rocket to Moon By End of Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States military missiles experts say the army and the air force could shoot rockets as far as the moon this year.

Maj.-Gen. John B. Medaris, chief of the army ballistic missile agency at Huntsville, Ala., said Sunday the army could put a satellite in orbit around the moon within months, if it got permission to try. Medaris also said on a television interview that the army could send a manned expedition to the moon in 15 years.

Defence department missiles specialists said the air force's 1,500-mile Thor missile could be augmented by additional rocket stages to send a payload to the moon this year. So far, the department has given no orders for such a try.

The payload in a moon rocket would include radio transmitters and a spotter charge to mark the rocket's impact on the moon.

The air force's moon rocket capabilities were discussed in a defence department briefing on American missile and anti-missile missile research and development.

SUBMARINE FLEET

The missile experts said the U.S. Navy is working toward a fleet of submarines with each craft capable of firing more than 10 hydrogen-bomb-tipped Polaris missiles. The Polaris is planned for a range of up to 1,500 miles.

One navy missile man said a Polaris-equipped submarine, firing from under way, would enjoy "almost complete invulnerability to counter-measures of all kinds."

Reports were told of plans for equipping long-range, high-flying aircraft, possibly operating on nuclear power, with 1,500-mile range missiles. But it may be as long as five years before such a combination is ready.

The experts indicated they are optimistic about solving the problem of intercepting and destroying oncoming long-range missiles.

An army missile official said an intercontinental ballistic missile follows "a highly predictable trajectory" once it shoots beyond the earth's atmosphere.

BUILD DETECTION SYSTEM

The air force announced Saturday contracts have been awarded to manage and implement a detection system aimed at giving early warning of enemy missile attacks. The heart of such a detection system is radar equipment with a range of 3,000 miles. Plans call for placing such sets in the Far North where they could detect missiles moments after their launching.

An air force official explained that the radar equipment is designed to be so precise that it would have "a 99 per cent plus probability of raid detection with a low false alarm rate."

Comedy Takes 7 of 11 Awards At Festival

MONTREAL (CP)—A 22-year-old Montrealer wrote, directed and starred in the comedy-fantasy which took seven of the 11 awards at the Western Quebec regional drama festival Saturday.

Ciel et Mecanique-Heaven and Mechanics, by Luc Durand won awards for the best production, the best Canadian play, the best visual production, the best actor, actress and supporting actress and the best backstage efficiency.

"Mr. Durand has fulfilled the duties of a writer," said adjudicator Richard West. "He has created a play with charm and originality, and one that can be played."

The comedy, which closed the six-night festival, was staged by a newly-formed French-speaking Montreal group called Le Guignol a Moustaches.

Mr. Durand won the best actor award and Lisa LaSalle the prize for best actress.

N. E. DANCE

Approximately 300 attended the mid-winter dance of the Northern Electric Company held on Friday evening at Club Commodore. The music was provided by the Commodore orchestra, with Jim Ritchie as entertainment chairman.

Spot dances were won by Mr. and Mrs. D. Fisher; Bernadette Dugan and Ray Hunter and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hopkins. The door prize by Ron Philp.

The next dance will take place late in March at Club Commodore.

Christ Church A.B.W.A. Plans Coming Events

The regular monthly meeting of the afternoon Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of Christ Church was held on Thursday afternoon with a good attendance.

The meeting was opened with the singing of the hymn "Breathe on me Breath of God", accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Horace Wright. Mrs. C. Hayes read from the Gospel of St. Matthew, 20: 1-6. Mrs. Godden, the president, asked for the treasurer's report, and it was found that the balance was substantial enough to be able to send part of the pledge to the Diocesan treasurer.

The Dorcas secretary reported that the material for dresses for the bale had been purchased and could be given to those who wished to sew. There have been approximately 20 calendars sold up to date: an increase over last year.

Mrs. W. Ashton was asked to represent the president at a meeting on Monday at Bridge St. United Church in preparation for the coming World Day of Prayer service.

BISHOP GREENWOOD

On Thursday, February 20th, the Rt. Rev. T. Greenwood, Bishop of the Yukon, will be in Belleville, and is scheduled to speak at an afternoon meeting at St. Thomas' Church. The W. A. members planned to cancel their regular meeting and all go to hear his message. Bishop Greenwood will also speak at St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill in the evening, and those who are unable to attend the afternoon session will be able to hear him at that time.

Plans for the 'Tea' were discussed and found to be complete to date. All members were assigned their various duties, and any who were unable to be present are assured there will be a place for them at the 'Tea' next Thursday afternoon.

An invitation has been received to join the Evening Branch on Monday evening when they will have a film on his year's Study of Japan entitled "As a Mustard Seed Grows".

Mrs. G. G. Wright and Mrs. D. Stewart served a cup of tea, and the members enjoyed a happy half hour looking at a display of some lovely articles to be sold at the 'Tea'.

Chemise Line

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

The chemise line makes a good showing in resort fashions. There it is in white linen, marked at the neckline by a wide band of eyelet embroidery and lace. Black velvet ribbon runs through and ends in ties at each shoulder. The dress is very slightly fitted in front and the back is loose, tapering to slimness below the hips.

Looks Forward To Celebrating 103rd Birthday

Rose Clark, oldest resident of the House of Providence here, expects a birthday cake with 103 candles, and a visit from her favorite great-grandnephew, Mrs. Florence Curtin and Mrs. Fred Askey, both of Toronto.

Miss Clark attributes her longevity to a strong heart, a cheery disposition, a good sense of humor and a keen interest in world events.

KEEN MEMORY

"My memory is as good as it was 30 years ago," said the grand old lady in an interview. "My mind feels as clear as a bell."

She explained that she had never been sick a day in her life until she was 75, when whooping cough got the best of her. She doesn't know what it means to have measles, chicken pox or mumps.

"I may be thin today but I feel wiry," she added.

Talk of satellites, missiles or trips to the moon doesn't phase the Irishwoman who would prefer stay home even though she'll for the modern way of life.

Her activities just now are somewhat curbed, since she is recovering from a bout with influenza.

"I'm just starting to feel peppy again," she said.

As a young girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Clark, she lived on a farm at Downeyville, near Lindsay, Ont. She can remember when the first train from Toronto arrived in Lindsay.

Albert College 'At Home' Most Successful

The annual "At Home" formal dance was held at Albert College on Saturday and attended by both faculty and students, many of whom were returning graduates.

Chairman of the dance was Mr. T. K. Franklin, under whose convenorship a successful party evolved.

The Valentine theme was used and Ackerman Hall was nicely decorated. One feature was an outline of a large heart behind which the couples sat on a replica of an old-time park bench to have their pictures taken.

The music was supplied by Peter Bateman's orchestra and John McDermid was master-of-ceremonies.

This dance, which is held annually, is a highlight in the Albert College year, for it not only provides entertainment for resident students, but gives former students an opportunity of returning to Albert.

Kiwanis L.A. Names New Committees

The Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary held its February meeting in the Kiwanis Centre, Wednesday evening, with 24 members in attendance. President Erma Reid presided.

Following a sing-song the business meeting was held. The treasurer, Laura Hyde, showed a balance of $135.15. Two cards and one rose bowl were sent out to the sick during January. A letter from the Children's Aid Society was read in which the members were invited to "Open House" at the new receiving centre on Saturday.

Alice Burkitt gave a special thanks to Elsie Punchard and Edna Robb who gave her such valuable assistance at the bridge a last year. She spoke briefly about this year's "Valentine Bridge" to be held in the Centre this month. Members are reminded to bring articles for a draw of a grocery hamper. Kay Eurton was introduced as a new member. The Public Skating Club and St. Thomas' W.A. auxiliary were gratefully offered the co-operate by changing the dates of their "Marathon" and "Bridge" respectively.

It was decided that the Auxiliary would be entitled to assist the members of the Kiwanis Club by assisting at the box office at the next Kiwanis Club "My Fur Lady," to be held in Belleville on February 21st and 22nd. The request from the Red Cross was made for volunteers to assist at the blood bank to be held at the hospital on Tuesday evenings from 6.30 to 9.30 p.m. Ella Punchard and Betty Lusk and Lois Morris; special refreshments — Eva Dustin and Mrs. Ellis; tickets — Grace Litzhen Walton and Ann Finkle; house— Vera Creegan, Marie Cogerty — Melissa Ella Lloyd; visiting — Janice Vermilyea; Red Cross — Dorothy Bullen, Jessie Colcleugh — Patti Emerson and Elsie Punchard; pianist — Muriel Jost; Mary Ann Colcleugh.

Following the conclusion of the business session, the ladies enjoyed a game of "Bunko" after which Rita Parland's group served refreshments.

Questions Asked On Home Freezer Management

Numerous inquiries on freezing and home freezer management are received every week by the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture. Recently the questions most frequently asked have concerned "freezer burn," the importance of good packaging, and what to do about foods that have accidentally thawed. Here are the answers given by the home economists:

Q. — What is "freezer burn?"

A. — "Freezer burn" is a surface discoloration of frozen foods caused by loss of moisture. Sometimes it is called dehydration or desiccation. Freezer burn is objectionable because it is accompanied by changes in the color, flavor and texture and lost weight of the food. Usually it is a sign of poor packaging.

Freezer burn may be recognized by the bleached, chalky mottled appearance it gives to frozen foods, especially meats and fish. Dark cured meats like beef become light pink and sometimes have light gray spots. On cattled meats, for example, freezer burn appears as lightcolored, circular areas around the feather follicles, or as larger discolored (whitish) areas on the skin surface. The color of vegetables fades noticeably, less becoming pale and stale. Frozen baby foods, rich in high acid content, fruits show less deterioration from freezer burn than other foods do.

Q. — Why are special packaging materials necessary for freezing?

A. — To keep the moisture and flavor in the food inside the package and to keep air and objectionable flavors out. Packaging materials made especially for freezing are moisture - vapor-resistant which means that they are designed to prevent freezer burn during development through oxidation, and the interchange of flavors of the foods stored in the same freezer or locker.

The cold dry air present in freezer storage exerts a constant pulling force on the moisture contained in the foods and as exposed or improperly packaged food will lose its moisture to the surrounding cold air in the form of vapor. As explained previously, freezer burn develops when moisture is lost.

Oxidation is often confused with freezer burn however it is an altogether different process. Oxidation occurs when the air invades the frozen packages and mingles with the food cells, resulting in the formation of new chemical compounds which form a disagreeable taste known as rancidity. The higher the fat content of a food, the more vulnerable it is to oxidation and subsequent objectionable development. This is one of the main reasons that the recommended storage time for pork is much shorter than that for beef.)

Q. — Why is it important that foods be tightly wrapped when they are to be stored in a home freezer?

A. — To exclude air pockets which contains moisture and oxygen. Even though frozen food is protected by wrappings which permit no escape from the package, dehydration and oxidation may still take place if all the space is not completely filled with food. Over a period of time the food adjacent to the air pockets in storage becomes dry, and ice crystals build up in the food. (These crystals are sometimes present in packages of frozen vegetables, dry-pack fruits and prepared foods. The crystals should be used along with the food in the package as they contain some of the moisture and flavor originally present in the food.)

Q. — If my freezer goes off accidentally is it safe to refreeze the food that has thawed?

A. — The home economists of the Consumer section do not themselves conduct bacteriological tests on frozen and thawed foods, however, it is generally agreed by authorities in this field that so long as some ice crystals remain, food can be safely refrozen even though it has partially thawed. If no ice

Woman Banker Credits Wealth To Hard Work

NEW YORK (AP) — If you can trust the feminine intuition and business judgment of a lady banker, the present recession will be short-lived.

"I'd rather call it a pause, anyway, than a recession," said Mrs. Mary Hutchings, president of Trenton (N.J.) Trust Company.

A firm optimism and faith in a growing future are part of the life credo of this sprightly 58-year-old widow, who thinks she is no less feminine because she can handle the details of a $5,000,000 bank loan and still bake a good roast or decorate her apartment.

Mrs. Roebling started her business career at 20 in the statistical department of a Philadelphia brokerage firm. Soon she was selling securities.

When her husband, wealthy Siegfried Roebling, member of the family that built the Brooklyn Bridge, died in 1925, she took his place as a member of the board of the Trenton Trust Company. Two years later she was elected president.

The bank then had assets of $17,000,000. Today it has $70,000,000 in assets.

Mrs. Roebling, who also is a director or trustee of 18 other corporations, was named in a recent magazine article as one of the 10 wealthiest women in the U.S. She is reported to have an income of about $1,000,000 a year. She prefers to keep her financial affairs to herself, except to remark drily, "I squeeze my own cheque book."

The attractive redhead with greenish-blue eyes, Mrs. Roebling dresses chicly. Some 65 per cent of the customers of her bank are women, but Mrs. Roebling says she finds no discrimination against women in the financial world.

"Women have the rarest commodity in the world, and one of the most valuable — common sense. I wouldn't say that men haven't got it, too, but they certainly haven't got a corner on the market."

Mrs. Roebling, who reared two children, says the fraternity of career woman is largely a myth.

Four times a grandmother, she is five inches over six feet tall and would wear down a college crew. She likes to dance, speed in her motor boat and ride a week at astounding public dinners, parties theatres and musical concerts.

"Hard work."

Dear To The Heart Of Matchmakers

By Mary Moore

ent to a bridge party as long as January 27th where the Valentine theme was used for food, napkins and decorations. The same day I had had tea in a home where the Christmas cards were still strung up. So I am giving you some recipes with a strong Valentine influence that you can use right up to St. Patrick's Eve if you want to stay in style.

PENNYWISE VALENTINE CANAPES:

One-half pound wieners, 10 slices bread, butter, catsup. Cut each wiener into 16 coinlike slices. Cut bread into heart shapes. Place it on a buttered baking sheet. Spread with butter and catsup. Arrange a dozen wiener slices in an attractive overlap heart design on top of each bread cutout. Pat down firmly. Toast under hot broiler 3 or 4 minutes. Serve immediately.

Dinner Menus

MONDAY

French Onion Soup; Creamed Tuna and Peas in Noodle Ring; Shredded Lettuce, Carrot and Green Onion Salad; Riverden Cream with Cherry Sauce; Coffee.

PARTY SANDWICH LOAF:

One unsliced sandwich loaf, one day old, cheddar cheese spread, chicken salad filling: (½ cup ground, cooked canned chicken, ¼ cup minced celery, 2 tablespoons relish, ¼ teaspoon salt, grated rind of ¼ lemon, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise) egg salad filling: (3 finely chopped hard-cooked eggs, 2 tablespoons minced ripe olives, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon prepared mustard, ¼ teaspoon curry powder, 2 tablespoons mustard); ham salad filling: (½ cup finely ground cooked ham, 2 tablespoons minced green pepper, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise.) 1 tablespoon minced onion), cheese frosting: (2 3-oz. packages cream cheese, ¼ lb. grated snappy cheddar, light cream); radishes, parsley, watercress. Trim crust from top, bottom and sides of sandwich loaf. Place loaf on side and slice lengthwise into 5 even slices; each about ½ inch thick. Spread bottom slice with cheese spread which has been creamed with mayonnaise to spreading consistency. Spread 2nd. slice with half of chicken salad, top with thin slices of tomato. Spread tomatoes with rest of chicken salad. Cover bottom slice with it. Spread 3rd. slice with egg salad and add to stack. Spread 4th. slice with ham salad and add to stack. Top loaf with last bread slice. Frost top and sides of sandwich loaf with cheese frosting. Chill overnight or well covered. Garnish loaf with sliced radishes, and arrange parsley and watercress around platter.

HEARTY PASTY CAKE:

Two cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup plus 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, ¾ cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Sift sifted flour, baking powder and salt together three times. Cream butter; gradually blend in sugar. Add unbeaten eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add vanilla to milk. Add flour mixture to creamed mixture a quarter at a time, alternating with three additions of milk and combining lightly after each addition. Turn into greased 8-inch pans, bottom paper-lined. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 25 minutes. Spread whipped cream between and on top of layers and decorate with red candy hearts or sliced maraschinos.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

ARE THESE PARENTS "RIGHT" IN EXPECTING ALLOWANCE FROM SON?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Your column helps so many people, and now my husband and I hope you can help us with our problem. We do so want to do the right thing with our son. He is 20 years old, received his Master's Degree in Engineering last May, and the first of June went to work out-of-town at a very good salary. When he left we gave him $75 for his expenses for the month until he got his first salary. Four months later he returned this. But never has he said a word about any home obligations. We have left this up to his conscience, but I must confess that we have been hoping for a weekly allowance from him.

My husband is an office worker, has a modest salary, and we are under great strain in paying private hospital expenses for our only other child, our 16-year-old daughter who is in the hospital with a mental disorder. She may never be able to work again. The house we bought so that our two children would have a nice place to have their friends visit, is now, of course, too big for us, and the housework is a problem for me. We pay for our son's board until he was 23 without his ever having to work after school; paid his tuition in Engineering School. Now he comes home for weekends about twice a month, but never offers us anything to help us out. Are we right in expecting him to give us a weekly allowance? He is really a fine boy, not undutiful, only is not taking things for granted. Thank you for any advice you will give us. — Mother

Undoubtedly your son is "just taking things for granted," as so undoubtedly you, his good and sacrificing mother, and your husband, his good and sacrificing father, have always given him the privilege of doing. You have both carefully and protectingly brought him up to take, never to have any responsibility to give. Now he is old enough, and I believe is mature enough, to have shown his obligations to you and his father, his responsibility to contribute to the home expenses. Talk this over with him in the good and gracious way I'm sure is characteristic of you, straightforwardly explaining your present need of help. Your idea of a weekly sum is a very good one, easier, because more definite, for both sides to decide on and to plan on.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each week a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mrs. R.F. — Natalie blames me for her father's desertion. Nothing I can say can understand why he never loved her.

Mrs. R.F. — A year ago, after a marriage of 18 years, my husband left me and our two children and went to live with another woman. He told me he had been deceiving me for years and could not live a double life any longer.

For a long time I almost thought I would lose my mental balance, but then I began to see why the whole thing had come to pass. My eldest — especially my 15-year-old daughter, Natalie. She has become completely unmanageable. She wears tons of make-up, stays out late, is failing in her school work and is constantly rude and nasty at home.

She tried to run away to her father but of course he doesn't want her and brought her right home. The worst of it is that she blames me for her father's actions.

Natalie F. — My mother has told me what a terrible man my father is to have done this, but I don't blame him. My mother is a nag, a shrill-pot. She cries all the time and has made a fool of herself.

I saw the woman my father ran away with. She is very, very pretty and beautifully dressed. My mother goes around like a sob all the time. She is so old-fashioned, and even wears no make-up. Some times she really looks awful.

I don't want to be anything like my mother when I grow up. My mother and dad couldn't know how to hold her husband, but it doesn't understand anything about today's teenagers. I used to love her more than my father, but now that I am older I can see all her faults and can understand why my father never loved her.

The Council: Natalie has certainly gotten the secret of blows to the most difficult time of her life and she will need a great deal of understanding and help if she is to find her way to a happier life.

It won't do for Mrs. R.F. to defend herself and tell Natalie how "terrible" her father is. It is enough that Natalie know her father has done wrong, that law, society and religious teachings condemn his action. He — mother, teacher, competent outside adult should explain to Natalie that she cannot possibly understand or evaluate the real inner reasons for her father's actions. She should know that the whole thing can't be explained away by her mother's grooming — or lack of it.

Beyond that, Mrs. R. F. should make an effort to show that she wants to help Natalie become an attractive and popular young woman. Natalie needs reassurance that man do not ordinarily walk out on their wives and that violent methods are not usually required to "hold" them. Certainly, it should be easy to point out that he girls who wear "tons of makeup," stay out late and fail in schoolwork are not the most popular teenagers.

Undoubtedly Natalie is highly disturbed at this time, but her mother should recognize that her violent language and wild accusations are partly a blowing off of steam. She should try to keep it from getting under her skin. She needs all the courage, cheerfulness and mental poise she can possibly summon.

BIG NEWSPRINT OPERATION

A proposal by a United States firm, Crown Zellerbach Corporation, to explore the possibility of building large pulp and paper mills in Newfoundland has been agreed to by the provincial cabinet and awaits confirmation by the provincial assembly.

The company contemplates building facilities to produce 400 tons of newsprint and 2,000 tons of wood pulp a day if the undertaking is found economically feasible.

This map shows location of the two existing pulp-and-paper mills in Newfoundland, those of Bowater's (Nfld.) Pulp and Paper Mills Ltd. at Corner Brook, and the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Co. plant at Grand Falls.

Shaded area on Newfoundland map shows crown lands leased to the Bowater and A. N. D. firms and to a few smaller operators where enough wood is cut annually to produce 530,000 tons of newsprint.

It is proposed to allow the Crown Zellerbach company to cut wood outside the areas leased by the present companies and also to cut in Labrador (shaded area in inset.)

The pulp and paper industry is worth $32,000,000 annually in wages to Newfoundland workers. (CP Newsmap)

Woman's Body Found in Field

WINDSOR (CP) — Police said Sunday night they are attempting to locate any person who knew a 60-year-old woman whose body was found in a field in Belle River, 30 miles east of here.

Corporal Ivan Edgar of the provincial police Belle River detachment said a house-to-house inquiry had failed to find anyone who had known Myrtle Shreve of who had met her in the last month.

He said a post mortem indicated "as far as is known at present" that the woman died of exposure. He said theories under investigation included one that the woman may have left a car and wandered, possibly intoxicated, into the field.

Police said there were no marks of violence on the body which was discovered by Ray Tweney, 35, of Belle River.

Suspend 644 New York Pupils

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York City board of education's new policy of ousting "violent" students to "protect the innocent" resulted Friday in the suspension of at least 644 pupils.

In elementary, junior and vocational high schools, 544 students were suspended. At least 100 others were suspended from academic high schools.

Both boys and girls were included in the ouster but the announcement gave no numerical breakdown by sex. The suspensions presumably are for an indefinite period.

The largest exodus was from Brooklyn, scene of many of the recent school rapes, stabbings and disorders in which both Negro and white students were involved.

MANY DIE IN BUS

SEOUL (AP)—A bus plunged off a bridge into a river near Kongju today, killing 26 or 30 persons aboard. The bus fell into nine feet of water after breaking through a railing when the driver tried to evade a pedestrian leading a calf, police said.

MOTHER DIES

OTTAWA (CP) — Mrs. Ivan Beriault, 66, mother of Raymond J. Beriault, secretary of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, and of Yvon Beriault, public relations manager of the Canadian Lumbermen's Association, died here Thursday night.

Thirty boys and girls from Syracuse were snowbound in a camp about 15 miles southeast of the city. Leaders of the group made their way out by bulldozer Sunday and obtained food for the youngsters.

Near Auburn, southwest of Syracuse, a group of 50 boys spent Saturday night in a bus that stalled on the way home from a basketball game.

All roads in the western and central counties of Seneca, Schuyler, Yates and Wayne were reported losed by drifts up to 15 feet deep.

At least six elderly men died of heart attacks from shoveling snow.

60-Year-Old Man Shoots Father, Then Kills Self

SHARBOT LAKE (CP)—Police said a 60-year-old man shot his 80-year-old father in the stomach, nailed his bedroom door shut and shot himself to death with a .22-calibre rifle at nearby Mountain Grove.

The father, Harvey Kellar, was found on a kitchen couch Sunday afternoon by provincial police who answered a summons from Leslie Hartwick, a nephew of the older man, who heard calls for help from the house but did not enter.

His mother could give only an incoherent account of the shooting which occurred Saturday evening.

Police said there had apparently been no argument between the two men, but the younger Kellar had been depressed since the death of his wife a few months ago.

The elder Kellar crawled outside following the shooting into subzero temperatures in an attempt to get help but returned to the house a few minutes later. He did not know his son was dead until the police broke down the bedroom door.

The wounded man was taken 35 miles south to hospital in Kingston, where his condition Sunday night was described as satisfactory.

Mrs. Alex Mercer, who with her husband operates a number of huts out of Petterlaw on the southeast shore of Lake Simcoe, said drifting snow covered the ice roads quickly after the first groups of fishermen went out Sunday. Visibility became so bad snowmobile operators had to abandon efforts to get them back.

"There's no reason to worry for their safety," Mrs. Mercer said, "the huts are well heated with oil stoves and they all have plenty of oil."

Mrs. Helen Rose, 26, of Richmond Hill, was killed Sunday in a two-car collision during a snowstorm at Newmarket.

29 IN BUS STRANDED

Among hundreds of persons stranded by the blizzard conditions and near-zero cold across Western Ontario were 29 bus passengers, who were forced to spend a night in the town hall at Exeter.

Ontario provincial police stopped motorists on Highway 400 between Toronto and Barrie Sunday and warned them they proceeded at their own risk because of poor visibility and mounting drifts.

Police said 20 minor accidents were reported on a 17 - mile stretch of the highway and 200 skiers at Collingwood were stranded and awaiting a snowplow.

The snowstorms and high wind disrupted a 1,300-mile international car rally between Toronto and Montreal Friday night.

Seventy-two of the 147 cars which started the endurance and reliability trial from Toronto and Montreal were forced to drop out. Two cars were involved in collisions near Montreal.

Montreal reported the third-worst snowstorm of the winter. A total of 1.000 men were working around the clock during the weekend clearing the snow. Some 200 trucks were on the job Saturday and Sunday as six inches of snow fell.

The dominion weather office promised little respite from the snow, zero weather conditions and blustery winds for Ontario areas most heavily hit during the weekend.

Unchanging conditions were forecast for the eastern Niagara, Lake Huron, Georgian Bay, Haliburton, Kirkland Lake, White River, Timmins-Kapuskasing regions and North Bay and Sudbury.

The weather man said a gale-driven rain and snow storm that roared through the Maritime Provinces Saturday and abated and promised clear skies and falling temperatures there for today.

Cold weather hit Western Canada too, after a mild spell. Alberta had sub-zero cold and the temperature was 30 below in Regina, Saskatchewan Sunday. The forecast was for continued sub-zero cold in the Prairie provinces this week.

Inco Research helps Canada grow

Towing highly sensitive electronic instruments from a plane, Inco's airborne prospectors look for promising ore deposits in the ground below. Electro-magnetic signals, sent down from the plane, rebound from the earth and are picked up by an electronic receiver in a bomb-shaped container towed by the plane. The signals are relayed to a chart recorder in the plane; a camera synchronized with the recorder takes a continuous strip of photographs of the flight line. Geophysicists locate areas that may contain nickel ore; then ground prospectors are sent in to continue the search.

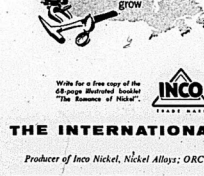
New air exploration techniques reveal hidden sources of nickel in Manitoba



USING a new method of prospecting, developed through Inco research, a significant ore discovery has been made in the Thompson-Moak Lakes region of Manitoba.

Ten years and ten million dollars ago, Inco began exploring likely areas of Northern Manitoba in search of hidden sources of nickel. Flying back and forth over these areas, an aeroplane equipped with special electronic instruments made "soundings" of the earth's crust. It was gruelling work; often unrewarding. Still, logging as much as 28,000 miles in a single year, Inco's airborne prospectors were covering more ground than old-time prospectors could have worked in a lifetime. And they got results. Good results.

As the days ran on into years, interesting patterns began appearing on the charts in the plane. Careful study of these charts indicated the possibility of ore deposits. Ground crews were sent in. After months of detailed investigation and exploratory drilling they confirmed the preliminary findings of the air prospectors. And it was nickel ore!

Production shafts are being sunk as the Initial step in a four-year development program that will involve an investment of $175,000,000, most of which will be made by Inco. Starting in 1960, this program — along with improvements at Copper Cliff — will result in an increase to an annual rate of 100,000,000 lbs. of Inco nickel.

In this new land of opportunity 400 miles north of Winnipeg a new town will rise, schools and hospitals will be built, new sources of water power will be developed, new railways will be constructed. And Canada's entire economy will benefit. Inco research helps Canada grow.

Court Ruling On Breath Tests May Be Appealed

REGINA (CP) — The provincial government has expressed its appeal a Saskatchewan court ruling that results of breath analysis tests are inadmissible as evidence in impaired or drunken driving prosecutions under the criminal Code.

The Criminal Code says "No person is required to give a sample of his breath and refusal to do so could not be used against him as evidence."

But the Saskatchewan Appeal Court judges ruled that the provincial legislation in intra vires of the province. That means it is within the jurisdiction of the province to refer breath tests under penalty of licence suspension. The judges held this is allowable because the province has jurisdiction over civil rights.

However, the evidence would not be admissible in court because it conflicts with the Criminal Code.

Such evidence might still be used in connection with claims or claims for workmen's compensation.

CABINET DECISION

Attorney General R. A. Walker said Friday the matter will be [illegible] before the cabinet before decision to appeal is made. He said the judgment was "not altogether unexpected."

Meanwhile, police will be instructed to continue taking breath analysis tests. There will be no attempt to introduce the evidence obtained in court.

Mr. Walker said no changes in the Saskatchewan legislation are contemplated at present. He said there is no way of telling how many convictions have been made in impaired driving cases in which breath analysis tests have been admitted as evidence. It would be up to individuals to decide whether to appeal these cases.

Provincial Treasurer C. M. Fines said he was not satisfied with the result of the appeal. He hinted the federal government should change the Criminal Code. "If they want to allow this slaughter on the roads to continue, that is their responsibility," he said.

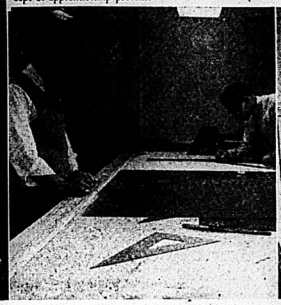
Organ Makers, St. Hyacinthe, Que.

Old World Traditions Prevail



In the creation of any musical instrument, the laboriously acquired skill of the experienced craftsman is one of the priceless ingredients. At St. Hyacinthe the medieval concept of apprenticeship prevails.

The two-manual or dual keyboard Great Organ — the type most commonly built at St. Hyacinthe— dates back to the XIVth century.

National Film Board of Canada Photos by Gar Lunney.

In the busy industrial town of St. Hyacinthe, Que., the long, low cluster of grey brick buildings which comprise the "House of Casavant" looks like any other streamlined tribute to modern factory functionalism. But once inside, the similarity ends, for here is no assembly line production, no machine replaces the hand of the skilled artisan, automation has made no inroads on the traditional manner of making organs. Old world skills, infinite patience and meticulous attention to detail combine to turn out the world-famous Casavant organ.

Casavant designers like to be in on the early planning stage of the building in which it is to be housed. Architects and engineers can then work together to assure that the organ will be ideally constructed and located for organs are acutely sensitive to their surroundings.

Emerson's observation that "If a man make better chairs or knives, crucibles or church organs than anyone else, you will find a broad, hard beaten road to his house," truly applies to the House of Casavant for their organs have been sought by music lovers all over the world.

Tips and Buys for the Gardener

'By FLORA M. SAVILLE

A flat paddle is an ideal tool for transplanting small plants to larger pots or to the open bed or border. A piece of orange crate is about the right thickness. The right length is ten inches. Cut a slot one and a half inches wide by five inches long and smooth the edges and surface with coarse sandpapes. Work the leaves up through the slot, turn the pot upside down and tap gently until the roots drop out. Have ready a larger pot, or hole in the ground to receive the plant.

A spindly plant will often have a fine bushy top. You would liker to cut the top off and root it but are in doubt about the plant forming new roots. Make a shallow nick where you wish the roots to form. Take a small handful of spagnum moss soak it in warm water and wrap around nicked area. Cover moss with a piece of clear plastic. Tie above and below moss. When roots are visible through plastic cut stem below ball, remove plastic. Plant with moss still in place.

Those [[fter tip cigarets do not disentigrate readily and the good gardener has appealed for help. To keep his garden tidy he can now buy a quart size black bucket with iron holder which can be pushed into the ground. Brass sifter and white sand make the job of cleaning easy. Prices range from $3.50 to $o.

Have you been examining your trees and shrubs for Dutch Elm disease, bark beetles and scale insects? If you found any you will know that a dormant oil spray is indicated. Any evergreens in the vicinity will be badly damaged by the oil spray unless you hose tnem off thoroughly after applying the oil spray.

Good tree protection against rabbits can be had by using snow fencing. A fifty foot roll will cost around $10, or you can buy smaller quantities. It is made up of unfinished slats ⅛ inch thick, one and a half inches wide and four feet high. The slats are fastened together with twisted galvanized wire, two inches apart. Cut to right length by cutting wire. Saw off ends to shorten and fasten ends together around tree. Anchor to tree, or by short guy wires.

When a wind storm rips a branch off a valuable tree cut off the ragged stub, but don't make it a straight cut. "Make - a V shaped cut with the depression at the center of the branch. Sterilize the wound with orange shellac or tree dressing. A V shape cut allows the healing cap to cover a greater area and tends to heal it more quickly.

Poinsettias a n·d chrysanthemums which flower in the fall have been called the short-day flowers. Scientists are changing that to the long night plants. Those of us who have carried over poinsettias have seldom been able to bring them into flower. The reason, too much light. In tre family livingroom the lights are turned on after the day light fades and this extra light prevents buds from setting. This is but one phase of the effect of lights on plants. Variations of light effect the germination of seeds. Slow growing trees such as pine can be advanced a year or more by extending the daylight hours with artificial light.

Tariff Board Deep in Study To Set Import Duty Protection On Textiles for Years to Come

OTTAWA (CP) — The tariff board now is deep in a study in which likely will set the pattern of import duty protection for Canada's entire textile industry for years to come.

The board is expected soon to complete its report on whether sharply increased tariffs requested by Ontario's wool cloth industry should be granted.

The bid was strongly opposed by British and Italian competitors who said increased protection for the Canadian industry would only boost consumer prices and drive more consumers to use of synthetics.

British representatives argued that increased tariffs would make the confidence of British exporters generally in the value and stability of the Canadian market and would be a serious deterrent to investment in promotion of trade with Canada.

COMPLEX STUDY

Tariff board members now are wading through an eight-volume, 1,600-page transcript of December-January hearings. It was the first phase of a study of the entire textiles tariff structure ordered last fall by Finance Minister Fleming. He asked the board to make recommendations "if these are found necessary." Hearings on the rest of the study in the industry are being held at intervals.

It is generally believed the findings of the board on the wool cloth case will establish the principle which will guide the board in reaching conclusions on tariff protection for other textiles manufacturers.

During the hearings, which coincided with the visit of the Canadian trade mission to Britain, Canada's wool cloth manufacturers contended their industry was in "serious danger." They said this resulted from lowpriced cloth imports from the United Kingdom and Italy.

Counsel Gordon Henderson of Ottawa, who represented the British industry, said any tariff increase at the present time "would ill accord with the agreed conclusions of both the Canadian and United Kingdom governments."

"Most serious would be the general effect on the Anglo-Canadian trading partnership of tariff erection of trade barriers against a section of U.K. exports to Canada which for many years has supplied such an important part in U.K.-Canadian trade."

BIG BUSINESS

Britain sells roughly $35,000,000 worth of woven woollen fabrics to Canada annually, about 1.2 per cent of Canada's total imports from the U.K.

Mr. Henderson said the total market for wool cloth in Canada is 75,507,000 linear yards from 47,660,000 between 1948 and 1954. He said the decline in the total market was "the main cause of the Canadian industry's troubles. All the time, and all the sorts of wool cloths from the U.K. or the effective rate of duty or them.

He added that the recovery in the total market since 1954 led to an increase in Canadian production to 20,711,000 yards in 1956, from 17,506,000 in 1954.

David Price, executive secretary of the British export group, said in his testimony that the rates of duty proposed by the Canadian industry would have resulted in an extra cost of $22,-972,034 to consumers of imported and domestic woollens during 1956.

He presented to the board detailed calculations which showed the actual duty paid on 1956 imports from the U.K. was $5,839,-171. If the rates proposed by the Canadian industry had been in effect, the amount cost of $22,-972,034 to consumers of imported and domestic woollens during 1956.

He presented to the board detailed calculations which showed the actual duty paid on 1956 imports from the U.K. was $5,839,-171. If the rates proposed by the Canadian industry had been in effect, the amount cost of $22,-972,034 to consumers of imported and domestic woollens during 1956.

He presented to the board detailed calculations which showed the actual duty paid on 1956 imports from the U.K. was $5,839,-171. If the rates proposed by the Canadian industry had been in effect, the amount would have been $9,586,579 or about 70 per cent more.

Mr. Price said the duty paid on imports which came from countries other than the U.K. in 1956 was $1,544,942. Under the industry's proposed tariff rates it would have been $2,741,212, up 78 per cent.

OPPOSING CURBS

Also opposing any move to restrain imports were the Canadian manufacturers' association, organizations and the British Columbia forest products association. The latter said forest products groups argued that any measure that would restrict potential trade between the U.K. and Canada, and adversely affect Canada's ability to earn dollars for the purchase of agricultural, forestry and other commodities, could not be allowed.

Other clothing m anufacturers contended Canadian mills do not and cannot be expected to have the high degree of specialization and many requirements stemming from demands of individuality of pattern, novelty of fabric and originality of design.

The Canadian wool cloth manufacturers called for a revamped tariff structure providing a general rate increase, elimination of the ceiling on the British rate, and higher specific based on yardage rather than weight. The idea behind the change is to boost protection s ub stantially since the trend is to lightweight materials.

Wool cloth manufacturers appealed for increased protection three years ago, but this was turned down. The board, at that time, said the problem was not so much the low tariff on imported cloth as the fact that the main competitors for the Canadian market were the high-cost Canadian woollen producers and other factors. Consumers were given a great synthetic products.

The industry argued during this hearing that the situations has changed. The Canadian wool cloth market had grown, but because of the low tariff and increasing imports, Canadian producers were getting a smaller and smaller share of their own market.

The industry was backed by unions representing the textile workers, the wool dealers association and the Canadian allied trades association.

Control Outer Space Through Agency PM's Plan for Peace

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker has addressed to the Ontario section of the Canadian Bar Association, meeting here on Saturday that an international agency should be established to control outer space.

The prime minister, himself a lawyer, was guest speaker at the luncheon dinner of the association.

In a speech devoid of reference to the approaching federal election, he told the lawyers it was up to them the world over to enforce that "rule of law" applied in international politics, and not just the rule of the jungle.

"An international space agency such as the international atomic energy commission, named by the United Nations assembly, should be set up thus assuring that jurisdiction of the atmosphere shall be vested in the United Nations," he said.

"This body would have inspection and licensing powers to police all operations of the outer space."

Such an agency would assure "that the outer space shall be used for scientific and peaceful operations only".

The prime minister said that "lawyers in every part of the world should see that an international convention be established to assure that in the launching of any satellites or rockets, previous notification should be given and a full exchange of information be made available to all nations."

It was up to the legal profession to call for a declaration that every nation, however, weak, should have the same territorial rights in space as the powerful nations.

He suggested three zones be set up:

1. Each nation should hold sovereignty up to the height where aircraft may fly. That land area should be considered as territorial space belonging to the nation.

2. Sovereignty of the subsurface of space should be carried up 300 miles, this area to be known as contiguous space and provide for a right of transit through this zone for all non-military flights between countries of the world.

3. The space above 300 miles should be free for the exploration of craft, such as today provided for the open sea.

The principle, he said were first propounded by a former McGill University professor.

Mr. Diefenbaker said: "The skies are becoming clouded with conflicting claims and confusion has become reality. The general feeling is that by the end of this year, there will be two dozen American satellites in space."

The U.S.S.R. has taken the stand it will not have anything to do with outer space control unless the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is dissolved. That price could spell disaster to the free world.

"The establishment of rules and principles in conformity with justice, with agreement designed by justice to mankind, cannot be delayed."

Textile Firms Are Pressing for More Protection

OTTAWA (CP) — The second round of the battle for increased tariff protection by Canada's textile manufacturers opens here today.

The Canadian Primary Textiles Institute wants sharply increased import duties on wool yarns and asks that present tariff regulations on cotton rags and yarns be consolidated.

In a brief to be presented before the tariff board, the Canadian industry argued that increased duties are required to counteract labor costs which it said are higher in Canada than in foreign industries competing for the domestic market.

The British textile group contends the erection of any trade barriers against a section of United Kingdom exports to Canada is bound to have a serious effect on the Anglo - Canadian trading partnership.

The hearings are a phase of a complete study of Canada's textile tariff structure ordered last fall by Finance Minister Donald Fleming. He asked the board to make recommendations for changes if such are found necessary.

Ice Fishermen On Lake Simcoe Reach Safety

PEFFERLAW, Ont. (CP) — Fishermen stranded in huts on wind-swept Lake Simcoe in Sunday's storm were brought ashore just after dawn today.

Mrs. Alex Mercer said about 7 a.m. she saw a sight in the huts she and her husband operate off the southeast shore of the lake near this community 50 miles north of Toronto.

"Some could be seen huddled on the ice, waving. But I don't think any of them had a bad time. The ones we saw this morning said they were none the worse for the experience."

Fishermen in the huts on the lake were brought ashore in six-old cars which were able to negotiate the drifted snow.

Mrs. Mercer said they could have walked back this morning in the clear, windless weather which followed the fierce weekend storm.

The Mercers have operated their fish camp here for seven years and this was the first time fishermen were stranded on the ice overnight, she said.

"I filled them with coffee an hour ago and they headed for home, all willing to come back. As a matter of fact, 18 new fishermen arrived this morning to begin ice fishing and ran right out to the farthest hut, about seven miles from shore."

CANADIAN DOCTOR SAVES LIVES OF BEDOUIN MOTHER, CHILD

Churchill Will Visit Eisenhower

ROQUEBRUNE CAPE - MARTIN, France (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill has definitely accepted President Eisenhower's invitation to visit him in Washington in April, his secretary, Montagu Brown, said Friday.

Churchill's visit will coincide with the tenth anniversary of the publication of his painting of how touring Europe's battlefields.

There has been a long-standing invitation from Eisenhower for Churchill, 83, to visit Washington. It was announced this week that the Eisenhowers had asked Churchill and his wife to stay at the White House if they decided to make the trip.

Conservatives Predict 30 to 40 Seats in Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Progressive Conservatives opened their federal election campaign in this Liberal stronghold Saturday with a forecast by Mines Minister Paul Comtois that they will take 30 to 40 of Quebec's 75 seats in the March 31 voting.

Mr. Comtois was guest speaker at a banquet honoring Senator Mark Drouin. Nine Quebec conservatives were elected to the last parliament. Sen. Drouin was Speaker of the upper house.

Sen. Drouin paid tribute to Premier Duplessis as "a great statesman who has made Frenco-Canadian proud of their language and their traditions and taught them to be afraid of no one."

Observers said there were numerous indications the Progressive Nationale party is plunging into the federal campaign on the side of the Conservatives.

In the last federal campaign a half-dozen Union Nationale cabinet ministers threw their support on the side of the Conservatives, but there was no all-out effort.

Hillary Guides Fuchs on Final Leg of Journey

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuters) — British Antarctic expedition led by explorers Vivian Fuchs and Sir Edmund Hillary, left Depot 700 Sunday to guide Fuchs' party over the last 91 miles of their journey to the South Pole last year.

The expedition hopes to reach Scott Base on McMurdo Sound—and end an epic 2,100-mile journey across the continent—before the approaching winter freezes in the Ross Sea.

In a radio report this morning, Fuchs said they expected to reach Scott Base through a line of crevasse country a few miles north of Depot 700.

SUPPLIES WAITING

The route is dotted with a line of supply depots laid last year. They contain a total of 42 drums of fuel, 300 days' supplies of food, almost the last drums of kerosene, and oil.

Hillary and his New Zealand party last year took 53 days to reach Depot 700 from Scott Base but the journey back is expected to be considerably quicker because of improved weather conditions and the assistance of the stores.

The party has until about the end of the month to beat the onset of winter.

JOHN BASSETT ILL

Reporting of Crime News Interesting Panel Discussion Before Canadian Bar Assoc.

TORONTO (CP)—Good taste and self-restraint, rather than restrictive legislation, should govern the reporting of crime news in Canada, Mr. Justice George A. Gale of the Ontario Supreme Court said Saturday.

He was summing up following a panel discussion by himself, lawyers Arthur Martin and Joseph Sedgwick, Grattan O'Leary, president of the Ottawa Journal, and A. D. Dunton, chairman of the board of the CBC. Lawyer Eldon Haines was moderator. The discussion was conducted in a session of the Ontario section of the Canadian Bar Association.

Mr. Justice Gale objected to the practice "followed in some parts of Canada" of reporters making their own investigations and printing their findings while police are investigating the same case.

"The standard of press comment in this country is a high standard," Mr. Justice Gale said. "The press editor holds sacred responsibilities and, in the main, discharges them."

SUBJECT TO CRITICISM

Both Mr. Dunton and Mr. O'Leary objected to the discussion being held behind closed doors of the Press—claiming it assumed that reporters could be bribed. They said the problem is "one of balance" between the right and responsibility of the press and the right of litigants to fair, unprejudiced trial.

Mr. Dunton and Mr. O'Leary both said legal safeguards of reputation prevent the press from it is the duty of court or crown officials to see that a person's such rights are infringed.

Mr. Justice Gale and Mr. O'Leary agreed that newspapers have a right to publish remarks by a magistrate in open court tending to show prejudice on the part of either.

"The magistrate should have thought of prejudice before he said it," Mr. Justice Gale said.

WOULD CURB SELVES

All three lawyers agreed lawyers should not get into fights in and that "a lawyer should say what he has to say in court and in court only."

Both lawyers and newspaper men agreed that motions for contempt of court should not be left entirely with the court that be-lieves it has been the victim of contempt, but could be handled with "more objectivity" by the crown attorney-general's department.

Mr. Dunton pleaded for a little more "sporting spirit." "Because a crime is a little more than a crime, it is not a reason why it should be treated differently from similar cases."

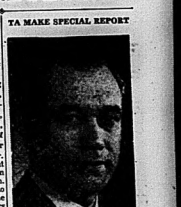
The question of a newspaper presenting "sensational" reports of a trial, commenting on the opinion from Mr. Justice Gale that they were free to "repro-duce the atmosphere of the trial" but must stop short of prejudicing the accused.

PICK SPICY BITS

Mr. Haines suggested some newspapers concentrate on crime and sex, to which Mr. O'Leary replied: "The press has its livers-sometimes you have to pick out the spicy bits."

Mr. Sedgwick agreed: "Until sex is abolished—which God forbid—the press will go on writing it and I will go on reading about it."

The one suggestion for additional legislation concerned the publishing of news from preliminary hearings. Mr. Justice Gale believed "this is one place where we should prevent the press re-production of matter to be heard at trial later."



Mr. Dunton and Mr. O'Leary disagreed, saying either preliminary hearings are public proceedings or they are not and it is up to the judiciary to decide.

Mr. Sedgwick suggested it would be "a good thing" if reporters could have copies of the witnesses' statements.

He agreed with the other panel members that a canon of ethics for the guidance of standing law exists in the U.S. and is unworkable. Good taste should rule.

"Bad taste is not the exclusive property of the press and radio," Mr. Sedgwick said. "We have seen many cases of bad taste on the part of the bar."

Britain's New Military Leader Son, Grandson, of Generals

LONDON (Reuters)—Gen. Sir Francis Wogan Festing, Britain's new military leader, is a red-cheeked, white-haired man who stands six feet 4½ inches and weighs 200 pounds.

He will take over as chief of the imperial general staff in September, succeeding Field Marshal Sir Gerald Templer.

The 54-year-old bachelor is the son and grandson of generals. His grandfather commanded a British garrison in Malta and a division in the Crimean War. His father fought in the Boer War, the South African War and the First World War.

LIVING LEGEND.

A man of exceptional mental and physical vigor, Festing was known in the British army as a living legend.

He joined the army in 1927 and served in India with the 1st battalion of the Royal Scots. He was then posted to the northern Burmese jungles under Brigadier Chindwin and far behind the Japanese front to relieve General Lentaigne's (formerly General Wingate's) Chindits.

Along the Burmese rail corridor they fought they way south for six months at two miles a day, supplied from India by air and using improvised jeep-trains for local transport.

BCI Hoop Squads Win Three Games From QSS Teams

By DONN MARTINSON

Friday night at BCIVS the BCI senior, junior and bantam basketball teams swept a triple-header from their intra-city rivals, the Quinte "Saints" "Little Saints" and "Little Saints" respectively.

The BCI bantams kept their unbroken string intact with a 38-15 win over the Quinte squad. BCI quickly jumped ahead in the first quarter when they outscored their opponents 21-9 and the score remained that way until half. In the third quarter, the teams checked closely with BCI holding a slight 10-6 scoring edge. But in the final quarter, BCI had the ball most of the time, scoring seven points while keeping Quinte off the score sheet, making the final score 38-15 for the home team. Don Skinner and Robbie Blaker led the winners with 10 points each. Thompson was top man for Quinte with nine points.

The BCI juniors, after being beaten by Quinte a few weeks ago by just one point, scored an impressive 47-31 win over the same team in their own gym. In the first quarter BCI started their scoring march, working an effective fast break to take a 20-8 lead.

Quinte played their best ball in the second quarter when they outscored BCI 10-5, which closed the gap to seven points at half. BCI held a slight edge in the play in the third quarter and a 7-3 edge in scoring. The final quarter was a see-saw battle and BCI outscored the visitors 11-10 to take the game 43-31. Brian Mackenzie swished in 19 points for BCI while Bill Green dropped in 18 points for Quinte.

The senior game was the closest game of the evening but was rather dull in places. The BCI team, still not playing their best, mauled a 55-45 victory over the Quinte squad. The score could have changed considerably if either team had been effective in their foul shooting. BCI was able to score 18 out of their 45 foul shots while Quinte made 15 out of their 45 shots. The BCI juniors outplayed the Quinte squad in the first half. The homesters led at the end of the first quarter 16-9 and never looked back. BCI outscored their opponents in a fast and exciting second half 21-13 to give them a half-time lead of 37-22. BCI, which usually plays better ball in the second half couldn't get rolling and Quinte held their playing and scoring edge in the second half.

The visitors outscored BCI 12-6 in the third quarter and outscored the home team 11-7 in a dull final quarter, but fell five points short as BCI took the game 50-45. Garry Stephenson potted 21 points for the winners followed by Roger Walters who rattled in 18 points. Brian Hobbs led the Quinte scorers with nine field goals for 18 points.

On the Tracks

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Born Rich, a five-year-old dark grey mare, came between horses in the drive to the wire and won the $57,300 Santa Margarita Handicap by a neck at Santa Anita Saturday.

Jockey Manuel Yeates was aboard the winner. Born Rich collected $34,360. Favored Market Basket was second and Noran third in the field of 11.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Iron Liege, winner of the 1957 Kentucky Derby, captured the $65,700 McLennan Handicap Saturday at Hialeah Park, giving Calumet Farm its first stakes victory since last August.

With champion jockey Bill Hartack making up most of the 124 pound assigned, Iron Liege ran the mile and a furlong in 1:48 flat, only a second off the track record for the distance set by Bold Ruler last February.

Mrs. Wallace Gilroy's Oh Johnny was half a length back in second place and C. T. Chenery's Third Brother was third in the field of 10 handicap horses.

Minor Hockey

Week after week the bantam goaltenders rack up more shutouts than do the goalies in any other section of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association.

The latest to perform the feat Saturday as no less than three of the morning's four contests ended in shutouts.

The Bruins squeezed by the Barons 1-0 with Bill Meeks picking up the goore egg in the Bruin nets. David Blakely fired the only puit with Barr drawing an assist.

Barry Overend recorded the shutout as the Maple Leafs downed the Red Wings 3-0. Lorne Fitzpatrick with a goal and assist paced the winning attack while Norm Richards and Kerry Soden also scored. Stu Malloy and Seames each earned one assist.

Canadiens dumped the Rangers 6-0 and Doug Tulk registering the shutout. Gary Reid and Jerry Jones each scored twice with Gary Duvall claiming a goal and assist. Bruce Simmons fired one goal while McGrimmon picked up a pair of assists.

Browns took the Black Hawks 3-1 in the other fixture. Ron Stratton and Ted Butcher each had a goal and assist for the winners while Dennis Ray netted the odd goal. Richard Donovan scored for Hawks with Hayes helping.

Little Benny's Notebook

Me and Pudz Simkins and Dopey Shultz and Lefty was looking in the window of Stern's Hardware and Sporting Goods store at the ice skates and punching bags and things, and I said, Oh boy, why don't somebody publicly leave me about a million dollars in their will?

You don't even know anybody that's got that much, that's why, Pudz said, and I said, That dont say I might run across some stranger man and not take anything from him for doing it, and he might ask me my name and write it down without saying what for, and then one day I'd get a notice in the mail saying he had left me a million dollars.

I expect to make a million dollars investing something. Pudz said. That's a lot safter than waiting for somebody you never saw before to remember you in their will. I've got an idea for a watch that tells time out loud in 10 different languages just by pressing the right button and holding it to your ear. Oh boy, you could sell it all over the world in 10 languages, he said.

I'm going to save my money, Shorty said. That's the only way to get a million dollers, by saving it instead of spending it, he said, and I said, Yeah, but where's it going to come from to start with?

I just told you, Shorty said, and Pudz said, Oh yeah, I forgot, he just said you were going to save it.

Well, that's where it's coming from Shorty said, and I said, Aw, you're dopier than ever, and Pudz said, Yeah, you're getting more dopey every day.

Industrial Hockey

Hillcrest Wreckers opened up a three-point lead in the Industrial hockey league over the weekend while Don's Dairy took over second place from Point Anne.

The Wreckers whipped winless Tweed by a 7-1 score in the first contest while Don's Delivery dashed Point Anne 3-1 in the second half of the double bill.

Hillcrest is in first place with 13 points followed by Don's with 12, Point Anne with 12, Terrors with seven, Circle TV with five and Tweed in the cellar without a point. Only two weeks remain in the schedule before the top four clubs enter the playoffs.

Jack Lucas, Dave Kelly and Wayne Fox each potted two goals as the scoring leaders downed Tweed. Rob Burrows added the odd goal. Jalpa Paine tallied the lone Tweed marker.

The Don's Point Anne affair was a hard-fought battle all the way with Charlie Kingston in the winning nets playing excellent hockey. He stopped bid after bid by Point Anne as the Cementmen couldn't to even matters in the second half of the game but surrendered only one goal to Lorne Maracle.

Dutchies Blitz Trappers 10-1; Bulldogs Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen took another vigorous stride toward the OHA-NOHA Senior A championship during the weekend and left North Bay Trappers somewhat trampled.

The flying Dutchmen, who have a goal average of better than four-a-game, boosted their full scoring power against the fourth-place Trappers and blitzed them 10-1. Eight goals came in a devastating, third-period onslaught which boosted Dutchmen's goals-for count for the season to 220. The win shot Dutchies 16 points ahead of second-place Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds who dropped a 5-4 decision to third-place Windsor Bulldogs.

Trappers, after their Saturday hammering, recovered some of their composure Sunday, and scored a 6-3 upset victory over Bulldogs.

Things were going fairly well for North Bay until that third period. They'd held the powerful Dutchmen scoreless in the first period, kept them to 2-1 in the second. Then the roof fell in.

EACH SCORE TWO

Butch Martin, Don Rope and Ron Howell led the scoring parade with two goals each. Jerry Theberge, Ken Lautman, Jim Uniac and Ted Maki added singles. Lone North Bay marker came from Jerry Cabana.

Cabana also was on the target for Trappers as they took a consolation victory from Bulldogs. He scored twice in the first period when the teams split four goals.

Ches Konecny and Jack Taylor put Trappers ahead 4-2 in the second period, Konecny and Don McGregor getting third - period tallies. Windsor marksmen were Wally Maxwell, Bob Brown and Mickey Roth.

Roth, Lou Bendo, Andy Milne and Wally Pawlyshyn, with two including the winner—scored for Bulldogs against Greyhounds. Mike Ratchford led Greyhounds, scoring twice, singles going to Jim McBurney and Nels Podolsky.

Hebert Wins Tucson Open; Leonard Fourth

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Conservative Dave Leonard, Leonard Hebert, the trumpet-playing professional from Lafayette, La., the championship of the $15,000 Tucson Open Sunday and sent him to the San Antonio Open this week richer by $2,000.

Playing his shots with caution after taking the lead on the second hole of the final round, Hebert came home with a 66 for the par 70, 6,436-yard El Rio layout and a 72-hole total of 265—15 under par.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Lachute, Que., was the best of six Canadians in the tournament. He wound up with a 272 for a four-way tie for fourth money, winning $862.

The other Canadians lined up this way: Bob Wylie, Calgary, 276; Al Balding, Toronto, 278; ex-National Hockey League player Bill Ezinicki, Winnipeg, 281; Lyle Crawford, Vancouver, 286; Jerry Magee, Toronto, 282.

HAD STROKE LEAD

Don Januzy of Eastland, Tex., had the one-stroke lead he held at the start of the final round when Hebert took a birdie three on the first hole. Even so he finished with 69 for the round and a total of 267, 13 under par, for second place and $1,500.

John Barnum of Grand Rapids, Mich., carded 67 and a 72-hole total of 269, good for third-place money of $1,200.

Jay Hebert, Sanford, Fla., the winner's elder brother, birdied five of the last nine holes to finish with 65 and a total of 272. Leonard, Ken Venturi, San Francisco, winner of the recent Palm Springs, Calif., and Phoenix Opens and the pre-tourney favorite, and Dow Finsterwald, Temecula, Fla., the defending champ, were also tied at 272.

Bill Johnston, co-leader with Tony Lema, Napa, Calif., after 36 holes, was hit on the elbow by Leonard's driver early in the third round and his score soared to 73. Sunday, the arm was improved. He came home with 69 and a 275 total for a tie for 11th place and $500. Lema shot 75 for 276 and $327.

Toronto Bowler Rolls 1,184, In 3 Games

TORONTO (CP) — Ron Gorelie of Toronto Saturday bowled a three-frame total of 1,184, setting a five-pin record for the Toronto men's major league.

Gorelie bowled a 388, a perfect 450 and a 406, for the record. Previous high-triple was a 1,137 total bowled by Charles Thoms of Kirkland Lake last year.

A "BIRD-WATCHER"!

They tell me the Aurora Borealis does wacky things to many things especially time-pieces up around Pembroke way. It seems Ole Aurora's crew must have been on a regular Saturday night binge the other evening, kicking up electric didos that had the clocks in a tizzy, especially the one in the timekeeper's ballwick in the Memorial Arena where the Macs were battling the desperate Lumber Kings in an all-out hockey duel.

The didos appeared to have a semi-paralytic effect on the second-hand of the timer's timepiece, so much so the McFarlands got worried about it's health and sent Turk Barclay over to sit around and observe the symptoms, and results, if any.

But the Pembroke laddybucks would have none of it. No clock-watching upstart from Belleville was going to act as nurse-maid to their clock or watch, even if it did at times show tendencies to lie down on the job. Besides, what difference would a few seconds make, outside of giving the Lumber Kings time to tie the score or win the game.

So they informed the Turk he would enjoy life much better in the company of his buddies from the banana belt across the way. They could take care of the time (take that one way you like) and if the Turk didn't mind they preferred doing it without benefit of his probing eye.

But the Turk couldn't see it their way. After all he doesn't get paid for overtime, unless in an emergency, and there was no point in forcing extra labor on him or the McFarlands. So it decided to call the second. After all, any day he might be promoted to the time-keeper's position, and being an smallnous cuss, he wanted to learn how to apply the "hurry-up" system in emergencies. You can't blame Turk for wanting to get along in this world.

But the Keepers of the Klock were adamant. No siree. Get out, or we'll call the referee. Turk stuck around. So out went the SOS to His Nibs. That worthy decided Turk's time would be better spent in his own environment of tape, sticks, liniment, underwear and Booster Club tickets, or watching his Macs continue on their merry way to the league leadership. Besides, if the time-keeper only found time dragging on their hands they could always call a buddy from the box seats to round out a foursome for bridge. That was it, but, out you go. So Turk wended his way back to the more homelike atmosphere of the McFarland bench, gnashing his bridgework in disappointment at being deprived of the opportunity to watch a rock-and-roll timepiece in action.

In more serious vein, Coach Gerry Plamondon, battling desperately to win, resorted to a rare piece of strategy after he had seen a three-goal lead go down the figurative drain. The Kings were leading 4-1 at one time in the third period, when the Macs suddenly flashed to scoring life, not only tying up the ballgame but taking a goal lead to boot before their offensive smoke had subsided.

The clock read less than five minutes to go, and two of the McFarlands were sitting out minor penalties. Plamondon pulled his goalie and threw six men to the attack in a dramatic effort to pull the game out of the fire. But the three Mac outside defenders aided and abetted by the sparkling work of Goodie Bell in the nets, spoiled, for the moment, Plamondon's desperate bid for equality or the lead.

Strangely enough, late in the period, with only seconds to go, the Lumber Kings, with both teams at full strength, did tie the score and force the game into overtime. However, a half-a-loaf is better than none and the Macs skated off with the two-points loot split and the Lumber Kings no better off as far as the standing at that moment was concerned.

The McFarlands have a circuit reputation of being a rugged, hard-hitting crew which has gathered a share of penalties, but understeath their red-and-white jerseys there beat hearts which can glow warm with sympathy if a friend or foeman meets with hockey misfortune.

They proved this beyond a doubt in Pembroke Saturday night when they collectively donated one of their 3-in-a Pembroke fund for the injured Ralph Buchanan of the Lumber Kings who lost the sight of an eye following a game injury. We understand the collection was unsolicited, the players was a generous one that was not only appreciated by the guardians of the fund, and "Bucky" himself, but which will draw the admiration of McFarland fans wherever they be.

The benefit game for Buchanan is being played in Pembroke tomorrow night with a representative team from Belleville, Cornwall and Kingston providing the opposition for the Kings. It is anticipated a sell-out house will see the game.

The Ottawa-Hull Canadiens are the McFarlands guests in Memorial Arena tomorrow night and the plucky fast-skating Frenchmen will be out to break the jinx the Macs have held over them in their last two starts. In this corner's opinion, Backstrom, Carter, Boucher and Rousseau and Sammy Pollock's crew are among the classiest players of the league, while Hull fans hold young Claude Richard, brother of the Rocket — Pocket in high regard. In Saturday night's Hawks-Canadiens telecast there was mention of an all-Richard line for the Canadiens some day.

Ed Chadwick, goalie for the Toronto Maple Leafs, who stopped 31 shots in gaining his fourth shutout of the season as Toronto defeated Boston Sunday.

Don McKenney, who scored two goals, and John Bucyk, who picked up a goal and three assists, as they led Boston Bruins to a 7-5 victory over Toronto Saturday.

Marcel Bonin of Montreal Canadiens, who scored two goals in Montreal's 5-3 triumph over New York Sunday.

Detroit Red Wings' Nick Mickoski, who scored a hat trick in a game against Montreal Canadiens at 19:48 of the final period Sunday to win their tenth straight exhibition win.

Chi-Hawks Whip Canadiens, Lose Sunday to Red Wings; Leafs, Boston Exchange Wins

By BILL MacDOUGALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The men who wrote the National Hockey League schedule gave Toronto Maple Leafs a break this weekend. They apparently didn't want it.

Three points behind Boston Bruins and two weekend games with Bruins—a real chance for Leafs to get rough and make hay thought many a Toronto fan.

The only person Leafs gave a rough time Saturday night was their own goalie, Ed Chadwick, as they bowed 7-2 to Bruins. Their only consolation after their Sunday night 2-0 win in Boston was that they wound up exactly where they started—in fifth spot, three points back of Bruins.

ALL TEAMS SPLIT

The other teams followed Leafs lethargic lead as they each won one of two weekend games. Saturday afternoon New York Rangers licked Detroit Red Wings 5-3 and the last-place Chicago Black Hawks, thanks to Montreal defi cient from last to fourth place by one, nipped Montreal Canadiens 3-2.

The standings now: Montreal has 76 points, one clear of second-place New York. Wings are next with 50 points followed by Bruins with 47.

Centre Don McKenney hit the 20-goal mark Saturday as he fired two against Chadwick. Singles went to Jerry Toppazzini, Larry Regan, Bronco Horvath, Vic Stasiuk and Johnny Bucyk. Tim Horton, defenceman turned right winger, Gary Aldcorn and Ron Stewart scored for Leafs.

HOWE IS BACK

Star right winger Gordie Howe was back in the Detroit lineup Saturday but Wings couldn't get a team going. Wings took an early lead when Howe set up Don Poile but Rangers tied it up before the end of the period on defenceman Bill Gadsby's goal. Andy Hebenton and Guy Gendron scored for Rangers in the middle period before Nick Mickoski for Wings other goal. Gadsby scored his second goal of the game before the period ended and Harry Howell, another defenceman, scored the final goal for Rangers early in third-period breakaway.

The Sunday scores: two goals as Hawks got a spirited display in Montreal. Glen Skov got the other Chicago marker. Tom Johnson and Henri Richard counted for Canadiens.

FOURTH FOR CHADWICK

Sunday Chadwick made no for what his teammates did Saturday, stopping 31 Bruins' shots for his fourth shutout of the season. Lanky centre Billy Harris batted in a second-period rebound for his 19th goal of the season. Garry Aldcorn got the other in the third after stealing the puck from Boston defenceman Larry Hillman.

The Montreal big guns sat back as New York's wounded Marcel Bonin and Don Marshall take care of Rangers. Bonin fired two goals, with a helping hand on both from Henri Richard, and Marshall got one. Danny Lewicki rulned a shutout for Jacques Plante.

Mickoski picked up from Chicago recently, showed his former teammates how to do it as he got the winning goal with only 12 seconds left in the game at Chicago. Howe got the other for Red Wing goal. nullifying the 1-0 first-period lead given Chicago by Ed Litzenberger.

Hockey's Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Henri Richard, at the centre of Montreal Canadien's power line, closed in on linemate Dickie Moore during weekend National Hockey League action with his 22nd goal and 40th and 41st assists, boosting his point total to 63.

Moore, who leads the league in goals with 30, remains three points in front of Richard, the leading playmaker. Moore did not pick up a point during the weekend.

Jones Named Cup Captain

NEW YORK (AP) — Perry T. Jones, long time czar of Pacific Coast tennis, was named U.S. Davis Cup captain Sunday night to succeed Bill Talbert.

The surprising change was announced by Victor Denny of Seattle, now president of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association.

Talbert was named captain in 1953. In five campaigns he won the cup in 1954 and 1955 on the four other occasions against admittedly superior Australian teams.

"Ab" Wright Seriously Hurt In Hockey Game

Albert "Ab" Wright, 19 year-old star of the Belleville junior "B" hockey club, was rushed to Toronto General Hospital Sunday evening in serious condition as result of accidental injury received in a game Saturday night.

Dr. W. S. Bailey, Trenton, stated this morning that Wright was suffering from a skull fracture and had been taken to the Toronto General Hospital for observation.

"A head injury of this type may or may not require an operation" stated Dr. Bailey. "We took no chances and rushed him to Toronto for observation. I am waiting word now whether surgery will be necessary or not" he said.

In company with the Belleville club, Wright was injured in a regular junior "B" game between Trenton and Belleville in Trenton Saturday night. He was taken to Trenton Hospital late in the second period when he fell unconscious to the ice.

The exact cause of the injury was not known. Some of his teammates reported he was struck by a puck and fell to the ice, bangning his head while others thought that he had been hit in the head by the puck.

Delany Takes Wanamaker Mile After Tough Race

NEW YORK (AP)—Ron Delany, still refusing to fight a fast pace, won the Wanamaker Mile Saturday night in the Millrose Games in 4:04.6 overcoming a 25-yard lead built up by Maryland's

To the capacity crowd of more than 15,000 that jammed Madison Square Garden, Grifh was the star. Round and round they went with Grifh at the lead trying to pull Delany out.

The tall Maryland runner kept it up for as long as he could before he "died" a little past the three-quarter mark. George Kerr of the New York Athletic Club wound up second about 30 yards back of Delany. Jim Beatty, a soldier, was third and Phil Coleman of Chicago fourth.

It was a splendid effort on Grifh's part. He whipped to the tape at the gun and stayed there so long as he could hold up. He hit the quarter in 58.3 to Delany's 59.5), the half in 1:58.6 (to Delany's 2:01.8) and the three-quarters in 3:03.5 (to Delany's 3:06.8).

But with it all, Delany refused to be rushed. He jogged along just at the pleasant pace Grifh might not have even been in the race for all the attention Delany paid to him.

NOT FOR SALE

TORONTO (CP) — Stafford Smythe, head of a seven-man committee which runs the National Hockey League Toronto Maple Leafs, said Saturday night the committee wasde an unsuccessful bid last week to purchase the controlling interest in Maple Leaf Gardens held by his father, Conn Smythe. Smythe said his father offered to sell a half interest to the committee declined. The committee's offer was reported to be about $4,000,000.

Lucile Wheeler Just Misses Title of Combined Champion

BAD GASTEIN, Austria (CP)—Lucile Wheeler, a dedicated and dynamic skier from Ste. Jovite, Que., gave Canada viewers in two of the three events of the world Alpine skiing championships Saturday, as she added the bronze medal to her earlier win in the downhill.

Her victories, the first ever for Canada in this sport in international competition, almost gave her the title of combined champion. That title however, went to Swiss girl whose best individual performance was a second in the downhill, but whose averages in the three events making up the combined title was slightly better.

Miss Wheeler, a deeply tanned, freckle-faced 23-year-old, placed 16th in the slalom race last Monday, the first event of the women's championships, and that spoiled her bid for the combined title.

It went to Frieda Daenzer of Switzerland who 'also was third in the giant slalom and tied for eighth in the slalom—the first event of the championship.

If Miss Wheeler had placed among the top 10 in Monday's opener, she would have been assured of the combined crown, instead of second place.

ANN WAS SIXTH

Ann Heggtveit of Ottawa, Canada's other entry in the women's events, placed sixth in the combined.

Austria was an easy winner in the team point standings after Toni Sailer's clean sweep of the men's events. The hosts finished with 124½, Switzerland was next with 97, France was third with 91, Norway fourth with 74, Canada fifth with 41, the United States sixth with 30, Italy seventh with 27, Japan eighth with 24 and West Germany ninth with 23. The other nation with points, based on 10 for first, nine for second, eight for third to one for 10th.

Sailer, the now his seven world crowns for a men's record, said afterward: "I have to start making money and earning a living. I will not turn professional, but I will not compete in any more races this season."

Sailer, 22, raced the 2,500 metre 41,480 feet down the sheer side of Graukogel Mountain in two minutes, 28.3 seconds. He was almost two seconds ahead of runnerup Roger Staub of Switzerland, who had a time of 2:30.4.

Lomas President Ontario Soccer

TORONTO (CP)—Wally Lomas of Windsor Saturday was elected president of the Ontario Soccer Association after Arthur Arnold, Hamilton, president for the last 10 years, declined to stand.

Said Arnold:

"No man was more attacked or belittled than I was and I just couldn't go on for another 12 months."

Lumber Kings Tied, Beaten Must Win Remaining Games; Macs Need One More Victory

PEMBROKE (Special) — The Belleville McFarlands need but one more victory to clinch the Eastern Ontario Senior "A" League playoff leadership.

By virtue of their 5-5 tie here Saturday night and the Lumber Kings' Sunday defeat at Cornwall, the Belleville club has 53 points with six games to play, while the second-place Kings have 42 points with the same number of games remaining.

The Kings must win all their games while the McFarlands must drop all their remaining fixtures if the Pembroke club is to finish on top.

The McFarlands roared from behind a 4-1 deficit here Saturday night to score four goals in a row and take a 5-4 lead, but the Kings, with seconds to go, tied the score and the teams battled without result in the overtime period.

The game was highlighted by a wild second period melee that saw goalie Gordie Bell tagged with three minors and a misconduct penalty in the space of four minutes.

The fracas erupted over Pembroke's second goal with Bell claiming violently that the puck did not enter the goals. He charged at referee Percy Shore of Ottawa and when Shore foreshadowed him off he skated back to the net, then swung his stick at the goal judge, breaking the red light behind the wire and menacing the official and nearby spectators.

A misconduct was awarded for this. Two minutes later when Pembroke's Bert Giesebrecht neared the net, Bell swung at him and a pushing session followed with both players receiving double minors. A couple of minutes later when Jim Farrell attempted to score, Bell cross checked him with his goal stick receiving another two minutes sentence for this offence. At the same time Joe Lepine was waved for slashing.

Bell threatened more trouble during a couple of minutes but repeated warnings from referee Shore and linesman Mike Ibbitt of his team mates prevented any further troubles.

Hockey wise, the game was one of the best seen here this season. Lumber Kings went ahead 1-0 in the first period on Frank Chiarelli's first of two goals and the lead held until midway through the second when Floyd Crawford converted a goal a month pass into the tying goal.

Chiarelli's second at 13.51 sent the Kings into a 2-1 lead and resulted in Bell's protests.

In the third, Bert Giesebrecht scored for the Kings on a breakaway when Pembroke's Bruce Giesebrecht was serving a tripping penalty. Jim Farrell countered Pembroke's first goal a minute later when he found an open corner.

Four unanswered markers put the Macs into a 5-4 lead in six minutes when Floyd Crawford, Neau and Beg Guidolin scoring to tie the game and Barton Bradley rounding out the count to be the winner.

With more than five minutes to play, the Macmen received two penalties and Pembroke lifted goalie Wayne Payette to send six attackers in, but failed to score.

In the overtime, Pembroke had a margin in shots and play but neither team was able to score.

Indians Start To Move Up; Hershey Wins

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The resurgent Springfield Indians, occupying last place in the American Hockey League for a good part of the season, have moved to within striking distance of third place.

Springfield shaded Providence Reds 4-3 Sunday night and now trail the Reds by only two points. In other games the leading Hershey Bears downed the last-place Buffalo Bisons 4-1 and the runner-up Cleveland Barons edged the fifth-place Rochester Americans 2-1.

Springfield walloped Buffalo 12-3 Saturday, Hershey shaded Providence 3-2 and Cleveland defeated Rochester 5-2.

Ken Schinkel's goal early in the last period gave Springfield its triumph over Providence. Earl Ingarfield collected all three goals for the Reds. Real Chevrefils, recently acquired by Boston Bruins, John Caffery and Floyd Smith produced the other Springfield tallies.

PRODUCTIVE LINE

The Arnie Kullman-Ed Panagabko — Ed Slankamenac line accounted for three goals in Hershey's success over Buffalo. Each player scored once and Willie Marshall, the league's leading point getter, added the goal. Norm Corcoran registered the lone goal for the Bisons, who now trail Hershey at the nets as a replacement for injured Gerry McNamara.

Gene Achtzehnt and Dan Poliziani gave Cleveland an early lead and they counted the goals to record their seventh victory in nine starts over Rochester. Jim Nyrkola was the lone American to score.

Two list fights and a succession of penalties marked a rough third period at Cleveland as the Barons reversed Rochester. Ivy Eik and Poliziani each got two Cleveland goals and Bob Velp gave the Cleveland Rochester tallies were by Stan Smrke and Eddie Mazur.

Northern Electric Hockey

The Indians and the Flyers qualified to meet in the Northern Electric Interdepartment hockey league finals yesterday by eliminating the Barons and Aces.

Indians whipped the Barons 9-4 while Flyers shaded the Aces 5-4. The two winners will now meet in a two-of-three series for the championship. The first of the game slated for next Sunday morning at 11.00 a.m.

Don Fitzhenry Barclay paced the Indian victory yesterday by scoring four goals and assisting on another. Dave Jones had two goals and one helper while J. Seymour Jones and three. James and G. Little also scored and Wardhaugh picked up three assists.

Howard Skelly scored the only goal of the game to give the Flyers their 1-0 win over the Aces. Barrett drew an assist on the play.

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Belleville McFarlands narrowed the gap to four points during the weekend, tying Pembroke Lumber Kings 5-5. But 13 or more points separate other woodsville league-leaders from the top spot.

Ottawa - Hull Canadiens took a 5-3 decision from Kingston CKLC. CKLC's defeated Cornwall 5-2 while in the other weekend game Chevrefils edged Cornwall 3-1.

SHARE SCORING

Frank Chiarelli, with two, Bert Giesebrecht, Jim Farrell and Gerry Plamondon counted for Pembroke. Floyd Crawford, Bob Marineau, Pete Payette, Bop Guidolin and Barton Bradley scored for Belleville.

Third-period goals by Moe Savard and Rene St. Hilaire gave Cornwall victory over the Lumber Kings. St. Hilaire and Knobby Clarke traded goals in the first period.

Visiting Kingston, Chevies were outshot 41-15 as they allowed three unanswered third - period goals after tying the CKLC's 2-2 at the end of the second.

St. Hilaire and Aitken scored for Cornwall. Kingston marksmen were Ted Voznesenski, with two, Don Senior, Mike Bukachevski and Bill Colvin.

Manchester U Manager Said Out of Danger

MUNICH, Germany (AP)— Manager Matt Busby of Britain's Manchester United soccer team was declared out of danger Sunday but doctors still fought to save two other survivors of last week's plane crash that killed 21 including seven members of the championship club.

A medical bulletin said Busby, who suffered a punctured lung among other injuries, was improving slowly but steadily.

John Berry, a forward on the team, and Kenneth Rayjent, copilot, underwent operations Sunday. They have been unconscious since the crash Thursday at Munich airport.

Two other survivors, one a player, Duncan Edwards, remained on the critical list. Reports on six other players ranged from improved to "good."

German investigating officials, meanwhile, said that the crash probably was caused by heavy icing on the upper surface of the wings of the plane. They said no engine trouble was found.

Toronto Girl Triple Winner In Badminton

CCRNWALL (CP) — Marjorie Steed of Toronto was a triple winner in the Ontario badminton championships which concluded Sunday.

Miss Steed won the women's singles crown, teamed with Joan Hennessy to take the women's doubles and teamed with Bill Purcell to win the mixed doubles event.

In the men's single event, Carswarth defeated defending champion Bev Westcott of Toronto in straight sets 17-15, 15-12. He gained the finals by beating Bill Parkes of Woodstock 15-7, 15-2.

Teepees Drop Weekend Pair; Petes Beaten

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Teepees, in Eastern League play-off leads in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, have won 36 games, tied five and lost only 12. But this season they've never beaten the fourth - place Marlboros.

Four games between the two clubs have been drawn, and Marlboros, who beat the Teepees 3-2 Saturday, have won the other two.

To add to a bleak weekend, Teepees also dropped a 2-0 decision to Toronto St. Michael's, now sharing third place with Marlboros.

Marlboros other weekend activity included a 10-3 lacing of last-place Guelph Biltmores, who've managed only 11 wins so far this season.

PETES LOSE

A goal by Marlboros' Doug Bieseley with less than two minutes to go gave the Toronto squad the edge over the Teepees.

St. Mike's took advantage of St. Catharines' penalties for both their goals in the third periods. Mike Pelyk scored the first goal, tying when Gino Ubriaco scored and rightwinger Jim Costello added the four minutes later with Stan Miskita off for tripping.

IN SENIOR OHA

Centre Sogny Osborne and leftwinger Bob Davidson each bagged three goals, Carl Brewer, Bill Kennedy and Frank Mahovlich added two each. Gord Brown tallied twice for Biltmores and Bob Gibson once with Sam McGregor.

Canadiens led all the way Saturday. They were ahead 2-1 after the first period and 4-2 after the second.

Bob Boucher paced the winners with two goals, Gilles Tremblay, Ralph Backstrom and John Annabel adding singles. Jerry Robinson scored goal scorer

TO BECOME IMMIGRANTS?

The Crew Cuts, one of North America's top singing quartets, have been told they can't work in the United States as visitors any more. The ruling was made by a special inquiry officer of the U.S. Immigration service after three of the quartet had been stopped at Buffalo, N.Y., and prevented from entering the U.S. The Crew Cuts now will be allowed to work in the U.S. only if they get immigration visas. U.S. to Consider Greater Curbs On Oil Imports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks has indicated the government will consider taking new steps in the immediate future to curb United States oil imports.

Such steps could include mandatory import quotas.

Weeks, chairman of a cabinet committee on oil imports, said Saturday the problem of maintaining a strong domestic oil industry "has become increasingly serious" in recent weeks.

Developments indicate, he said, "that the cabinet committee will have to be called together for consultation in the immediate future."

It is this group which would consider any plan to tighten up the present voluntary program of curbing imports of foreign oil, a move protested by Canada.

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian government officials are keeping a close eye on possible further United States action to restrict its oil imports.

The hope is that if any further restrictions are forthcoming, they will not apply to oil shipments from Canada.

Chemical Dupes Human Cancer Into Suicide

CHICAGO (AP) — A possible new breakthrough in efforts to suppress certain human cancers with chemicals was reported to the American Cancer Society today by Dr. Roy Hertz, National Cancer Institute, Bethesda, Md.

He said 16 women with advanced cancers have been receiving an anti-cancer chemical for two years.

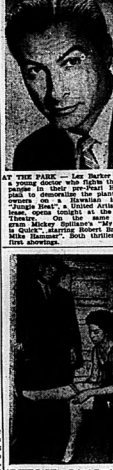
Dr. Hertz reported that cells of one particular type cancer were duped into committing suicide by absorbing a chemical closely re-sembling a vitamin they needed for growth.

The cancer studied is a hormone - producing tumor called choriocarcinoma. It occurs in women during the child-bearing process, according to what normally would be the after-birth of placenta.

Such cancers, generally bare, spread rapidly through the area and then invade the lungs and brain. They usually kill within a year.

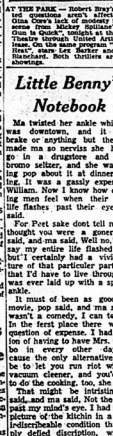
Dr. Hertz said that of the 16 women treated six have remained completely free of evidence of disease and five showed good response and were free of symptoms.

Three showed "decisive original response" and are continuing with the therapy.



Two died of the far-advanced disease in the early phase of treatment.

Say Million Americans Aid Communist Cause



WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives committee on un-American activities charged today Canada has succeeded in enlisting more than 1,000,000 Americans into a campaign of subtle subversion.

"Their participation has ranged from membership in the far-flung network of Communist-front organizations to the dissemination of Communist - promoted petitions, and has included substantial financial contributions," the committee said in the second section of its seven-part annual report for 1957.

"It is fair to say that many of these people would be against if they understood the full import of their activities and the extent to which they benefit the Communist conspiracy."

Little Benny's Notebook

Ma twisted her ankle while she was downtown, and it didn't break or anything but the idea made me so nervus she had to go in a drugstore and drink bromo seltzer, and she was telling poo about it at dinner, saying it was a gassly experience, Wullum. Now I know how dying men feel when their whole life flashes past their eyes, she said.

For Pop sake don't tell me you thought you were a goner? poo said, and ma said, Well no, I cant say my entire life flashed past, but I certainly had a vivid picture of that particuler part of it that I'd have to live through if I was ever laid up with a sprained ankle.

It must of been as good as a movie, poo said, and ma said, It wasn't a comedy, I can tell you. In the first place there was the question of expense. I had a vision of having to hire a full time boo in every other day, because the only alternative would be to let you run riot with the vacuum cleener, and you'd have the whole house torn down by climax, she said.

That might be intriting, poo said, and ma said, Yes it was right past my mind's eye. I had a vivid picture of the kitchin in a simply indiscribable condition that simply defied discription, with the stoves catching on fire as a grand climax, she said.

Well, your ankle is unsprained end it's still the best of all possible worlds, pop said, and ma said, Yes, but just the same as with I was a little taller.

Are we still on the same subject? Poop said, and ma said, Well of course. I meen in that case I wouldn't mind wearing higher heels, she said.

Proving what made her ankle twist.

Ralph Story Always Loser On the $64,000 Challenge

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Somebody always wins in The $64,000 Challenge (CBS-TV). The only consistent loser is Ralph Story, host and referee of the Sunday night program.

"I just lose," Story said the other day. "The Challenge is a beautiful conflict between the contestants. The viewing audience likes conflict. Heroes and villains. I do my best to be neutral. But no matter what I do, the pair of it audience which was plugging for the person who just feels 'we wuz robbed'—and some of them blame me.

Far from feeling persecuted by this state of affairs, Story knows that identification and conflict are necessary to a good ball game or television quiz show.

LOSES DECISION

"We wuz robbed," said Tony Galento when his team of seven boxers lost in pretty Dr. Joyce Brothers. But viewers, looking at seven fighters against one small woman, deluged Story with complaints that he was favoring the boxers. They didn't recognize that it took seven times as long to acquaint the audience with seven men as with one woman.

When Tommy Loughran missed the $64,000 question and Dr. Brothers won, the letters suddenly stopped. Then a new debate began: Those guys know more about boxing than dame sure will. Wise up and stop being a lady-killer!"

The complaints became even more strident when Mrs. Alice Morgan, champion of the stock market category, was challenged by 14-year-old Lenny Ross: "I noticed you shook hands with Lenny Ross but you only greeted dear Mrs. Morgan with stiff formality. If you want the kid to win, why don't you admit it?"

IT DIDN'T WORK

So the next week Story shook hands with both. Then the letters read: "Shaking hands with a youngster is fine, but you should treat Mrs. Morgan with the respect due her age." Or the next week: Story omitted shaking hands with either. The result? "You treat that darling little boy as if he were like Mrs. Morgan. If years old, you obviously don't understand children."

When handsome red - haired Terry Shand challenged the nervous little Marjory Garmise in the Babe Ruth category, viewers began firing from his box the first night. Feeling ran high, but Terry was the favorite of the majority. On the big question Marjory faltered and was about to burst into tears. Story gave her extra time to compose herself.

Thousands demanded his ouster from the program. But he still prizes above all letters the one written by Terry Shand's parents: "You made the finest and fairest decision under the most difficult conditions. We feel confident Terry had an opportunity to learn sportsmanship from a man like you."

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major segment of the United States coal industry has called on the government to halt spending on civilian atomic power projects, which it says have been "a dismal failure." The Southern Coal Producers Association said Sunday there is clear evidence that atomic power is cheaper, more efficient or safer than power generated by conventional fuels.

Reviews Bad on Jean Seberg But Little Girl Endures Fire

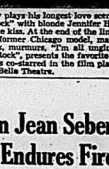
By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It's good that Jean Seberg is a well-adjusted girl. Otherwise, she might easily flip her lid.

Few 19-year-olds have had to endure the trial by fire that Jean has. She started with one ingenue role—as Joan of Arc in the ill-fated Saint Joan—and she has been subjected to many others, including Mike Wallace's soul searching on television. Amazingly, she has come out of it unscarred and unwarped.

"You hear the same questions from interviewers everywhere," said Jean, who is on the last leg of a tour to promote her second film, Bonjour Tristesse. "The usual one is 'How did you feel when you read the reviews of Saint Joan'.

"How would they expect me to feel? Like jumping up and down en Hollywood Boulevard on a pogo stick?"



CAN TAKE IT

Needless to say, the reviews were bad. Those on Bonjour Tristesse have been mixed, ranging from a rave in a news magazine to a rant in a New York daily. The distinguished critic for the latter closed his review by suggesting that producer Otto Preminger should send his little protege back to the town high school where he found her."

"That was nasty," declared Jean. "It wouldn't have been quite so bad if he had said 'Mr. Preminger should send Miss Seberg to dramatic school.'"

But she added that the review brought new friends to her defence. The Mike Wallace interview also won her many supporters. People seem impressed with how she stands right up to her detractors.

"One thing that gives me strength is to know that I'm not the first this has happened to," she commented. "I'm not comparing myself to Joan, but I know that Katharine Hepburn was knocked unmercifully by the critics when she was getting started. The most famous crack, of course was Dorothy Parker's." (It was

Jean admitted that she herself was disappointed in her Joan portrayal. Her reaction on seeing it: "I knew I had been feeling those emotions, but for the first half of the picture my face didn't change."

HIS "LITTLE" TUNE BECOMES A HIT

Last year, in two hours, Moe Koffmann wrote and arranged a simple tune for a jazz album he and his group of Toronto musicians were recording for a music company. He thought it was a nice little number, good enough to get by without criticism — but today he finds it has become a hit. The tune, "Swinging Shepherd Blues," has become a best seller among records and the man most surprised at its success is Moe Koffmann.

Here is the day when everyone is so busy trying to get ahead, achieve security that they have little time or an ear for your own needs and pleas for assistance. Lend a helping hand 'instead and wait until another day for guidance.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — There is a vital job that needs attention immediately, but don't endeavor to get an associate to do the hard part. Do it yourself and be sure you do not tread on toes of others. Courtesy is the best policy.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Steer clear of high pressure salesmen or mom'ed person who would get you into something far above your means. Avoid dissipation, and get finances up higher, then glorious again. Increase your worth with loyalty, too.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Here is a day when you long to get in stride with a powerful person, but there is danger of argument. So make your appointment for the morrow, or the following day. Get appearance better, credit in perfect shape.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Going from one extreme to the other — either bottling up your frustrations or taking them out on others — is bad. Reach happy medium by rising above all this and doing some tall thinking, reading, acting.

If your child is born today . . . The cute child born today is the type who feels that by starting a little fight, more will be accomplished, gained. Yours will be the duty to mold this child's thinking so that he or she will know that a fight has to be fought, and one must never underestimate one's adversary. Give schooling that will stress the importance of passive resistance, mind power, and the God-given wisdom of Love.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Monday, February 10th

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Be very certain you do not antagonize that individual at abode who means much to your present — day security as he or she might become a lifelong enemy, and you would be at fault. Keep busy with clothing, etc.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Acting worried about some private anxiety that stems from long prior history will be a deterrent to a worthwhile friend about you, or customers. Forget it, and keep working diligently. It's this a lucrative day.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — A fascinating stranger comes into the picture today, and you are tempted to forego your pressing work for the pleasure of cementing better relations. He or she will be available, so get work done first and make a good impression.

Moon children (June 22 to July 21) — An uncontrollable urge seizes you to do something about a romantic attachment that is contrary to all best judgment or advice of wise friend. Relax, let a sweet smile help you more than all the extravagance in the world.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21) — Very talented associate, though addicted to surprising actions, is the one who can give you best advice concerning personal and business problems. Then, be also with someone and give aid. Don't make any agreements today.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 23) — There are many outside chores to be done today so up and at 'em early. But take care on the road, driving, walking, etc., and avoid mishap. Also, study your diet and follow right rules of eating to insure greater health.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — Take care today you do not spend far above your means. Fine entertainment can be had inexpensively, but your imagination can be stimulated by looking into the newspaper for ideas. A smile will gain you many friends, much happiness.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 22) —

FRANKFORD

H-S Assoc. Stresses Reading In Education

FRANKFORD — The Frankford Home and School Association held its monthly meeting in the public school on Wednesday evening. Mr. Frank Rabel, president, welcomed everyone.

A musical number by Misses Valerie White, Bonnie Rowe & Patsy Brown, accompanied by Mrs. S. Martin at the piano, was greatly enjoyed.

One important event of the evening was the reading of the Charter by Mrs. B. Van Sickle, which had just been received.

Each executive member gave the committee reports. Correspondence was read.

Mr. Rabel turned the meeting over to Mrs. Harry Chard, chairman of the program committee, who introduced the teachers, Mrs. E. Rose, Mrs. K. Hopkins, Mrs. J. E. Finnegan, Mrs. E. Grant, Mr. M. Cosgrove, Mrs. E. Osterhout and Mr. Ross Jewell, who explained their methods of teaching. All stressed the importance of reading in education today.

Mr. Rabel thanked the teachers for their splendid talk. He announced that at the next meeting, Mrs. H. Keefer, music teacher would speak on music and art.

After the meeting closed, refreshments were served by the grade 4 mothers.

Chaplain Dies

BRONTE (CP) — Rev. Thomas Hudson Stewart, who served as an army chaplain in two world wars, died Sunday in his rectory at the Anglican Church of the Epiphany.

Dr. Stewart became chaplain of Sunnybrook Veterans' Hospital in Toronto in 1945 and served in that post until he moved to Bronte about three years ago.

Mr. Arnold Meyers had the pleasure of entertaining one of his high school teachers, Miss Hazel Farley, and her sister, Mrs. Hendricks, showing them his slides and movies of his trip to Gautemala, Yucatan and Mexico two years ago, on Saturday evening at his home.

CGIT MEETS

The president opened the service with a few games, and the call to worship by Darlene Harder. The Scripture was found in Psalms 23.

Mrs. Douglas Harry gave a talk on Japan, after which they were shown beautiful slides.

The next meeting will be held at Beverley Clapp's home.

A nut cake was donated by Mrs. Kravacek on which the girls will hold a draw. This will be drawn around March 1st.

In the craft department, the pot holders the girls started last meeting were finished.

For refreshments they were treated to freshly-popped corn.

Sharon Gilchrist will be in charge of the worship service for the next meeting and Vera Kravacek for the games.

Wrote Article Then Denied Access to It

CAMBRIDGE Mass. (AP) — How a distinguished scientist found himself blindfolded by red tape has been disclosed by his wife in an address here.

Mrs. Fred L. Whipple, wife of the director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Laboratory, related that in 1946 her husband, the noted Harvard University astronomer, wrote a paper for an unidentified research organization in California.

Some time after he had turned in the paper he found that he needed some of the data contained in the article. Mrs. Whipple said the organization replied:

"This has been classified top secret. Since you do not have the proper security rating, we cannot permit you to see it."

4 ROB HAMILTON BANK OF $12,000; FLEE ON FOOT

Escape in Hail of Bullets, Car Crash

HAMILTON (CP) — Four men robbed the Canadian Bank of Commerce here on Monday and escaped a hail of bullets and a car crash in their getaway.

Masked with silk stockings and each wearing a knee-colored three-quarter length coats, the quartet walked quickly into the bank minutes before closing time and announced: "This is a holdup."

They scooped money from three tellers' cages and grabbed $1,700 being deposited by a clerk from a drive-in window.

As they fled, accountant Peter Verbeek, who served with the Dutch army in the Second World War, grabbed his gun, ran out on the street and fired three shots at the men, missing them.

SOUNDED ALARM

But bank manager Arthur E. Jenner said he looked up when the quartet entered the bank, saw Verbeek with a pistol in his hand, and they left automatically pushed him aside.

One bandit menaced the manager, but the holdup was executed with such speed that police did not arrive before the bandits had sped off the main two-lane thoroughfare and escaped.

Their flight through the semi-residential area quickly failed after two of the men had transferred from their first getaway car to a second waiting about five blocks from the scene, then sped off again a mile or so further about 10 blocks away.

The other two men apparently fled on foot from the first car.

FIREARMS FOUND

Police said a cocked and loaded sten gun and a Luger were found in the first car, along with a .38-calibre pistol in the wrecked car and a .22-calibre pistol and a rifle, apparently thrown away by the bandits.

The time the bank was held up, in 1939, the lone robber was shot dead on the bank steps.

Gaillard Agrees to Debate On Raid on Tunisian Village

PARIS (AP) — Premier Felix Gaillard agreed immediately the National Assembly debate today or the French bombing of a Tunisian frontier village.

The Saturday bombing set off a diplomatic crisis for France which threatened relations with Tunisia and sparked world-wide criticism of French policy.

Tunisia said 69 persons were killed, 10 were missing and 130 wounded in the raid.

Tension mounted in Tunisia where French troops have been confined to their bases by order of Habib Bourguiba, Tunisian chief. The Tunisian president was reported determined that French troops must be evacuated from his country as a result of the bombing.

The National Assembly was packed and the diplomatic gallaries full as Gaillard strode to the rostrum and announced that he would meet his critics headon. The assembly suspended for an hour to allow the members to organize their debates.

The premier, deeply disturbed by the unfavorable foreign reaction, has been in almost continual meetings with his ministers, deputies in the assembly, diplomats and others.

In Tunis Western sources were openly worried at the turn of events there. Five French consulates were ordered closed.

The French charge d'affaires in Tunis met the Tunisian foreign minister this morning to ask whether the French troops in the country could transport food between their forces and Tunisian food, him, in effect, "Let them eat in France."

Some newspapers and officials have suggested as a possible explanation the attack on Saki Sidi Youssef by 25 planes was an "unauthorized action" by military leaders in Algeria who failed to clear it with the government in Paris.

Rightist military men and right-wing politicians in France have long favored a tough policy against both Algerian rebels and their sources of arms and other support.

The French claim the attack was directed against Algerian rebels hiding in Tunisia and fir-

THE WEATHER

Pretty elevator operator: "It isn't the ups and downs that bother me. It's the jerks."

Today's Chuckle

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: It is very cold throughout Ontario today but the weather will be rather varied. It is sunny in the forecast regions of Northern and central Ontario and in the central part of the land area of Southern Ontario as well, but it is snowing steadily, and in some cases quite heavily, in localities bordering Lakes Huron, Erie and Ontario.

No moderation in temperature is expected through Wednesday except in the vicinity of James Bay.

Buffalo Area Hit by Storm As Rest of State Digs Out

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Buffalo, which escaped the weekend storm that buried most of northern and western New York state, became in Monday night for its share of blinding snow and drifting, clogged roads, and near-blizzard conditions continued today.

While the rest of the upstate area was digging out of drifts as high as 15 feet, Buffalo fought snow squalls that cut visibility to zero at times and piled snow into three - foot drifts in suburban roads.

The weather bureau said the area could expect about 18 inches of snow today. Temperatures hovered near zero.

Main roads were open, but traffic moved at a crawl on icy pavements. Many secondary roads were plugged.

Eighteen deaths were blamed on the snowstorms across the state since Friday. Most resulted from traffic accidents or heart seizures after shoveling snow.

Schools and industries in Syracuse, where a state of emergency was called, reopened today after an unscheduled holiday Monday. About 85,000 went back to classrooms and jobs, the city had 20 inches of snow on the ground.

The squalls swung back and forth in a narrow belt over Buffalo Monday and today. The snow tapered off to flurries south of Buffalo, Batavia and Niagara Falls.

Another storm was expected today and tonight in the snow belt west of Syracuse and Watertown and the east end of Lake Ontario.

The snow squalls hit Buffalo Monday afternoon. Streets that normally remain open Monday evenings closed at 4 p.m. Schools closed at noon. By 6 p.m. downtown streets were almost deserted.

The airport was closed for a time until a blinding squall sent it reopened on a limited basis later. Buses and trains ran up to an hour late.

At Baldwinsville, near Syracuse, rescuers Monday followed the faint sound of an automobile horn and found a woman in an automobile buried in the snow. Her husband was dead beside her.

Mrs. Henry Allen leaned on the horn when the heard footsteps above her. She and her husband had started on a shopping trip Saturday. She was reported in poor condition.

Winter's worst and longest spell of cold and stormy weather was general throughout the eastern half of the United States. Most southern parts of Texas and most of Florida escaped the severe weather.

Leamington Man 90, Wife 87 Found Dead in Their Home

LEAMINGTON, Ont. (CP) — The 90-year-old man and his 87-year-old wife were found dead in their home late Monday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. John N. Miller were believed to have died in the 24 hours before the bodies were found.

Mr. Miller is believed to have suffered a heart thrombosis. Mrs. Her husband apparently sought help when he was stricken with a heart attack. He pulled the telephone off the wall and had the telephone in his hand when he was found.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Lyon, Leamington coroner, viewed the bodies and said death was from natural causes.

A daughter, Mrs. Myrtle Conden, and a son, Lloyd, live in Leamington. They visited the home Monday. She then called their pastor who in turn had been asked to go to the Miller home. When told by the pastor that Mr. Miller was unable to call, Mrs. Conner telephoned the Leamington police department.

Four Pacifists Sail for Nuclear Testing Atoll

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Four pacifists have set sail in a 30-foot ketch to see what they can do about halting a series of nuclear weapons tests.

They plan to sail right into the area where the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission is scheduled to conduct the tests in April.

Albert S. Bigelow, captain of the small craft, left for Honolulu Monday with a crew of three. He said they expect to reach Hawaii in about three weeks and will then cruise to the Eniwetok area, where the nuclear tests are to be conducted.

The navy spokesman said the Pacific command headquarters has taken "no position on the matter and cannot comment." Navy officials would have to come from the Atomic Energy Commission.

Union and CPR Meet Thursday On Diesel Issue

MONTREAL (CP) — CPR and union officials will meet here Thursday to discuss the controversial diesel dispute — a long standing issue that could lead to a nation-wide rail strike.

The conciliation board set meeting to make changes in the working agreements between the company and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen. The union is opposed to firemen being firemen from freight and yard diesels.

The company wants to renegotiate the agreements in the light of last Tuesday's report by the Kellock-Angus commission which said diesel firemen are "unnecessary on all but the largest locomotives."

The CNR last week served notice on the union—which represents about 6,000 firemen on the railway—that it proposed to also wants to amend working agreements to gain "sole discretion" over the use of diesels in freight and yard work.

UNION HEADS MEET

Top union officials met here Monday to review "all the various phases" of the dispute and prepare plans as a result of the commission's flat rejection of the union demand that diesel helpers are vital from a safety standpoint. The union is expected to continue today.

Canadian vice-president W. E. Harris has indicated last week that the union will put up a fight to keep the firemen on diesels.

The commission, headed by former Mr. Justice L. Kellock of the Supreme Court of Canada, suggested the railway propose the gradual displacement of presently-employed firemen on diesel engines.

The plan, based on seniority rights, means that long-service firemen would remain in that category, operating on passenger and then firemen with seniority between March 31, 1953, and March 31, 1956, would be offered alternative jobs, and that those with seniority after March 31, 1956, be last off but given first preference for other employment with the company.

Truck Driver Killed

WINDSOR (CP) — A Toronto truck driver was killed Monday night when the cab of his truck was crushed between its own van and a tractor-trailer unit it struck from behind. John Ritchie, 29, died of multiple skull fractures.

Northern Lights Cause Widespread Wire Troubles Over Wide Area

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Northern Lights put on a spectacular exhibition over North America Monday night, displaying their shimmering beauty over a far wider area than usual and disrupting telegraph, telegraph, type and radio communications.

The flickering multi - colored lights were seen as far south as New Mexico, over Newfoundland and the Maritimes and along the Pacific coast from southern California up through British Columbia to Whitehorse in the Yukon.

Excited residents of Tennessee, Georgia and the southwestern U.S. besieged their newspapers, police and observatories with calls about the flame - colored sky. Commercial telegraph and telotype men struggled to repair their lines. Closer to the lights residents of Western Canada and Ontario, but communications between Toronto and Western Canada were disturbed between 9 and 11 p.m. EST.

Astronomers, studying the phenomenon known scientifically as aurora borealis, said the display was unusually widespread and indicated they probably responsible for the communications trouble. Telegraph company officials were sure it was.

Little is known about the aurora borealis, but it is believed to be caused by streams of charged particles from the sun's surface. On the sun surface known as solar flares. These charged particles pass through the earth's upper atmosphere, exciting atoms and molecules and making the glowing lights seen far below on earth.

Shortly short wave radio waves travel through the ionosphere it prevent. It is certain the phenomena also disturbs them, but it is less common for land communications by wire.

Officials of the telegraph company here said the disturbances can cause electrical currents in the earth. These in turn affect the telegraph circuits, along ground wires which run through the earth's crust the same as the electrical system of a house can be overloaded.

The result is the same and a gigantic fuse-replacing operation must be carried out wherever overloaded fuses have blown.

This is what happened in parts of the United States, on wires between Toronto and Calgary in central and western Canada and in parts of the Maritime provinces last night.

Britain Favors UN Observers In Tunisia

LONDON (Reuters) — British officials today privately expressed themselves in favor of a Republican Party proposal that the U.S. is considering such a proposal.

Officials here said the proposal would help relax frontier tension between Tunisia and Algeria, and such as the French bombing Saturday of a Tunisian village. It also would help allay French suspicions that Algerian rebels are being helped from inside Tunisia.

The UN has had observer teams in Israel and bordering Arab countries since the 1949 Israeli-Arab armistice.

Britain has received a report that the French embassy in Tunis on a visit made by foreign diplomats to the bombed village. H. H Bearden, first secretary of the embassy, was in the visiting party.

Three Labor party members of Parliament today presented a motion in the House of Commons urging Britain to refer the bombing of Tunisia to the UN Security Council and to NATO.

ONT. GOVT. PLANS PROBE OF BOARDS, COMMISSIONS

Provincial Auditor Urges Program

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government plans a major investigation into the operations and responsibilities of government boards and commissions.

Premier Frost told the legislature Monday that such an investigation, recommended last week by provincial auditor H. A. Colpam, would help "preserve our parliamentary system of government."

As a start the House committee on government commissions will study the question this session and make recommendations concerning its scope. Later the legislature and whether it should be conducted by an independent body.

The premier said various government boards and commissions were appointed to prevent the intrusion of politics.

"It is protecting, however, against politics and political interference that we have boards but these bodies are not set up which override the democratic rights of the people."

DOZEN RECENT ONES

Mr. Colpam in his annual report listed more than a dozen new government commissions added in recent years.

"In my opinion," said Mr. Colpam, "a survey to assess the strength and weaknesses of present machinery of government is needed.

Such a survey could be expected to report upon a reallocation of duties, functions, departments themselves and between departments and boards and commissions based on the principle of the nature of the service rendered to the community.

PARTY CONFERENCE

Mr. Oliver said his party "for some years now" has been concerned about the proliferation of commission.

Mr. MacDonald said "we feel this country have not yet worked out a technique whereby we will maintain such an act as a boards and examine the general policies of our government commissions without impairing the efficiency of their operation." He agreed with that he said Mr. Frost.

A. J. Wintermeyer (L—Waterloo North) asked whether the survey would be conducted by the committee or by the legislature itself.

"That might be something we'd expect to have the House committee recommend on," replied the premier.

Eight Houses Burn at Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Fire raced through a row of houses in lower midtown Toronto early today destroying eight and damaging two before being brought under control. Damage was estimated at $60,000.

Two residents of one house were treated in hospital for injuries from the burning buildings.

First reports were that one man was trapped but a fire department spokesman said later there was only one person in the house and all others were accounted for.

Angry Vancouver Island Dairymen Invade B.C. Legislature Building

VICTORIA (CP) — Vancouver Island dairymen won a meeting with Premier Bennett after about 300 of them converged the legislature building Monday.

The dairymen were protesting the British Columbia milk industry board's removal of a two cents - per - hundredweight price differential on milk sold for sale of milk from the lower B.C. mainland.

They arrived in front of the legislature about five minutes after the board's decision was announced, carrying placards of about 30 cars and trucks.

Then the end of the police-escorted parade was a tractor towing a Holstein cow in a wagon. The cow, introduced by the bystanders as "the Hon. Maude," was given a temporary stall in the legislature building.

The farmers milled around outside the building for about 30 minutes, shouting for the Social Credit premier to "come out here."

When they got no satisfaction, they marched into the building. They stood just outside the assembly chamber doors waving placards and shouting: We want Bennett, we want Bennett."

Sergeant - at - Arms Denny Smith called the premier's office. Then he told the farmers Bennett was "definitely out of control" at one point.

The premier's chanting, shouting and door-shaking several times drowned out Robert Strachan, leader of the CCF opposition, who was opening the budget debate in the house.

The angry farmers were placated only when they were told to meet with the executive of the Vancouver Island Dairymen's Association today.

Bodies Of Two Boys Missing 3 Days Found

Discovered in Bush Near Torrance, Ont.

BRACEBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — The bodies of two boys missing for three days in bush country in near-zero weather were discovered today near Torrance, Ont.

A search party of volunteers and police came upon the bodies at Brotherson Lake south of Torrance in the Muskoka District. The bodies were close together and were near where three other boys, a searching party of five from Toronto were found Monday.

The dead are: Robert Petersen, 12, and James Bell, 14. Rescued were church club leader Andrew Morton, 39; George Palmer, 14, and Douglas McCoy, 12.

They were suffering from shock and exposure when picked up by a Beaver aircraft piloted by one of the most experienced search and rescue pilots in Canada. He traced their wandering trail over land and lakes from Turtle Lake. Doctors said George Farmer might lose all his toes from frostbite.

HORROR AND HEROISM

Douglas, who related a tale of horror and heroism from the fatal bed here, said Pettersen died of exposure after tumbling into a creek.

Little hope was held that Duffy had survived another cold night in sub-zero temperatures. It was three below zero Monday night. The temperature rose to a frigid seven above today.

Douglas and the rescued boys were semi-delirious and exhausted when spotted from a search aircraft flown by Capt. James Moore of Toronto and chartered by the Ontario Provincial Air Service. They were brought to hospital here and were incoherent for hours.

TELLS OF ORDEAL

McCoy appeared in the best condition. He told his father:

"Andy saved us dad. He built us a fire. He had us made us keep on going and going. We sang hymns and said prayers."

He said Pettersen "got wet and couldn't make him dry enough. We dragged him but then we left him."

Provincial Police Sgt. Everett Hicks said three policemen and a party of civilians left Bracebridge by boat about 90 miles north of Toronto, at dawn today to scour the bush area.

Moore spotted Morton and the boys from the air and radioed along the lake. He was able to land and pick them up. The plane had developed engine trouble today and was not able to continue the search. A plane from Provincial Air Services was expected to join the search.

IN FITFUL SHAPE

Moore said it was a pitiful group that met him at the lake. He had skis-equipped aircraft on the lake.

"Only the McCoy boy was collected. The other two were stunned by the cold. Their lips were blue and their hands were puffed up."

Moore said the boys and Morton seemed to have lost all sense of time. They said they had been Pettersen in a crude grave under sticks and snow. All they could say about Duffy was that he was "still in the bush."

They didn't know where Duffy was and they didn't know if he had the dog with them." Hicks said. The group had disappeared when Duffy became separated from the main group as they wandered in the bush.

FIND FROZEN GLOVE

A ground search party Monday found a grim indication of what happened. A mitten, stuffed and frozen to the edge of a hole in the ice near a beaver dam.

"It must have been where Pettersen went through," said OPP Constable Stuart McCallum of Bala.

McCallum said he failed to understand how the missing party did not hear shots fired through the day by searchers in the search party.

Meanwhile the four boys left Toronto Saturday morning by car for a weekend hunting trip. They were to stay at a cottage at Nine Mile Lake.

SKEN ENTERING BUSH

They picked up supplies at the village of Torrance as scheduled and were last seen driving into the bush about 4 p.m. Saturday.

Mr. McCoy, a Toronto druggist, started search Sunday morning by phoning Charles Touger, who operates the Torrance general store, to ask whether he had seen the boys. Mr. Touger went to the cottage where he found the party's kit and the car but no sign of the party.

Mr. McCoy chartered the aircraft from Canadian Aircraft Limited to fly search for the boys at the scene.

"I brought there would be an air search," he said. "But to be sure, I arranged it myself."

CHURCH GROUP

The group belonged to St. Stephen's United Church. In Toronto, Rev. Lorne Hurst visited the boys' families trying to comfort parents during the search west coast.

Ontario Shivers As 'Warm' Spots Report 5 Above

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A new blast of chill air swept over Ontario overnight plunging temperatures in the north to 25 degrees below zero. The mercury neared the zero mark in southern parts of the province.

Little change in the frigid conditions was forecast for Wednesday.

Kapuskasing reported 25 below overnight, Sudbury had a 21-below reading and Timmins recorded 20 degrees below. Windsor and London were the "warm" spots with comparative readings of five above.

The strong winds which created treacherous snowdrifts during the weekend slackened Monday and had abated over most of the province today. Some snow was expected in southern and central areas today and Wednesday.

It is sunny in the forecast regions of Northern and central Ontario and in the central part of the land area of Southern Ontario as well, but it is snowing steadily, and in some cases quite heavily, in localities bordering Lakes Huron, Erie and Ontario.

No moderation in temperature is expected through Wednesday except in the vicinity of James Bay.

CITY and DISTRICT NEWS

CHILD DARTS IN FRONT OF VEHICLE

Judy is to have darted in front of a car as he ran across the road near his home, John Lawrence 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Latham, 70 Everett Street, escaped serious injury yesterday noon when he was struck by the vehicle.

The lad was taken to Belleville General Hospital for a check-up but was later allowed to go home. He was said to have suffered a slight concussion, scrapes to his face and put two front teeth through his lip.

SIX INCHES IN CITY, ONE INCH IN NORTH

Last night's snowstorm which dumped six inches of fluffy white stuff over the immediate Belleville area petered out rapidly toward the north.

This morning a Madoc resident said that only about an inch of snow fell in that area yesterday night. In fact it was said the "snow belt" extended only about a short distance north of Belleville with the area north of that receiving only a very little.

Fire Fighting Assoc. Meets In Frankford

At a recent meeting in Frankford of the Hastings and Prince Edward Mutual Aid Fire Fighting Association, Fire Chiefs Gerald Vance of Belleville and James McVicker of Deseronto explained the differences between mutual aid and civil defence. They stated that at the present time there is not much connection between the two, but that in the event of some other emergency they would work together as a unit.

The question of responsibility of municipal fire departments in regard to outside calls for assistance was discussed at some length. The majority of the 13 fire departments represented were of the opinion that unless the municipalities had a definite contract it was not up to any municipality to protect another.

Fire Chief Vance strongly urged each department to call the Belleville department first should additional assistance be required. In the event a department went to assist another it should be arranged so that a municipality protected adequately. If a department was called in directly without notifying the co-ordinator at Belleville, a municipality might be left unprotected.

Fire Chief Dafoe of Frankford welcomed the visitors to Frankford and introduced Reeve George Spencer, Councillor Carman Michael and clerk-treasurer Jack Finnegan. Reeve Spencer expressed admiration of the work being done by the association and asked his wish to come to the visitors.

Secretary James Walker, Fire Chief at Marmora, chaired the meeting. The next meeting will be held on March 5 in Bloomfield.

Slippery Roads After Six Inches Snow in District

Slippery highway conditions caused by a film of snow left on the pavement by highway plows made driving conditions treacherous on the No. 2 highway this morning.

Provincial police reported at nine o'clock that their patrol cars had spotted five cars in the ditch between Trenton and Belleville. A slippery grade on the hill leading east out of Trenton tied up highway transport for a while as they were unable to make the grade until sanding was done.

Police report one or two minor accidents in the district but no injuries were reported.

Transport drivers reported that the Colonel pass is expected to be the brunt of last night's snowfall with as much as 18 inches in that area. Very little snow was received last night between Port Hope and Toronto, while at Belleville not as much as six inches was reported at nine o'clock. East of Belleville the snow decreased with Kingston reporting but one inch early today.

The weather office predicted continued snow today for the Belleville area with the cold weather also to stay with us.

Lodge Honors Veteran Masons

At the February meeting of The Belleville Lodge, A.F. and A.M., two members were honored for long and valued services.

Rt. Wor. Bro. H. J. Clarke presented Wor. Bro. Frank H. Chesher with a jewel marking fifty-year membership in the Craft. Glowing tribute was paid to the leadership given by Bro. Chesher during his term as Master of the Lodge. Wor. Bro. Sam McGuire, who was Master of Eureka Lodge while Bro. Chesher held the similar office, was present and also spoke briefly at his pleasure in being able to share in this happy occasion.

Wor. Bro. Gordon Anderson presented Bro. W. P. Yoodale with a record cabinet, in recognize ever thirty years of service as organist. The term officially began while Wor. Bro. Chesher was Senior Warden. Bro. James Bankier, received on the same night as Bro. Yoodale, enriched the proceedings with a couple of fine Scottish songs.

Special Youth Week Services Now Being Held

"Many lives are blighted by the memory of sins committed," asserted the Rev. Wilfrid Moutoux in his message Sunday night at the Everett Street Wesleyan Methodist church.

Mr. Moutoux is the guest speaker at special youth week services being conducted at the church. The services will continue all this week.

Rev. and Mrs. Moutoux have travelled extensively in the work of evangelism. Last winter they spent some time in Haiti. Tuesday night they will be showing some very interesting slides of their Haitian tour.

Mrs. Moutoux is conducting a children's prayer each evening at 6.45. This series will conclude with a special children's program next Sunday morning at ten o'clock.

Mr. McIverne Mullen, guest soloist for the occasion, is adding much inspiration to the services with his rich baritone voice.

Mr. Mullen is a featured artist on Tip Top Tunes and also has some outstanding musical honors to his credit. He won first place in the New Brunswick competitive musical festival. Over a four year period Mr. Mullen was the featured artist with Hubert Bishop, Dept. of Indian Affairs, Saint Andrew's Choir, Saint John N.B.

Friday night at 7.45 Mr. Mullen will conduct a songfest at which time he will sing by audience request numbers. Throughout the week Mr. Lorne Elliott, president of the Youth group will be in charge.

Saturday morning Rev. J. S. A. Spearman, pastor of the church occupied the chair.

Arena Chairman Gives Reasons For Time Changes

At a meeting last night of the Belleville Minor Hockey Boys' Association in St. Thomas' parish house Alderman Claude D. Tice, chairman of the Arena Commission, outlined a few of the reasons why minor hockey has been given over to Wednesday nights and Saturday mornings, instead of Tuesday and Saturdays as formerly.

This year and last, a number of Cub packs in the city lost boys to minor hockey. In order to try and overcome this situation next season, Ald. Tice suggested that the association submit forward a letter to the Arena Commission outlining the problems it has encountered and the present minor hockey schedule and recommending possible remedial action.

Ald. Tice, who was accompanied by Ald. Harold Hollingsbee, said the Arena Commission would do all it could to satisfy the requests of the L.A. However he asserted that other organizations — and that includes Quinte Skating Club and the Belleville Minor Hockey Boys — given preference for ice time because they are major sources of income to the Arena. He also stated the question of time for the skating club per se was a factor. There is a possibility that the minor hockey schedule will be revamped so it won't conflict with too many Cub pack meetings next season.

Reports were heard from the group committee representatives and the District Commissioner, P. L. Allcorn, requested all group committees to notify him of intents to engage in newly reformed leaders so that they will be properly approved and registered.

A committee headed by Lorne McDougall, was named to investigate and study the possibility of adopting an insurance policy to cover all leaders taking part in Scouting activities.

Registration forms were distributed and District Commissioner Allcorn stressed the need for them to be completed by March 31.

In the absence of Frank Lancaster, chairman of the public relations committee, Mr. Hartley suggested that all Scouting news to be published in the Ontario Intelligencer should be forwarded regularly to Mr. Lancaster. He requested the news to be written legibly and doublespaced, if not typewritten.

Dismay was expressed about the number of group committee representatives absent from the meeting. The president, Chris Leggat, said it is very important for all group committees represented by the L.A. to attend.

FUEL PRICES CUT

LONDON (Reuters) — Fifteen months after Britain and France invaded Egypt, major British oil companies Monday cut their gasoline and diesel oil prices back to pre-Suez levels. The new price will be four shillings and twopence a gallon for regular gasoline (16 cents at the latest rate of sterling rate which does not reflect actual living costs here.)

Practically All Streets, Walks Plowed Early

Despite the six-inch fall of snow which during the night and early morning descended on the city practically all streets and much of the sidewalk had been plowed by nine o'clock this morning.

The public works sanding crews were at work this morning spreading a mixture of sand and salt on all grades and at main intersections, but with the 6 to 7 inches of snow received by five o'clock the removal was not been ordered out.

Mr. Turnbull noted that the four road plows and big street graders had been able to get over practically all the city by early morning, while the sidewalk plows also had been able to cover many of the main traveled walks.

City streets commissioner Malcolm Turnbull noted that no complaints about snow had been received at city hall up until shortly before ten o'clock.

Will Organize Association in Quinte District

There are probably 100 mentally retarded children of school age in the Quinte area, children for whose education no provision has been made under the Public School System. Whilst some of these children may eventually be cared for in the Ontario Hospital Schools at Smiths Falls and Orillia experience has shown that the majority will respond to group education in their own community.

Parents in 42 centres throughout Ontario have got together and formed associations for the purpose of securing educational facilities for their children locally.

Many of these parents had been unaware that the Provincial Department of Education has made a grant available to assist such associations in the operation of Retarded Children's Schools once established.

In a few cases, operated schools retarded children learn the function at their maximum capacity through specialized training and eventually to take their rightful place in the community.

It should be emphasized that retarded children are slow learners but are not mentally sick. They are eager to learn and respond to patient guidance and affection.

A small group of parents and other interested persons are in the process of forming an Association for Retarded Children in the Quinte district. If you have a retarded child, or know of one, or are interested in forming such Associations in the district contact Mrs. A. Ward, 20 Holloway Street, Belleville. Phone WO 5-9618.

Wire Trouble Not Extensive In This Area

Last night's brilliant display of northern lights said seen as far south as Mexico, knocked out telegraph communications throughout many parts of Canada, but the Belleville district escaped rather easily.

The Canadian National Railways' wire chief at Belleville said this morning that the interruptions lasted only minor with only two circuits being knocked out and this for less than half an hour. Other circuits on the system were not interrupted.

Radio and TV networks in Northern Ontario and in Western Canada were said more seriously interrupted with many stations losing their network broadcasts.

Locally the northern lights were said exceptionally brilliant extending practically entirely across the northern sky.

Brotherhood Week Program Is Varied One

TORONTO — Sunday, February 16th, marks the opening of Brotherhood Week. It will be observed by a variety of special meetings and programs throughout the nation, stressing brotherhood as a rule of life among all citizens of every religious, race and national origin.

This year's Brotherhood Week celebration is the 10th to be sponsored annually by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews. Its observance, headed by the Rt. Hon. John G. Diefenbaker as Honorary Chairman, and Mr. J. R. White and Marius Corbeil as chairmen, will continue through February 23rd.

Service clubs, churches, schools and universities, labor-management groups and all the branches of the media of mass communication have been enlisted in participating in the celebration.

The theme this year is "That Men May Live As One Family of Man."

SEVERAL SPEAKERS

Some of the speakers who will appear on the platform throughout the nation are: Senator Wishart McMichael, Hamilton, Senator David Croll, Rabbi Israel Mowshowitz, Cardinal Rodeg, Allen Grossman, M.P.P., Mr. Bartley Crum, Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, predicts that more communities than ever before will participate this year. In the U.S.A., in the free nations of Europe and the Far East, World Brotherhood Week will be celebrated in communities under the auspices of the World Brotherhood organization. General Carlos P. Romulo, President of Denver, Colorado. This was in 1954.

Richard Jones, director of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, states that the celebration of Brotherhood Week has the following three purposes:

1. To give people an opportunity to re-dedicate themselves individuals to the basic ideals of respect for people and the human rights which are essential to our way of life.

2. To dramatize the practical things which people can do to promote an understanding and realization of these ideals.

3. To enlist the support of a larger number of individuals and round activities to build brotherhood.

All through the week, in large and small communities everywhere, a variety of Brotherhood Week programs will s'imulate acceptance of these objectives.

Jersey City Finally Locates Leaking Main

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP)—A water main leak draining this city's supply of water at an alarming rate was located today and a state of emergency in force since early Monday was declared over.

August W. Heckman, commissioner of public works, announced that the leak has been "pinpointed" in a 36-inch main starting at the city's small reservoir and running under the Hackensack River.

Since the leaking water is not undermining the downtown area, the emergency declared early Monday is over, he added.

City workers had concentrated their search at two points today —the line running under the Hackensack River and in the block area near the Hudson River.

The leak, with millions of gallons of water going to waste, had led to a state of emergency for a third of this port city. Hundreds of water works employees had been ordered for the break since Sunday night without success.

Most of the 40 control valves in that section were cut off Monday one at a time in an effort to find the leak.

A total of 195 plants employing 23,500 workers have been closed in an effort to conserve water and keep the pumps up, while 20 schools in the area also have shut down, leaving 11,000 students an unexpected holiday.

Heckman said the schools will remain closed until the break is "found and repaired."

Despite precautions taken in the Lafayette and downtown sections, an aide to Heckman, Col. Joseph Lyon, said engineers were almost certain the break was not in that area of mains under the ground there.

Levy said city workers, who abandoned the bulk of their search efforts Monday night, would start again under the Hackensack River today.

Two 36-inch mains from the Boonton reservoir run under the river, he said, and engineers believe they will find the break there.

Workers have been searching the vast labyrinth of this city's 54-year-old water system since a short time after the break was discovered late Sunday night.

Heckman declared the state of emergency almost immediately.

Leaves were cancelled for police, firemen and schools and factories in the affected area were shut down.

Until emergency measures were taken, the water gushed from its hidden rupture at the rate of 1,500,000 gallons every hour. Engineers managed to reduce the flow to 300,000 gallons hourly by closing off some check outlets.

By mid-morning, enough water had been lost to fill up a hole three feet deep and four city blocks long.

Beavers Cut Down 30-Foot Tree Onto Porch

CALGARY (CP)—L. A. Justason didn't mind four beavers living under his garage until one night recently a 30-foot tree, eight inches thick, crashed down on his porch.

Mr. Justason called a game warden to evict the tenants. But they were shot, one a 70-pounder.

The remaining beaver has confined his logging activities to trees along the bank of the nearby Elbow River, Mr. Justason says.

Toronto Taximan Robbed By Pair

TORONTO (CP)—Taxi driver Roy LaPlante told police he was robbed Monday night of $14 by an armed man who ordered him to drive to a lonely section of Scarborough road where an accomplice was waiting.

The robber asked LaPlante whether he had a family. LaPlante said he did.

"Then you better keep your mouth shut baby or I'll fix your wife and kid," the bandit said.

He said that while he was frightened in the cab, the bandit's accomplice pointed a gun at him and pulled the trigger. The gun did not fire and the pair escaped in a car.

Favorite Sliding Spots Alive With Children Having Fun

TRENTON — Snow that fell over Trenton during the night, made snow slides extra slippery for the youngsters of the town.

There are two favorite sliding spots for the juniors of Trenton — Mount Pillion offers the longest thrills for the boy or girl with a sled or toboggan. But the slope in front of St. Peter's School is probably the most versatile of fun spots in the town.

When the weather is crisp, and the snow-covered slope is fast, dozens of children can be seen sliding down toward the CNR tracks from the steep, but short slope, in front of St. Peter's School in the heart of Trenton.

And they have fun. It doesn't matter if they have a sled, tobogan or just a piece of cardboard, they all get their turn on the icy slope midst the sound of laughter and excited shrieks.

But no matter how much fun the kids at St. Peter's have, their compatriots at Dufferin Street School feel they have the "choice" playground of the entire school district at the foot of Mount Pillion, by choice of children's winter "fun spots."

Just as the Trenton public schools, St. Peter's and Dufferin offer the most in winter fun, But Dufferin has an edge for year-round outdoor activity because of the hill that rises to major heights from its foundations.

Teachers at Dufferin have learned that there is "nothing like the hill" to keep children happily occupied during recess —or after school is out.

In the spring there is the universal urge to explore. Children are free to walk at adults and their urges to explore and "branch out" are more urgent and less demanding. So every spring the pupils of Dufferin School spread upwards over their natural exploring grounds, Mount Pillion. They can climb to the heights where the old cannon sits trained on the harbor of Trenton.

From the summit they can see the Bay of Quinte almost as far as Belleville, and west to the Murray Canal. A sight that was more strategic for military purposes a sight in 1958 that tells the young public school pupil that there is breadth to the horizon.

In the fall the splendor of color that the Trent Valley and the Moira Hills display can be seen from the summit of Mount Pillion. Then is when the pupils take the year of schooling has started. They wait for the winter, and the snow that will make the steep slopes a challenge for sled, ski and toboggan.

And when the snow arrives, Dufferin pupils are the first to bring their sleds, toboggans and the latest saucer sleds to school. For they know that some recess they can go "up the mountain."

60,000 Pilgrims Jam Lourdes

LOURDES, France (AP) — More than 60,000 pilgrims jammed this city for the recitation of the Angelus led by Pope Pius, broadcast from the Vatican to every of the year-long Lourdes centennial.

Loudspeakers carried the Pope's message to the kneeling crowds over radio networks operating throughout the world.

This town and the Pyrenees countryside were jammed with pilgrims come to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the visions of St. Bernadette. The throng included 17 bishops and more than 6,000 foreign visitors.

Two Counties Added

TORONTO (CP) — Frontenac, Lennox and Addington counties would be included in the St. Lawrence parks system under legislation introduced in the Ontario legislature Monday.

Planning Minister Nickle's bill would bring the three counties under the St. Lawrence parks commission along with Glengarry, Stormont, Dundas and Grenville counties.

The bill also provides for the commission's membership to be increased to 11 from nine.

Three Markers In Last Period Win for F.I.S.

TRENTON — The F.I.S. once again on the prowl, scored three goals in less than two minutes in the third period to take a 7-4 victory over the Falcons in a "Big Four" series of RCAF hockey at the Community Centre last night.

The win moved the F.I.S. squad into second place with the Rockets in the special series. It also puts them one top in the regular league standings, a point ahead the Rockets have held since last week, but one they had held all during the season.

Goals by Legrande and Perry of the Falcons in the first two minutes of play in the opening frame gave them a 2-0 lead until Pelletier of the F.I.S. shoved goalie, puck and all in to bag his team their first and only counter of that period.

In the second stanza the F.I.S squad outplayed their opponents 3-2 to end the middle 20 minutes all tied up at 4-4.

What went on in the dressing room at the end of the second when the F.I.S. came out ready to face with their coach can probably be guessed, as the Falcons' goalie saw for the first two minutes of the third was rubber and then he was snowed up between him and the inside of the net. Pelletier scored twice in at 0.15, the second at 1.15 and the third at 2.25, all from the Swanston, Henderson, McNaughton line. There were no goals scored by either team after that.

Top goal-getter for the F.I.S. squad was Henderson with two counters and one assist. He was followed by Pelletier with his two sinkers but failed to get into the assist department. Miller, McNaughton and Swanston all got singles.

Referees for the game were R. L. Lachambre and A. F. Davis, who clashed at times refereeing the Falcons and two to the F.I.S.

Comets Defeat Rockets 4-2 In RCAF Play

TRENTON — The Rockets, showing little of their usual fine teamwork, suffered a 4-2 defeat at the hands of the Comets in the Community Centre last night.

The win gives Comets top spot in the "Big Four" series. The winner of this series will play in the R.C.A.F. Training Command finals. The Rockets are tied for second place with the F.I.S.

Rockets' forward lines appeared to be having a poor night, while the defense of the Comets was strong all through the game and broke up rush after rush of Rocket forwards as they failed to pass, or were out of position to get their sticks on the puck when it did come.

Kaulback led the way for the winners in getting the red light to shine twice and also assisting in one other goal. Hayes and Beehler both got singles and Beehler also had an assist. Wilberforce chalked up two assists.

Sgt. G. L. Crowder snapped in the first goal for the Rockets, with both assists going to Garrow, The Rockets started the scoring in the first period but the Comets came back with three in the last two minutes of the play to give them a 3-1 lead.

Both teams connected with one goal apiece in the second and failed to score in the final period.

Five penalties were handed out to the Rockets during the game and three were to the Comets.

First Period

Rockets, Crowder, (Garrow)	6.15
Comets, Kaulbock, (Beehler)	10.05
Comets, Hayes, (King, Bobbett)	13.20

Zone Meeting Of Legion Well Attended

TRENTON — Encouraging and excellent reports were the highlight of the annual zone meeting held in Warkworth recently. Eight branches of Zone F2, Canadian Legion were represented.

The report from Trenton indicated that Branch 110 is unquestionably the most progressive and active branch in the zone at present.

The meeting was under the chairmanship of Zone Commander Frank Hill of New Hope and was assisted by the Deputy Zone Commander Ezli Donaldson of Trenton.

The delegation from Branch 110, Trenton, was headed by Bruce Grier, Branch secretary, who presented the report of the local branch. Others who represented Branch 110 at the meeting were: William Hall, John A. Howe and Orvell C. Smith.

Regional vice - president 'Scotty' Bennington of Brighton was also present and spoke briefly to those present on their responsibilities as Legionnaires.

Zone F2 is comprised of branches in Trenton, Brighton, Colborne, Cobourg, Port Hope, Warkworth, Campbellcroft and Frankford.

Prescott Fire Destroys Store

The fire was reported under control at 10 a.m., about an hour after it was discovered.

The office of Simpson-Sears was destroyed. Damaged were the Dutch Bakeries, Johnston's Jewelry store, Rennie's Clothing store and Connell's Radio Shop.

The fire also caused damage to the offices of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CLC) on the second floor and to three apartments on the third floor.

Four firemen and a pumper and a ladder truck from Brockville, 12 miles west of here, responded to an appeal for help from the Prescott volunteer brigade.

Cause of the fire and the extent of damage were not known.

Training Units Will Be Moved To Centralia

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Training units from the RCAF station here will be moved to Centralia this year, and a major renovation program will be undertaken to give all training facilities in the area under Centralia command, Defence Minister G. R. Pearkes announced Monday. General Pearkes and Air Marshal Hugh L. Campbell, chief of air staff, toured the base at Centralia.

"It has been necessary to make these changes because the program for training NATO pilots at London is running out," the defence minister said.

The defence minister was flown into the RCAF station during a blinding blizzard Monday from the Prescott volunteer brigade. Cause of the fire and the extent of damage were not known.

TRADE POSITION IMPROVES

Time solves many problems — but sometimes we do not even notice the solutions when they occur.

Canadians, worrying about growing unemployment, may forget that not many months ago one of the major clouds on the economic horizon was the steady climb of Canada's trade deficit.

Now figures have just been released for Canada's exports and imports during the year 1957. Imports fell — as might perhaps have been expected in view of the slackening pace of economic activity. But exports rose during the year, exceeding the 1956 figure by $73,000,000 and reaching an all-time high of $4,936,000,000.

When Canada's trade deficit was the nation's major economic worry, we were continually being reminded that Canada's economic health depended heavily on foreign trade. There are many of our needs which we must buy abroad, and to pay for them we must sell the products of our forests, mines, fields and factories to other countries.

What was true then is still true today. It follows that, despite the fact that the focus of our attention has been changed, foreign trade is still a vitally important matter to us. Although we still have an unfavorable trade balance, we suggest that there is nothing incurably wrong with a nation which can expand its exports in the manner in which Canada has done during a period of declining economic activity. It still remains to be proven, of course, that we can continue this remarkable achievement, but if we do we shall have good reason for hoping that expanding markets will eventually provide work for all Canadians.

WANTED A NEW CONRAD

The news analysts are dissecting the Republic of Indonesia and attempting to predict its future.

These times, between us and the analysts, call for a new Joseph Conrad, that sea-loving, Dutch-distrusting, English-writing Pole, could wander again through the islands to the south-east and sense the undercurrent of intrigues, the Malay's dedication to keeping a compact with friend and to wreaking revenge on foes.

"The Indies are changed today. No more Dutch warships patrol the waters excluding foreign traders. The Western ways have been translated into a form of government which, at least outwardly, is akin to that we know. And yet can so great a change have been made in so few years? Can there perhaps be some strong current which, flowing deep, is not detected by Western eyes less acclimatized than those of Conrad, some current which will confound all the prophets and bring out of today's events results which will amaze the Western world?

A KILLER ON THE LOOSE

The news that canine distemper is widespread throughout the Quinte district should result in every lover of dogs exerting maximum effort to assist veterinarians in curtailing the spread of this disease.

In Belleville, for instance, citizens can help greatly by not allowing their pets to run at large. If people are fond of their animals, surely they need not be reminded of the need to keep confined all dogs in their premises. There is a large number of dogs in this city, many of which are allowed to run loose. One dog on the loose can multiply into a pack running helter skelter through the streets. Distemper thrives under these circumstances and before long several of the dogs are infected — dogs that were pets and loved by their owners.

The city has one dog-catcher. If he were to spend eight hours a day rounding up loose dogs and impounding them, he probably would not complete his job until some time after the threat of distemper had vanished with the coming of spring. Once again it can be seen how imperative it is that dogs should not be allowed to run free.

Perhaps the best and surest way dog lovers have of being reasonably certain their pets will escape the clutches of distemper is to get them vaccinated immediately. Even then, dogs should not be allowed to run at large.

A TOAST

Here's to woman! For her we toil,
For her build structures to the skies;
For her we burn the midnight oil
And strive at last to win life's prize.
Without her, who would care to chase
The will o' wisp of fame, or seek
The plaudits of the human race,
Or who would climb the mountain peak?

Here's to woman! For her we hate,
For her we envy and despise;
For her we brave the sternest fate;
For her we speak truths and often lies;
For her we clothe ourselves. At times
Go poorly clad for her sweet sake;
Perform good deeds and sometimes crimes;
For her we mend our ways or break.

Here's to woman! the source of all
Our hopes and fears, our every plan;
For her we rise, for her we fall.
It is the woman makes the man.

And so, I raise my glass tonight
And unto woman this toast give:
It is for her we daily fight,
It is for her we strive to live.

Device Ends Skid Danger

Montreal Gazette

In San Francisco, inventor E. Cooper Heard has demonstrated his latest creation, a device meant to facilitate safe and speedy on an automobile. This might seem of particular importance in Canadian climates, where wet roads and ice too make winter control of a car especially difficult.

Heard's device is fairly simple. A box two feet wide and four feet long is fastened to the rear bumper. Inside it, in the middle, is a very heavy, mobile weight. It is backed, at each end of the box, by heavy coil springs. When the car sways to one side, the weight is thrown to that side, hits the coil spring and rebounds, throwing its weight toward the other side.

The result, according to the demonstration, is just what's needed to counter any momentum matched and the car remains on course.

On a fast run, Heard threw the steering wheel hard to the left, then hard to the right. Ordinarily this would have cut the car into a broadside skid, like the wheel that runs on skates. Instead, the car kept moving straight ahead, though the tires, locked, were sliding on gravel.

Such devices may seem wonderful things. Even with safety devices, the safety of a car's operation depends much more on what's sitting behind the wheel than on what's attached to the rear bumper.

But driving is helped by safety devices. But safe driving is only accomplished by safe drivers. It is unwise to put too much dependence on safety gadgets to make up for a driver's mistakes.

Was This Dog Really Hero?

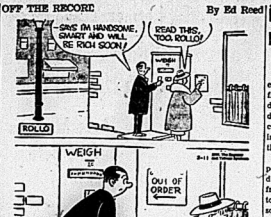
Fort William Times-Journal

An unusual news story comes from Sudbury district, about a spaniel and his mistress. The lady was overcome by fumes as she walk over mine dumps when the ground gave way beneath them. The dog jumped to safety, but the lady slid down the shaft.

The dog stood there and the head held as the lady dangled from the end of it. While the lady was thus suspended, to get a grip on the sloping side of the shaft, she crawl back to safety.

We like dogs and would rather go along with the popular idea that people is dead wise heroic in saving the life of his master. But the story through perists. Was the spaniel really trying to pull the lady out of danger, or was he merely desperately not to be pulled in after her?

Klan Meets Its Betters



Windsor Star

The Ku Klux Klan has been a bunch of bullies, finding courage only in company. It has terrorized people in a cowardly and brutal manner and there always has been a suspicion it would find its match in a community that met any real opposition.

That suspicion aroused an Indian band in South Carolina by burning one of its notorious crosses in front of the chief's tepee. The Indians made ready for the first opportunity and when it came, quickly dispelled the Klan by firing shots in the air.

The Klan beat a humiliating retreat. It is very brave when force is on its side but runs for cover otherwise. These ignorant whites, self-assured of their own superiority, have been abandoned their claims to supremacy when they met opposition by men of another color.

Use of force by Indians is no more to be tolerated than that by the Klan. But, under provocation, the Indians have proved the up the Klan for what it is — a bunch of cowards, masquerading under white skins, ashamed even to show their faces.

Early history of Belleville's waterworks system. In the early part of 1886 the citizens of Belleville had no fear that in two yeins' time they would have a system of waterworks second to none in the Dominion. Yet such proved to be the case as in February 1888, the system was in operation and proving very satisfactory. The contract for supplying the system was signed on October 12, 1886. The extent of pipes laid to be at least fourteen miles from the pump house with at least 164 hydrants placed by the corporation was to pay him $40,000 annum for a term of ten years. Work was to be commenced within two months of the signing of the contract. Early in December Ak. Henry Mcininch turned the first sod on the spot where the stand pipe is now standing near the Tabernacle Church. The first of pipes arrived in March from Hamilton. In the week 1800 feet of pipe were laid at a cost of $60,600.00. Fifteen and a half miles of pipes were laid and 168 hydrants were installed. Active work was commenced in June with 38 men employed. As the supply of pipes accumulated the force of laborers was increased until the payroll numbered 280 men. Eight and one half miles or 38,725 cubic yards of rock were blasted in making the trenches; four and one half tons of explosives were used. The coated pipe, 20 inches in diameter reaches 1600 feet out into the bay and rests upon a gravel bottom where the water is 20 feet deep. In the work 60,548 feet of pipe were used. The last pipe was laid about January 10th, 1888. Between $75,000.00 and $80,000 were paid for labor. The total cost of the work when all the bound figures was $225,000.00.

The fuel situation here. Mayor Dr. Platt has issued the following statement: "The fuel situation in Belleville is such as to make it imperative that every economy be practiced. Notified for the next two weeks in the consumption of coal. No persons who have fuel sufficient for more than four days' use, need apply at the City Hall or to the Fuel Controller for a supply. All persons who have a quantity of coal larger than needed for the next few weeks would do well to share it with their neighbors who may be in want."

Fire in the dental offices of Dr. Joseph Caldwell in the Caldwell Block on Front St. yesterday caused little damage, and, despite the fact that as little water as possible was used by the firemen, quite a number of people crowded into the clothing store of Quick and Robertson and some damage was done to clothing.

Mr. J. S. Willison, editor of the Toronto News was the guest speaker at the dinner meeting of the Canadian Club at James Wallace's restaurant last evening. His president of the club, Mr. R. J. Graham, occupied the chair. Songs were rendered by Mr. Stirton Brown, Mr. Allan Chown and Mr. Don Ross. Mr. Willison gave an eloquent and informative address on the subject, "The Social and Political Tendencies of Canada."

The Belleville Portland Cement Company's hockey team played a match with the team of the Belleville Portland Cement Company and the former team won by a score being 10 to 3. The following composed the former team: Lehigh, — Boland, Burgoyne, Pepper, Storms, Dr. Burke and Reeves; Belleville Cement, — Pringle, McNab, Gilbert, Sheppard, Wallbridge, Ford and Brown.

WHY WRANGLE?

When, I think of human wrangling, I always have pictured the deeds of a dog carrying a healing bone to a sick relative for a future feast, whereupon he was attacked by another dog. The bone being dropped in the process meanwhile the fight going on. Also, meanwhile, another dog coming off with the bone!

We have never known anything good to come out of wrangles. And I speak with some little authority, because I have been in them myself.

But how foolish — how energy-eating it is to wrangle. If people attained anything from it, then I would believe that wrangling should become one of the useful arts.

Long ago I decided that the only useful wrangle in the world is the personal wrangle. That is, if things do not go right, the only person worth wrangling with is one's self, where the trouble starts.

In this connection, far be it from one so unlearned as I to make an international suggestion, but it has always appeared to me that if the great statesmen — the world over — would agree on peace first, and fight out their personal feuds afterward, everybody would be so much happier — and the sole grease of the machine would not be clogged so heavily as it now is.

What's the use of wrangling!

Like Swank Dining Cars

Christian Science Monitor

A half century ago a railroad executive answered a question from his small son, at once dazzled by the splendor of the dining car and appalled by its cost: "Why, son, what we get in from a dining car doesn't pay the wages of the waiters."

A quarter century ago the experienced operator of a big and influential — transient hotel told a friend: "We only feed our guests to keep them alive and healthy so they will stay with us and pay room rent."

So a problem which is plaguing the railroads in particular ever more acutely is not a new one. The hotels found the partial answer perhaps three decades ago in "coffee shops" where which title the public accepts simpler surroundings, service, and cuisine. By the time the railroads began experimenting with "grill" and "lunch counter" cars with some success, but only in terms of cutting deficits.

But Americans are not wistfully to the diner tradition. One road — the Rock Island, which long enjoyed the additional patronage of commuters — "wanted tablecloths, sparkling silverware, china dishes," but it was "coffee and" on the old splendor, deficit and all.

Perhaps there is enough romance attached to travel that people who will cheerfully balance on a counter stool and wolf a "hot dog" and a wedge of pie at noon hour want luxury served with passing scenery.

Letters To The Editor

Postmen Appreciate Public's Assistance

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

With the experience of the 1957 Christmas season just concluded behind us, reports to headquarters from postmasters in all parts of Canada are making clear that once again the Canadian Postal Service has had the generous support of the public in its task of handling the extremely heavy volume of mail that is normal to that period of the year.

These reports indicate particularly that in response to the Department's "Mail Early" campaign exceeded all previous records, which, together with the fortunate circumstance of good weather over the greater part of Canada made it possible to handle increased mail handling with an even greater degree of efficiency.

Through pictures in the newspapers and other means many postal patrons were given glimpses of what the downpour of Christmas mail means in any post office, and realization of the immensity of the task is made more clear to the greater when it is known that in the three weeks preceding Christmas Day almost 300,000,000 Christmas cards and parcels are normally handled by Canada's post offices for treatment, over and above the regular mail flow.

The fact that through mailing early this extra load is spread over a greater period of time makes possible the best and most economical use of temporary staffs and spare time and delivery of well prepared and correctly addressed mail in good time for the holiday.

Needless to say, postal staffs every where are very grateful for courtesies—appreciated the assistance, from the public at large and also from the newspapers in publicizing the many ways in which the co-operation could best be given.

I have had my own thanks and that of all Post Office department personnel, with best wishes to all for the year 1958.

Yours sincerely,
C. A. Boyle,
Deputy Postmaster General

Legion Expresses Thanks for Support

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Please accept my thanks and appreciation of the Ontario Command Public Relations Committee for the grand support and interest shown in Canadian Legion activities and projects in the Belleville-Trenton area.

Special thanks for the wonderful picture and story coverage of the official opening of Trenton's new Memorial Hall.

It is the hope of this committee that the Legion will continue to warrant your support and that you will see fit to continue to publicize any worthy, while project undertaken by any branch in your district or area.

Sincerely,
Len A. Taylor, Chairman
Provincial Public Relations Committee.

The Asian Flu Fiasco

Does vaccination with one or more than one strain of influenza virus give protection against Asian influenza?

I don't know.

The Commission on Influenza of the Armed Forces Epidemiological Board has recommended that vaccine containing an Asian strain be administered as promptly as possible, especially as Asian virus vaccine of 400 CCA units, for immunization.

In tests by four groups of investigation 12,908 persons were given injections of Asian influenza vaccine and 9,283 persons were given injections of simple saline solution that was formalinized. The effectiveness of vaccination compared with injection of the placebo (formalinized salt solution) was judged by the number of persons who developed respiratory illness of any kind. By this test the experts decided that is from 62 to 67% effective.

This is not good enough, in my opinion. But then, you must remember that I'm skeptical of the value of Pasteur treatment for rabies. Most physicians and health authorities insist is rabies in man. I have never believed it. I have waited until now because I hoped the question of vaccination against Asian influenza might be answered in a convincing way. Apparently it has been and I'm glad about it to date. I can't recommend vaccination against the flu, ordinary or Asian, and I don't like the assurance I feel in recommending tuberculosis vaccine and diphtheria, smallpox and typhoid fever.

Anyway, it seems to me that the health authorities, federal, state and in some cities, have achieved outbreak.

Now this Oriental plague has proved uncooperative, the big federal, state and municipal health departments are beginning to acknowledge that the epidemic has not measured up to their predictions — but they're still warning that you had better get vaccinated before the next

By GREGORY CLARK

It begins to look as if a superior jockey had wormed his way up into the high brass at CBS. The chief characteristic of a disc jockey is his contempt for music. He looks upon music merely as an enticement. His purpose is to entice people to listen, so that he can spiel can be sprung on them. Like the ominous circus band of the calliope, music on radio, the disc jockey believes, is to pull in the crowds. It is unfortunate for him that music should be played for its own sake, and not as a chaser shuffling his commercial scrips negligently.

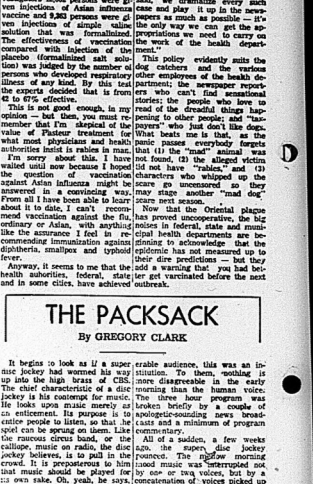
I do not know what has happened in other CBC regions of Canada, but in the Quebec-Ontario field, the basic CBC stations for many years past devoted the first three hours of the morning, from 7 a.m. to nearly 10 o'clock, largely to the music, most of it classical or symphonic. To a very considerable audience, this was an institution. To them, "nothing is right with the world" in the early morning than the human voice. The three hour program was by nine and long distance was all over creation. Even the most ardent lovers of classical compositions were rudely broken in upon to allow some qualified commentator to utter some platitude about events already reported.

The pity of it was, wherever you twist the dials in the early morning, all you find is feverish enticement.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THERE ARE TWO KINDS



"I thank God that I am not as other men are." Highly religious people often have a pride which causes them to look down upon not only on the ignorant but on those who differ with them. Selfrighteous people have caused every religious persecution in the past, and every stupid attempt to stop the advance of science and discovery.

Wise people know so much that they are satisfied that they have the truth, and block has been thrown across the highway of progress.

Midgets Whip Trenton 12-1

Belleville midget all - stars whipped the Trenton all-stars here last night in an exhibition game played before the junior fixture.

The winners led 6-0 at the end of the first period and 8-1 after forty minutes of play and finished strong with four in the third.

Billy McGuire paced the Belleville attack with two goals and as many assists while Moe Hunter had two goals and one helper. D. Lawrence also scored twice with Hill and Jim Sheridan each registering one and one. Stu Muirhead, Jack Boulter, Bucky Ethier and Hubert Poirier added the other goals while Mavety and Keller had assists.

Need For Adequate Floor Prices Stressed By Farmers' Union Pres.

A joint meeting of Roslin and Canifton locals of Ontario Farmers' Union, was held in Plainfield hall with a large attendance of members and interested farmers.

The president introduced the new provincial president, Gordon Hill, of Varna, Ont. Mr. Hill is a farmer who realizes the need of farm organization today. He stated, "The Ontario Farmers' Union was originally demanded that nothing but a full, fair relationship price based on the cost of production will allow farmers to continue to farm. Our back is against the wall and we are fighting for our very existence. When farmers all over Ontario find it necessary to work part or full time in other industries, and do their work in the evenings and weekends in order to hold and help pay for their farms, this indicates a general farm depression on the Ontario farm front.

"These people a few years ago received their living from the soil, but due to increased operating costs and poor farm prices now have to depend on some other source of livelihood. There should and can be policies passed that would give agriculture a fair measure of the protection given to other industries. The Farmers' Union recommends that the price support legislation shortly to be announced in Ottawa will provide for adequate floor prices, set at cost of production to the producer.

"If we are to continue as the primary producer we must have our own thinking. It is our future and that of our children that is at stake here, so let us not waste time and energy but get on with the job of building a strong Farm Union and bring to agriculture that which is rightfully ours. During the month of December the government agriculture price support legislation was due for presentation to parliament, and in an effort to procure legislation satisfactory to the farmers, our Honorary President, Mr. Gardiner, visited the many governments members, including the minister of agriculture, and encouraged use of floor prices set at parity level, as a means of implementing the government promise to "ensure an adequate parity for agricultural production."

Mr. Hill also spoke of presenting the Farmers' Union fifth annual brief to the prime minister and cabinet of the Ontario government at Queen's Park, Toronto, in January. In receiving them, Mr. Frost gave a welcome to a large delegation, and said it indicated the interest and concern for agriculture and that it was a compliment to the organization.

In conclusion, Mr. Hill threw the challenge for all members to work diligently to increase their membership, as it is a union of actual grassroot producing farmers, in closing his address he asked for questions, and a discussion period followed.

Local president, Fred Elliott, expressed thanks and appreciation of the members to Mr. Hill for having given his time in visiting the locals and the county.

Mr. Roscoe Robson, M.L.A., also expressed appreciation to Mr. Hill for a splendid address, and reminded everyone that he too is a farmer and realizes the price conditions that exist today. Farmers must organize if they are to have a bargaining power. Mr. Clarence Graham from the Tweed Local thanked Mr. Hill for coming to address the meeting and for Roslin Local extending them an invitation to attend. Marysville Local was also represented.

NEW LIQUOR CARD

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's new liquor permit will be the size of an identification card and will go on sale April 1 for $1, same price as the existing permit book. William H. Collings, chief commissioner of the Liquor Control Board of Ontario said Monday liquor purchasers will be required only to show the card. An order form will still have to be signed, he said.

Chou Quits Post As Minister of Foreign Affairs

LONDON (AP)—Peiping radio announced today that Hou Ko-lai has been "relieved" as communist China's foreign minister on his own recommendation. The broadcast said he will retain his post as premier.

Vice-Premier Chen Yi was appointed to succeed Chou as foreign minister, the radio said.

The actions were taken at a plenary session of the National People's Congress, which began meeting in the Red Chinese capital Monday.

The Red radio said Chen Yi would continue to hold his post as a vice-premier. He also is a marshal in the Chinese army.

Chen Yi has been a rising star in the Peiping hierarchy since 1955.

At the opening of the congress Monday, Premier Chou launched a new campaign to gain Communist China a voice in international conferences and a seat in the United Nations.

Evening Aux. Holds Panel On Japan

The February meeting of Holloway Street Church Evening Auxiliary was held in the church parlors on Wednesday.

The usual business was transacted with the president, Mrs. Marjorie Miller, presiding.

The worship service entitled "Unity for the Honor of the Gospel" was in charge of Mrs. Merne Richardson's group. The members were reminded during the meditation to work together for the good of one another in Christ's spirit of service.

Mrs. Dorothy Willis read a story which told the curse of tuberculosis in Japan and the ways it is being combatted.

Mrs. Betra Best and Mrs. Dorcas Carlyle staged a panel which related some of the problems of modern Japan including the housing problem, over population, unemployment and undernourishment. The Japanese Christian church's steady growth is partly due to a system of widespread evangelism among its members. There are 39 Canadian missionaries in Japan.

Miss Alice Heasman showed interesting colored slides of her trip to Mexico. A social time was enjoyed.

Nursing Home Holds Party for Patient

A surprise birthday party was held Sunday at the Prindle Nursing Home for Mrs. J. E. Taylor who has been a patient in the home for the past three years.

Mrs. Taylor, who celebrated her 80th birthday on February 9, received many lovely gifts and flowers.

Friends and relatives present included her husband, J. E. Taylor, three daughters, Mrs. Percy Allerdeman, of Montreal, Mrs. Harold Thurgood, and Mrs. Carmen Herrington, and a son, Harold Taylor, all of Belleville.

A light lunch of birthday cake, ice cream and tea was served. Tea was poured by Mrs. Harold Taylor, while grandchildren Marjorie Taylor and Sandra Harrington, served the guests.

The club closed its evening entertainment with a waltz routine by all the cast. Music was provided by Dr. W. C. McCutcheon.

Skating was enjoyed by all and during the evening, prizes donated by Chase's Garage were won by Miss Karen Buck, youngest girl on skates under six and George Picard youngest boy on skates under six.

Miss Anne Beach, whose birthday came closest to "Thinking Day" February 22 and Ron Smith, whose birthday was closest to Scout Master Mervin Dafoe's birthday, June 4. Prize donated by Mrs. Hanna's Style Shoppe to Mrs. Morey, the oldest woman skating and a prize donated by Mrs. J. Moore, of Batawa to the oldest man skating, Mr. Reg Baker. Mrs. Moon donated a prize to Sandra Puddephatt whose birthday came closest to February 3, Frankford Hardware donated a prize to "Pete" McLeod whose birthday came closest to February 1.

To the largest family on the ice, the prize was won by the Baker family, and was donated by Spencer's Groceteria and Cleveland's Groceteria.

The longest married couple on skates, was Mr. and Mrs. Dick Bowman. The prize was donated by Murphy's Hardware and McLeod's Garage.

The elimination skating for young couples was won by Sharon Foster and Paul Pelkie; prizes donated by Mardill's Drug Store, Murphy's Garage and Chase's Garage. The runners-up were won by Stanley Bobby Williams and Adrienne Vreugdenhil with the prizes donated by Dawe's Furniture and Jim John's Garage.

Mr. Raymond Rowe, as chairman of the Frankford Local Association, thanked the Frankford Girl Guide Club for the use of the arena and all those who helped to make the evening a success. Also special appreciation to the Belleville Skating Club for such excellent entertainment.

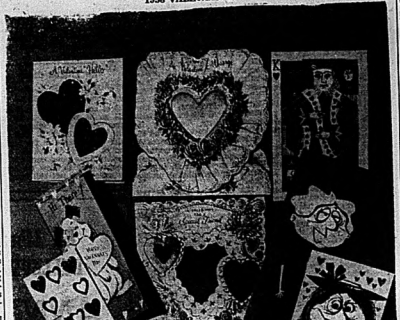
Cash donations were received from Mr. Fred Conley; Astles Garage; Mrs. Doris Smith; Mr. Clinton Cooney; Mr. Wayne Ulrey, the biggest demand appears to be for boxes priced up to $1.

"SLAM" CARDS

A new trend in Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick is to discard the so-called "slam card" which often has a sentimental front and a "drop dead" message inside. Typical of these cards is one depicting two unsavory characters saying "we deserve each other."

A Montreal store official says "some artists are really letting their hair down as opposed to other years when their designs and messages were strictly sentimental. The slam card is an outlet."

In Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island there is a swing away from the cheap humorous card. Bigger cards, the lacy, sentimental 10-square-inch variety, are catching the eye of the Maritime consumer. Prices for these range from $1 to $1.50.



Saint John, N.B., reports Cupid sharpening his arrow as sentimental cards lead the pack. Flower and candy sales are expected to increase a few days before the 14th.

Youngsters are also saying it with sentimental cards in Quebec. They are the best customers, report greeting card merchants who also say sales are up five to 19 per cent.

BRISK BUSINESS

Cupid's messages in Ontario may be the casual, sophisticated, or humorous variety. One card has protruding eyes that roll with a slogan "be my tranquillizer."

In Manitoba people like to say it with flowers. Florists, report many advance orders. Business is brisk. The retail merchants association says cards are moving fast and chocolate sales are

A new twist has been added to the old funny Valentines but hearts and flowers still are big sellers in the Valentines being sent this year. Above is a selection of the more popular ones. Cards in the left-hand row, particularly the slim jims, find their best sale among women. Men still go for the flossy ornate cards such as the two top ones in the centre row. Typical of the modern Valentines is the card at top right which opens into three sections each with a sentimental message. Lower two cards at right are known in the trade as "slam" Valentines. They have a casual, sophisticated humor and are among teenagers. Card at lower right has eyes that roll and carries the message: "Be my tranquilizer!" (CP Photo).

Sentimental Greeting Type Card for St. Valentine's Day Still Most Popular One

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cupid will be hitting his target on Friday with cards, flowers, candy and gifts on St. Valentine's Day.

A survey by the Canadian Press indicates the sentimental type of greeting card is still the most popular, including lace-trimmed missives, followed by the humorous type.

Heart-shaped boxes of chocolates are favorites, and while they may run up to higher figures, the biggest demand appears to be for boxes priced up to $1.

Gamma Mu Hears Talk On "Drama"

Gamma Mu Chapter Beta Sigma Phi met Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Clark James, MacDonald avenue.

The members approved the motion to make a contribution to the International Endowment Fund which allows $5,000 annually to talented young girls. A donation to the National Ballet Guild was approved.

The chapter is pleased to welcome Doreen Chambers who has transferred her membership from Leamington.

"Drama" was the title of the interesting cultural program planned by Mrs. C. James and Mrs. J. L. Acton. Mr. Don Thomas, president of the Belleville Theatre Guild, opened the program with a detailed account of the backstage workings of a theatre guild. He stressed the vital importance of each member and also the need for more male actors.

An informal social hour including the players, followed with Mrs. W. Turner and Mrs. R. S. Morphy acting as co-hostesses.

Love springs eternal in Prince Albert, Sask., where the teenage set look upon Valentine's Day as a very sentimental occasion. Regina teen-agers are going in for perfumed valentines. Young lovers in Moncton show interest in the love message type of card and study humorous verse are going best this year—especially those with brief hard-hitting messages.

Sweetheart cards and lush sentiment are the preference in Vancouver, where department stores report a heavy run comparable to last year, which was one of the best.

Inquisition for the sweetheart cards goes back to a third-century saint who was beheaded in Rome in 270 A.D. This particular St. Valentine—there have been several of the name—is said to have been a match-maker who heard the wedding vows of young lovers secretly. He incurred the wrath of the emperor who had banned marriage by young Roman soldiers.

In the Elizabethan period young men attached a Valentine to an apple or orange and threw it in a window of some slighted young lady.

And the young ladies of that day ate a hard-boiled egg and went to bed with bay leaves fastened to the pillow in dream of their future husband.

Dr. H. Swann Addresses Bridge Street United WMS

The February meeting of Bridge Street United Church Women's Missionary Society took place recently under the chairman of the president, Mrs. F. C. Adsett and was well attended.

A brief address on temperance was given by Mrs. R. Farnsworth. She announced a meeting of the W.C.T.U. would take place at the YMCA, February 19.

Mrs. H. M. Davis, in reporting for Christian stewardship presented a chart showing the financial allotment for 1958.

Three "life memberships" in the W.M.S. were presented to Mrs. C. L. Masser by Mrs. W. J. Morrison; Mrs. J. E. McArthur by Miss Madeline Young, and Mrs. W. H. Fiskle by Mrs. F. C. Adsett.

Mrs. Adsett announced the World Day of Prayer meeting would take place at Bridge Street Church on Friday at 2 p.m. and extended an invitation to all to be present.

The program was under the direction of Mrs. Andrew Macrae and Mrs. Tyler Frankin. The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. George Wishart.

Two beautiful solos were sung by Mrs. Ivan Tinkess, accompanied by Mrs. Rennie, organist of Eastminster United Church. They were thanked by Mrs. MacKenzie.

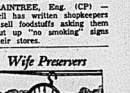
Guest speaker was Rev. Harold Swann, B.D., retired missionary now teaching at Alberta College. He was introduced by Mrs. MacKenzie who noted Dr. Swann and his wife served for six years in China and for 23 years in Trinidad.

Rev Swann gave an interesting address regarding the work of the Theological Training College in Trinidad. He said because of the heat — Trinidad is only 100 miles from Florida, it within 10 degrees of the equator — classes being at 7.30 a.m.

The Training School is conducted much along the same lines as Canadian Normal Schools, although household science, agricultural, child welfare, agriculture, and music were added to the course. Although the school is supported by the government, there was no limitation placed on the amount of religious instruction given.

The speaker told of several interesting instances of native graduates of the college attaining degrees of proficiency and winning scholarships enabling them to obtain further education in Canada and the United States. Many returned and served at the college or in other important positions.

Dr. Swann also told of the great strides that have been made in living conditions in the 28 years from the time when natives lived in mud huts to the present time of living in modern houses with modern conveniences.



Thanks were extended to Dr. Swann on behalf of the society by the president, Mrs. Adsett.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served and a social half-hour enjoyed.

Service - - - N.B. Travel Bureau Style

By Mary Moore

New Brunswick's Travel Bureau in Fredericton is a lively organization. They'll do not just tell you where and how to travel in N. B. They go the second mile. If need be they accompany you and set you on the right route. Their hospitality reminded me a little of Londoners when asked directions. They don't just point a finger and say "you can't miss it". They doff their Homburgs, turn round and walk with you to your destination.

TUESDAY

Tomato Juice; Beef and Bacon Meat Loaf with Mushroom Sauce; Potatoes Baked in Jackets; Brussels Sprouts; Fruit Cup of Orange and Grapefruit Sections; Assorted Crackers and Cheese; Coffee.

The N. B. Travel Bureau was asked by an organization in United States for a typical N. B. menu which they wanted to serve at a Maritimes Night fast. Mr. Tweedie channelled this request to Betty MacDonald who sped to Reta Underhill, a Director in the Department of Agriculture. In their capable heads and hands the following menu, with beautiful pictures to illustrate, was on its way by return mail.

NEW BRUNSWICK DINNER MENU

RHUBARB JUICE:

Two and one-half lbs. rhubarb, 2 qts. water, 3 cups sugar, 2 lemons, juice and grated rind. Cook the rhubarb and water and strain. Add sugar and lemon. Chill and serve.

BOILED MIRAMICHI SALMON WITH EGG SAUCE

(Pacific, Restigouche, Atlantic, Casge, or whatever salmon you can catch may be done by same method). Wipe the salmon clean and cut in servings. Season with salt. Place the slices together as before cutting and put the fish in dampened greaseproof paper. The fish will stick together after cooking. Place on easily separated into slices by running a knife between marks of previous slicing. Tie the paper into a bag and plunge into boiling water. Keep the bag from touching the bottom of the kettle by placing a metal lar ring on the bottom. Boil rapidly for five minutes and then more slowly, allowing from 8 to 10 minutes for each pound of fish. Save the juices from the fish which will be inside the paper. Make a THICK WHITE SAUCE: Three tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, salt, pepper. Melt the butter. Add the dry flour, mix well, cook one minute, add the milk and seasonings, stirring until thick and boiling. Cook two minutes. Add fish liquor to thin it sufficiently to pour. We recommend the addition of 1 or 2 chopped hard cooked eggs and 1-4 cup chopped parsley.

PREMIER'S FAVORITE SALAD: Drop 1 cup celery and 1-3 cup parsley. Shred 1 cup lettuce and 1 cup young spinach leaves. Grate 1 cup carrots. Toss with a dressing of 2 tablespoons white wine vinegar, 2 teaspoons sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 cup oil.

Note: Upper and Western Canadians want fiddlehead greens too. Plans are afoot to increase distribution. Requests by you might speed this.

GOOD MANNERS

MAY SHE WEAR ENGAGEMENT RING BEFORE ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCEMENT?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We're engaged, but no one knows it except our parents. Because of several circumstances we cannot be married for at least a year, maybe longer, and I prefered that my parents not announce the engagement in the newspapers at this time, so that before we can possibly get married. But my fiance, bless h i We're, just couldn't resist giving me an engagement ring — and can hardly resist wearing it. If do wear it, what effect would th have on the announcement by m parents? — Reader

If you wear your engagemen ring in public this will announce that you are engaged.

PROPER TO SEND BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENTS

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

My first child is to arrive quite soon. Two stork showers have been given for me, quite a few friends attending and bringing presents for the baby. I have already bought the birth announcements I am planning to send and I had planned to send them to all relatives and all our friends. But today, when I was showing one of these announcements to my cousin, she told me that is not the proper thing to do. Should not send these to any of the relatives and friends who had come to either of the stork showers that had been given for me, because "obviously" this would look as if the announcements were sent as a bid for another present for the baby. I really right about this, and should I cross off my list the names of relatives and friends who brought presents to the showers?

— Mother-to-be

Your cousin is not right about this. These cards are to be announcements of the birth of your baby, tell the birth-date, the baby's name . . . and it is entirely correct for you to send these announcements to all relatives and friends who you think will be interested in the Happy News, whether or no they attended either of the showers.

Women's Activities

TRINITY UNITED W.M.S.

MADOC — Trinity United Women's Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. B. Tanner with a fine attendance. Mrs. Albert Empey, the president, was in charge, and welcomed a great ny welcome to all members and visitors.

During the business part, the roll call was responded to by "Ideas for the Meetings During the Year", with many helpful suggestions being given. She also announced that at the March meeting an apron party and sale would be held, the sewing to be at Mrs. Jessie Reid's.

Mrs. F. Fleming reported on Community Friendship re. — thank-you letters and several cards being sent to the sick and shut-ins. The president also announced the W.M.S. Presbyterial to be held Napanee on the 7th — February. Several members attended.

Mrs. Lane was in charge of the worship service the theme being "The Second Mile", with Mrs. John Storring reading the Bible story from Philippians and Mrs. Ken Gordon, Mrs. Parnell, Mrs. Tanner and Mrs. Burnside reading short quotations in line with the interesting address given by Mrs. Lane.

Mrs. P. H. Nayler was in charge of the study book for the month, the topic 'Students Of The News', giving the members an insight of education in Japan among the Japanese. She told of the numerous colleges, secondary schools and public schools down to nursery schools with their various and standards of education. Her talk was most interesting and informative.

Her closing was in the form of a questionaire with several of the members taking part. Hymns a t i t a b l e for the occasion were used throughout the meeting.

An enjoyable social hour was spent with the hostess and her assistants serving afternoon tea.

Mrs. W. McCoy expressed the appreciation of the W.M.S. members to Mrs. Tanner for her kind hospitality

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Ronald M. — I want to work my way through college.

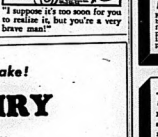
MR. L. M. — What a half-baked, Horatio Alger idea!

Ronald M. — I am a 17-year-old boy making plans for starting college in the fall. I am very eager to be independent and I want to work my way through. This would mean I would have to go to a school that is somewhat less expensive than the ones my parents want for me.

My parents keep telling me how they want to give me the best of everything and that I should appreciate it. I have always said they do too much for me and my younger brother. I want to make my own way in the world.

Well, it happens I did just that — and I know what it means. It means never getting enough rest, not having time for sports and other extracurricular activities and not having enough time for study. I know I could have done much better at school and perhaps gone further in my career if I didn't have to work.

Ronald has had the good fortune to be accepted in a top-ranking school and I am fortunate enough to be able to send him. Why should he be so stubborn in this hare-brained scheme?



The Council: Perhaps Mr. L. M. would be a little more patient with his son if he realized the boy probably wants to emulate him. Possibly Ronald idealizes the father who worked his w a y through college and became successful in his career and he needs to test himself against this hero figure.

In this case, Mr. L. M.'s crude disparagement of Ronald's idea probably has a reverse effect. Ronald inevitably feels that his father is pointing out his poor judgment and his inadequacy to meet the challenge he has set himself. This makes it still more important that he prove himself.

Ronald's wish to be self-supporting is commendable and deserves attention. It is not necessary or desirable to crush his ambitions with terms like "half-baked" and "harebrained." An effort should be made to meet him at least halfway.

If Mr. L. M. feels that the top-ranking school is really so much more desirable than Ronald's choice, he should suggest that the boy plan to meet part of its expenses there. He could offer to give Ronald a part of the money as a loan, to be paid off when he starts to work. He should point out that many students meet their expenses with loans from the college.

Above all, it is important that Ronald go to the college of his choice in a happy frame of mind. It may be frustrating to his parents to have him spurn the advantages they want to give him, but those advantages would not have a desirable effect if they were forced down Ronald's throat.

Congregational Meeting

JOHNSTOWN UNITED

JOHNSTOWN — The congregational meeting of Johnstown United Church was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stickle on the evening of February 4, 1958.

The meeting opened with Scripture read by the Rev. G. A. Puttenham followed by prayer, and the minutes of the 1956 congregational meeting were given by the treasurer, Mr. Eddie Meyers.

The report of the treasurer for 1957 showed a balance on hand of $106.90.

The missionary and maintenance report showed a balance of $51.40.

The report of the Women's Association given by Mrs. Alex Vandervoort showed a balance of $660.93 and a balance of $111.51 in the building fund.

The Sunday school report by Ernest Bush showed a balance of $151.12.

The name of Alva Meyers was added to the session which is composed of Asthur Bush; Clayton Curtis; William S. Harry; Earl Stickle; Mrs. K. Stickle and Mrs. Kenneth Stickle.

The members of trustees — Arthur Bush; Clayton Curtis; Roy Harry; William S. Harry; Glenn Stickle; Kenneth Stickle and Earl Stickle.

The same planists were to carry on for 1958 with help from Mrs. Alex Vandervoort and Miss Thelma Stickle, when needed.

S. S. REORGANIZED

The Sunday School was reorganized as follows; superintendent —Mrs. Alva Meyers; assistant superintendent — Mr. Glenn Stickle; secretary-treasurer — Miss Thelma Stickle; planist — Rosemary Bush and Evelyn Harry; Cradle Roll superintendent — Mrs. Arnold Harry; beginners class — Mrs. Alex Vandervoort; assistant — Beverley Clapp; primary class — Miss Gail Lohnes; assistant — Mrs. Clayton Curtis; junior class — Miss Eleanor Clapp; assistant — Mrs. Douglas Harry; Young People's class — Mrs. E. Clapp, assistant Mrs. Ernest Bush; adult Bible class — the Rev. G. A. Puttenham

YEMEN TALKS UNION WITH EGYPT

President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt is greeting Crown Prince Mohammed El Badr of Yemen, left, in Cairo just before Nasser went before the national assembly to present the constitution for the new United Arab Republic, created by union of Egypt and Syria. It is expected that Yemen may become a third member of the Arab republic, of which Nasser has been named president.

Entomologist Studying Flight Of Flies, Mosquitoes and Bees

EDMONTON (CP) — Dr. Brian Hocking has flies, mosquitoes and bumble bees flying in circles.

The insects haven't much choice. They're figured by adhesive to a rotating horizontal bar, and as they fly Dr. Hocking's apparatus measures their speed and total distance.

Dr. Hocking is head of the University of Alberta's entomology department. He is one of the first men to study insect flight under controlled laboratory conditions.

Some of his experiments may prove of value in studying aerodynamics. Already facts learned about insects' flight abilities are being used in preventing insects from causing diseases.

Each experiment involves feeding, say, the fly, with a sugar solution. Dr. Hocking uses a "micro - pipette" made from a thermometer discarded by the physics department.

READY TO FLY

Once fed, and if everything goes right, the insect starts flying. The horizontal arm to which it is attached passes over a photo - electric cell which sends impulses to an amplifier and an automatic counter.

The insect keeps flying until exhausted, when Dr. Hocking swings a "landing field" into place to permit a rest. Then another feeding, another flight, and so on.

Nectar containing 40- per -cent sugar has an energy value of about one-third that of gasoline.

A mosquito at an average cruising speed of about 2½ miles an hour would travel the equivalent of 40,000,000 miles on a gallon of nectar. On that same gallon, a bee could travel at seven miles an hour for 4,000,000 miles and a black fly could go 2,000,000 miles and 10 miles an hour.

An insect can carry food to the extent of its own weight. For a mosquito, that's about three cubic millimetres.

Maximum range for a black fly — without "refueling" — is about 75 miles. A bee can go 30 miles, a horse fly 65 and a mosquito 32 mile.

MATES PAY FINE

PORTSMOUTH, England (AP) Joseph Stubbington, a 17 - year-old student pilot, pleaded guilty Monday to buzzing the school he attends. Witnesses said his rented plane missed the roof by a foot. Schoolmates took up a collection to pay his £10 fine for low and dangerous flying.

IRONIC DEATH

VIENNA (Reuters) — Dr. Walter Frauenberger, leader of an Austrian team which conquered 26,629 - foot Nanga Parbat Mountain in the Himalayas, died Sunday after falling 16 feet from a hotel window in Gmuenden, Austria.

Lionel Chevrier Hits Hard at PC Government

MONTREAL (CP) — Lionel Chevrier, former Liberal transport minister, says the Progressive Conservative government called a general election because it already was exhausted.

Addressing the Wilfrid Laurier Women's Club Monday, Mr. Chevrier said the Progressive Conservative government could have continued in office but decided not to because:

1. It did not wish to present a budget that would have disclosed a deficit of $500,000,000.

2. It wished to make people forget the failures of the Mont Tremblant conference on trade and of the Churchill trade mission that went to the United Kingdom.

3. It had no serious measure to offer to combat growing unemployment.

4. It was afraid to face up to its responsibilities in the field of federal-provincial relations.

MADE UNDER PRESSURE

If federal payments to the provinces were increased it was due to the pressure of the Liberal opposition, said Mr. Chevrier. "But this change was made without consultation with the provinces and with disregard for the rules of autonomy and courtesy."

Mr. Chevrier said the program of public works recently announced by the government was strictly an election manoeuvre.

On another subject, Mr. Chevrier said, he is not surprised federal Mines Minister Comtois is making puns with the name of Liberal Leader Lester Pearson.

At a Conservative rally in Quebec Saturday night, Mr. Comtois pronounced Pearson as "Personne"—French for nobody. A current pun in Quebec Conservative circles is that "Monsieur St. Laurent a été remplacé par Monsieur Personne." (Mr. St. Laurent was replaced by Mr. Nobody).

TWO NONENTITIES

"Things of this nature do not surprise me because Mr. Comtois and Mr. Balcer (Solicitor-General Leon Balcer) were, during the last session, the two greatest nonentities that we have seen in the Commons in a long time.

"They didn't open their mouths except to answer questions. They did not participate in any serious debate. When it come time to vote on bilingual government cheques for all Canada they were not even in the House."

Evidence Given By Barrister On Sale of Farm

OWEN SOUND (CP)—G. W. R. Tomlinson, Port Elgin lawyer, gave evidence Monday concerning sale of a farm owned by Mr. and Mrs. William Lyle Kennedy as an action for damages brought by Kennedy resumed.

Kennedy, 46, is suing Tomlinson for $5,000 for negligence and breach of duty. He also is suing his wife, Isabel Pearl Kennedy, for $6,500 for breach of contract.

Tomlinson said that in April, 1957, Kennedy consulted him regarding an agreement to be drawn up in which Kennedy's wife—who had left him—would return to Kennedy for a half-interest in the farm. Tomlinson added that he explained in detail the rights of each of them in this regard. There was no further discussion about what would be done with the proceeds of the sale.

The lawyer said he drew up the deeds and authorization for sale after Kennedy visited his office and said he had been offered a good price for the farm.

DEMANDS RETURN

On May 13, after Kennedy's wife again had left him because of alleged threats against her, Kennedy asked Tomlinson to demand that she return. He said the farmer repeated this demand many times.

Kennedy later told Tomlinson he was through and he would take his business elsewhere.

Tomlinson said the sale of the farm property to the Gregory Fishers had been arranged for completion June 1. But he told the Ontario Supreme Court petit jury hearing the action that it was held up because the mortgage would not deliver the papers until she received $50 which was paid to Kennedy by the township. She contended it should have been paid to her.

The sale was completed June 15.

Tomlinson said that at no time was he requested to cease the proceedings to close the sale of the farm.

The case continues.

Little Interest Will Be Charged Against Loans

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister John Dunlop said Monday little or no interest will be charged on the 2,000-odd loans of more than $500 the government intends to give each year to needy university students.

Legislation to set up the loan fund was approved in principle from the Ontario legislature.

In reply to CCF Leader Donald MacDonald, Premier Frost said his government is in favor of free university education to those qualified and this should come about under the new loan fund and the already - existing bursary scheme.

Mr. Macdonald said the new legislation is exactly what he asked for last year" and similar to action taken eight years ago by the CCF government in Saskatchewan.

NIXON'S VIEW

Harry Nixon (L—Brant) suggested the loan fund might be administered by the universities. Students then would be more anxious to repay loans.

Albert Wren (Lib-Lab. — Kenora) said the loan fund would be of great benefit to students in Northwestern Ontario who had to travel far and pay room and board.

William Murdoch (PC—Essex South) said further measures are needed to equalize the educational opportunities of rural students.

J. J. Wintermeyer (L—Waterloo North) asked the premier whether it were true the loan fund would amount to only $400,000. The premier said it would be "much more than that."

ATLAS MAKES SUCCESSFUL FLIGHT

Successful flight of the U.S. Air Force's intercontinental missile, the Atlas, is recorded on film off Cape Canaveral, Fla. The huge missile gave a flawless performance as it rose for 30 miles, then arched over the Atlantic. When it was just a mere pinpoint of light to the spectators of the lunchtime, a puff of smoke signified it had destroyed itself as scheduled by the designers.

Life Insurance aids Heart Foundation

Many people are making good recoveries from severe heart attacks. New advances in medical science and surgery are saving their lives. However, many more lives may be saved if, through research, the causes of heart disease can be determined.

Research of this nature is a long range project. It requires highly trained workers and the most modern equipment. These cost money.

Last year, with timely financial assistance from the Life Insurance Companies, the National Heart Foundation of Canada began to correlate and step up the tempo of research into the causes of heart disease.

This is just one of many ways in which the Life Insurance Companies in Canada are encouraging medical research that will help Canadians live longer and more happily.

"My friends— and my feuds" ED SULLIVAN

"I'm fed up with feuds and rumors of feuds," says TV's famous master of ceremonies Ed Sullivan—and in this week's Saturday Evening Post, he not only sets the record straight about his highly publicized battles with other show-business personalities, but also tells the inside story of the happier and more satisfying experiences he has had on his Sunday-night TV show over CBS.

Sullivan tells:

- the truth about his so-called fight with Steve Allen and Frank Sinatra —and how they began.
- what happened when Jack Ingram hanged himself on the theme about his mental breakdown.
- his candid impressions of Walter Winchell, Jimmy Durante, Oscar Hammerstein and Helen Hayes.
- What happened when Jeanne Crain and Esther Williams tried to match on his program in dramas that revealed too much "cleavage."

Climb Mountain To Wreckage of Light Aircraft

ALERT BAY, B.C. (CP) — A six-man rescue party climbed 1,500 feet up the side of a mountain Monday to reach the wreckage of a light aircraft which crashed Friday in fog with two men aboard.

They found one man huddled under a shorn-off wing of the aircraft, badly bruised and shaken up but otherwise in good condition. The other was dead in the wreckage.

The crash occurred about 10 miles from Alert Bay, on the northeast coast of Vancouver Island. Killed was K. G. Mainwaring, 37, pilot and owner of the float-equipped Piper Super Cub. The survivor, Lloyd Helsden, 29, is in hospital here.

ENGLISH MECHANICS

Both were employed as mechanics at the Canadian Forest Products Englewood operation near Alert Bay. Originally they were from England.

Mainwaring and Helsden were returning from a 20-mile flight when they ran into bad weather.

When the plane failed to report at Alert Bay a search was ordered. The wreckage was spotted Monday from a plane piloted by Bill Groth. His passenger, Bob Perrault, joined RCMP and civilian rescuers at Alert Bay to return to the scene. They travelled part of the way by water taxi and truck, then scaled the sheer face of the mountain to the wreckage.

'Spaceman' Bright, Chipper On Moon Trip

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Airman Donald G. Farrell brushed his teeth and shaved this morning just like many other husky 23-year-olds — except that he is pretending to be on a trip to the goon.

The blond six - footer was squeezed Sunday into a three-by-five - foot experimental sealed cabin—quickly dubbed a space barrel—at nearby Randolph air force base.

Space medical experts at the base's School of Aviation Medicine expect Farrell to crawl from the cabin next Sunday morning unharmed by the seven days in a make-believe space ship.

"Very bright and chipper" was the way Lt.-Col. George H. Bein Jump, chief of space medicine, reported Farrell's condition Monday.

HOW HE SPENDS TIME

Steinkamp described how Farrell spends his time in the hermetically-sealed cabinet. He sees and hears nothing on the outside. All instructions are relayed to him by a closed-circuit television hookup or by rearranged signals on a panel of buttons and switches.

Farrell has "work periods" of about four hours that might be compared to standing a watch at the controls of a space ship. He has a rubber mattress he can inflate and stretch out on during a specified sleeping period. Otherwise he must sit almost bolt upright.

There are "rest periods" during which Farrell reads or listens to record music piped into the cell—mostly George Gershwin and Cole Porter selections he picked before the "trip" started.

MUSIC POSSIBLE

The scientists believe it would not be impossible for space travellers to hear radio music broadcast from the earth—or from a space station relay point.

Farrell follows a menu that Steinkamp said is "high in protein and highly nutritious." It does not consist entirely of condensed or dehydrated foods. He had an orange with his Monday breakfast.

Steinkamp refused to describe much of the equipment used inside the cell.

NOSE CONE OF VANGUARD RECOVERED

U.S. navy frogmen tie a line to the third stage of the navy's Vanguard satellite rocket after the tank-like object was located in waters off Cape Canaveral, Fla. The Vanguard was purposely blasted shortly after take-off early Feb. 5, when the missile split in two in flight.

Hoisted aboard a U.S. navy ship after being secured by frogmen, the Vanguard's nose is ready for examination to determine how it fared during its brief flight. Little, if any, of the missile can be used again in the construction of other Vanguards scheduled for space flight.

Iraq and Jordan Will Discuss Royal Merger

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—Iraq's King Faisal flew to Jordan today to discuss a royal merger to counter the overshadowing union of Egypt and Syria.

Indications grew that the kingdom of Saudi Arabia might join the two Hashemite realms of Jordan and Iraq in a federation, provided Iraq pulls out of the pro-Western Baghdad pact that has alienated her from powerful nationalist elements in the Arab world.

UNION MOOTED

The two monarchs are expected to form some sort of union to stand off increasing pressure from Egypt and Syria to bring the rest of the Arab world under the banner of their newly formed United Arab Republic.

A Hashemite federation would be basically opposed to the UAR, whose two members Jordan divides geographically. Syria long has viewed Jordan as a potential province.

Union with Iraq probably would spell the end of the little state of Jordan, which Britain created after the First World War and gave independence to in 1946. Iraq—bigger, more populous and richer—undoubtedly would dominate such a union.

Official sources in Amman predict that King Saud of Saudi Arabia may join the federation, although his family has long been an archfoe of the Hashemites.

Canadiens' Stars One-Two In Points Race; Bathgate In Third Place

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

OTTAWA CANADIENS TONIGHT

Sammy Pollock's fast-skating tricky young Ottawa-Hull Canadiens will be the guests of the McFarlands at Memorial Arena tonight and much depends on the outcome as far as the Hillsdenders are concerned.

A victory for Ike's crew will salt away the league-leadership as far as the playoffs are concerned since the win will give them a 13-point margin over the next-in-line Pembroke Lumber Kings who have six games left and if they won them all would present but a dozen points, one below par.

But whipping the Baby Habs tonight won't be any sinecure. True the Macs have had the Indian sign on the ironmen the last two or three times out but they are a fighting hustling crew that battles to the last ditch. Players like Ralph Backstrom, Billy Carter, Rousseau and Gray can rack up quite a few goals'in as many minutes if given the opportunity.

Manager Pollock missed the Eastern senior league meeting held here the other night, due, it was reported, to the fact he was down east looking for players to bolster his injury-beset young crew. So there might be some new faces out there tonight, and knowing Sammy's ability to pick hockey players, they'll be the best available in the Canadiens' junior farm system. Game time 8.30.

Coach Ike Hildebrand's sterling performance last week earned for him the player-of-the-week award, with Gerry Goyer next in line. The handsome Carlings silver tankard will be presented to the Macs playing coach Friday night by Harold "Spec" Weller, company representative between the first and second periods.

UNFORTUNATE!

The injury jinx has hit hockey rather hard this season. Two major accidents have occurred in a week "Ab" ranks which cost players the sight of an eye. The McFarlands (keep those fingers crossed. Remember the playoffs last year?) have had their share of minor hurts which have kept players out of action for brief periods, but thus far nothing of a serious major nature has come their way.

Perhaps the most serious one was that of a broken bone in one of Johnny Muretich's hands which kept the fleet forward off the playing roster some time at the start of the season, and which has been giving him periodical trouble. Keith Montgomery had to have a knee cartilage removed and the defenceman has been out of action for a lengthy period of time. The usual quota of bumps, bruises and stitches has come the Macs way, but at the moment practically all the playing personnel with the exception of Russ Kowalchuk, still nursing a sore knee, are in good condition.

The latest injury to hit Belleville's hockey ranks was that unfortunate affair of Saturday night when "Ab" Wright, popular 13-year-old star of the Belleville Lambert-Rollins Junior "B" squad was seriously injured in a game with the Trenton Bear Cubs. According to reports from the game the injury was purely accidental, and no blame is attached to any particular person. But that does not make "Ab's" injury the less serious.

The youngster suffered what is believed to be a skull fracture and his condition was such on Sunday night that the Trenton physician-in-charge had him rushed to the Toronto General Hospital for observation and possible surgery. At this time of writing there was no report on his immediate condition.

This is the third accident that has befell the young athlete this year. Playing football for his school last fall, "Ab" suffered a slight concussion, and it is not too long ago that he incurred a couple of cracked ribs while playing hockey.

Fans and players, especially in junior ranks hereabouts and throughout the league, sincerely hope young Ab's injury will leave no serious effects, and that the young athlete will be back again soon with his mates.

Young Wright's injury recalls that of Charlie Burns, dynamic young centre ice man with the Bruins, now in Europe readying for the world tournament. Charlie or "Chuck" as he is known, suffered a skull injury while playing in an OHA junior "A" game that necessitated surgery and the ultimate insertion of a plate in the skull. This did not deter the young athlete participating in sports. His hockey ability is well-known while he is a promising catcher on the roster of the Toronto Maple Leafs baseball club.

However, to protect his skull and plate, "Chuck" always wears a helmet, which seems to us to be an excellent idea regardless of whether the player has suffered a head injury. The result of skull injuries in hockey is very low but there is always the possibility, what with swinging sticks and heavy checks, of a player getting his noggin dented.

Pocket Rocket Edges Closer To Team-Mate Dickie Moore; Habs Need 5 Wins for Title

MONTREAL (CP) — Henri (Pocket Rocket) Richard picked up a couple of points on teammate Dickie Moore last week in the National Hockey League scoring race but the pursuit from other quarters remained pretty much a stand-off.

The Montreal Canadiens' stars are still running one-two. Moore, leading the pack for a month, scored one goal and now has amassed 68 points. The little Rocket, with a goal and two assists, edged his total to 63 in the league's official standing released today.

Andy Bathgate of New York Rangers collected three assists and took over third place with 58 points from Montreal's Bernie Geoffrion, sidelined for the season since October 28.

IN FOURTH-PLACE TIE

Bruneo Horvath of Boston Bruins also counted three points, a goal and two assists, and joins the idle Geoffrion in fourth spot with 50 points.

There were standout scorers during the week's action and Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings had no trouble retaining sixth spot. He scored one goal and one assist to boost his total to 47.

Three points behind him are Vic Stasiuk of Boston and Alex Delvecchio of Detroit, each counting a goal and two assists.

Johnny Bucyk, Stasiuk's teammate, came up with a four-point production to boost his total to three assists and moved out of a 10th place tie into sole fourth with 39. Another Bostonian, Don McKenney needed three points—on his two goals and one assist—to hang on to 10th spot.

STILL IN CELLAR

Chicago Hawks as well as the scorers, didn't fare any too well. Chicago Black Hawks has the best defence on the week—two wins and a loss for four of a possible six points—but are still in the cellar. Hawks are two points behind Toronto Maple Leafs, who have also even in two games.

Canadiens won, lost and tied and set Cap in front with 76 points. Detroit had the same record in three games and with 52 points are one behind second-place New York Rangers. Boston lost its two outings. Boston lost two of three starts.

Canadiens now are in the happy position of needing only five wins in their remaining 17 games to win the pennant and clinch the NHL title.

Goalie Gamble Pays off for Petes Juniors

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — A last-minute gamble paid off for Peterborough Petes Monday night when they pulled out Lindy Gagnon and salvaged a 3-3 tie with Hamilton Cubs in an Ontario Hockey Association junior A game.

Hamilton had grabbed a 2-1 lead in the first period and held it throughout the second. Petes drew nine of the 16 penalties.

Tom Clark and Bill Mahoney were the other Peterborough scorers. For Hamilton it was Ray Preston, Dave Amadio and Jerry Sullivan.

Boston Doctor To Examine Buchanan's Eye

Pembroke coach Gerry Plamondon said Buchanan, 35, is threatened with the loss of the eye as a result of a high-stick injury during an Ontario Hockey Association Senior A game in Cornwall three weeks ago.

Plamondon said Buchanan's eye started bleeding three days after the accident and has not stopped. Doctors here believe the eye has been irreparably damaged.

Ab Wright's Condition Said To Be Fair

TORONTO (CP)—Albert (Ab) Wright, 19-year - old star with Belleville's Ontario Hockey Association Junior B series team, was reported in fair condition at Toronto General Hospital Monday after suffering a fractured skull in a game Saturday.

Wright was brought to hospital from Trenton, after he was injured in a game with Trenton Bear Cubs when he fell heavily to the ice.

Baseball School Starts for Young Hopefuls

NEW YORK (AP) — This is school time for baseball's bright young hopefuls. They will progress: a big league manager they hope, a headache to the major leagues.

At least nine of the 16 big league clubs have scheduled these pre-spring training drills. They're to accelerate the careers of the best prospects.

The instructional schools aren't talent hunts in the true sense of the word. These players already have been signed. Most of them have advanced through one or two stages of the minors. A few of the bonus boys are fresh out of high school or college.

New York Yankees, who have been in this type of business since 1950, probably have been the most successful. At least, their success has been most widely publicized.

USED BY OTHERS

Other organizations have stepped up the pace, too. Players such as Don Cardwell and Harry Anderson of Philadelphia Phillies, Russ Nixon of Cleveland Indians and Dick Drott of Chicago Cubs have skipped a grade or two with spring help.

Phillies already are at work in Clearwater, Fla. Their pre-training camp opened Friday with 13 men on the major league roster included among the 47 students. Cardwell and Anderson were back for more work.

St. Louis Cardinals started their early work Monday at St. Petersburg. Only four men on the big league roster were on hand among about 40 candidates. Young Wes McDaniel and Vinegar Bend Mizell, who had the miseries last year, are due for camp.

The ball rings for the Yanks today at St. Petersburg where Stengel and his "faculty" start work. Batterymen report today, the rest of the 30 pitchers arrive Friday.

Manager Paul Richards has asked several Baltimore regulars to report Wednesday at Scottsdale, Ariz., hoping to go through second West Indies-Pakistan test match. The Pakistanis, who made 282 in their first time at bat, must knock out at least 195 runs for their remaining seven wickets today to win.

Braves' Rookies Show up Well In Puerto Rico

NEW YORK (AP) — Glowing reports from Puerto Rico about the work of Juan Pizarro, Gerry Nelson and Humberto Robinson are calculated to inspire added respect for Milwaukee's pitching staff.

With Bob Rush already available to back up Warren Spahn, Lew Burdette and Bob Buhl, the development of an added starter from the winter league could make Braves heavy favorites to repeat as National League champions.

Pizarro probably has the best chance of blossoming into a new phenom. The 21-year-old righthander has rolled to a 14-5 record this winter. He struck out 186 and turned in nine shutouts, including a no-hitter and a one-hitter with the Caguas team that is representing Puerto Rico in the Caribbean series.

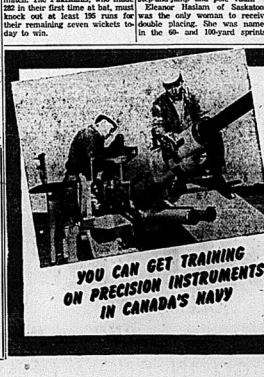
Robinson shut out Cuba, the co-favorite, with four hits Sunday as Panama whipped Puerto Rico's hopes of Washington 5-0. Humberto, a Panamanian, is 27 and is up for another chance after an 18-7 year with Toronto Maple Leafs in the International League.



Five Win Spots On Canada's Track Team

TORONTO (CP) — Five track and field stars have been awarded double places on Canada's 1957 all-star track and field team list, selected by the national track and field committee.

Top in the 120- and 440-yard hurdles was John Passmore, Richmond Hill track Scrapi, Winnipeg, headed the lists in the hop-step-and-jump and pole vault.

Eleanor Haslam of Saskatoon was the only woman to receive double billing. She was named in the 60- and 100-yard sprints.

Dunlops Swamp Flyboy Squad By 14-1 Score

ZWEIBRUECKEN, Germany (CP) — Canada's world hockey team from Whitby, swamped an RCAF squad 14-1 here Monday night in their first appearance on the Continent.

The Whitby team jumped off to a 4-0 lead in the first period, scored six goals in the second period to one by the RCAF and added another four in the last period.

Singles were credited to Charlie Burns, Frank Bocello, Bus Gagnon and playing coach Sid Smith.

OPENS SCORING

Samolenko scored the first goal, then Burns and Attersley also scored in the first period.

In the second period, Attersley opened up with two beautiful goals in a row. Bocello put in number seven and Smith the eighth goal.

Then came the lone score for the air force team on a shot by Bill Galway.

Before the second period was over, Gagnon and Attersley made it 10-1.

Taking it easy in the last period, Whitby still managed to chalk up four more points from shots by MacKenzie, Broden, Samolenko and MacKenzie again.

They will be another game tonight and the ice rink of the RCAF base here.

Laval Rouge Beats McGill

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre Raymond scored five goals Monday night to spark Laval Rouge et Or to a 10-4 victory over McGill Redmen in a Senior Intercollegiate Hockey League game.

The win lifted Laval into a first place tie with Toronto Varsity Blues.

Manchester U Cup Match Is Postponed

LONDON (AP) — Manchester United, mourning the deaths of seven of its brightest stars in the Thursday's Munich air crash, Monday sought permission for a postponement of Saturday's fifth-round English Soccer Cup match against Sheffield Wednesday.

It suggested to the English Football Association that the match be played under floodlights at Old Trafford Stadium in Manchester Wednesday, Feb. 19.

"We shall be happy to fall in with any suggestion for playing the game," Sheffield Wednesday manager Eric Taylor said commenting on United's request. "We are prepared to help Manchester United as much as we can."

Manchester's famous team was shattered by the plane crash. Besides the seven dead, eight others were injured.

A freight airliner brought the bodies of 17 persons killed in the crash back to Manchester Monday night.

Thousands of sports fans lined the road leading to the airport as the plane landed. It carried the bodies of five Manchester United soccer players, three club officials, a local businessman and eight sports reporters.

Eight of the four other victims were taken from the plane at London.

Buffalo Boxers Lose Five Bouts To Canadians

Quinnie was outpunched by the tough Valvasori but his plucky display won him the Willie Franchetti Trophy for the most effective man on the nine-bout card.

The bouts were one of five international events. Canadians won three rounded.

Frontenacs Defeat Belleville 7-3 In Last Game of Junior Schedule

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Belleville Lambert - Rollins round out their 1957-58 OHA Junior "B" hockey schedule on a losing note here last night when they drop a 7-3 decision to the Kingston Frontenacs.

The last was Belleville's 17th in twenty - two games and left them in last place in the Intermediate grouping with eight points. The Frontenacs, who wind up their schedule tonight with a home game against Peterborough, were clinched second place with twenty-three points.

Group playoffs will likely get under way later this week with Kingston meeting third place Trenton and Belleville tangling with the leading Peterborough squad in three-of-five semi-finals.

Kingston spotted the losers the first goal at 1:07 of the opening period here last night but were in command over the remainder of the game. They outscored Belleville 3-1 in the first period and 2-1 in each of the last two sessions.

Jack Stover spearheaded the winners' attack with one goal while two of setup-scored assists while Ron Johnson scored two goals. Jack Lynch, Bud Aylesworth and Doug Senior each had a goal and assist while Horace Decker also scored and Phil Gyger picked up two helpers.

Gary Rowbotham, Belleville's leading scorer, fired his 17th and 18th goals of the season to give the club's second-place Get St. Louis bagged the other goal, his first of the year, on a pass apiece from Ivor Jobin Brennan, Jack Gill and Gary Goyer.

Defenceman Jerry Mann of Lambert-Rollins was forced to leave the game in the first period when struck in the head with a skate blade in a collision with a Kingston player. Seven stitches were required to close two small cuts.

The clubs played it by the rules in the first two periods, splitting the four minor penalties. But in the third heat referees Bill Hurst and Ron Lowry, assessing eight penalties, sent Kingston, Gary Rowbotham and Doug Senior three majors for a brief fight at 2:45.

Belleville lead while Stover tied the score at 8:40, putting the disc by Harold Carr on a similar play. Coach Tom Jones replaced Carr with Jack Gilby at 13.12 of the first period and Decker and Carr each popped two quick ones by him for the 3-1 Kingston lead.

Neilson manager a goal in the second heat until 13.42 when Jack Lynch drove one home off a Belleville defenceman's body. Bud Aylesworth caught an open corner to make it 5-2 at 15.18 while Doug St. Louis got that one back at 18.09 on a backhander with Gill and Goyer assisting.

Gary Rowbotham cut the margin to 5-3 early in the third. Gilbert notched his second goal at 4.42 while Senior completed a pretty passing play with Aylesworth and Lynch at 10.13 to close the scoring.

Willingdon Cup Team Picked By New Method of Selection

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Golf Association Monday announced a new method of selecting members for the Willingdon Cup team which plays in interprovincial team matches.

The team will be made up of the four low amateur scorers over the combined 54 - hole Ontario Open championship and the 18-hole qualifying round of the Ontario amateur championship.

However, if the Ontario amateur champion is not among the four low scorers he automatically becomes a member and the fourth member of the standing is dropped.

Previously the team was made up of the four low amateurs in the 36 - hole Burlington Invitational, 36-hole Brantford Invitational and 54-hole open, with the same provision for the Ontario amateur champion gaining a place on the team.

ALL UNDER ASSOCIATION

A spokesman said the new method will make it easier for players to get to the tournaments and will bring all tournaments in the Willingdon Cup competition under the association.

The Brantford and Burlington invitationals are not sponsored by the association.

The association also announced that this year the low 60 and ties will continue play in the 36 holes of the open. Previously the low 50 and ties were allowed to continue.

The qualifying round for the open will be cut to the low 64.

The open will be played at Kingsford's Cataraqui Golf and Country Club June 13 and 14 and will be restricted to handicaps of four or less.

The amateur will be played at the Dundas Valley club June 25 to 28 and will be restricted to handicaps of six or less.

The Willingdon Cup team will represent Ontario at the interprovincial matches at Toronto's Scarboro Golf and Country Club July 19.

CALL UP BACKSTROM

TORONTO (CP) — Coach Toe Blake of Montreal Canadiens said Monday Ralph Backstrom will be called up from Ottawa - Hull Junior Canadiens when Montreal plays Toronto Maple Leafs in a National Hockey League game here Wednesday night. "Backstrom will play at right or left wing on a line with Jean Beliveau at centre," Blake said.

Lucile Gives Austrian Champ Warm Welcome

KITZBUEHEL, Austria (CP)—The entire population of this Tyrolean resort turned out Monday night to welcome their home-town ski champion, Tony Sailer, who swept the men's division of the world alpine championships at Bad Gastein last week.

Among those greeting the Austrian skiing hero, seven times world champion and triple Olympics medal winner, was Lucile Wheeler of St. Jovite, Que., who won two of the three women's events at the Bad Gastein championships.

Sailer said he will not take part in any more ski races this season.

Snooker Match All Tied up; Finish Tonight

Playing devastating snooker, the Welshman won eight of the 13 games played Monday to tie the score at 34 games each. Davis, whose title is at stake, was down 19-11 Friday night and Saturday.

Chenier, opening play with a high break for the day of 77, took the first two games but Davis rallied to take the last four. He won four of the six afternoon games.

Six games will be played this afternoon and the remainder tonight.

SIGNS WITH ALS

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—Doyle Jennings, tackle on the 1957 University of Oklahoma football team, said Monday he has signed a contract with Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four Football Union. Jennings was a draft choice of Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League.

Boom-Boom Ordered to Rest, Out of Hockey for Season

MONTREAL (CP) — Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, back home after an emergency operation for a ruptured bowel, has made it plain he won't be back this season with Montreal Canadiens.

Geoffrion, who was the leading goal - getter in the National Hockey League when stricken Jan. 26, wasn't kidding when he said he would follow strictly his doctor's advice and take a complete rest.

The first thing his four-year-old daughter Linda said when he came home was: "Daddy, don't play hockey any more."

"Don't worry about that," he said. "It's all over for this season."

Geoffrion is still weak and walks slowly. He has lost 15 pounds.

He was stricken with the bowel rupture during a practice of the team and was hurried by ambulance to hospital. He underwent the operation the same day. He left the hospital Sunday.

"Hearts" Will Play in Canada

WINNIPEG (CP) — Hearts of Middlesbrai, First Division Scottish soccer team, will play eight games in Canada this summer.

George Anderson, secretary of the Canadian Soccer Football Association, said Monday a ninth game will be played in New York against Manchester City, First Division English club. Three matches against the Manchester team are scheduled for Canada—at Vancouver, Toronto and Montreal.

Sudbury, a new venue in touring team, has been included in the trip. Hearts, currently leading their loop, are to meet a Sudbury and district side June 9.

Want Early Moose Season Or None at All

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec's outfitters, who provide guides and operate camps for anglers and hunters, have called for an early open moose season this year or none at all.

The Quebec Association of Outfitters suggested at its annual conference that the open dates for moose be Oct. 1-15. Last year the season was Oct. 19-28.

The outfitters said they did not want to take hunters into the forests and then see lakes start to freeze up before they could get out, as happened last year.

Biologist Charles Malnguy of the game and fisheries department said it is difficult to set dates for moose hunting if the rutting season is to be avoided.

Tony Despirito Is Back in The Saddle

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Tony Despirito, a daredevil rider whose list of victories over the last four years reads like a chapter from Gray's Anatomy, is back in the saddle again.

The 24-year-old jockey, who set an American record of 290 winners in 1953, had his first mount since September at Hialeah Park on Monday. He has mounts in the second and ninth races today.

Despirito didn't win on Peaceful in the fourth race but he stayed such a head-and-head duel with John Dick, the favorite and eventual victor, that the 31,218 fans gave him an ovation.

Despirito's troubles began with a slipped disc in the spring of 1953. He also had a bad leg infection that year but finished with $11 winners.

In September, 1953, he suffered a fractured jaw and bad laceration when a mount fell with him at Aqueduct.

He was the leading rider at Bowie in the spring of 1956 but later in the year he came down with multiple internal injuries. Horses have pounded over his body.

He attempted a comeback that fall but began hemorrhaging and had a stomach hernia. In the spring a horse fell turning the gate and Despirito came out of it with a vertebra out of place. He was in traction for a week. Asian flu grounded him after a brief comeback attempt last fall.

Argos Better Next Season Says Coach

TORONTO (CP) — Despite a last-place finish in 1957, his first year in Canadian football, coach Hamp Pool is confident Toronto Argonauts will do better in the 1958 Big Four Football Union season.

"Compared with last year," he said Monday after returning from a tour of United States colleges, "well, there's just no comparison."

Pool is sure he has signed some "good ones" from American colleges, but because the players wish to remain eligible for spring sports at their schools they must remain anonymous. He says he "maybe a half-dozen" interior linemen—guards and tackles—coming to camp. "We went in for quality rather than quantity."

EXHIBITION DATES SET

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts have lined up three home pre-season exhibition football games this year, two of them against western clubs, it was announced today by Lew Hayman, Argonaut managing director. An open game against Winnipeg Blue Bombers, 1957 Grey Cup finalists, on Thursday, July 31. They meet Calgary Stampeders on Wednesday, Aug. 6, and Hamilton Tiger-Cats in Grey Cup championship clash at Toronto's Exhibition Stadium on Monday, Aug. 25. All games are scheduled to start at 8:30 p.m. EST.

MARMORA (Special) — Bancroft Pontiacs roared back from a first-period 4-1 deficit here last night to defeat the Marmora Millionaires 7-6 in an OHA Intermediate "C" northern division fixture.

The clubs traded goals early in the opening period, Deering for Marmora and Daniels for Bancroft, but Marmora charged ahead on goals by Trumble, Jones and L. Leonard by the end of the period.

The Pontiacs got a pair oack in first seven minutes of the middle session, Daniels and McMurray firing the shots. Cousins then added one for Marmora but Daniels, G .Crosby and Rouse each scored once in the final three minutes of the period to give Bancroft a 6-4 lead.

McMurray made it 7-5 at 9.23 of the third and E. Leonard got that one back at 13.44 but the Millionaires could not regain their lead.

Only three penalties were assessed in the clean contest, two going to Marmora.

Daniels was the leading marksman here, also accounting for three goals and one assist while McMurray scored twice. G. Crosby had one and one while Rouse also scored and McCracken had two assists.

Trumble and L. Darrah each had a goal and two assists for Marmora while E. Leonard had one and one. Deering, Jones and Martin also scored for Marmora while Mantle and R. Darrah earned single assists.

No Banquet For Naughty Leaf Players

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs' poor hockey showings Sunday had repercussions for boy scouts and cubs here Monday.

Officials of St. Giles' Presbyterian Church went to Toronto to pick up three Leaf players who had arranged to attend a father-and-son banquet.

When the delegation arrived at Maple Leaf Gardens they were told coach Billy Reay had decided the players would not be allowed to make the trip because of the 7-3 beating they took from Boston Bruins in a National Hockey League home game Saturday.

Leafs, battling to make the fourth and last Stanley Cup playoff position, defeated Bruins 10-0 in Boston Sunday night but they're still in Reay's bad books.

Maroons Whip Trappers 8-2

CHATHAM (CP) — Chatham Maroons scored seven goals during a penalty-filled second period Monday night to earn a 8-2 win over North Bay Trappers in an OHA-NOHA Senior A game.

Brawling in the second period started at 8:50 and ended two seconds before the close of the period after 14 penalties, including two game misconducts, three misconducts and two major penalties, had been handed out.

Maroons' Lloyd Ferguson scored three goals to share game honors with Trappers' substitute Bob Savage who turned in two periods of shutout hockey after coming off from Toronto St. Michael's of the OHA Junior A series.

The victory jumped Maroons back into fourth place, one point ahead of Trappers.

Gord Haidy scored twice for Chatham, who added their eighth goal in the third period while Trappers were scoring twice, and Bob Seymour, Jim Connelly and Ted Power added singles. Stan Maxwell and Ches Konecsny scored for North Bay.

BETTERS WORLD MARK

ADELAIDE (AP) — Dawn Fraser of Australia bettered the world swimming record for the women's 220-yard freestyle Monday night in a special race against the clock. Miss Fraser was time in two minutes, 17.7 seconds, trimming by 1.4 seconds the record of 2.19.1 set by Australia's Lorraine Crapp in 1956.

Little Benny's Notebook

I smelt a swill smell as soon as pop called me and I thought, Oh boy, hot cakes and sausages.

And I hurry up got dressed and ran down, and ma said, You got down stupiously quickly, did you brush your teeth?

Many I started to, I said, and pop said, Yes yes go on. Your story starts very intristing, he said.

I looked in the medecine closit at the 4 different kinds of tooth paste, and I tried to remember, I said, and pop said, You tried to remember what they're intended to be used for?

No sir, I tried to remember the different songs on teevee about them so I'd be sure which tooth paste was the best, and I remembered the song for Dental Do, and I sang it to myself in the bathroom mirrer, and if you want to hear it, it's Dental Do feels like gentle dew, as it acts upon the teeth, and quick quick quick, they're span and spick, outside and underneath, I said.

You have a remarkably true true ear for an essential unmiracal person, pop said, and I said, Yes sir, I do, and I remember the first 2 lines for Spray. They are Spray spray spray, just once a day, protects against tooth decay way, G, maybe it only has 2 lines, I said.

Poor Spray, pop said, and ma said, Anyway, you didn't brush your teeth, is that the sum total?

Yes mam, I said, and she said, Anyway, you didn't brush your teeth, is that the sum total?

Yes mam, I said, and she said, Then you'll brush them the first thing after breakfast.

Which I did, brushing them with Zip, being the first one I reetched whether it has any song on it or not.

Beavers Battle Wolves to Tie

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Sudbury Wolves and Fort William Beavers Monday night battled to a 3-3 deadlock in an exhibition hockey game before more than 2,000 fans.

Joe Malo, Armand Lemieux and Norm Guimond scored for the OHA-NOHA Senior A team, while Johnny Irving, Tom Kompon and Ernie Oakley tallied for Beavers.

Beaver goalie Bert Brooks turned aside 23 shots while Johnny Albani stopped 29 for Sudbury. The teams were tied 1-1 after the first 20 minutes. Beavers went ahead 2-1 in the second but were outscored 2-1 in the third frame, with Malo scoring the game-tying marker.

Hunter Close To Deer But Back-Tracking

BOSTON ARTHUR (CP) — A hunter stealthily stalking through the brush near here grew outraged when conservation officers William McKeown stopped him and asked to see his hunting license.

"I haven't got time to dig it out, I'm right up close to a deer. See how fresh the tracks are?" the hunter said.

McKeown insisted and the angry hunter produced the license, protesting: "I'll have to run to catch that deer now."

"Sorry, sir," said McKeown, "but if you hope to catch up with that deer I'd suggest you turn around and follow the tracks the other way. You are back-tracking it."

The lands and forests department told the story in its information bulletin.

"The Modern Western" Will Be New Trend for Network

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Oliver Treyz, vice-president in charge of the ABC television network, says ABC will launch a new type of show this year which he expects will develop into a "trend". The modern western."

ABC was the first to introduce and develop the "adult" westerns which now are so popular on all networks.

"The western trend certainly is not riding out," Treyz said in an interview. "But I don't see any big expansion in westerns this year and I don't think they represent the bulwark of our programming."

STRONG HEROES

Treyz said that the newest thing in entertainment programming on ABC will be "a type of action show set in current times." It will involve strong stories and strong heroes and and contemporary situations. Although it' san over-simplification, you might say that the chase in these shows will be by helicopter rather than by horse.

"They will have the quality of feature motion pictures and deal in shades of gray—as Maverick does—rather than in black and white. And by 'western' I mean a man and a bad man and a chase."

Warner Brothers will produce the first program which will be introduced on the network next fall.

VARY ENTERTAINMENT

A primary programming philosophy this year, Treyz said, Treyz, will be to "schedule programs of stars and such programs as Bold Journey and Voice of Firestone in prime-viewing hours.

"Our criterion is balanced programming for the entire public in prime-viewing hours rather than in fringe time."

Treyz said public service on the part of a network should "emanate serving the public with informa-

NEEDS 100 STITCHES

PORT SEVERN (CP) — A three-car collision on the Bailey bridge over the Muskoka River on Highway 103 north of here during the weekend sent 21-year-old Mallesby of Toronto to hospital where 100 stitches were required to close lacerations on his face. Mallesby's car struck the rear end in the pileup which began when a car driven by Calvin Stoltz of Toronto skidded out of control on the slippery road and struck the end of the bridge. No one else was hurt.

Off-Beaten-Path Taverns Hangouts for Aldo Ray

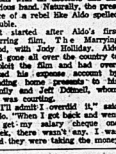
By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A mav-out of my cheque for the precrick among movie stars is Aldo Ray.

The guy simply refuses to behave like a star. He doesn't go to the fashionable parties, nor to the noted night spots. His favorite hangouts are a couple of off-the-beaten-path taverns.

He owns no fancy automobile. Maker of fact, he hasn't any. And for the luxurious home — he's currently living in a friend's apartment.

Obviously, Hollywood has not changed the free-living cupcakes constable from Crockett, Calif., in the seven years he has been here. That is a matter of irritation to some people here, notably his boss.



ABUSED EXPENSE ACCOUNT

Aldo is employed by Harry Cohn, head of Columbia Pictures and the tycoon of the movie business. He is the sole remaining holdover from the old days when realm with an absolute and imperious hand. Naturally, the press corps of a rebel like Aldo spells trouble.

It started after Aldo's first starring film, The Marrying Kind, with Judy Holliday. Aldo had gone to the country to exploit the film and had overextended his expense account by sending home presents to his family and Jeff Donnell, whom he was married.

"I'll admit I overdid it," said Aldo. "When I got back and went to get my salary cheque one week, there wasn't any. I was told they were taking the money

Little Benny's Notebook

The big barber was cutting my hair while the little barber was sitting in the waiting chair reading the paper, and he said to the big barber, he's a fine boy, what's the big difference between us and the Russians is, we got children and they aint.

It's all how you look at it, Joe, the big barber said, and the little barber said, How do you mean, how you look at it? Can they vote for the political party they like and feel like, and then not be afraid to look any man in the face and say how they voted, and then punch the other guy in the nose if he don't like it?

Well no, but the reason for that is, there is only one party over there, so they have the freedom to go into a secret polling booth and vote No without losing everybody's feeling, because the No votes don't get counted, the big barber said, and the little barber said, Well have they got the freedom to shooting their own transportation to heaven by going to work every day and not being able without having to explain to their party boss that they just went in to get out of the cold?

That aint necessery over there, Joe, the big barber said. The first thing they learn in school is that they've got Heaven right there on earth, and they've got it, all they got to do is pick up any of their newspapers, and there it is, right on the front page. Of course the name of it happens to be Communism, but what of it? Has not every religion got a different name for Heaven? he said, and the little barber said. Have their barbers got the freedom to raise the price of hair cuts?

You've got me there, Joe, and then each got our units, and the barber said.

Being the end of the subject and the end of my hair cut.

PLAN LARGE DEMANDS

CALGARY (CP) — The International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) will urge locals throughout Canada to make substantial wage and fringe benefit demands, Charles Weir, Alberta representative of the union, said Monday. The union feels its dustrial base and productivity justify the demands, he said.

Toll-Free Test For Seaway Out States Official

MONTREAL (CP) — A Canadian seaway executive today ruled out the possibility of a toll-free test period for the international waterway into the Great Lakes.

Vice-president Jean Lessard of the St. Lawrence seaway authority made the statement in a speech to Montreal's Chambre de Commerce.

Canada's Great Lakes shipping industry has urged that the seaway, a navigation system side-stepping a series of rapids between Montreal and Lake Ontario, be operated free of tolls to all ships until 1962 or 1964.

"This suggestion cannot be accepted," said Mr. Lessard, "for the utilization of the St. Lawrence seaway without payment would ve necessarily be the same as utilization of the seaway with payment."

LAW CALLS FOR TOLLS

Potential seaway users and customers have opposed tolls on the seaway. They say the Canada-U.S. legislation requires that the cost of the seaway—more than $400,000,000—be amortized over 50 years by the collection of tolls.

Mr. Lessard heads a three-man Canadian committee which has been working with a similar American group in an effort to reach a uniform toll schedule. The two groups are aiming at a tariff which would permit the greatest possible volume of traffic to use the seaway, he said. Canada's view has been to levy a toll low enough to attract business and yet high enough to meet costs.

PATIENT RECAPTURED

TORONTO (CP) — A mental patient who escaped from Ontario Psychiatric Hospital Monday clad only in pyjamas and a dressing gown was recaptured an hour later. Police said the man, described as potentially dangerous, was found a short distance from the hospital.

Scores of Deer Roaming About Alberta Town

WATERTON LAKES, Alta. (CP) — The mild winter in southern Alberta has brought record numbers of deer into this community in the heart of Waterton Lakes National Park.

It is estimated there are about 1,000 deer in the southwest Alberta park. Most of them have come down from the Rocky Mountains to graze over hillsides of snow.

Scores of deer are roaming about the town. Visitor tourists are making a daily ritual of "shooting" the animals with still and movie cameras as they wander about the business section.

Park residents say the deer appear to be tamer than at any time in memory.

BLIZZARD PUTS SNOW SHOVELS TO USE

Only four or five inches of snow fell in central Ontario's worst blizzard in over 10 years, but with 25 to 50 mile-per-hour winds, hundreds of motorists and travellers were stranded, towns isolated and highways blocked. At least six persons died of exertion during the storm and untold thousands are nursing muscles aching from snow shovelling. In rural areas such as this, snow piled high on roads and residents either left their cars in their garages or shovelled.

Chairman Quits As Committee Fires Counsel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of a congressional group investigating the conduct of United States government regulatory agencies resigned early today in a quarrel over the course of the investigating body's counsel.

Morgan Moulder, Democratic congressman from Missouri, quit as chairman of the House of Representatives subcommittee set up to investigate the federal regulatory agencies. He said he could not go along with Moulder-Smith's firing by the subcommittee of counsel Bernard Schwartz, whom he described as "outstanding, courageous and conscientious."

He said he found himself powerless as chairman because of "dissension and disagreement" among the 11 members, and was submitting his resignation to the parent House commerce committee. He said he will continue as a subcommittee member.

The subcommittee voted 7 to 4 to get rid of Schwartz after a minority of the group complained of tactics used by the 34-year-old former law school professor in his investigation of the Federal Communications Commission.

SEES WHITEWASH BID

Schwartz, questioned by the subcommittee for three hours Monday, contended most of the members wanted a "whitewash." He said his investigation involved intervention in agency affairs by Sherman Adams, chief White House aide, and other high administration officials.

Representative Oren Harris (Dem., Ark.) said Schwartz "has had an improper attitude — he has shown lack of co-operation with the committee . . . and has made some very serious charges against the committee."

Despite his dismissal as counsel, Schwartz was summoned to testify today as the subcommittee met in a closed-session to decide the future course of the investigation.

Reserves in Oil, Natural Gas Said in North

CALGARY (CP) — The islands stretching across Canada's Arctic coast may hold considerable reserves of oil and natural gas, the Canadian Petroleum Association said today.

It commented in a submission to the Borden energy commission that while no wells have been drilled in the area, it is reported that oil is being produced in Russia "opposite the Canadian Arctic islands."

In reviewing possible other oil and gas reserve areas in Canada for the royal commission, the petroleum association listed:

An area of about 125,000 square miles on the south and west sides of Hudson Bay and James Bay, with a small part in Manitoba and the remainder in Ontario.

The Ontario basin bounded by Lakes Huron, Erie and Ontario, including Manitoulin Island, and covering nearly 20,000 square miles.

The St. Lawrence River lowland stretching into Eastern Ontario but mainly in Quebec, running 200 miles parallel to the St. Lawrence with a 60-mile width at Montreal.

St. Lawrence, Clogged by Ice, Floods Streets

MONTREAL (CP) — The St. Lawrence River, c l o g g e d by giant ice floes, rose to 23 feet, two inches Monday, the highest in streets in suburban Laprairie and the harbor area of Montreal's east end.

The water surged through the sewer system of Laprairie, on the river's south shore. Officials said there is not much they can do except assist families to move their furniture.

L. Peledeau, secretary-treasurer of Laprairie, said the town hall basement was flooded to a depth of six inches. At least 300 basements in Laprairie were reported flooded.

Mr. Peledeau said the present floods are worse than those that hit the town in 1943 but he did not expect a large-scale disaster. Since operations began on the St. Lawrence seaway it has been impossible to predict the behavior of the river, he said.

Gordon Murphy, chief engineer of the St. Lawrence seaway, said the seaway had nothing to do with the floods.

Alberta Blast Kills 3 Persons

LODGEPOLE, Alta. (CP) Investigators today sought the cause of an explosion that killed three members of a family near this hamlet 40 miles south of 70 miles southwest of Edmonton.

Blown to safety by the blast were Mrs. Peschuk's two months old son, and Mrs. Peschuk's brother, Joel McLean, about 19. The Peschuk children and McLean were shaken up but not seriously injured.

RCMP officers from nearby Drayton Valley and inspectors from the provincial industrial and labor department investigated.

FLAME GAS LEAKAGE

Preliminary inspections indicated the explosion was caused by a leakage of natural gas. Police believe faulty equipment in or near the house was responsible.

Car Dealers Selling Small U.K., European Models Look For Higher Sales This Year

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian automobile dealers view the outlook for sales of new cars in 1958 with mixed feelings —varying from bright to dim depending on where the dealer operates and the product he sells.

Most optimistic are car dealers selling British and European models, a Canadian Press survey shows. These cars accounted for more than one-tenth of the 351,000 automobiles sold in Canada last year. Dealers said they expect higher sales this year.

One small-car dealer in St. John's, Nfld., said sales are so good for his cars that he is not taking trade-ins. In Montreal, one dealer said: "I expect to double my sales in the next year."

OTHERS LESS HOPEFUL

However, most agencies for larger-size cars across the country said they are less hopeful of a bumper year. Without releasing figures, most said they expect sales to be on a level with sales in 1957.

Many said the tight-money situation and economic recession have slowed sales of 1958 models, and that the federal government's reduction of the excise tax on cars to 7½ per cent from 10 per cent did not increase sales.

The consensus was that more Canadians are buying moderately-priced cars. The most popular models are between $2,500 and $3,000.

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Toronto — main source of data on the manufacture and sale of cars in Canada —said new-car sales this year may possibly exceed those of 1957. This increase could be caused by purchasers who bought a record 408,000 cars in 1956 coming back into the market this year for new models.

Dealers in North American-built cars in the Atlantic provinces complained of a slowdown in car sales and said they expect a drop this year from 1957. They blamed low farm prices. One Charlottetown dealer said: "With potatoes only 75 cents a bag, farmers have little to spend." A dealer in Halifax said new-car sales would be normal if the used-car business was better, but used cars were filling up lots.

EASTERN VIEWS

In Quebec City, most dealers said they still have a large number of 1957 models on hand and expressed concern about 1958 sales. In contrast, the sales manager for a firm selling a European car said the only problem he faces is getting enough cars to meet the demand.

A Montreal dealer scoffed at any idea that business recession is slowing sales.

"We find more people are paying cash for their cars than they used to," he said.

In Ottawa, one large automobile sales company said it expects 1958 to be its biggest year, with 1957 sales surpassed by 100 cars.

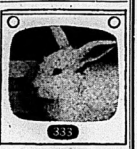
Similarly, in Toronto, a dealer said his company is having a rush of orders from firms seeking replacements for business cars and trucks.

MANITOBA PROSPECTS

Manitoba car dealers were optimistic. A spokesman for the Winnipeg Motor Dealers' Association said 1957 sales increased at least 10 per cent from 1956 and that car dealers are looking for another successful year.

But in Saskatchewan, William Ledingham, president of the Saskatchewan Dealers' Association, said he does not foresee any sales increase.

"Money is tighter," he said. "With the agricultural economy wrestling about the same, I can't see any improvement this year."



Edmonton dealers in North American - built cars predicted slow 1958 sales but British car dealers there were enthusiastic. "The swing has come our way," one said. "We had a good year in 1957 and we think sales will be very good in 1958."

In Vancouver, President H. Orr of the dealers' association said strikes and unemployment are factors affecting sales at present, but automobile sales in British Columbia will probably compare favorably with last year's 33,000 cars.

Tunisia Hopes To Starve Out French

French Assembly Backs Gaillard's Defence Of Raid

Tunisia Blocks Roads, French Use Helicopters

PARIS (AP)—A French patrol boat came under Tunisian small arms fire Tuesday night as it tried to leave the Bizerte naval base, Tunisian sources reported today.

The first report of firing at a French ship came after President Habib Bourguiba told reporters only removal of all French troops from Tunisia could restore friendly relations with France.

The patrol boat was proceeding without lights from the big French naval base and turned back after coming under fire, informants said.

Tunisia's troop-withdrawal demand came after a thumping 235-to-179 vote of support in the French National Assembly for Premier Felix Gaillard. The French leader defended last Saturday's bombing of the Tunisian village of Sakiet Sidi Youssef as a "legitimate defence" against Algerian rebels.

In Tunisia, Tunisian troops blockaded 15,000 to 20,000 French troops in an effort to starve the Bizerte garrison out of their former North African colony. The French flew in supplies by helicopter in defiance of the Tunisian blockade. The Tunisian government also threatened a blockade of the big French naval base at Bizerte on the Mediterranean.

MEETS WITH DIPLOMATS

Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba told reporters in his office after a meeting with a string of foreign diplomats that his primary goal is the removal of French troops.

"That and that alone can re-establish a climate of friendship between us," he said of colonialism," he said.

This apparently will be the Tunisian course before the United Nations. Tunisia is expected to call an emergency session of the council on the bombing, which Tunisia says left 68 dead, 64 wounded and 19 missing.

Bolstered by the overwhelming support in the National Assembly the French government rushed Premier Pierre Mendes-France's allies could bring up Sakiet Sidi Youssef had threatened to do so Tuesday.

Tunisian national guardsmen and police reported blocked all land approaches to the Bizerte base and threatened to fire on any French ships entering the port. The government also threatened

Montrealer Slew Wife, Then Drove Her to Cornwall

CORNWALL (CP) — Ontario Provincial Police said a 27-year-old Montreal man walked into their station here today and said he shot his wife with a shotgun and drove from Montreal with her body in the car.

Constable Russell Hawkshaw said the man reported to him about 4:30 a.m. today.

Police said they placed the car and the body of the 25-year-old woman under guard.

They said they are holding the man for the arrival of Quebec Provincial Police.

The couple has one small child but police did not say where the youngster is or whether it had accompanied the father to Cornwall.

Police identified the dead woman as Mrs. Barbara MacDonald, 25, of Ste. Genevieve de Pierrefonds, Que.

Police said they are holding William MacDonald, her 27-year-old husband, as a material witness pending an inquest. MacDonald will be taken to Montreal.

Trace Guns And Car Used In Bank Holdup

HAMILTON (CP)—Police said they have traced two of four guns and a car used by bandits who robbed a Canadian Bank of Commerce branch of $13,000 Monday.

A Sten gun used by the four-masked holdup men was stolen a year ago in a raid on a Georgetown armories. It and a revolver reported stolen in Toronto were found in a car the men wrecked during their getaway.

The car was registered in Toronto although its owner had not reported it stolen, police said. A second car used in the getaway was stolen in Hamilton. The men are believed to have split up in pairs.

U.S.-CANADIAN ISSUES HANDLED WELL -- DULLES

Solutions Impossible For All of Problems

WASHINGTON (CP) — State Secretary Dulles says a wide range of problems has arisen between Canada and the United States but suggests they are being dealt with in a manner which, to him, is "on the whole highly satisfactory."

"There is no absolutely satisfactory solution to all of these problems," he told his weekly news conference Tuesday, "but we have had good relations indeed with the present government of Canada."

Relationship between the two countries, he added, are being maintained "very satisfactorily."

Current frictions between Canada and the U.S. include a further review when a reporter asked Dulles for his comment on why relationships are strained and what could be done to improve them.

There is no doubt "some difficulties" exist between the two countries, Dulles replied. There had been "differences of opinion" over the U.S. agricultural disposal policies which "the Canadians tend to feel ... tend to deny them advantageous markets where otherwise they perhaps would be able to sell on a dollar, or cash basis."

OIL RESTRICTIONS

Another issue had been raised by the U.S. government's decision to restrict imports of foreign oil into the U.S. west coast market. There also were "quite a few" trade problems.

Canadians also had shown concern over the fact that American investments in Canada are so substantial that they might affect the economic policies which might not be to the best interests of Canada.

"There are a whole series of problems of that sort, which are almost inevitable," he said. "We are dealing with these, I would say, in a way which is on the whole highly satisfactory . . .

"I think that, certainly the fact that we do have problems which are not easily resolved, the relationship is being maintained very satisfactorily in accordance with the desire of both of our governments to ensure close and friendly relations."

'Didn't Figure I Could Get Lost' States Leader on Tragic Outing

BRACEBRIDGE (CP) — The adult leader of a group of Toronto teen-agers, two of whom died in Algonquin Park Sunday, broke husband over the weekend. believed he knew the area too well to ever lose his way.

"I had been up there five years and I never figure there was any place I could get lost," Andrew Morton, 29, said Tuesday.

Mr. Morton, a group leader at the Bracebridge Boys' Training School, is recuperating in hospital from the 53-hour ordeal in which he and two other survivors wandered aimlessly through a dying blizzard in below-zero temperatures before their rescue Monday. Also in hospital are Charles Douglas McCoy, 12, and George Farmer, 14.

LIVES THE LIFE OF SPACE MAN

Donald G. Farrell, Bronx, N.Y., gets instrumentation instructions from Fredrick Durgnier (outside shirt), an electronics engineer at the School of Aviation Medicine in Randolph Field air force base. Farrell was tucked into the space cabinet and for seven days will duplicate many of those conditions that duplicate large parts of that a human being would meet in a satellite circling the globe or on a trip to the moon.

Economist Forecasts Canada Will Depend More on U.S.

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will become more heavily dependent on the United States for imports in the next 25 years and her foreign debt will rise, Professor David W. Slater predicts in a special report to the Gordon economic commission.

The Queen's University professor, in a 222-page study made public today, estimated that Canada's over-all imports of goods and services would more than double during the next quarter-century, to $15,100,000,000 from $5,460,000,000 in 1955. The forecast is based on 1950 prices.

At the same time, Canada's exports of goods and services would rise slightly, rising to $14,400,000,000 from $5,700,000,070 and leaving Canada with a deficit of about $1,000,000,000 a year, compared with $700,000,000 in 1955.

This deficit—the balance of imports over exports — would be financed by foreign investment in Canadian industry, boosting Canada's foreign debt and increasing the drain of interest and dividend payments.

An increasing portion of this foreign debt would be owed to American investors.

Prof. Slater forecast that Canada's exports of goods and services to the U.S. would swell to $9,200,000,000 from $3,000,000,000 in 1955, but that imports would make an even larger increase, to $11,200,000,000 from $4,700,000,000.

Thus, Canada's deficit in trade with the U.S. might climb to $1,700,000,000 annually from $1,100,000,000.

Trade with Britain also would increase, though to a much smaller extent, with Canadian exports of foods and services rising to $2,000,000,000 from $1,000,000,000 and imports expanding to $1,600,000,000 from $600,000,000. But on balance, the Canadian surplus of about $400,000,000 might remain unchanged.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Organized labor expressed doubt today that the lagging American economy will begin recuperating at mid-year as President Eisenhower anticipates, and called for quick government remedial action.

That was the reaction of President George Meany and other AFL-CIO leaders to the government-management meeting in Washington that United States unemployment jumped beyond 4,500,000 in January.

Meany forecast that the jobless total would rise at least another million before the employment situation improves. He called for launching a stepped-up public works program and other stopgap measures immediately.

The soaring jobless figures were the main talking-point among AFL-CIO leaders as they wound up 10 days of winter meetings here. Meany said the figures more than justify the fear labor had expressed when business indicators began pointing toward a slump.

"I think the situation is far worse than the administration seems to feel it is," Meany said. "Frankly...it's getting to the point where unemployment is creating more unemployment. We need quick action to bolster purchasing power to stop this thing from rolling in a vicious circle."

At concluding AFL-CIO sessions Tuesday the union leaders ordered all affiliated unions to "vigorously oppose" labor contract clauses barring racial discrimination in factories and other working places.

The AFL-CIO Council directed that a curbs or more boycott complaints against the Sheet Metal Workers Union be submitted to an umpire for solution. The steelworkers and machinists union had complained that the sheet metal group is refusing to install products made by their unions' workers.

OLIVER REQUESTS RESIGNATION OF HYDRO CHAIRMAN

Called Hatchet Man Of Federal PC Party

TORONTO (CP) — Dismissal of the chairman of Ontario's Hydro-Electric Power Commission was demanded Tuesday as federal election campaigning began in the Ontario legislature.

Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver called for the resignation of James S. Duncan, the province's leading civil servant, because he acted as "the hatchet man of the federal Tory party" in going to the United Kingdom with a Canadian trade mission last month.

The Liberal leader said Mr. Duncan in a speech to the Empire Club in Toronto last Thursday supported Prime Minister Diefenbaker's plan to switch 15 per cent of Canada's exports to Britain from the United States.

Thus he had "fired the opening gun for the Diefenbaker government in the election campaign."

REJECTS DEMAND

Premier Frost rejected the opposition leader's demand by describing Mr. Duncan as "a patriotic citizen, not a politician."

The premier said that as chairman of the Hydro Commission Mr. Duncan was looked at the expansion of Ontario from an industrial point of view, "representing the non-partisan views of the people of this province."

The Hydro chairman had tried to get more trade for Ontario and its farmers, while the federal Liberal government had "slapped your best friend in the face and put all our eggs in one basket."

Later, Mr. Duncan said his trip with the mission was not political, but simply a "logical continuation of the Queenston-Dollar Sterling Trade Board which I founded in 1949."

He said he did not enquire into the politics of the mission but that Premier Liberty, Progressive Conservatives and CCF were represented. "If the trade mission had been a political failure I would not have been connected with it."

Spaniel Visits Police to Get His Dog-Licence

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (AP) Inky, a small black cocker spaniel, made his annual trip to the police station for a year's dog licence.

Police Chief Fred Abrams said Inky appears about this time each year and refuses to leave until he is issued a tag. The dog, Abrams said, Inky got a new collar because his old one was worn.

Abrams said Inky's previous times visits the police station during the year, but only at license time does he whine and bark for a new tag.

Toughies Are Afraid of Doggies Used to Detect Crime in London

LONDON (AP) Britain's force of flat paws—it's growing detachment of trained police dogs has become a permanent, effective part of law enforcement.

The mere appearance of a police dog in a tough district, "Metropolitan Police Force" spokesman, "has a salutary effect."

Police departments first started using trained dogs in 1938.

Gradually, the Alsatian was introduced and the police moved them into some of London's tougher areas.

One night a crowd of roodies gathered on a sidewalk in Whitechapel and refused to move.

Word got around to other districts. More dogs were trained and put to work.

Then came the great Rex.

Rex is the dog with the nose.

He was so clever that he was the first police dog trained in London to detect dope. He was also the first canine to win a medal.

Where Rex died in 1956 his police handler, Constable Alec Holman, said with tears in his eyes:

Area Annexed Effective On January 1, 1959

Thurlow Twp. Considers Possibility of Appeal

Effective January 1st, 1959, the city of Belleville will take in an additional area of approximately 3,500 acres from the two neighboring townships of Thurlow and Sidney.

This is the decision of the Ontario Municipal Board in the application of the city heard last October for annexation of additional area for expansion of its residential and industrial area.

The decision of the board was received in the city this morning. Its provisions awarding approximately 2,500 acres from Thurlow township to the city, and close to 1,000 acres from Sidney township.

Present area of the city is about 2,200 acres.

Included in the annexed area is the Bakelite and Deloro Stellite plants east of the city. In Sidney the annexation line extends to the east of the Hastings county farm, while on the north the annexed area will extend to No. 401 highway and will take in Parkdale, College Hill and Hillcrest areas.

City Manager Drury S. Denyes noted that the city had received almost all it had asked for.

MAYOR COMMENTS ON ORDER

Mayor Gerald Hyde said that although he had not yet read the award, also noted that the city had got close to what it had asked for.

"I am pleased about the annexation decision," he added. "It looks as though the city is now set for at least 20 years or more as far as annexation is concerned."

He stated that the city is now in a position that council can go ahead and plan sensibly for the future. It opens a whole big new field for council."

On the other hand, Thurlow township Clerk Earl Dafoe said his township officials were "considering strongly the possibility of appeal."

The municipal board allows 28 days for the right of appeal, which has to be made to the clerk of the executive council.

Sidney township Reeve J. Byron Harder is holidaying in Florida and was not available for comment on the annexation award, while Deputy Reeve Harleigh Hamilton said he had not yet seen the award.

On being told of the annexation boundary he noted, however, that he was "a bit disappointed that the new boundary went so far west."

He noted that the line apparently took in a considerable portion of the built up area west of the city.

The annexation was the first for the city since World War II. In 1947 the former county home property and the Docter farm east of the city were annexed, while a few years later there was a small annexation west of the city taking in part of the Belleville Fair Grounds and the Drive-In Theatre.

The annexation award received today giving the city an additional 3,500 acres will mean an estimated 5,000 additional population, it is believed.

TERMS OF AWARD

Under the terms of the annexation award by the municipal board, the annexation line east of the city between No. 2 highway and the CNR double track to the north is the east side of the Jack Scott ranch, which is a line between Lots 12 and 13 in the first concession.

South of the highway the line is the centre of lot 13 which is the production of the centre line of the Halg sideroad south to the Bay of Quinte. This takes in the Bakelite property and also the Stellite plant.

North of the railway the new boundary will be the production of the present easterly boundary of the city to No. 401 highway, which is the centre of lot 9 in the second concession.

The new boundary township west of this line to Sidney street and south of 401 is awarded to the city.

MANY NEW HOMES

Starting at the railway and running south the new boundary is between lots 37 and 38 in the second concession of Sidney to the present northerly limits of the city.

CECIL COOK NAMED ACTING SERGEANT OF POLICE FORCE

Constable Cecil Cook, member of the Belleville Police Department since 1949, has been named acting sergeant with the force effective February 8th, it was announced today by Police Chief Walter Probert.

Naming of a fourth sergeant on the force was to fill the vacancy caused by the death last fall of Sergeant Clarence "Pick" Arnott.

RABIES OUTBREAK REPORTED IN NORTH

The Department of Lands and Forests at Tweed reports an outbreak of rabies in the northern district of Hastings County.

Fatal wild animals have been identified at Campbellford and in Palmerston township.

NO DAMAGE

City firemen were called to 8 Octavia Street this morning when overheated stovepipes alarmed the householder. When firemen arrived, however, the trouble was already over and the reels returned to the station.

SAVED BY PHONE

ARKANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) Warned by an 8-mile telephone call from Tulsa, Okla., police and firemen found four persons overcome by furnace fumes Tuesday. A doctor said a warning averted a tragedy. Mrs. Howard Pixley of Tulsa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hall, tried to reach them on the telephone. When her mother answered but could say nothing incoherently, Mrs. Pixley called Arkansas city police and asked them to investigate.

Young Canada Day Observed At Kiwanis Club

"Young Canada Day" was the theme of Belleville Kiwanis club's regular meeting yesterday.

On hand to entertain Kiwanians and guests were a four-man vocal combo from Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School, several Kay ciadets and Queen Scout, Gordon James, who addressed the gathering and showed colored slides of his trip to England last summer.

Gordon, a member of the Fourth Belleville Scout troop, attended the Golden Jubilee Jamboree held at Sutton Park, England, last summer. The Jamboree commemorated 50 years of scouting.

A grade 12 honor student at BCVI, Gordon is a member of the Kay Club, on the basketball team at school, and a member of the "Travellers Quartet", His hobbies include photography and music.

Gordon, in his interesting address, described some of the varied activities enjoyed by the 35,000 scouts and guides from countries all over the world — from the daily routine in the camps to the exciting excursions to such cities as Shrewsbury, Westminster Abbey and Buckingham.

The Jamboree was opened by the Duke of Gloucester and on August 2 the Queen paid a visit to the camp, for Mary Visitation Saturday scouts exchange visits with scouts from different nations and swap everything from badges to uniforms," he explained.

Although the rain dampened some of the activities the scouts attended, they were excited by Rev. Peter Murphy.

The bearers were Victor Hall, Harold Lush, Earl Lush and Bernard Balyx, Allan Bushell and Ted Golden.

ARCHIBALD W. ROBERTSON R.R. 2 Carrying Place

The funeral service of the late Archibald Welland Robertson of R.R. 2 Carrying Place was held this afternoon from the Weaver Funeral Home in Trenton.

Mr. Robertson died suddenly in the Trenton Memorial Hospital on Friday, in his 72nd year. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Robertson, and had been a resident of Trenton and district for the past 35 years.

He was a retired employee of No. 6 Repair Depot, RCAF, Trenton.

Mr. Robertson is survived by his wife, the former Naomi Reid.

He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Warren (Erma) Foss, Montreal; Mrs. Harold (Vera) Nicholson, Perth, Ont., Mrs. Nettie Spence, Trenton; four sons, Norman, Howard and Ross of Trenton and Earle of Clayton, Ontario. He was predeceased by two sons, Ode, John and Edward.

Twenty-two grandchildren and eight great - grandchildren also survive.

Rev. W. Lougheed officiated at the funeral and interment was in White's Cemetery.

Four Teams Enter Competition for 'Duffy Trophy'

Four teams have entered the second annual .022 small bore rifle competition for the "Duffy Trophy," which will take place Thursday at 7.00 p.m. in the Belleville Armoury.

This competition is sponsored by the Hastings and Prince Edward Regt. and is open to all high school Cadet Corps in the district that are affiliated with the regiment.

To date, four teams have entered, with the best; the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, Port Hope high school, Tweed high school and the East Northumberland (Cobourg) high school of Brighton.

The winning team will receive the "Duffy Trophy" as well as championship crests, while the top scoring individual shot of the evening will be rewarded with a cash prize.

Immediately following the shoot the team members, together with their instructors, will be the guests of the officers' mess where a buffet lunch will be served.

Obituary

MRS. JOHN LOUGH (Marmora)

A popular and highly respected Marmora resident, Mrs. Isabelle Anne Lough, died in Belleville General Hospital Tuesday, February 11, following a week's illness. She was 97 years of age.

Mrs. Lough was born in Marmora Township, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Bailey. She was a lifelong resident of Marmora Township, she was educated there and was a member of St. Paul's Anglican Church.

She was predeceased by her husband, John Lough, in 1942, and by one son Allen, who died in 1956.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Lewis (Mary) Phillips, of Marmora, Mrs. Fred Foxboro (Margaret) Moffatt, of Peterborough, and two sons, Charles, of Springbrook, and Frederick, of Marmora. She is also survived by 29 grandchildren and 45 great - grandchildren.

Funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this issue.

MRS. MARY JANE KNIGHT

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Jane Knight was held from the Thompson Funeral Home on Tuesday afternoon. Rev. R. J. Fraser of the Foxboro United Church conducted the service in the chapel and also committal rites at the entombment was made in Foxboro Cemetery.

The bearers were Harry Carter, Harry Kelly, James Dunphy, Ernest Fitzgerald, Clifford and Clarence LaRue.

WILLIAM MONDEVILLE

The funeral of William Mondeville was held from the John R. Bush Funeral Home this Wednesday morning to St. Michael's Church. Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father O'Neill Stirling, while the committal prayers at St. Michael's Cemetery were recited by Rev. Peter Murphy.

The bearers were Victor Hall, Harold Lush, Earl Lush and Bernard Balyx, Allan Bushell and Ted Golden.

Forest Jobs Provided for Unemployed

Through funds made available jointly by the federal and provincial governments for the relief of unemployed men, the Department of Lands and Forests at Tweed has initiated a number of projects involving the construction of forest access roads and the treatment of red pine plantations.

A thinning project is due to start in the Moira Authority forest in Hungerford township employing five men. Another is slated for the Moira Authority forest in Kaladar township employing three workers. Pruning will be started in Lennox and Addington forest in Kaladar township as soon as the thinning project is completed. The same three men will be employed.

Construction of a new road, employing three men, will be started in Hungerford township, while in the townships of Lyndoch and Griffiths 12 men will build and improve roads in the Green Ridge forest section. Three workers will be hired to improve the Canonto access road in South Canonto township.

When spring arrives 20 men will put in a new road between Ashden Lake and the Ashby project road in the Ashby township. Twelve to 15 workers will be engaged to build a new bridge over Dry Narrows on Crooked Lake in Mayo township and to improve the Canoe road.

LABOR FROM TOWNSHIPS

Labor for these projects will be drawn from the townships in which work is located. Priority will be given those men who currently are on relief rolls or whose unemployment insurance has expired, with preference then being given to men who are still drawing unemployment insurance.

Men wishing employment on these projects are asked to submit their names to their local reeves, major or clerk or directly to an office of the Department of Lands and Forests.

Several other projects are planned but they must await clarification of the proportion of right-of-ways, particularly where former municipal roads are involved.

When and if approval to proceed is obtained, road work employing a total of 55 men will be started in the district of the Tweed office. Some $86,000 will be spent by June 30 on all projects, 50 per cent or more of the money being spent on wages. All told, about 125 men will benefit from these forest and road projects.

Minor Mishaps Keep City and OPP Busy

Investigation of minor traffic accidents kept city and Provincial police busy yesterday and last night.

City police report three minor mishaps and the Provincial Police had the same number of accidents.

In the city $300 damage was caused to two vehicles when cars owned by Chrecker Tsai and George Purvis of Foxboro, collided at the corner of Catherine and Sidney Street.

Hon. Earl Rowe Will Be Speaker At Convention

Hon. Earl Rowe, former leader of the Conservative Opposition in the House of Commons will be the guest speaker at the Hastings South Progressive Conservative nominating convention to be held at the Collegiate Auditorium in Belleville on Monday, Feb. 24th. The meeting will get underway at eight p.m.

The nominating convention is being held to name the Progressive Conservative candidate to contest the riding in the March 31st federal election. Current member Lee Grills, M.P., who carried the riding in the June 10th election defeating Frank S. Follwell, is expected to be the choice of the convention.

'Amateur' Thug Gets $1,800 At Windsor Bank

WINDSOR (CP) — A nervous gunman described by police as "an amateur" escaped on foot with $1,800 from a downtown bank here Tuesday.

The gunman, described by witnesses as "more nervous than we were," entered the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch shortly after noon.

After handing a provincial government cheque stub to teller Mrs. Corinne Grass, he produced a .38-calibre revolver from her face.

"You're fooling," he said.

He told her "I'm not fooling—give me all your money," then ordered nearby customers to back away from the counter.

After Mrs. Grass handed him her cash tray he ordered her to move along the counter and said: "You're coming with me."

Mrs. Grass screamed and ran into a back room.

An accountant, W. C. Harkness, kicked the alarm. The gunman dashed out and bumped into a glass partition. Then he fled out a side door.

Mr. Harkness gave chase but the gunman escaped down an alley and into crowds of shoppers.

BELGRADE (Reuters) — An area scattered only by widows has been disclosed by a census in the Yugoslav town of Bijeljina. Thirteen widows, 40 to 65, live on the street known as "Widows' Alley."

Maurice Callaghan Elected President Liberal Assoc.

The annual election meeting of the Belleville Liberal Association was held last night in the Knights of Columbus hall. The scheduled guest speaker, W. J. Henderson, M.P. member of Parliament for Kingston in the last parliament, was not able to attend owing to a sudden illness.

Frank S. Follwell, former M. P. for Hastings South before the June election, spoke in place of Mr. Henderson, scoring Mr. Diefenbaker and the Progressive Conservative party.

"On March 31," said Mr. Follwell, "the electors of Canada will have to choose between Pearson for peace and prosperity and Diefenbaker for depression and disaster."

He is confident that the Liberal party will return to Ottawa after the election and predicted "great things are in store for us under the Pearson administration." Mr. Follwell criticized Conservative Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent with bringing "unification" to Canada from coast to coast.

The Liberal party was "greatly surprised at the outcome of the June election, but the P.C.'s were even more surprised."

Mr. Follwell pointed out that his party needs but five more seats in the House of Commons to win a minority government. He said the only thing Prime Minister Diefenbaker did to "help" the Canadian unemployment situation was to "double the salaries" so he wouldn't have to face that problem as it grew worse.

Lester B. Pearson, he said, "is the greatest statesman among all the leaders in the world."

Election day on March 31 will not be without its problems, particularly because of the time of year in which the election has been called. Mr. Follwell suggested that perhaps fewer ballots will be cast than on June 10.

The speaker paid tribute to Don McNevin, president of the Belleville Liberal Association in 1957, and to his executive.

90 Forced to Flee Homes By Ten Fires in Two Days

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ten fires in the last two days have forced more than 90 people to flee their homes in freezing weather in Ontario and may have caused as much as $150,000 damage, one person died.

In Sarnia, Mrs. Ella Whiting, 82, died Monday night when trapped in fire which destroyed her two-storey frame home. A coroner's inquest was ordered after the body died of asphyxiation. Firemen confirmed smoke inhalation. Damage was said the house apparently started estimated at $2,000. in a chesterfield.

In Toronto, 60 persons fled from a seven-storey height rooming early Tuesday morning. The fire caused an estimated $40,000 damage. Firemen said the blaze apparently was caused by a carelessly smoker.

Two stores and two apartments were destroyed in a fire and explosion in the community of Kinmount, 30 miles west of Peterborough. Firemen were uncertain whether the explosion occurred before or after the fire. No on was injured, but a man and his wife and two children lost their apartment in the blaze. Loss was estimated at more than $20,000.

The biggest blaze occurred in the small rooms at Farm Show Store Company in Penetanguishene. The company estimated damage at $200,000. None of the 205 employees were injured. Cause of the fire was not known.

In Prescott, 10 miles northeast of Brockville, a fire which firemen said was started by an overheated oil stove destroyed one office and caused $25,000 damage in a three-storey business block on the town's main street. There was also minor smoke and water damage to apartments and stores in the block. No one was injured.

In Alderton, 10 miles north of Glandine, fire destroyed Bobb's Frozen Foods and drove 17 people into sub-zero weather. The blaze was attributed to a chimney spark. Damage was estimated at $70,000.

In Smiths Falls fire levelled a bungalow owned by Mrs. Edith Gray's existence, Aug. 30, 1955. Miss Gray and Sir Strati met during the war.

Asked whether Sir Stratti had given her any idea how much he spent on Miss Gray, Lady Ralli replied: "We added it up together and I think it came to something like £38,000."

Wife Forgives Husband for Keeping Mistress

LONDON (AP) — A grey-haired wife testified Tuesday she has forgiven her 81-year-old banker husband for spending more than $100,000 on a mistress.

Lady Ralli testified she had always loved Sir Strati Ralli "and always will." They have been married 41 years.

Learning of his association with former model Jacqueline Gray came as "an awful shock," Lady Ralli declared, but she told him: "I will stand by you always and will never leave you." That, she said, "comforted him."

Miss Gray, 41, is suing Sir Strati for return of jewels worth $33,600 which she claims the banker gave her and then took away on the pretense that he wanted them insured.

CONFESSED TO WIFE

Sir Strati earlier confessed to his wife that he had been keeping a mistress for 16 years and paid all payment to her then stopped.

Under cross examination, Lady Ralli said she first knew of Miss Gray's existence, Aug. 30, 1955. Miss Gray and Sir Strati met during the war.

U.S. Will Spend Two Billions On Post Offices

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower, moving to clear up the slumping economy, asked Congress today a $2,000,000,000 program to modernize United States post offices and postal services.

Press secretary James C. Hagerty, disclosing plans for the postal modernization program, described it as one specifically designed to afford greater job opportunities in every section of the country.

Eisenhower pledges to finance it with revenues from an increase in postage rates he has asked Congress to approve. However, the proposal he made to date on out-of-loan letters from there to five cents fares an upfall fight in the Senate post committee.

Eisenhower's announcement of a program came on the heels of a labor and commerce department report Tuesday that the number of unemployed in the U.S. had soared 1,120,000 last month—the biggest monthly rise since the war — to a total of 4,191,000.

The unemployment report brought a chorus of appeals from Republicans and Democrats in Congress for some swift action by the administration.

Gerald Minifi Given One Year For Car Theft

TRENTON — Gerald Minifi, 36, of 328 Sidney Street was sentenced to one year in jail yesterday by Magistrate T. Y. Wills, Q.C. after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing a truck.

In passing the sentence this Magistrate said Indictments have apparently not been successful in reforming Minifi and the term was more to protect the public than anything else.

Sgt. Bradshaw of the Trenton Police Department gave evidence and told of the chase which led to speeds up to 85 m.p.h on icy roads prior to the arrest of the accused.

The stolen truck was the property of James Nate, R.H. 4 Trenton, and was reported undamaged other than having a punctured tire which was noted after the vehicle had been towed out of the ditch.

Minifi's police record, which was read in court, revealed he had been found guilty of other auto thefts at various times dating back to 1940. He had served several five-year terms in prison in connection with them. He was released from Kingston on July 15 of last year.

F. B. Fry of Trenton was fined $50 and $5 costs yesterday in Magistrate's court when he pleaded guilty to a charge of driver while ability impaired.

The accident arose from recent accident in which Mr. Fry's car went out of control and smashing into the porch of a house caused damages to the extent of about $100 to the home. Mr. Fry never had suffered injuries to his threat from the same mishap.

Fry told the Magistrate he has reserved his car sharply to miss a dog on the street, causing the car to go out of control.

Hockey Notes

JUVENILE GAME

TRENTON — Trenton VW's and Cobourg will battle in their first game of the Juvenile playoffs tonight at the Memorial Centre. It will be a home-and-home series. The match tonight will get underway at 9 p.m.

ICE LOWERED

The ice-chipping machine was brought in last Monday night, rink officials stated today and did a fine job of lowering the surface an inch of ice off. They started work at 12:30 a.m., right after RCAF Rockets and were finished at 7.30 a.m. Community centre management and rink officials stated the job done and stated it would be a lot easier on the freezing unit now only about an inch of ice left. A town truck and five men were engaged to remove the chipped - off ice. Colored lines are at present being repainted and will be ready for Juvenile playoffs to finance game.

RCAF HOCKEY

The F.I.S. and Rockets will meet Thursday night in a battle for first spot in the regular league standings as well as for a ticket position with the Cornets in the "Big Four" series. They will play in the second game. The first game Thursday night will be between the Combines and Headquarters and the winner will see the Comets try for a win over the Falcons to boost their standings in both the regular and "Big Four" series.

FIS Regains Top Spot in Hockey Loop

TRENTON — Monday night's play in the R.C.A.F. Hockey League at the Community Centre, brought two major changes to the standings in the league.

The F.I.S. win over the Falcons put them back in first place with a one-point lead over the second-place Rockets.

Comets, in defeating the powerful Rockets the same night, advanced to third place with a one-point lead over the Falcons.

In the third game of the night the R&D squad defeated the Sparks to strengthen fifth-place standing and to become a threat to the Falcons in the fourth-place spot.

Identifies Man As Bank Robber

WHITBY (CP) — Accountant Joseph McMillan Tuesday identified George Edgar Gray, 45, jailed as the taller of two armed men who escaped with $5,148 last May 28 from a Canadian Bank of Commerce branch in nearby Pickering, Ont.

McMillan testified as the trial of Gray and Fillion, charged with robbery in connection with the holdup, opened.

Fillion pleaded not guilty to the charge earlier Tuesday.

Navy's Daily Rum Ration Will Remain

OTTAWA (CP) — In a search for savings in his department, Defence Minister G. R. Pearkes, ex-army man-general, has decided to leave inviolate the expenditure for the navy's daily rum ration.

Mr. Pearkes could have saved some $110,000 annually by eliminating the daily tot to sailors, a centuries-old practice.

But officials said Tuesday defence department estimates for the 1958-59 fiscal year include an amount to provide the rum ration.

Even if the tradition were thrown overboard, a lower-deck mutiny would be extremely unlikely. A navy survey in 1955 showed that only 50 per cent of the men accept the daily issue. Thirty per cent were too young—a sailor has to be 20 years old before he is eligible for the ration—and the remaining 20 per cent took the $1.80 a month in lieu of the rum.

ISSUED EACH MORNING

A tot of rum—a tot is about 2½ ounces — is issued to each man who wants it when "up spirits" is piped at 11:30 a.m.

Officers do not receive the ration. They have a wardroom where liquor may be purchased.

The sailor must mix the rum on the spot and drink it under the eye of the officer of the day. The coxswain checks a list so that no one can go through the line more than once.

The custom of the daily grog—grog is rum mixed with water—originated several centuries ago when water on long voyages became foul. The daily ration is issued only to sailors 20 years and older to those assigned to shore duty.

Play Called 'A Little Thin' By Adjudicator

OTTAWA (CP) — The Fisher Park Community Theatre Tuesday night took a bow for making in a "good attack" at a situational comedy adjudicated by Dora Mavor Moore.

"The amateur group chose William Marchant's The Desk Set as the first-nighter in the five-day Eastern Ontario regional drama festival here.

The Desk Set, in three acts, portrays the arrival of an efficiency expert and modernization in a Manhattan office staffed by women.

Mr. West said he didn't know why the play was chosen. It was thin in plot, difficult to act and the cast had to fight for laughs. He congratulated the cast for a rugged shot at a comedy by no means easy.

Actors played in a theatre where acoustics presented a definite difficulty. Fisher Park Collegiate Auditorium, festival centre, seats about 500 persons. Tuesday night's audience numbered about 175 as the festival got under way with the week-long Ottawa Music Festival for audience support.

Saturday night's closing play is Sean O'Casey's The Plow and The Stars," by Kingston's Domino Theatre.

AREA ANNEXED

The line takes in part of what is known as "Irishtown" west of the city, then extends westerly to the north and west of the easterly boundary of the Hastings county home and south to the Bay of Quinte.

The annexation area ordered by the municipal board would give the city much open farm land both northwest and north east of the city as potential industrial land. The area immediately to the north and west of the city is already seeing a booming residential expansion. Hundreds of new houses have been built east of the city in Thurlow township in the past few years.

THE SECRET CHEWER

Richard Henry, writing in the Toronto Telegram, recently reported that there was a shortage of plug chewing tobacco in the Coldwater area, near Midland The chewing habit gained foothold at Coldwater, he says, because men in the sawmill were not allowed to smoke. Amongst others who chew tobacco for the same reason he lists miners. Another chewer, although presumably not because he could not smoke, was "a famous editor who chewed tobacco till the day he died — and few people knew it."

This reminded us of a lawyer who used to chew in court, because he could not stand the long hours without the solace of a smoke. Certainly few people knew of his habit. We discovered it one day when we rode with him to an inquest at a little village some thirty miles from the city where we both lived. But for that ride, we should never have known that he chewed. This was in the days before the tourist trade had brought "refined" manners to even small fishing villages and he could probably have taken a plug from his pocket and bit off a cud at the inquest without shocking anybody, even the coroner. Instead he used a knife to sever a small bit of tobacco from the plug and then placed this carefully at the side of his mouth before going into court. Throughout the inquest, there was no sign that he was chewing. What he did with the tobacco juice we do not know, but surely there is only one answer. He must have had a very strong stomach.

The next time we saw him in Supreme Court we could not help wondering what the dignified judge on the bench would say if he knew that learned counsel had concealed deep among his wisdom teeth, that comforting little block wed.

Our tobacco-chewing friend has since left private practice and holds a high position with the Ontario Government. Perhaps he has been able to abandon his plug and resort for a cigaret whenever the tobacco hun pinches him. Or perhaps he has been chewing all these years without anybody being any the wiser.

BROTHERHOOD WEEK

Next week is Brotherhood Week in Canada and in the U.S.

In the U.S. it is sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, in Canada by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews Inc.

The latter organization analyses its name. Regarding the word "of" it says "of Christians and Jews — not for Christians and Jews." There is a difference, a vast difference and it is this difference which is the essence of brotherhood. Brotherhood is all-inclusive.

The by-laws of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews state that the organization's aim is "—to promote justice, amity, understanding and co-operation among Canadians differing in race, religion, culture and ethnic origin, and to analyze, moderate and finally eliminate inter-group prejudices which disfigure and distort religious, business, social and political relations, with a view to establishment of a social order in which the religious ideals of brotherhood and justice shall become the standards of human relationships."

This is a high purpose. If we change the word "Canadians" to "peoples of the world" it provides a picture of what must be attained before true brotherhood is enthroned throughout the world.

The trouble with this goal is that it is so difficult to reach that some may believe there is no use starting the journey.

It is for that reason that we like the following statement from the pen of Stuart Trueman, editor of the Saint John Telegraph-Journal: "The antithesis of brotherhood is a complex of smugness, mingled with a feeling that one race or nation, one religion or social caste, is superior to another."

"What setbacks such notions took in the last 12 months," exclaims Trueman. And, by gosh, he's right. Much of the "deepening tension and suspicion" which he says beset the world during the past year existed precisely because more and more people were becoming deeply suspicious, of those who claimed that their race, their nationality, their religion or their social caste gave them a claim to recognition as superior beings.

Eventually, if men are fo be truly brothers, they will have to learn to love one another. But we, for one, will be satisfied if, during the year ahead, men learn merely to recognize that they are equals, one with another.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Remembered still! Along the years
His gentle influence appears,
And where for truth men dare to strive
McMartyred Lincoln still alive,
Calm, patient, tender and as bold
As in the troubled days of old.

Not many men outlive their years!
Not off the finished soul appears!

Not all a Lincoln comes to earth
Through obscurity of birth
To reach that pinnacle sublime
That towers above both death and time.

Most of us with the last quick breath
Into oblivion go with death
And soon remembered are no more.
But Lincoln greater than before,
To faltering hope and weakening will Remains an inspiration still!

The dead boys, wearing T-shirts under windbreakers and sommer underwear, were found about 60 feet apart. The hands of both were covering their faces, as if to shield them from the cold. Tears were frozen on Duffy's cheeks.

Veteran hunchman Charles Tonge of Torrance, store-keeper and guide, criticized the group's hunting plans.

"People will just have to learn that the north country is to be taken seriously. These lads hadn't any plans of staying in the bush very long, but you can never tell what can happen and you always have to be on your guard," he said.

Commended Constable William Lidstone

"This is a tragedy that never should have happened. By the looks of things none of them had any right to even go near the bush."

KEPT THEM MOVING

Rescuers and other residents of the area joined Morton with keeping two of the boys alive by keeping moving until they were picked up.

Constable Bruce MacCallum, member of the search party which found the dead boys' bodies, said the survivors had wandered erratically.

He said Pettersen and Duffy had both fallen into water.

The survivors said Pettersen fell through ice into Nisemiles Creek while the party was still intact.

He was dried before a fire, but later died of exposure. Constable McCallum said it was certain Duffy also fell into the water and died of exposure after becoming separated from the group.

Near the bodies was a pile of green wood which Duffy had been unable to light with his two wooden matches. In desperation he tried to light the foil of a candy bar.

FRENCH

to sink ferry boats in the narrow harbor mouth and to fire on any French planes that might try to airlift supplies into the base or French military camps, to which FFrench forces have been rendeployed since the air attack on the former colony.

French officials brushed off the talk of military action from the lightly armed Tunisian forces and said they would send helicopters to supply their bases if needed.

In Washington, high United States officials expressed fear that Tunisia will insist that France evacuate the big naval base regardless of the outcome of the furore over the bombing. France was given 99-year rights to the Bizerte base when Tunisia became an independent country two years ago. It is a key stronghold in the Mediterranean area.

Acting State Secretary Christian Herter was reported awaiting a first-hand report of the bombing incident from the U.S. ambassador to Tunisia, G. Lewis Jones, who visited the scene Tuesday.

Jones' report is expected to play a big role in any American government decision on whether to back Tunisia's anticipated appeal to the United Nations Security Council.

The U.S. is believed hoping that Tunisia will avoid airing the hot dispute before the UN to avoid giving Russia a chance to further inflame passions set loose by the incident.

French diplomats meanwhile report that their government intends to pull no punches in meeting Tunisia's protest at the UN. The French say they are prepared to document their charges that the Tunisians knowingly allowed their territory to be used as a privileged sanctuary from which rebels could attack French forces in Algeria.

In Cairo, the Egyptian Parliament denounced the bombing and suggested the Tunisian demand for French withdrawal. Pakistan promised to support any move Tunisia made in the UN.

RCN PUTS AVENGER AIRCRAFT UP FOR SALE

Avenger aircraft, above, since 1953 used by the RCN as torpedo bombers, are now up for sale. Cost of the ships, bought from the U.S. after they had proved serviceability in World War II, was $100,000 plus whatever alteration costs were involved in adapting them to Canadian installations. The RCN is now using Tracker aircraft built by de Havilland Aircraft Co.

Two Agencies Disagree Over Allotment Costs

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Ontario government agencies have come into some conflict before the board of transport commissioners on how utilities should pay for relocation of their facilities in elimination of railway level crossings.

They were the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission and the provincial department of highways, on opposite sides of the fence in the hearing.

The board, nearing the end of a long hearing on the subject, Tuesday began hearing final argument from utilities, provincial agencies, municipal governments and others.

At stake are many millions of dollars spent annually by utilities companies in relocating transmission equipment for grade separation projects ordered by the board. Normally, the utilities pay the full amount of their own relocation costs.

IS A "BYSTANDER"

He said Hydro does not contribute to any highway danger and is in the position of innocent bystander when a shift in lines is required because of a level crossing change, "but in due course we get the bill."

The cost of replacing facilities of public utilities, he said, should be considered as part of the essential costs of a grade separation project and should be included in cost allocation by the board along with expenses of the railways, highways departments, municipalities and contributions from the federal grade crossing fund.

For the Ontario highways department, counsel J. D. Arnup declared that costs incurred by a utility consequent upon a grade separation must be borne by the users of that utility's service.

"To throw these costs upon the highways would mean that they would come from the taxpayers," he added.

"There are more taxpayers in Ontario than there are phone users," Mr. Arnup said, in reference to Bell Telephone Company which has been leading the fight to get a better break for utilities in the split of costs on crossing improvement expenses.

Mr. Arnup suggested the Bell Company was trying to get from the board something that amounted to a legislative change under the guise of a change in board regulations.

SEEK PADDLING PRIVILEGE

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The city school board has voted unanimously to ask city council to rescind a 1918 ordinance forbidding teachers to paddle problem pupils as a disciplinary measure. Dr. Charles Moffett, a board member, said it is unfair to expect teachers and principals to maintain discipline without being able to paddle pupils.

ECONOMIST

Trade with other countries ought produce a surplus of some $100,000,000 a year, up from $100,000,000 in 1955.

The report on imports was one of more than 30 special studies ordered by the royal commission headed by Toronto accountant Walter Gordon. Purpose of the studies was to help the commission in preparation of its final report on Canada's economic prospects, expected to be issued soon. A preliminary report was made a year ago.

Prof. Slater emphasized that though Canada's overall trade deficit may increase, the rise would be far smaller than the general expansion of the Canadian economy. For example, the gross national product, value of all goods and services produced, is estimated to triple to some $76,800,000,000 by 1989.

"In general, the prediction is for Canada in its international economic position to be not fundamentally different from what it now is—a country which remains strongly integrated into the world particularly the North American economy, exporting mainly primary products.

"The exports of primary products will shift more toward minerals and to North American markets. Imports will shift gradually toward more manufactured goods, particularly machinery and equipment and consumer durables and parts for their manufacture.

"It is a picture of a country which is an international debtor, and which will still be a net importer of capital from abroad, though the latter will be of less than it now is."

The smaller magnitude relatively In a forecast of the commodity por tart—that is, leaving imports of services aside — Prof. Slater concluded that the proportion of goods brought in from the U.S. would increase in the quarter-century, while that coming in from Britain and other countries might decline.

Father Faints As Baby Born, Breaks His Jaw

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Actually men are the weaker sex," a British surgeon says.

Dr. W. C. W. Nixon, professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the University of London, told a gynecological conference Tuesday that more than 15 per cent of English fathers insist on being in delivery rooms with their wives.

"One father fainted dead away while watching his child being delivered," Dr. Nixon said. "He smashed to the floor and was knocked for six.

"When we could get around to him, we discovered he had a broken jaw. His wife went home with the baby in four days, but he spent six weeks in our hospital."

PTA MEETING

There was a large attendance recently at St. Joseph's School when the Parent-Teacher's Association held their annual bridge party. Mr. Kelly, president of the Association, welcomed a n d thanked those present for their interest, on behalf of the group.

The general convener for the evening was Mrs. Carl O'Neill, while the refreshments were under the direction of a committee headed by Mrs. Fred Maund. Numerous bridge and door prizes were distributed at the end of the affair.

Women's Activities

HOLY TRINITY L.G.

The meeting was opened with a hymn followed by the reading of Psalm 32, and the Lord's Prayer.

The president, Mrs. Fitzgerald, welcomed all to the meeting and thanked Mrs. Johnson for opening her home to the Guild.

Roll call was answered by 12 members, and each member was requested to present as part of the roll call, a photograph of herself, t a k e n some years previously. This created quite a bit of interest.

Lenten self-denial folders were distributed.

Final plans for the euchre party to be held at the home of Mrs. McBride in Milltown on Wednesday evening were completed.

Mrs. Page invited the Guild to attend a presentation of colored slides of the Yukon to be held at St. Margaret's Church in Belleville later this month. Bishop Greenwod, "Bishop of the Yukon," is to be present. On this same evening the regular meeting of Holy Trinity Ladies' Guild will be held at the home of Mrs. Page, Hunswood Drive, Belleville. This kind invitation was graciously accepted by the Guild.

Mrs. McBride took charge of the program, consisting of several contests and games, which were much enjoyed.

The meeting was closed with prayer.

Mrs. Johnson, assisted by her daughter, Linda, served a sumptuous lunch and a social time followed, concluding the meeting.

Contact Club Holds 'Club Auction'

The weekly meeting of the Contact Club of Christ Church on Monday evening took the form of a club auction, to which president Helen McCormick, welcomed many members and guests.

Auctioneers, Marion Connor, Trudy Sands, Betty Ling, and Eileen Talbot worked hard at selling their attractive and varied "wares" amidst much laughter and good natured rivalry as the bidding went on. Treasurer Molly Kerr was kept busy as cashier, and altogether it was an evening of fun and profit for the club.

It was announced that next week's meeting will be a study group, to which the Reverend Everett Smith is bringing a 40 minute film "Time and Eternity," which promises to be most interesting.

The most attractive tea table, with its valentine motif, was presided over by hostesses for the evening — Evelyn Clarke, Marion Connor, Helen McCormick and Trudy Sands.

Club Activities

RIVER VALLEY M. B.

STIRLING — River Valley Mission Band convened on Saturday at the home of Mrs. Glenn Bush and daughters, Judy and Trudy, with a good attendance of children.

The president, Marguerite De Bruyn, was in charge of the program. Recitations were given by Jackie De Bruyn, Joyce Carr, Jane Bush and Donnie Carr.

Music was provided by Judy Bush and Peter De Bruyn.

Mrs. Jack Bush outlined the study on "Hanna's New Home".

Following the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostesses. This included birthday cake and ice cream in honor of the 2nd birthday anniversary of a baby band member, Susan Bush.

Poolside Prize

Here's something new under the sun. A cocktail swim suit ensemble consisting of a bathing suit and matching skirt, it is quite an idea for poolside entertaining, patio and cabana parties.

The suit is a one-piece with a fitted bodice with insert bra, a rounded neckline and shoulder straps. It has a little skirt and is made of elasticized silk corde.

The full, cocktail-length skirt is also of silk corde, with a formal bow in front. Both are in horizon blue.

Going shopping?

Our shopping safari for the column this week revealed that purchases have already been made in ladies' ready to wear in some spring models. There is sufficient evidence as soon to support the conviction that spring 1958 will live up to the standards set in past seasons.

Special types of cotton shirtwaists are interesting and will doubtless be a popular innovation. There is a wide variety of plaid and paisley patterns to choose from. The cotton shirtwaists will abide by the trend towards having a costume suitable for more than one occasion. For double duty, you may use three quarter length sleeve or buttoned up to a short sleeve. Also you can have either a narrow self belt or a contrasting silk wide tie belt.

Suits will feature shorter than last year's jackets, but you will find that some box jackets have been repeated and will be in stock. The newest and the most popular jacket is the one with a hand which hugs the figure. There are some of the sack look styles in evidence and in cotton. You will be able to buy the new knitted cotton but most of these have a belt if you prefer to wear a belt.

The tweed coat will sport new trimmings this spring in the form of a narrow fringe or braid. The mandarin type collar is good but it can also be worn open and flattened.

When you are browsing about with the purchase of a dress in mind ask to see something new in nylon dresses. They should be acceptable because they not only look well but have wonderful utility value. The material looks like soft brushed wool and comes in pastel colors. When washed, the dress will actually drip dry in about thirty-three minutes.

Before we leave the ready to wear department you might like to know about a new eye catching blouse; it has a soft wide collar with a self flower at the neckline. Watch for this.

MEXICAN ORANGES

If you must have citrus fruit regularly, we think that the Mexican oranges which are in good supply, are the most economical buy. T and T can't resist mentioning a news broadcast we heard over a large network this week warning people about the high prices and scarcity of citrus fruits. We only hope our readers heeded our warning before Christmas. Last week's frost in southern U.S. will make the situation still more acute. For some reason pineapples are not as high as expected, yet they are by no means plentiful. There is no guarantee that they will stay this way. Again we urge consideration and consumption of our own Canadian apples which are in good supply and excellent quality. The bargains you will find at present in the meat line are few and far between. Meats in most cuts remain high in price and it will be the diligence of the astute housewife to pick out the bargains when there are any.

Surely the Valentine window displays will soften the hardest heart. Have we become too sophisticated for Valentine to stir the youthful and bring memory to the oldster. The Belleville florists are doing themselves proud with their displays. Special arrangements with florists' planters are particularly attractive. One item that caught our eye was a simple goblet with a single red (carnation) bloom. In its simplicity it was beautiful.

A few days ago a lady called T and T. She is a mother from Europe who has established herself here and who has in a brief period made a considerable contribution to culture. She wanted to know if anything could be done to combat violence, its aggrandisement in film and literature. She warned that anyone who had suffered the dreadful experience of organized violence could not but be disturbed by the drift. T and T would welcome intelligent and constructive ideas on this problem.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Clara F. My husband is jealous of our children.

Hubert F. — I want us to enjoy things together.

Clara F. — I am having a very difficult time with my husband. This may sound silly when I state our ages are 57 and 58. Nevertheless it's a fact. My husband is jealous about the time I spend with our children!

We have four married children and five grandchildren. Naturally I am kept busy, seeing them all and baby-sitting. It is the greatest pleasure of my life. But of course I don't love my husband any less for that. I am always home for dinner and ready to go places with him.

My husband calls home several times a day and is furious if he doesn't get me in. He resents it when I talk about our grandchildren and takes very little interest in them.

Hubert F. — I love our grandchildren just as well as my wife does — but I can't see making a career out of it. Kids are just kids, cute and all of that, but what's the big deal about?

I had looked forward to this time of our lives to enjoy things together. I am in the lucky position where I can arrange my working hours to suit myself. Sometimes I feel like taking an afternoon off. But can I enjoy it with my wife? No!

Clara points out that she is always home for dinner, but it looks to me as though this is just a matter of duty with her. Often she has admitted she is too tired at the end of the day even to talk. When she does talk, it's all just the kids and the kids. I'm fed up.

The Council: In our opinion Clara may be doing wrong in more ways than one.

Her excitement over her grandchildren is understandable, yet it is possible that her children could do with a little less of her time and attention. Their children are their responsibility and they should not be encouraged to be dependent upon an always-available, free baby-sitter.

Clara is wronging herself as well. After a lifetime of child-rearing, she has a right to expand her horizons. Many interesting experiences and activities are passing her by while she relives her own youth. She can now dare to live for herself.

We have a notion that Clara is somewhat flattered by her husband's jealousy and possibly promotes it by persisting in doing what she knows is annoying to him. Her pleasure in being so tough after is understandable, but she should recognize that her husband has been made genuinely unhappy by this situation.

Clara should give up her self-centered childish pleasure in feeling like a belle with an always-filled dance program, for the more adult pleasure of entering a new and different phase of life with her eager companion.

Strictly Economical

By Mary Moore

There are three recipes here today that will help the girls on strict budgets. One of them was given to me by one of the strictest and most effective budgeteers I have ever known.

When she was young she wanted to go to California to visit her brother, but she was a private secretary helping to support their widowed mother. So to save the fare to California she walked to work and back — 4 miles — every day for 5 years, and banked the saved carfare. Then she had her long awaited trip. My Pete was very young when he heard this story and said "Instead of walking back and forth to work for 5 years why didn't she walk to California and save the fare?"

A girl that can do that knows a good economical recipe when she eats it.

LAURA'S FONDUE LUNCH:

These amounts are exactly right for 3 hearty eaters, if served with soup and salad. Six slices of buttered bread cut into cubes, 2 eggs, 1 cup milk, 1 cup grated cheese, ½ teaspoon dry mustard, 1 teaspoon salt. Beat the eggs and add the milk, cheese, mustard and salt, and pour over bread cubes in buttered casserole. Over top sprinkle 1 tablespoon chopped green or Spanish onion and 2 slices of bacon chopped fine. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 25 minutes or until firm and tinged with brown.

FRENCH ONION SOUP:

(For Canadians) One very large Spanish or Bermuda or Egyptian onion, 4 tablespoons butter or oil, 4 beef bouillon cubes, 4 cups water, 2 slices bread, butter, 2-3 cup grated cheese. When onion is thinly sliced pour 2 cups boiling water over it, let it stand 5 minutes, then drain. Brown onion in oil or butter lightly. Dissolve bouillon cups in 1 cup boiling water, then add to onions with remaining water. Bring to boil, then simmer 30 minutes. Remove crusts from bread, butter both sides, cut into small cubes and toast in slow oven (300 deg.) until golden. Divide cubes into 4 deep oven-proof soup ramekins or 1 one-quart casserole, pour soup over, sprinkle evenly with the cheese. Return to oven for about 20 minutes until top is bubbly and gold-tinged.

WEDNESDAY

BARBECUED WIENERS:

One and one-half lbs. wieners, 1 medium onion grated, 1 tablespoon each flour and brown sugar, 2 tablespoons each vinegar and water, 1½ tablespoons Worcestershire Sauce, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon each paprika and chili powder, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ cup catsup, Pierce each wiener in several places with a fork and place in casserole. Combine remaining ingredients. Pour over wieners. Cover. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. for 60 to 69 minutes. If desired serve on fluffy boiled rice.

between halves of wiener buns or on fluffy boiled rice.

Woman Named To Highway Safety Branch

MRS. ETHEL M. McLELLAN

TORONTO — Organized women could very well prove to be Ontario's strongest nex in the crusade to reduce traffic accidents, declared Provincial Safety Commissioner W. B. G. Reynolds, as he announced today the appointment of a Women's Activities Officer, trim vivacious Mrs. Ethel Marie McLellan, to the Highway Safety Branch of the Ontario Department of Transport.

To this new position, first of its kind in any governmental or private safety organization in Canada, Ethel McLellan brings a determination to alert women's organizations of every type to the tragic seriousness of the traffic accident toll and the fact that they can do something about it.

In what the Commissioner termed "a most important and unusual role", the Women's Activities Officer will bring home the safety problem and the ways it can be attacked to all kinds of women's groups, from small local meetings to big national conventions. "We're certainly not understating the power of women", said Reynolds. "In fact we are deliberately setting out to mobilize Ontario's women in the interests of safety."

As preparation for her mission, she has gone through the mill — the first women to do so — of the Ontario Safety League's Safe Commercial Driving School Instructor's Course. In addition, she is planning an on-the-spot study of women's accident prevention activities at the Chicago head office of the U.S. National Safety Council.

An honor graduate in Economics and Political Science from Queen's University, Mrs. McLellan was born in Port Hope and lives in Etobicoke with her husband, Edward F. McLellan.

NOT CORRECT TO HAVE TEEN-AGE SON ANNOUNCE MOTHER'S MARRIAGE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a widow and expect to be married sometime in the Spring. My son, who is 18, would like to announce this marriage, and I am wondering if this is permissible inasmuch as my parents are living. — Widow

It is not correct, not appropriate for your son to announce this marriage, even though it is a tribute to you and your bridegroom-to-be that he wishes to do this.

Customarily the marriage of the mature widow and her bridegroom is announced by the principals themselves. My advice is that you follow this custom. The form is:

Mrs. Thomas Clark

announces

Mr. Kenneth Foster

announce their marriage

on Tuesday, the sixth of May

Nineteen hundred and fifty-eight

Windsor, Ontario

Important note: Be sure to use the correct form of your name as a widow . . . for example Mrs. Thomas Clark, not the incorrect form Mrs. Catherine Clark (for example) you used in your letter. A formal marriage announcement must be worded with strict formality in every detail, and your correct formal name as a widow is Mrs. Thomas Clark.

TO HAVE SMALL RECEPTION AFTER SEMI-FORMAL WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper for us to have a rather large semi-formal church wedding if circumstances in my family, financial circumstances and also serious illness, will only permit having a very small, informal reception after the ceremony? — Bride-to-be

Yes. After a semi-formal church wedding, even though a large wedding, it is proper for you to have any kind of reception you will find it convenient to have, can afford to have . . . small, large, or none at all.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES

WOOLER E. A

The February meeting of the Wooler Evening Auxiliary was held on February 6th, at the home of Mrs. Harry McColl.

A good number were in attendance.

The president, Mrs. F. Smith, presided over the business, and Mrs. Everett Ellis had charge of the worship with Mrs. W. McColl assisting. A solo was rendered by Miss Donna McColl.

Eight redcaps were served by Mrs. Ellis and her group.

The March meeting will be held at Mrs. D. Fox's.

SPRINGBROOK W. A.

A pot luck dinner held in the basement of Springbrook United Church on Thursday, February 6th preceded the regular meeting of the Women's Association, the hostesses being Mrs. Kenneth Thompson and Mrs. John McKeown. Proceeds realized from the dinner were $34.71.

The ladies assembled for their meeting at 2 o'clock with the president, Mrs. Carman Sine, in charge, using the W. A. motto. The theme song and W. A. prayer as an opening.

With reference to some suggestions handed in for the January roll-call, the order of the meeting was changed subject to approval.

The members reported 54 cards sent and 35 calls made. The correspondence was read and recalls with consisting of thank-you notes and a leaflet from March of Dimes. It was agreed that a contribution be made towards the March of Dimes as usual.

Mrs. Kenneth Thompson reporting for the January visiting committee told of calling on many sick and shut-ins. The volunteers for this committee for February are: Mrs. Gordon Bateman and Mrs. Bert Spry. Mrs. Gordon Bailey reporting for the fruit and flower committee, told of cards being sent to the sick.

Mrs. Delbert Fleming, reporting for the cupboard committee, explained very fully of contacts made, re estimates and suggestions offered. A discussion followed, and it was agreed the same committee continue with having the cupboards built.

The president reminded the ladies of the World Day of Prayer at St. Mark's in Bonarlaw on February 21. The business concluded with a discussion.

The worship period was conducted by Mrs. Percy Mumby, the theme being "The Owner's Stamp." The Scripture, taken from Acts 4:5-20, was read by Mrs. Ralph Thompson, followed by the 23rd Psalm read in unison. The theme thoughts were read by Mrs. Reg McKeown. Prayer for missionary, Miss Gauld, was given by Mrs. Carman Sine. A prayer by Mrs. Percy Bateman and the Lord's Prayer closed the worship period.

Readings were given by Mrs. Arthur Reid and Mrs. Barton Bateman. A quiet by Mrs. Gordon Bailey and Mrs. Gordon Bateman and a contest by Mrs. Murray Mason completed the program. The meeting closed by all joining hands and singing one verse of "Blest Be the Tie that Binds," and the Mizpah Benediction.

The March meeting will be another pot-luck dinner in the basement, with Mrs. Edward Bateman and Mrs. George Thompson as hostesses.

SHANNONVILLE W.M.S.

The monthly meeting of the WMS of Shannonville United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Damon Hinchey on the evening of February 5th with attendance of 18. Mrs. Charles Wood president, welcomed all. Mrs. Wood offered prayer and read a poem. Mrs. William Ross group leader took charge and opened the devotional by announcing a hymn.

Mrs. Ross read the Scripture lesson from the 3rd chapter of Philippians and followed the service given in the United Church monthly. Mrs. Arthur Houston gave an interesting reading. Mrs. Charles Kierl read about Miss Constance Wagar's work as missionary teacher in girls high school at Trinidad. Mrs. Ross gave a reading about Miss Millicent House's missionary work in Angola, Africa.

Mrs. Wood thanked the group leader and took charge of the business. Roll was called and minutes of the last meeting were given by the secretary.

It was decided to combine the World's Day of prayer service with the March meeting. Plans for supply work are to be discussed at the next W. A. meeting as this work is shared equally by both societies. Mrs. Robertson at this time read an address of thanks and appreciation to Mrs. Everett Stratton for the faithful efficient work as the treasurer for 16 years. The president presented a lovely cup and saucer to her.

Although taken by surprise Mrs. Stratton thanked the women for the gift. Mrs. Stratton also served a term as president of the W. M. S. Mrs. W. Ross, the new treasurer gave her report. Offertory was dedicated by the president, who thanked the hostess and dismissed with the benediction. Grace was sung and a delicious lunch was served by Mrs. D. Hinchey and the group in charge. A social time was enjoyed. A sale of home made cooking after the meeting added over seven dollars for supply work. Mrs. C. Wood, president and Mrs. W. D. Robertson attended the Presbyterial in Trinity Church Napanee on Friday February 7th. Mrs. Robertson was delegate.

St. Julien I.O.D.E. Elects Officers

With Mrs. G. Vince, Regent, conducting the meeting, the regular business was attended to, followed by the annual report of the various chairmen.

For educational purposes, the sum of $261.19 was spent for donations to bursaries and contributions to provincial funds. Service to veterans abroad involved $434.07 for relief, public service, and handmade articles for overseas help.

Suitable gifts were presented to the retiring Regent, Mrs. Geo. Vince, and also to Mrs. Eva Doolittle, recording secretary, for several years, in appreciation of their loyalty and service.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Mrs. F. Carscallen conducted the election of officers, with the resulting slate: hon. regent, Mrs. G. Vince; regent, Mrs. L. B. Ponger; 1st vice reg., Mrs. A. Rutherford; 2nd vice reg., Mrs. L. G. Irvine; treas., Mrs. W. Gilbert; rec. Sec., Mrs. E. Rutherford; ass't. sec., Miss Marjorie Sherman; educational sec., Mrs. C. Bishop; services at home and abroad, Mrs. R. M. Patterson; standard bearer, Mrs. C. C. French; Echoes' sec., Mrs. H. G. McKay.

Convenors of: publicity, Mrs. K. M. Purnell; membership, Mrs. F. Carscallen; empire and world affairs, Mrs. J. M. Parrott; hospitality, Mrs. A. Hitchon; flims Mrs. L. G. Irvine; flowers, Mrs. Ross; marathon bridge, Mrs. H. Thompson.

Members will meet on the 4th Monday, beginning in March.

A congratulatory telegram was sent to Sir Thomas, Picton Chapter IODE Picton, on the celebration of their 50th anniversary.

The regular Alexander Rose tea day will be held on Friday afternoon May 2, and Saturday morning, May 3.

Mrs. J. M. Parrott was pianist for the evening.

Women's Institute

MOIRA W.I.

The Moira Women's Institute met on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Thompson with Mrs. W. Collins presiding.

Letters were read, business discussed and birthday fees paid.

The program, under the direction of Mrs. W. Collins, consisted of readings by Mrs. Gordon Foster, by Mrs. Marjorie Thompson, on "The Romantic Side of St. Valentine's Day," with emphasis on the present day; by Mrs. Fred Regensburg, "The Folly of Parson Brown"; by Bessie Holbert, "Keep Mum," and one by Mrs. Earl Thompson, "New Year's Pie."

The topic, entitled "Ideal Mother," was given by Mrs. C. Thompson.

Following the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

The next meeting will be in the form of a pot-luck supper at the home of Mrs. G. Thompson, the first week in March.

St. Thomas' W.A. Sponsors Attractive Valentine Tea

Hearts, flowers, and Dan Cupids combined to form the setting for a lovely Valentine's Tea sponsored by the St. Thomas' Woman's Auxiliary on Tuesday afternoon in the St. Thomas' Parish House.

Mouth-watering homecooking, delicious homemade candy, jars of tasty jams and jellies, and samples of beautiful Indian handcrafts from Pakistan were on display — but not for long as eager "customers" swarmed to the tables.

DELECTABLE PASTRIES

The homecooking table was convened by Mrs. B. Feather, assisted by Mrs. J. McKenna. Mrs. F. Clarke, and Mrs. J. Dickinson. This table featured cakes, pies, tarts, shortbreads, buns, cookies, and other delectable pastries.

The marmalade table, laden with jars of fruit, pineapple and apricot jams, orange, and grape jellies, was convened by Mrs. H. Hurst and Mrs. A. Athey, of the Evening Auxiliary.

The candy table, featuring different kinds of fudge and maple cream, was convened by Mrs. F. Alker and Mrs. C. Wallbridge, of the Girls' Auxiliary.

LOVELY LINENS

The display of linens from Pakistan was in charge of Miss M. Lodge, Mrs. E. Birstol, and Mrs. E. Vasil. These ladies took orders for beautifully handworked table cloths and napkins, runners, doilies, silk neck scarves, and velvet evening bags which are made by Indian women in Pakistan. They were marketed through a mission-ary society there.

The hall was attractively decorated in the Valentine theme, with red and white streamers hanging from the ceiling, and red card board Dan Cupids complete with bow and arrow arrayed along the walls.

The head tea-table was decorated with a centre-piece of red carnations and white tulips in a silver bowl and two, red, three-candle candlesbras.

The tea-table was convened by Mrs. S. E. Morden, and tea-room conveners were Mrs. D. Brunton and Mrs. C. Coleman.

POURING TEA

Tea was poured by Mrs. Hugh Murray, Mrs. Robert Pringle, Miss Amy Wallbridge, and Miss Ida Thompson.

Those who served or assisted were: Mrs. Weller, Mrs. Stone, Mrs. F. L. Patterson, Mrs. L. G. Irwin, Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson, Mrs. A. Watkin, Mrs. W. Kokesh, Mrs. R. Bogle, Mrs. A. Acerra, Mrs. F. Benson, Mrs. R. Coulombe, Mrs. F. T. Codling, Mrs. M. Smith, Mrs. F. R. Brownell, Mrs. H. Goddard, and Mrs. W. Taylor.

Treasurer was Mrs. J. Wims.

SIMPLE PROCESS

Broiling, probably the earliest known process of cooking meat, consists of exposing the surface to direct heat.

Political Record Of Canadian Women Is Poor

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian women have had the right to vote since 1921, but their record in political life has been undistinguished, says Hon. Ellen Fairclough, state secretary.

"Our contribution to political life in Canada cannot be compared with the part played by women in India, Israel and France," she told a group of university women Monday.

"In the French Parliament, for example, although women only got the franchise in 1944, there were 23 women members in 1956."

Mrs. Fairclough's 1957 appointment as secretary of state in the federal cabinet made her the first woman cabinet member.

However, she said the reason for women's apparent laxity in public affairs might be partly found in the country's geography. A woman taking up politics in Canada would have to leave off or neglect her home duties in order to be present in Parliament.

Many women—about 1,500 at present—were serving in municipal posts across the country, jobs they could fill without neglecting their home duties.

Belleville WMS Presbyterial Holds Meeting in Napanee

By CORA W. HOGLETON

In Trinity United Church in Napanee, on February 6th and 7th, the members of Belleville Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada held their 37th third annual meeting.

The regular meeting was preceded by a devotional service to receive and adopt reports and discuss matters of general business, after which the delegates were guests of Trinity Church women. The evening was informally spent in conference with the guest speaker, Miss Wilma Thomas, associate missions executive secretary of Dominion Board of the W.M.S. (Toronto).

The president, Mrs. Lincoln Elliott of Tweed presided at all sessions on the following day. She warmly welcomed some 200 delegates and representatives of various auxiliaries and missionary groups.

Worship: "What Doth the Lord Require of Us?" — was the first-searching theme for the day, and this was dealt with in various aspects during the devotional periods of the three sessions.

The Stewardship of Life." This was presented in the morning worship by members of Deseronto Auxiliary with Mrs. Van Black and Mrs. H. Barker conducting. The Bible reading was taken from 1 Corinthians, 3:3-14, emphasis on the lesson stressed Stewardship as an attitude toward all of life, that a choice is ours to make life a thing of worth, or useless.

Holloway Street Auxiliary, of Belleville, led in worship. Mrs. W. Coleman read the lesson and Mrs. F. Townsend gave the commentary. Christian stewardship is far older than the W.M.S. Women of the Bible have shown us a wonderful stewardship of love and service. Our Auxiliary work is "Love Sent." Love forever seeking, loving giving "It's know Jesus Christ is to love Him, and if we love, we serve.

Stewardship of Possessions. This was discussed by members of Grace Church Auxiliary, Napanee. Taking part were Miss Harriet Hannah, Mrs. Arnold Rogers and Mrs. D. Waddington, with Mrs. M. Dean dedicating the offering.

In speaking of man's relationship to his possessions, Miss Hannah stated that money is not one thing on which the door of service may swing. We are not owners but stewards of such gifts as we possess, even the gift of life, "It is required that a steward be found faithful."

Mrs. Harold Tatts added much to the worship period by her lovely solo. She was accompanied by Miss Beatrice Baughan who acted as organist for the day.

Mrs. W. Wilkins of Sirling introduced the guest speaker, Miss Thomas, who has recently returned from Japan in the Woman's Christian College, in Tokyo, Japan, and is well known among missionary circles.

FUNDRAISING
A SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Mrs. G. Priest of Foxboro called the roll, and the treasurer, Mrs. H. G. Coulter of Belleville, presented a completed report of a successful year. The objective was exceeded by $1,000. This amount was to be used for G. F. A. and to be equally divided between two projects, Scholarship Student Fund, and New Hospital Building at Burrard Lake, B.C.

Christian Stewardship Secretary Mrs. F. C. Adsett expressed thanks and gratitude for the splendid work done by the entire membership and presented the new allocation of $27,520 for 1938. This attainment will mean effort but our missionary work and financial objective is in the hearts and hands of consecrated women.

YEAR'S WORK REPORTS

Mimeographed reports of all departments showed many highlights and accomplishments.

Corresponding Secretary — Mrs. Charles Johnston of Trenton, reported 1937 membership of auxiliaries as 2,681, with 70 Afternoon and 12 Evening Auxiliaries. There are two new Evening Auxiliaries at Bath and Wellhead.

Holloway Street, Belleville, had the largest Auxiliary with a membership of 91 and honourable and varied were the worthwhile projects.

Mission Bands — Mrs. Burton Gates reported 53 Mission Bands who had participated in many interesting and worthwhile activities. There are three new Bands, Wesleyville, Merrickville and River Valley. Two disbanded.

Mission Band Awards were presented by Mrs. Maurice Clancy of Halloway in absence of Mrs. Morton, the Presbyterial secretary, as follows:

3rd Year Award — Eggleton, Sidney Crossroads, Belleville.

4th Year Award — Halloway, Tweed, Hamilton, Bridge St. & Stirling.

6th Year Award — Odessa, Bridge St., Belleville.

7th Year Award — Wallman, Napanee; Bridge St., Elmhrook (Builders of Hope.)

8th Year Award — Desmond, Tweed, County Valley.

9th Year Award Stirling Street Church, Belleville and Centenary.

Baby Bands — Mrs. W. Wilkins reported 22 Bands listed. New Baby Bands are organized at Bridge Street, Trenton, Tweed and Moscow. Financial givings are slightly increased, with the Tweed Band, where all mothers are members of the Auxiliary, contributing the largest amount of $38.12.

C.G.I.T. (Intermediate) — Mrs. Peters Thomas told of the successful Friendship Rally held in Picton, March 5th, at which the rally this year will be held in Wellington. Leaders, Mrs. Wilkins.

Explorers (Affiliated) — Mrs. W. D. Grant reported an increase in membership of 63 per cent. Auxiliaries sponsoring weekly World Friends magazine and Missionary Monthly for Explorers and their leaders. For tomorrow's leaders in Missionary endeavours, Explorers will make become interested in missions.

— Mrs. N. Neelands reported 4449 lbs. of clothing from 56 auxiliaries sent to Overseas relief with $364.15 sent for shipping expenses. Boxes of parcels were sent directly to missionaries. Vacation school packets, clothing and Christmas parcels were sent to Archer Memorial Hospital, Alberta; Norway House and three stations in Ontario. Splendid work was done by young people of Auxiliary women. Community Friendship—Mrs. E. Burnside reported 9833 calls made on sick and shut-ins in homes and hospitals. Trenton led with 715 calls reported. Visits to the Home for the Aged and sending of cards, flowers and gifts were also mentioned, as well as many kindly deeds by the aged, bereaved, ill folk and shut-ins.

Associate Members — Mrs. Dod Williams said the number of associate members was now 345 — doubled since last year. Unless every member of the church is a member of the W.M.S. there is need for a secretary for this department.

Candidates Secretary — Mrs. D. Baxter had presented this need at rallies and had sent literature to all ministers in the Presbytery.

Christian Citizenship — Mrs. N. McKibbon questioned whether, as Christians, we were giving enough of our time to the Master's work for social service and world peace. Local problems are often world-wide. Only 28 auxiliaries have a secretary for this important work.

Missionary Monthly and World Friends — Mrs. Percy Pierson urged more use of these splendid magazines and that they be placed in places where people have to spend time waiting.

Press — Mrs. Earl Eggleton reported 714 meetings and events of special interest and importance published through the kindly co-operation of city newspapers and expressed appreciation of this, and also to "Pierrot Stevens" of CJBQ for co-operation in announcing the coming events for missionary societies.

CONFERENCES

The women were divided into four groups, for special discussion on (a) Worship and Bible Study, led by Mrs. G. Carlisle, Stirling; (b) Making Programs Come Alive, led by Mrs. K. Gone, Ivanhoe; (c) Streamline Bray, Ivanhoe; (c) Streamlining the Business Session, Mrs. J. Williams, Belleville and (d) Candidates from Your Congregation, Mrs. J. Renshaw, Selby.

Each leader was assisted by four group discussion secretaries and findings from the discussions were later presented to the entire assembly and proved of great value.

AWARDS NAMED

Mrs. Percy MacMullen of Sidney, gave her usual fine review of the literature of books for study for all age of the Missionary Family. The Book Room was a busy spot. The new study Auxiliary to be awarded for each Auxiliary to own and read the books, "Personal Responsibility" and "Facts and Figures," (the annual report.) Dramatization was made of a fine flannelgraph book and model picture book on Japan and other countries that could be made up by the children; a sample was shown, made by the Allen School children. A special Easter service pamphlet, "A Christian World Facts, as well as many other splendid books were presented. There will be reading awards in this Presbyterial, though no more are to be supplied by Dominion Board.

"Something to Remember" was given by Mrs. N. Frank, secretary, as to have been most popular for books to be read. Mrs. Frank's books were sold on Friday.

Mrs. Lincoln Elliott was followed by Mrs. Bloomfield Afternoon Auxiliary, with an address on "What Does the Lord Require of Us?" Mrs. Frank, secretary, received the Dominion Board Study Book. Others in order of merit were as follows: Bethel (Hawdon) 13, Wallbridge, 13, St. Andrew's, Tweed, 13, Mt. Pleasant (Rawdon) 12, Wallbridge, 12, Elmhrook (Builders of Hope) 12, Eldorado (Union) 12, Cherry Valley 67, Picton Bay, Tweed 67, Foxboro 67, St. John, Tweed 13.

IN MEMORIAM SERVICE

The morning session was closed with a brief service in memory of the 47 beloved members of Belleville Presbyterial called to Higher Service during the year. Among them, a former member of Presbyterial and honorary executives, Mrs. H. Denton of Trenton.

Members of Mississauga Auxiliary conducted the service, Mrs. Albert Wallbridge, Mrs. Gordon Boyle, Mrs. William Jones and Mrs. Roy Vallieau. Scripture verses were read from memory, and as each name was given, there was placed at the altar, with a beautiful basket of spring flowers, in loving memory of departed members, as all heads bowed in prayer.

During the dinner hour Mrs. W. Church, president of Trinity Auxiliary, welcomed the visitors to Napanee and invited them to the dining hall to enjoy a delicious meal and hospitality, while friend met friend. Mrs. H. C. Emsey also extended greetings in absence of the rathering at Trinity.

The Rev. C. D. McLellan of Napanee Church, Napanee, and the Rev. G. F. Coulter brought greetings, and a letter was read from Mrs. J. Marsh, president of Bellville Presbytery W. A. expressing friend meet and regret at being unable to be present and sending best wishes for a successful meeting.

AFTERNOON SESSION

Guest Speakers: The Rev. H. A. Bastone and Miss Wilma Thomas, B.A.

Following the worship service, Mrs. C. Holmes addressed the women on the subject, "What Does the Lord Require of Us In the Future?"

Considering this question in a personal sense, what Christian qualities have we gained, yours and mine? Are they for shelter, food and joy, or are they for service where the family is nurtured in a spiritual environment? What religion do we impart to our children? Are family devotions going to be the thing of the past? Is Sunday no longer the Sabbath Day? Do we teach our children the principles of truth, justice, kindness? Remember these principles may be taught as well as taught.

Unless religion of the church is enhanced and lived in the home, both are apt to fail.

Mrs. Holmes then introduced the Rev. H. A. Bastone of Newburg. Mr. Bastone remarked that many take a look at the church, but stay outside for 600,000 people claim to be adherents of our church, but of them the church has no record. Perhaps a measure of mistrust is to blame, perhaps them within the church should have a more dynamic spirit and deeper spiritual awareness, that the light may shinestar out beyond the congregation.

A city set on a hill cannot be hidden. One trait of the church should just the spiritual maintenance of those within its folds, but those beyond its walls. In order that those outside the church may know that we are interested in them, we must go out of our way to convince them.

Today, we have as much propaganda: there is a great power in the spoken word and visual appeal; whereas, fifty years ago a man went home to talk over decisions, now he is in a position where our power to think for ourselves is becoming less and less. Everything is canned for us today. In this changing community and world, we must demonstrate to others that we have something they have not, but sorely need.

As W.M.S. women, you think of others. It is the way of life the Master trod. Should not the servant tread it still?

The address of Miss Wilma Thomas, recently returned from missionary service as teacher in the Tokyo Women's Christian College, was a highlight of the afternoon program.

In her address Miss Thomas said there is a world Christian community of every race of which "we, in Canada, are only a small part."

"We can humbly learn much from Christian Churches of other lands," she said.

She explained what is required of women's missionary societies in regard to the world mission of the Church:

"To do justice, to love kindness, and to walk humbly with thy God."

Miss Thomas questioned whether it was God's justice that in some parts of the world people are always hungry while in others, like Canada, there is overflowing abundance.

Surely it is His purpose that all should have their daily bread," she asked.

H-BOMB TESTS

The speaker told of the shattering loss to the Japanese fish industry and to the health of their people who depend on fish for protein in their diet, when 300,000 pounds of tuna fish, caught in waters outside the specified danger zone had to be destroyed because of contamination resulting from a hydrogen bomb test.

She also questioned the justice of our immigration laws forbidding the entry of Japanese unless they have close relatives living in Canada.

"Japan and our western world, 'having' seems to be more important than 'being,'" she said.

In her evening address Miss Thomas introduced her audience to the travellers she encounter-ed on the outgoing ship in Japan-ese—the crowds of Japanese students going to school, many of them walking to study; the toil-weary farm women, with their huge loads of produce on their backs; and the crippled war veterans hobbling through the train heating.

"The Church is greatly concerned over the problems of these people," she said.

"The only comfort to us there is the realization of the Church in Japan and what a glorious privilege to be a part of it," she concluded.

OFFICERS INSTALLED

C. D. McLellan of Napanee took charge of the election and installation of officers during the hour. Burt Stinson of Tamworth to present the slate of officers.

After an impressive service of installation, Mrs. McLellan welcomed Mrs. Clarence Holmes as the newly-elected president, and Mrs. T. F. Townsend, president of Holloway Street Auxiliary, presented her with a beautiful corsage, with best wishes of her Auxiliary members.

At this time a letter arrived from the board of stewards of Holloway Street Church, written by Mr. Frank Wilson, conveying to Mrs. Holmes their congratulations and best wishes for her in her new and honored office as president of the Belleville Presbyterial.

Supper Hour — Cafeteria style, was a most change and immediately following, a film was shown and the women heard an interview with Miss Watari of Japan, made when she visited Canada on a morning train in Toyko.

Mrs. Fred Milburn presented the report of the courtesy committee, thanking the official board of Trinity Church for the use of their church, the ladies of Trinity for their bountiful hospitality, in supplying billets, car transportation, and serving their meals, also special thanks to the organist, Miss Baughan, and soloist, Mrs. H. Tatts, for their contribution to the day's program, to the speakers, Miss Thomas and Rev. Bastone; also to Mrs. Elliott and all members of the executive, to those who registered the delegates, and all others who had in any way helped to make the sessions stimulating and enjoyable.

PRESENTATIONS

On behalf of the members of Belleville Presbyterial executive, Mrs. Fred Wilson presented Mrs. Lincoln Elliott with the gift of a book, "Christ and the Fine Arts," by Cynthia Pearl Maus. "The service you give to others," said Mrs. Wilson, "is your real award. What we do for others enriches us, and so for of the world, when we've summed it all up, is found in the friendship of God and man."

Mrs. Elliott expressed her appreciation to her members of the executive and all those who had co-operated so faithfully with her during her four years as president. She closed her remarks with a poem, "I," which she had composed her first assumed meeting.

HE'S NOT BLIND

A smile of joy breaks out across the face of 11-year-old Kevin Karner of Toronto as doctors fell him that he will not be blind. He was injured in a hockey game and for a time doctors feared he would lose his sight. When heavy bandages were removed temporarily and Kevin saw again, his first question was "When can I play again?" Sister Barbara, 14, shares his happiness. (CP Photo)

Que. Legislative Assembly Plows Through Rough Waters

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Quebec legislative assembly ploughed through stormy waters Tuesday while other provincial houses drifted in comparative calm.

But a possible storm was brewing in Nova Scotia's legislature, scheduled to open today. Premier Stanfield has said the province is considering new taxation or a premium on the head of every household to finance Nova Scotia's share of the federal-provincial hospital insurance plan.

The waters were barely rippled in Manitoba, where the throne speech, setting forth plans of government, was read. In Newfoundland the wind had died down and the legislature gave first reading to a bill which may lead to establishment of a new paper mill.

READS STATEMENT

Opening the Quebec budget speech debate, Mr. Lapalme read a 40 - page prepared statement which said revenue and expenditures estimates made by Premier Duplessis' Union Nationale government are far from the actual revenue and expenditures.

Since 1945, Mr. Lapalme said, the government has spent $340,142,333 above approved budgets and since 1950 it has been using money that belonged to the following fiscal year.

Receiving first reading in the Newfoundland legislature was a bill to authorize an agreement between the government and Crown Zellerbach Corporation of San Francisco which would give the company two years to make a survey of available Crown lands before starting work on a newsprint mill to produce 400 tons a day.

Police Hold 3 For Questioning About Holdups

TORONTO (CP)—Police have arrested one man in Toronto and a man and woman in Sudbury for questioning in connection with a series of Toronto holdups and a bank robbery this week in Hamilton.

Inspector John Nimmo, head of Toronto's special holdup squad, said "they will be questioned in connection with the several holdups here and in Hamilton."

He said the two in Sudbury were identified as man and wife and will be brought here today for questioning.

DESERONTO

Christ Church Sponsors Euchre Party

DESERONTO — On Friday evening Christ Church held its euchre at the new school, with 14 tables at play.

The winners were: ladies — Mrs. Art Hill, Mrs. L. Moody; ladies consolation — Edith Brant.

Men's — Ken Brant, J. F. Marsacle; consolation — Melville Marsacle; lone hand — Mrs. Mansfield; door prize — J. R. Brant.

The lucky cup prize was won by Mrs. John A. Brant; quilt by Mrs. Jim Sherman; shopping bag by Mr. Joe Hill. The eggs were won by Mrs Ida Brant, and Mr. Watt.

Refreshments were served by the members.

Escape Artist Lands in Jail

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Arthur Larivierc, circus escape artist, is locked up in the jail from which he freed himself twice in hometown publicity stunts. But this time it isn't for real.

Larivierc, 30, known professionally as The Great Adano, is awaiting sentence on his plea of guilty to a charge of stealing $1,-217 from a Sault business firm.

Larivierc, a father of two, won the notice of circus talent scouts several years ago when in publicity stunts he twice escaped from a cell in the Sault Ste. Marie jail. He later performed in an act featuring escapes from strait jackets and chains.

Rylstone

RYLSTONE—Mrs. Carl Linn, district secretary - treasurer, was hostess to the Rylstone Women's Institute on Thursday afternoon with the president, Mrs. Stanley Kerr, presiding. There were 18 members, five visitors and five children in attendance.

It was decided not to contribute to the Mental Health Association this year. Only one bill was presented, for the Sunshine committee. This was ordered paid. There was some discussion on a resolution started at a previous meeting. This resolution re the placing of name signs at the hamlets of Petherick Corners, Rylstone and Stanwood, was prepared and signed, to be sent to the Seymour council.

Mrs. Roy Fry thanked the Institute for a gift, sent to her son, who had been ill.

Mrs. Jim Gray was convener for the balance of the meeting, which was as follows: piano solo, "Shanty In Old Shanty Town," and "Senilia" Thru," by Mrs. Ellis Jones; reading, "Let Not Thy Kindness Wait," by Miss Violet Wright; contest, "Food Quiz," by Mrs. Don Kerr; Talk on the origin and customs of St. Valentine's Day by the Rev. G. Whitehouse.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and the lunch committee, Mrs. Jim Gray, Mrs. Carl Reid, Mrs. Stanley Kerr and Mrs. Bogart Linn.

The next meeting is to be at the home of Mrs. C. Meiklejohn on March 5. The convener for agriculture and Canadian industries, Mrs. Gordon Meiklejohn, will be in charge. There will also be greetings from the provincial convener for Home Economics and health, Mrs. Ernest Irwin, and a talk by Mr. Ralph Bunbury, agricultural representative.

Mrs. Ernest Irwin attended the lamp-shade round-up in Stirling on Wednesday.

A stork shower in honor of Mrs. Jack Spencer was held at the home of Mrs. Clarence Thomson on Tuesday evening. Owing to illness, there was a smaller attendance than expected. The evening was spent in games and contests. Refreshments were served by the hostess. Mrs. Spencer was the recipient of many lovely gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Anderson and Susan Beth and Mr. and Mrs. G. Sutherland and family motored to Billings Bridge, Ottawa, on Sunday, where they visited the ladies' brother, Ross Thomson, his wife and family.

Master Michael Trumble has returned home from a visit with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce King, of Colborne.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Thomson and children were supper guests on Friday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Davis, at Glen Miller. Patsy Spencer accompanied them and remained for the weekend.

Mrs. Gerald Fitchett, Campbellford, spent a few days last week with her sister, Mrs. Ralph Heath and family.

Don Stewart has been under the doctor's care. He has blood poisoning in his right hand.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Heath entertained the following to dinner on Friday night, on the occasion of the birthday of her mother, Mrs. Stella Gibson, of Campbellford: Mrs. Gibson, as guest of honor, Miss Blanche Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Fitchett and Ross, all of Campbellford; Mr. and Mrs. Walt Reid and George and Mr. and Mrs. J. Mumby, Tommie, Beth and Barbara.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Spencer and family were Saturday visitors with his sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Husband, of Napanee.

Mr. and Mrs. Murney Fleming, of Oshawa, were on Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Thomson and family, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Holland and Stewart, of Havelock, were Sunday afternoon callers with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart.

Mrs. Cora Reid, Rylstone, her daughter, Cora, of Belleville, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Fitchett and Miss Blanche Gibson of Campbellford, were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Reid and George.

Mrs. Roy Petherick, Danny and Penny, have returned home after spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morgan White, at Coe Hill.

Tweed

TWEED — Mrs. W. H. Porch, of Colborne Street, who was to be the figure-skating instructor here in Tweed, was forced to cancel her engagement when she suffered a torn ligament in her thigh. A replacement has not yet been engaged.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Baker have returned to Tweed after spending several weeks with their son, Albert, Jr., and his wife in Washington, D.C. The Bakers' two other sons also reside in Washington.

Pearl Jamieson, of Jamieson Street, was taken to Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday, after she suffered a stroke at her home. She was discovered by her daughter, Mrs. Bob Wood, when she went to make her regular call to her mother's home. She is now resting a little more comfortably.

Mr. Paul King is again recuperating after treatments in the Belleville General Hospital where he was admitted a week ago. He expects to be home in Tweed soon.

Mrs. Samuel G. Way, of Metcalfe Street, was taken to Belleville General Hospital on Thursday with a cracked pelvis bone, followed a bad fall on an icy street at the corner of Spring and Metcalfe Streets.

Miss Carole Quinn, nurse-in-training at the St. Joseph's Hospital in Peterborough, visited at home recently. She returned Peterborough on Saturday.

Mr. Harold Akey has returned from the Belleville General Hospital where he was a patient recently.

Mr. Austin Mayers, who has been a patient in a Toronto hospital, has returned to his home at Sulphide.

Mr. Victor Chambers is improved in health after suffering head injuries in a motor accident near Galt, Ont. He is still convalescing at the home of his brother, Mrs. Lois Chambers, Catherine Street. Mr. Chambers was injured about a month ago and was hospitalized before his return to his home town of Tweed.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy O'Coin this past week was Miss Jeanette Brennan, a nurse's aide at the Sick Children's Hospital, in Toronto. Miss Brennan is a daughter of Mrs. O'Coin of Moira Street.

Judges were presented to Orville Kelly and Mrs. Howard Countryman, representatives of Chapman Women's Institute branch, at a meeting in Stirling Wednesday when the leaders had their assistants present a display of lamp shades in the community hall. The presentation was made by Miss Armour, home economist from

GUIDED MISSILE THAT CANNOT BE JAMMED BY RADAR

Here's the new Mace guided missile that cannot be jammed by radar which was directed successfully from Holloman air force base at Alamagordo to a selected target area 650 miles away at Wendover air force base in Utah. Two F-100 Super-Sabre jet fighters escorted the missile as observers during the flight.

Deseronto

DESERONTO — Mrs. Blake Moore and daughter spent the weekend with her father, W. A. Forbes of Trenton, and her brother, Harry at Frankford over the weekend.

Miss Sharon Burley, Lynn Bender, Marie Dorey and June Gordanier enjoyed supper and a theatre party in honor of the birthday of Miss Mary Cole on Wednesday of last week.

Sunday guests of James Sager and his sister, Mrs. Bertha Morton, H. Elliott and Claire Carter.

Visiting for the weekend with their mother, Mrs. Jennie Kenny and Wallie, were her two daughters, Miss Marion Kenny and Mrs. Jennie Genereaux, of Toronto. They returned to the city on Sunday.

Mark Pringle is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

Wallace Kenny is employed at the home of Robert Palmateer, while Mr. Palmateer and wife and family are ill with the flu.

McDonald, were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sager, of Belleville, and Mrs. Louise Buchanan, of Napanee.

Mrs. R. M Anderson, of Toronto, was a recent guest of her mother, Mrs. J. E. Cole, Main Street.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Burley, Messrs. William and Gordon Root, and Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Taylor attended the funeral of Mr. J. F. Pearson in Boston, recently.

Mrs. M. Luffman is confined to her home through illness.

Mrs. Edward Howard, of Napanee, was a weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cole.

Mr. Jack Potter is a patient at the Belleville General Hospital.

On Saturday night the pupils of Grade II and 12 of the High School enjoyed a sleigh ride party. Mr. E. Hallewick, one of the teachers, was in charge of the group which met at the school in the early part of the evening. They journeyed over the snow covered bank roads of the district and returned to the Lion's Hall about 10.00 p.m. where refreshments were served and dancing enjoyed until almost midnight. An unfortunate accident marred the evening for the children when one of the horses owned and driven by Mr. Peter Whalen slipped and fell on the icy road. The accident occurred as the party was returning along Maple avenue, so the students proceeded on foot to the hall. The horse however was so severely injured that it died shortly after the fall.

Make a Date... TO GIVE BLOOD

Effective March 1st, 1958, the Belleville District Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society and the Belleville General Hospital are co-operating in the operation of the Blood Bank at the hospital.

TO ESTABLISH THIS BLOOD BANK

1500 Blood Donors Are Needed!

Clinics will be held at the hospital

EVERY TUESDAY EVG.

6.30 P.M. to 9.30 P.M.

Commencing Tuesday, March 4th.

To insure the time required for a donation (about half an hour) appointments will be made. It is expected that donors will be called twice a year. The hospital will provide the premises, technical staff and all grouping, typing, storage of blood, etc., for which a charge of $57.5 per bottle will be made to any person securing blood. This is covered by Blue Cross. The Red Cross' responsibility is to recruit donors, maintain records pertaining to their donations, provide volunteers for clerical duties, issue donors with cards showing their blood type and to provide refreshments.

In the past the hospital has attempted to replace blood used for transfusions on a two for one basis but now this will not be necessary. No longer will patients or relatives be troubled with the necessity at the time of illness of having to worry about the replacement of blood.

"COKE" or ORANGE JUICE will be offered to the donor while he or she is waiting to enter the donor room and COFFEE AND COOKIES will be supplied while resting in the recovery room after the donation.

RCAF Steadfastly Refuses To Say Why, When or Where Navigator Computer Used

OTTAWA (CP) — One of the strangest cases on record here concerning so-called classified — or secret — information involves the RCAF's new automatic navigation computer.

The RCAF has disclosed exactly how the instrument works and has permitted publication of photographs of it. But it steadfastly refuses to say why, when or where it is used.

The air force, in fact, has refused to say whether the equipment is still in the testing stage or on order from a manufacturer, although the defence production department, purchasing agent for the armed forces, announced in October, 1956, that Canadian Applied Research Limited of Toronto had been awarded a $3,141,984 contract for production of the equipment.

Canadian Applied Research has said in a press release that the computer can provide to an air crew automatically the distance and bearing to the plane's target, even if the target is an enemy bomber in flight.

This would be of tremendous advantage to Canada's air defence system because it would take a heavy load off the ground radar system which now must guide RCAF interceptors within several miles of the target aircraft before the interceptor's radar can take over.

Consequently, many more interceptions could be carried out at the same time than if interception had to rely solely on ground control radar.

The RCAF has also declined to say whether the equipment now is in Sabre squadron service.

But Canadian Applied Research has said in another press release that the four RCAF CF-100 squadrons in Europe have been equipped with the computer.

The company has also said the Swedish Air Force has shown interest in the device and that Canadian, British and United States armies are considering using it in tanks.

Setting out from this cabin on Nine Mile Lake in the Muskoka area of Ontario, a party of four Toronto boys and their leader became lost and two of the boys froze to death. The remaining three were sighted from a searching airplane and were picked up dazed and incoherent. They had been lost for two days.

Thirteen-year-old Douglas McCoy is held by his father after being found with two others in dense woods in the Muskoka area of Ontario where they spent two nights in 10-below-zero temperatures. Two others who became lost on the trip were found dead. (CP Photo).

Radio Log of Last Flight Handed to Board of Inquiry

MONTREAL (CP) — The radio log of the last flight of CP-MCF has been handed to the board of inquiry looking into the crash which took 79 lives last Aug. 10 in Canada's worst air accident.

Bulky files detailed radio communications by and from the Maritime Central Airways DC-4 from the time it left London, England, to the time it left its last report at Quebec City at 2:11 p.m. EDT the following day.

Company counsel indicated Tuesday that some "very important" questions would arise from the messages and bore down on methods of communications used on the leg from Keflavik, Iceland, into Canada. Harold Ritchie, cross-examination of transport department witnesses was the opposite of all messages which have been rounded up and of their accuracy.

The files included the regular position reports from the MCA aircraft. They contained such data as fuel remaining, winds, speed and temperature.

The files were given to the three-man board as a means of checking any variations such as fuel consumption or head winds encountered en route.

HAD MAXIMUM

The transport department also submitted documents to show that the actual load is maximum fuel load — 1,150 imperial gallons — before leaving London en route to Toronto.

Its weight and balance manifest and passenger list were placed in the record with the flight plans.

Radio operator Ralph Roy of Quebec City told of the last communication with the plane at 2:11 p.m. when he exchanged sign-off greetings with the crew.

He said the plane came in on the radio at 2:02. It had been cleared for position at 2:07, replied with a terse "stand by" and then gave its position at 2:09 p.m.

Under cross - examination, he said he had heard nothing more although he had remained in the radio room until 2:25 p.m.

The plane plunged into a bog at Lac Isoudun, about 10 miles southwest of Quebec City, taking to their deaths 73 passengers and six crew members.

WANT U.S. FILM

MOSCOW (AP) — Italian Embassy sources Tuesday said the Soviet government is about to buy the film War and Peace, starring Henry Fonda and Audrey Hepburn, for showing in the U.S.S.R. The film was shot on locations in Italy. It is based on the novel by Count Leo Tolstoi dealing with the disastrous 1812 campaign of Napoleon in Russia.

BUILD AUTO PLANT

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — Work began here Tuesday on a new Ford Motor Company plant which will produce 20 all-Australian cars daily and employ 2,750 persons.

Hees Criticizes Martin, Gordon On Job Figures

TORONTO (CP) — Federal Transport Minister Hees has criticized two prominent Canadians for "misrepresentation" of Canada's unemployment problem.

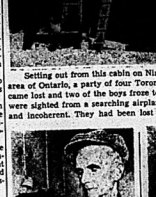
Addressing the Toronto Spadina federal nominating convention of the Progressive Conservative party, Mr. Hees, member for Toronto Northview, singled out speeches by Paul Martin in Antigonish, N.S., and Walter L. Gordon in Toronto Friday night.

He said Tuesday night they "misrepresentations of the facts being made by people who know better."

The main text of his speech was given to the press before delivery.

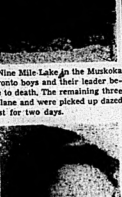
Mr. Martin had been quoted as saying there are "close to 900,000 unemployed in Canada at the moment."

Mr. Hees said "the latest official figures showing persons unemployed and seeking employment are those published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the total is three - quarters of a million."



Again quoting DBS figures, Mr. Hees found fault with Mr. Gordon, who headed the royal commission on Canada's economic prospects. He said Mr. Gordon "has been quoted as saying: 'This winter, unemployment may reach a peak of 10 or 12 per cent of the labor force.'"

Mr. Hees said the latest official figures show only 6.5 per cent of the civilian labor force unemployed.



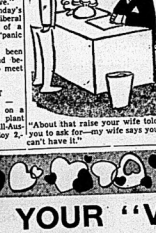
"I would like to ask Mr. Martin tonight to tell the Canadian people what action, if any, he took as a responsible minister of the Crown as late as eight or 10 months ago when the very policies which helped create the present situation were operative."

Mr. Hees referred to Monday's campaign promise by Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson of a 25-per-cent tax slash as a "panic program."

The Liberal party "had been too long in power and had become wholly incompetent to meet the problems of the day."

One of the many persons searching the Muskoka bush for the missing boys, Ellen Eckford, holds a glove found in the lake and belonging to one of the party. They had kept moving, day and night, to remain alive in the severe cold.

James Duffy, 14, wandered away from the rest of the group and his body was not found by the airplane that found the three who survived. The boys rented their leader, Andrew Morton, 29, all belong to St. Stephen's United Church, Toronto.



Park and Forest Projects Provide Jobs for 600

TORONTO (CP) — About 600 men have been employed in Ontario in a federal - provincial scheme to relieve unemployment, an official of the Ontario lands and forests department said Tuesday.

About 400 are employed in park improvement and about 200 are engaged in timber management projects such as building fire protection access roads. The official said about 150 more men will be employed on the roads projects.

Areas hardest hit by unemployment have been picked for the assistance.

Typical is the village of Gogama, 90 miles northeast of Sudbury. About half the wage earners in the village were unemployed at the end of January, the official said. Since then "30 or 40" have been hired for road projects.

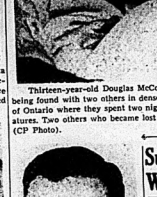
Labor Board Turns Down Bid of United Steelworkers To Bargain at Murdochville

MONTREAL (CP)—The United Steelworkers of America (CLC) has failed in its bid for the right to bargain for copper mine workers at Murdochville, site of one of Quebec's most violent labor scraps last year.

The Quebec Labor Relations Board, in a ruling announced Tuesday, rejected the USWA's application on grounds that the union showed bad faith by calling an illegal strike at Gaspe Copper Mines Limited during initial certification procedures.

The ruling on the application which dates back to June, 1956, brought quick comment from union leaders.

Pat Burke, the USWA's Quebec regional supervisor, said here that the QLRB is a "tool of the Quebec government" instead of an impartial body.



The rejection without a secret vote by the mine's workers is that the right of union recognition by law in the province of Quebec has been replaced by union recognition only by company consent and government approval," he said.

Mr. Burke called for a review of the QLRB administration and "the first requirement is that the board's jurisdiction be removed from the position in which it finds itself a tool of the government."

President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress who led a mass march on Murdochville last August, said in Ottawa that he was "astonished at such a decision—it is using the law to circumvent the law."

The company had obtained a writ of prohibition tying the QLRB's hands when that was prohibited by Quebec law.

"We shall be in consultation with the union concerned, the ex-

Robert Peterson, 13, was said through the ice and died of exposure. He was unable to move to keep up with the others.

Suggests Tying Wage Increases To Production

TORONTO (CP) — A leading Ontario industrial disputes arbitrator has suggested labor and management get together to decide ways to tie wage increases to increased production.

Eric C. Taylor Tuesday told the Toronto Personnel Association "it may be that it is worthwhile to consider a scheme which would permit a series of wage increases and improvements based on periodic audits of operating results."

He said the present situation calls for an approach "designed to improve purchasing power, to assure that wage increases will flow from increased production, that prices will be stabilized or reduced and the development of new and better products will be stimulated."

Four Cousins Found Drowned

DUBLIN, Va. (AP) — The search for four young cousins, missing since Monday, ended Tuesday with the discovery of their bodies in the icy waters of a creek not here.

They were Tommy Rigdon, 10, and Danny Rigdon, 11, brothers of East Liverpool, Ohio, and Edward Lee Booth, 15, and his brother, John Clinton Booth, 10, of Newberry, Va.

Authorities said the boys apparently had been sliding on ice covering the creek when it broke, dumping them into 10 feet of water.

Diefenbaker to Make Liberal Promise of Major Tax Cut Election Campaign Target

HORNEPAYNE, Ont. (CP)— Prime Minister Diefenbaker says the Liberal party's election promise of a $400,000,000 tax cut will be a major target of his election campaign.

The Progressive Conservative leader, in a press conference Tuesday aboard his campaign train, referred to that and other proposals, set out Monday by Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson, as "the revised Liberal platform."

He indicated he would deal with it at length when he kicks off his campaign at Winnipeg tonight.

Asked for his immediate reaction to Mr. Pearson's proposals, he commented that the voters will show their own reaction.

Mr. Diefenbaker added that he had just been reading the speeches last year of some Liberals, including Mr. Pearson, on his own campaign promise then of tax cuts.

They said it couldn't be done," he said with a smile.

WORKS ON SPEECHES

The Conservative leader, who switched to the train at the last minute from his earlier plan to fly to Winnipeg, spent most of the day working on speeches in his private railway car. After Winnipeg, he will speak Thursday night in Saskatoon and Friday night at his Prince Albert, Sask., hometown at his nomination meeting.

He told reporters he woke up "a little late" Tuesday morning—it was 7:30 a.m. But he was out soon after on the station platforms at Foleyet, Gogama and Capreol, few railway workers and fellow passengers were about.

The 62-year-old leader said his health is "wonderful."

"I couldn't feel any better," he said. He was having "no trouble" with his back. A torn ligament caused him to take a week's rest in bed a month ago.

Mr. Diefenbaker said his feelings on starting this campaign are "much more exhilarating than when we started out last April."

BIGGER MAJORITY

The election last June 10 boosted the Conservatives from a 49 - member Opposition in the Commons to a 113-member majority government. The goal now was "a working majority to carry out our long-term plans."

He also said that if his government is re-elected he hopes to call the new Parliament into session May 6.

Mr. Diefenbaker said one of the first things he will do if the new session will be to provide an opportunity for "full consideration with Prime Minister Nehru

Liberal Entry Likely to Give Labor Victory

LONDON (CP)—The Conservative party today defended a parliamentary seat in a byelection in which some observers doubted the ability of the government candidate to finish as high as second.

Although television commentator Ludovic Kennedy remained an outsider in the three-cornered race in Rochdale, his interview with Labor party leader was seen as dealing a body blow to Conservative chances of retaining a seat they won by only 1,590 votes in a straight fight with Labor three years ago.

In that general election, Conservative Lt.-Col. W. Schofield polled 26,518 votes to 24,928 for Labor candidate Jack McCann. Today's byelection was called because of Schofield's death last December.

Most prophets predicted a comfortable victory for McCann this time, with Kennedy pressing John Parkinson, the Conservative standard-bearer for second place.

The Lancashire constituency was treated to a lively campaign as all three contestants pushed their candidacy with tactics both old and new.

The voters watched all on television, greeted them on their doorsteps, heckled them at public meetings and listened with some amusement as rival sound trucks competed for their attention in the town square.

Impartial eyewitness reports indicated personal victories for all candidates in the rough-and-tumble campaign. McCann and Parkinson capitalizing on their local background (the Conservative candidate is said to be a gifted raconteur of the Lancashire classic, Albert and the Lion) and Kennedy on his experience in appearing before the television eye of his wife, former ballerina Moira Shearer.

Southern Rhodesia Becomes Focal Point in South Africa

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Southern Rhodesia, a land of beauty and sunshine, has become a focal point in Africa's many growing pains.

Prime Minister Garfield Todd, a 49-year-old former missionary, has been dismissed, an action with clear meaning. The powerful white minority feared his liberal policy toward the native population.

This has special significance when it is remembered that Southern Rhodesia borders on South Africa, whose apartheid policy — separating whites and Africans — is one of the world's truest controversial experiments.

It is being freely predicted the independence of the federation of Southern Rhodesia, Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland, hitherto expected in 1960, may be delayed.

In fact, one influential African spokesman in Nyasaland, which never has been enthusiastic about union with its neighbors, has demanded that the federation be "unscrambled."

He fears South Africa's racial policies are inevitably being extended to Central Africa.

It remains to be seen what will be done by the next prime minister, who apparently will be Sir Edgar Whitehead, minister to Washington since 1953.

He promises moderation. Todd was deposed by 300 delegates of his own United Federal party, meeting in a Presbyterian Church, after he authorized a 30-per-cent wage increase for African. There also was a clash over school funds.

COTE RESTRICTED

Sir Roy Welensky, prime minister of the federation and also a member of the United Federal party, was present but made no move to save Todd.

The federation is a landlocked area of romance and paradox, with Southern Rhodesia the only self-governing part, the others being protectorates of Britain. Comparatively few Southern Rhodesian natives have the vote, which is based on salary and property.

In an area of 488,000 square miles, smaller than Quebec and bigger than Ontario, the federation has a population of approximately 7,000,000, with only about 300,000 Europeans, the others being Africans, coloreds (half castes) and Asians.

NYASALAND UNEASY

Animal life ranges from monkeys to elephants. Men who produce chrome still believe in black magic. Resources are rich, with tobacco, gold, asbestos, cobalt and uranium as well as chrome.

In Rhodesia is the grave of Cecil Rhodes, the great Empire builder.

In Southern Rhodesia, the most advanced part, one-half the land is owned by whites, who comprise only eight per cent of the population. Half of that eight per cent came from South Africa as immigrants, both British and Afrikaners (Dutch).

Small as is Southern Rhodesia's white population, it is much larger than that in Nyasaland, which distrusts federation because it fears further domination by the Europeans. Fighting in the dense-populated area broke out on this issue in 1953, but fell far short of the Mau Mau rebellion in Kenya.

Philpott Hits Trade Policies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Elmore Philpott, former Liberal member for South has accused Prime Minister Diefenbaker of "bungling Canadian trade."

"If the Conservatives have the right to cut United States imports by 15 per cent, Uncle Sam has the same right," he told a Point Grey Young Liberals meeting Tuesday night.

Mr. Philpott, a columnist for The Sun, said "the loss is only a drop in the bucket for the U.S., but it could spell deeper depression and perhaps economic ruin for Canada."

Sun Life Reports Record $917 Million New Business

Continues to sell more life insurance than any other Canadian company; $7½ billion insurance now in force; $34 million in policyholders dividends.

With $917 million of new business during 1957, the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada once again sold more life insurance than any Canadian company has ever sold in one year. Policyholders' dividends during 1958 will amount to $34 million, up $2½ million from last year.

George W. Bourke, President in presenting Sun Life's 87th Annual Report stated that family security is of paramount importance, and the ability of life insurance companies to ensure that this security is maintained depends in large part on activity of company's representatives and the development and expansion of well-trained and efficient agency organizations. The Sun Life is meeting this challenge successfully and the $917,737,000 of new life insurance just sold is an increase of 63 million or 7% over 1956, the previous record year. Group insurance contributed materially to the '57 new business figure, amounting to $243,185,000, or 26% of the total.

To'al insurance in force increased during the year by $719,116,000, a record increase for any year, and amounted to $7,749,409,000 at the end of 1957, or more than twice the amount in force ten years ago. Included is $2,-871,181,000 of group insurance representing an increase of 13% Annuity payments to be made by the company either immediately or in the fu ure under individual contracts and group pension plans increased during the year to $181 million per annum, equivalent to $2,400,907,000 of life insurance and bringing total life insurance and annuities in force to the equivalent of over $10 billion of life insurance. The number of Sun Life policies and group certificates now in force is $2-,350,000.

BENEFIT PAYMENTS

During 1957 the Sun Life paid out to policyholders and beneficiaries in benefits under its insurance policies and annuity contracts a total of $155,111,000. This amount is $17 million more than the benefits paid out in 1956. Of the 1957 total, $40 million was paid to the beneficiaries of deceased policyholders, representing a substantial contribution to family welfare.

Payments to living policyholders and annuitants amounted to $106 million. The total paid to policyholders and beneficiaries since the first Sun Life policy was issued in 1871 now amounts to $3,395,955,000.

$67 MILLION NEW MORTGAGE LOANS

Total assets of the company at the end of the last year amounted to $2,115,915,000, an increase of $107 million over 1956. Under investment conditions prevailing during 1957 Mr. Bourke stated, it has been possible to make investments at improved interest rates over those of recent years. The gross interest rate earned on the Company's assets increased in 1957 to 4.46% from 4.32% in 1956.

Sun Life mortgage loans now amount to $493,273,000. A total of $67 million was advanced in new loans during the year of which $50 million was advanced on residential properties and $17 million on industrial or commercial properties. Since 1933 the Company has advanced $945 million in Canada under the terms of the government's Housing Acts, contributing greatly to the provision of homes for persons of modest means. Sun Life is proud of the fact, Mr. Bourke said, that it was the first company to support this important means of providing for a needed housing.

THE ROLE OF LIFE INSURANCE

Mr. Bourke also discussed the meaning of life insurance for the individual. It is the Company's responsibility to give the individual advice best suited to his needs, he stated, and this advice must withstand the test of time. The fundamental life insurance needs are still so far from full satisfaction that the life insurance industry has a great deal of room in which to grow and prosper. "The confidence placed in life insurance now extends over long years of performance", he concluded. "The record of Sun Life's 87 years' of service to the public justifies us in looking forward to further achievements."

DAYLIGHT ROBBERY IN HAMILTON NETS $12,600

Police examine a stolen car used by bank robbers after they had stolen $12,600 from a Hamilton, Ont., bank. Four men, armed with a sten gun and revolvers, entered the bank, threatening the staff and customers. They took almost $2,000 from customers and the rest from the cash drawers of the bank, then backed out of the building and ran for their car. They abandoned it within a few blocks, comandeered a second, and when they drove it into a tree, walked away from it leaving the sten gun behind.

Roslin

ROSLIN — The annual vestry meeting of St. John's Church, Moneymore, was held on a recent Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Alexander, with Rev. D. Woodward presiding. Mr. Norman Coulter was named vestry clerk.

Mrs. Earl Alexander, the rector's warden, read his report, followed by the report of the people's warden, Gordon Carlaw.

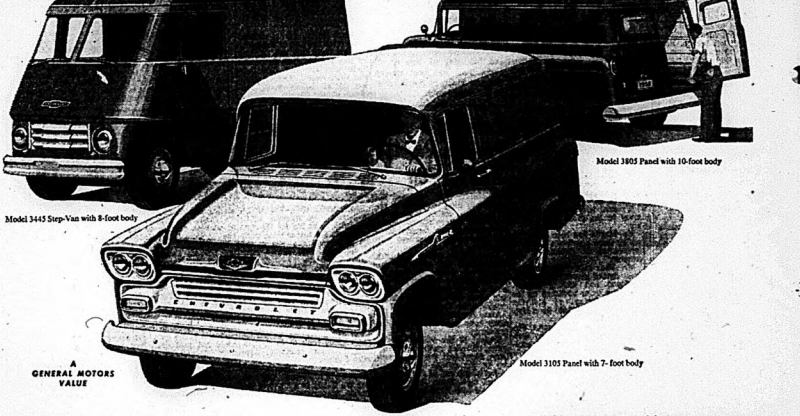
The church officers for 1958 are as follows: rector's warden, Norman Coulter; people's warden, Gordon Carleton; delegate to Synod, Norman Coulter; alternate, Earl Alexander; missionary secretary, Franklin Coulter; parish council, Mr. E. Alexander; Mr E. Coulter, Mrs. William Andrew; auditors, Mrs. Joe Coulter and Mrs. Stanley Weir.

Rev. D. Woodward expressed his thanks for the splendid co-operation shown him and Mrs. Woodward during the past year. The meeting was adjourned and closed with prayer by the rector, followed by a delicious lunch served by the hostess assisted by ladies of the Guild.

The Women's Auxiliary held its February meeting on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. D. Stirk.

The February meeting of the Women's Association was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Freeman Howes.

Mrs. Fred Coulter is visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. W. Gillespie.



ROSLIN — A local leader training school sponsored by the Women's Institute, the subject of which was "New Lamp Shades from Old," under the leadership of Mrs. H. Chisholm and Mrs. J. Empson, was held here recently, when each member of the class completed one or more shades.

On Wednesday members of the class with their leaders attended the achievement day held in the community centre at Stirling.

On Monday evening friends and neighbors gathered in the Roslin church hall in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Warden. After a social evening Mr. and Mrs. Harrison were presented with a chair for which they graciously expressed their thanks.

SEE PROGRESS IN CANCER CURE

Speaking before the 1958 national crusade meeting of the American Cancer Society in Chicago, Dr. Roy Hertz of Bethesda, Md., told of experiments which for the first time completely suppressed a solid tumor by drug treatment. Dr. Hertz reported that the drug, - methotrexate, was used to treat 16 women with far-advanced choriocarcinoma and completely eliminated the disease in six of the patients. Choriocarcinoma usually kills the patient within a year. Result of the experiment was described as possibly a "definite breakthrough" in cancer research.

MECHANICAL MUSCLES FOR CRIPPLES

Dr. Kenneth S. Landauer of the U.S. National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis demonstrates an artificial muscle which makes possible the use of paralyzed hands. The "hand motivator" is a muscle made of nylon fibre which can be filled or emptied with carbon dioxide with a touch of the switch. The gas expands and relaxes the muscle, thus controlling the movements of the first two fingers of the hand.

Angler McPhail in Florida Dangling Bait for Holdouts

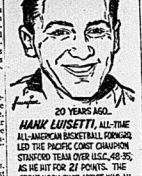
The big catch, of course, will be Mickey Mantle, who reportedly is asking for $100,000. LeMac doesn't think he will have too much trouble.

Most of the Yankee pitchers still are unsigned. Among them are Whitey Ford and Bob Turley, who drew the fire of general manager George Weiss at Tuesday's press conference. Weiss was upset because the two stars pitched in Sunday's all-star charity game at Key West, Fla.

GAVE PERMISSION

"As Colorado Springs in December we (the 16 clubs) gave permission for the charity game, but I certainly didn't expect star pitchers to go in and pitch three innings (Ford and Hunter originally each pitched two innings)," Weiss said.

"I wanted to get all the details. They'll probably tell us they just rolled the ball up to the plate."



Ford might have rolled the ball up at that for he gave up one hit in two innings while Turley was touched for two hits.

"Look at Ford," said Weiss. "How long did we have him at the Mayo Clinic? He has been working out on a treadmill all winter. Now he goes right out and pitches without spring training.

"If we asked them to do something like that without any training, there would be plenty of beefs'

Howie Meeker Turns Down All-Coach Job

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The St. John's Memorial Stadium Commission announced Tuesday night Howie Meeker, former National Hockey League coach and player, will not sign a contract to coach hockey teams, because the job is too big for one man.

A commission statement said Meeker summed up his position in a memorandum, which he agreed could be published.

Meeker said what this city needs is "an imported coach for every club organization. These four or five men would form the nucleus of a Senior A team."

Meeker said of himself, "as to future plans, I intend to come back to St John's and go into business and hope to always have an interest in hockey and a particular interest in the welfare of the players."

The commission said, "Mr. Meeker has assured the commission of his intention to coach both senior and junior all-star teams for the present season."

Baseball Leafs Sign Four, Two Canadians

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Basketball League announced Tuesday four players, including two Canadians, have signed contracts for the 1958 season.

Veteran outfielder Lew Morton signed for his seventh season in a Toronto uniform and pitcher Stu Scandlebury came to terms after being purchased from Havana Sugar Kings last December.

The two Canadians are pitcher Bryan Wardell of Toronto and pitcher Ted Baker of Brantford. The two 29-year-olds formed a battery with Gainsville of the Florida State League last year.

Morton, 37, hit .270 and powered out 25 home runs last season. Scandlebury, a 29-year-old lefthander, won 12 and lost 15 last year and had a 3.50 earned run average.

Baker hit .245 for Gainsville and Wardell had a 14-16 pitching mark with an ERA of 3.52.

Queen's Plate To Be Run at New Woodbine

TORONTO (CP) — George C. Hendrie, president of the Ontario Jockey Club, announced today the race for the Queen's Plate this year will be at Toronto's New Woodbine course Saturday June 7.

He said Governor-General Massey will make the presentation.

At present, 107 out of 212 Canadian-bred three-yearolds originally nominated are eligible. But two more payments, including a $250 entrance fee, have still to be paid before the race.

Last season's race had a gross value of $33,195. The winner, Lyford Cay, owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto, collected $25,000. This year's race—the 99th—is expected to have a gross value of $35,000.

Lyford Cay set a new Canadian record of 2:02 3-5 over the 1¼ mile distance.

Last year's race attracted a crowd of approximately 27,000. The crowd set a one-day Canadian betting record of $1,033,334, betting $709,271 on the Queen's Plate.

German Meets Joey Giardello

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joey Giardello, keeping in trim for what he hopes will be an early crack at the middleweight title, meets Franz Szuzina, hard-punching, aggressive German fighter, here tonight in a nationally televised (ABC), 10-rounder at the arena.

Giardello and Szuzina met once before in Milwaukee with Giardello eking out a split decision. Wubeaten in his last 14 bouts, Giardello is risking all to get for him can mean nothing more than a pay day.

Should the 27-year-old German, who has licked Virgil Akins and Randy Sandy, score an upset, Giardello might find himself on the outside as far as his title aspirations are concerned. As things stand now, Giardello, who fights out of Philadelphia, is in line for a title fight.

Szuzina, who come to this country in 1956 from Bremen, Germany, has won 41 fights, lost 17 and had 13 draws. He has a reputation of always defeating a man who previously bet him.

In his recent outings, Giardello has gone decisions over Bobby Tiger, Joey Wolf Greaves, Joe Gray and Chico Vejar, while scoring a TKO over Bobby Lane.

Davis Stages Thrill Finish To Remain Snooker Champ

By JONATHAN COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Welsh publican Fred Davis retained his world snooker title for the eighth time by staging a thrilling finish to his 91-game championship series here with North American champion George Chenier of Vancouver.

The series, one of the closest Davis has ever played in a title defence, ended Tuesday night when he won the 36th game by a two-point margin. Chenier fell behind 22-0.

More than 2,000 fans watched tensely as the pair battled to a 36-36 tie before the titleholder broke away to win. It was the first time Davis, who has not been defeated in championship play since 1951, had defended his world title outside England.

The Welshman said later he would be "quite prepared" to defend his title against Chenier again in a return match in Canada next year, providing the terms are acceptable. Chenier suggested the Toronto Sportsmen's Show as a possible venue.

COST HIM CHANCE

Leading 59-23, Chenier was faced with what Davis called "a rather nasty little shot" for the yellow ball. He was forced to play it slowly and the ball stopped right over the pocket, giving Davis the easiest of shots. The titleholder potted the remaining balls on the table to win the game 62-59.

"From George's point of view, it was a rather tragic finish," Davis said later. "It looked as if he had the game won at that stage."

Chenier, six years older than Davis, made no excuses.

Davis scored a total of 2,397 points in the five-day match at an average of 97.5 a game and got the highest break, 108. Chenier, who had 2,198 points for a 91 average, had a high break of 91.

HOLDS RECORD BREAK

The champion, who lagged behind Chenier until the closing stages of the series, said he had "quite a lot of trouble" with the new American snooker ball, which is lighter than its English counterpart.

"The main object of the game, of course, is entertainment. We like to get big breaks. And you can't do that unless you've happy with everything — the ball, the table, your cue, and so on."

The pair will start a cross-Canada exhibition tour in Edmonton Monday, playing a five-day series there and at Winnipeg, Toronto, London, Ont., and Montreal. Davis' title won't be at stake.

"I'll let you know what I think of your umpirin' soon's I find out if fines are deductible from my income tax!"

Story, Music of Hans Brinker Too Fragile to Hold Interest

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Anyone who enjoys watching professional skating must have found pleasure in Hans Brinker or the Silver Skates. It was quite a vehicle for skaters Dick Button and Elle Sommers.

But a sumptuous indoor rink does not make a play with music or a musical play or whatever it was the way they defined last Sunday's Hall of Fame production on NBC-TV. Both story and music were too fragile to sustain interest—at least my personal interest.

Hans Brinker bored me [illegible] much that the only fair way to [illegible] be personal about it. I could have borne its tired little plot if I could have remembered one of its prosaic musical numbers two bars after it ended. And I could have borne both plot and music if its characterizations and mood had offered any of the magic and wonder I dimly recall from reading the book long ago.

FEW SURPRISES

As a play, it was predictable 15 minutes after it began that Tab Hunter as Hans would win Peggy King and that Hans' father, who had fallen on his head a dozen years before, would recover his senses. The only surprise to me was that Basil Rathbone, who stormed about as the doctor who operated on Hans' father, guaranteed Tab—or Hans—a medical education at the end.

The major members of the cast—Hunter, Miss King, Rathbone, Jarmilla Novotna, Carmen Mathews and Button and Miss Sommers—did their level best with the roles provided. If they were not exactly inspired it was because there was nothing to inspire them. Button, by the way, is almost as able an actor as he is a skater.

The Hall of Fame productions are of such a universally high quality that, strictly speaking, some thing good to be said of each in this case it was ice skating.

Omnibus offered another absorbing 90 minutes on NBC-TV Sunday. This time it was a remarkable filmed account of a visit to Pitcairn Island in the Pacific and the discovery of the underwater remains of His Majesty's armed vessel, Bounty.

Rember Mutiny on the Bounty and Charles Laughton's unforgettable role as Captain Bligh? Lois Marden, who made this excellent film, brought history up to date when he discovered the encrusted hulk of the sunken ship and examined the lives of mutineer Fletcher Christian's descendants who still live on the island.

Only the ghost of Captain Bligh himself could deny that this was informative entertainment.

Presley Already Minus Sideburns

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — That army barber who groomed to Presley's sideburns won't get the chance.

The rock 'n' roll singer is sporting a normal haircut for his current and last pre-induction movie King Creole. And it makes him look strangely different.

Producer Hal Wallis, who got Presley an eight - weeks deferment from his draft board, finally let a reporter on the set Tuesday to talk with the singer. Elvis said he didn't cut his sideburns off because of impending army duty.

"I've worn long sideburns in all my other movies," he explained, "so I figured I'd be a little different in King Creole." Elvis finishes the picture March 14, takes a train for his home town of Memphis and expects to be at Fort Chaffee, Ark., by March 22.

"I'm looking forward to going into the army." Elvis said. "I think it will be a great experience for me."

Movie Column

Ed Schallert, Drama Editor, Closes 45 Years as Reporter

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Forty-five years is a long time to be reporting and reviewing the movies. But as Edwin Schallert brings his lengthy stint to a close this week, he still has the enthusiasm of a cub reporter.

"Does the movie business have a future?" says the retiring drama editor of the Los Angeles Times and dean of the Hollywood press corps. "I'm sure of it. The picture business has had troubles before and managed to survive them. They'll still be making movies—for one medium or another—many more years."

Ed Schallert and his vivacious partner in life and covering Hollywood, Elza, have been on that beat since anyone can remember. Ed's career ranges from the inimitable Mae Busch ("an exciting person, always good for an interview") to the irrepressible Jayne Mansfield ("an interesting personality").

BEGAN IN 1913

A large man with a kindly air unusual in a critic, Ed began reviewing concerts, plays and the embryo film business around 1913. He started writing a movie column in the days when such was a novelty in newspapers. I asked him what covering Hollywood was like in those days.

"I could do it by streetcar," he replied. "The town was a lot smaller then, and there was an intimate, friendly atmosphere that is lacking today. You were on personal terms with all the stars, and it was unheard of for a publicity man to be present at an interview." The ever-present flack is standard equipment today.

Ed has known all the big names, and he mused over some of them:

"I knew Garbo very well, back in the days when she was giving interviews. She was always very friendly. It was Jack Gilbert who sold her on the idea that she needed publicity. . . . Charlie Chaplin and I have been friends for years. I always admired him as an artist, but he always made a fool of himself when it came to politics and women. He wasn't tough to interview, but you had to start him on those matters before getting to the more personal questions. . . ."

ALWAYS GOOD ANGLE

"Cecil DeMille was always a great interview, especially in his earlier days. He'd always say something wild that would make a good story. I remember once when he was casting Cleopatra, he told me there were no actors in Hollywood. It made a good headline.

"Doug Fairbanks was one man who really built Hollywood. Not until he started making his big productions in the '20s did the business really take on international status. He was the first president of the academy and a really potent force in the town. . . . I've come to know Mary Pickford more in the days since her career started to decline. She was not too easy to interview in her prime. . . .

"Gloria Swanson has always been a good interview, and so has Joan Crawford. Norma Shearer was generally good, though she was a bit restrained. I've never had much luck with Marilyn Monroe. Often you'll find that the ones who have that aura of glamor are not too exciting in person."

Minister Orders Plesner Family To Be Deported

OTTAWA (CP) — A former Toronto resident wanted by police there on charges of criminal negligence and bail jumping has been ordered deported with his family.

It was learned Tuesday that an appeal against deportation of Joseph and Irene Plesner and their son, David, has been dismissed by Acting Immigration Minister Davie Fulton.

The immigration department here has been ordered to proceed immediately with arrangements to deport them to the United Kingdom or another country, if they are able to arrange admission.

The case goes back to last summer. The two men were known in Toronto as Arthur Morris and Joseph Hunter, in charge of criminal negligence was laid against them last June and soon after wards the two men and their wives disappeared.

They left behind a big Toronto used car lot, their homes and other assets. In their absence, their business was sold to the Colonial Finance Corporation which held a $159,000 mortgage.

The group turned up at Halifax late in December aboard a ship from the Mediterranean area. They were ordered deported for failure to meet immigration requirements.

But they appealed to Mr. Fulton for permission to remain in Canada. They were released on bond but not permitted to leave Halifax, where they now are.

In a newspaper story, Jacobs, 32, said his real name is David Plesner and that Arthur Morris actually is his father, Joseph, and not his uncle as they had been taken to be while living in Toronto.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVEN, Sports Editor

Tradition pointed to Montreal Canadiens as having the most dangerous powerplay in the National Hockey League, but figures reveal the New York Rangers are the best when it comes to scoring while the opposition has a man in the penalty box, says a story in a current hockey magazine.

In the first half of this season Rangers scored 29 goals during the 123 times they enjoyed a man advantage. That figures out to 24 percent. Canadiens, although scoring 30 powerplay goals, had more opportunities to put their ganging attack into operation but it clicked only 22 per cent of the time.

One big difference between the two club's powerplays, however, was the fact that Montreal's goals were spread among several players while tiny Camille Henry spearheaded the Ranger attack.

Henry, who led the league in goal-scoring at the midway point of the schedule, scored 13 of his 19 goals while opposing players were sitting out penalties. His most frequent victims were Canadiens, whom he scored against seven times, including five power plays.

Dennie Marshall, Maurice (Rocket) Richard, Dickie Moore and Bernie (Boom-Boom) Geoffrion each scored three goals while operating on Montreal's ganging attack during the first half of the schedule. One surprising fact about Canadiens' powerplay was that Rocket Richard's younger brother, Henri, scored only two of his 16 goals on it.

New York and Montreal were well ahead of the rest of the league in powerplay scoring and perhaps that explains why they held the top two positions in the standings as the schedule entered the second half.

Toronto Maple Leafs had the third-best ganging attack, scoring 18 times in 87 chances for 17 percent. Close behind Leafs were Boston Bruins and Detroit Red Wings, who capitalized on their opponents' penalties 16 percent of the time. Bruins scored 17 goals in 90 chances and Wings had a 16-71 record.

Chicago Black Hawks, in last place in the standing, had the weakest powerplay. It clicked for only 10 goals in 128 chances for a percentage of eight.

Every coach in hockey knows the importance of a strong powerplay. But it is also just as important to have strong penalty killers or opponents will have no trouble rolling up a score.

In the latter department Boston was tops in the league during the first half of the schedule. Boston opponents managed to score only 17 goals while Bruins scored a disadvantage 151 times. In fact Bruin players seemed to have a strch sense about breaking away during an opponent's ganging attack and, consequently, they scored six goals while they themselves were shorthanded.

Toppazzini proved to be the master at scoring plays while killing penalties. Of his 10 goals during the first 35 games Boston played, Topper fired four goals against a team which had an extra man on the ice. Mackell and Stanley scored the other two. Three of the six goals were scored against Detroit — Toppazzini getting two and Stanley the other. Mackell scored his against Chicago and Toppazzini got his fourth against New York.

Rangers' penalty killers were the second most successful. The opposition scored 17 times in 132 chances. Popein, Bathgate and Prentice each scored a goal while they were killing penalties against Chicago, Montreal and Toronto, respectively.

Toronto, third-best powerplay club, was in a similar position in penalty killing. Leafs were scored against 19 times during 123 occasions for which they were shorthanded. Migay scored two goals while slaving off Chicago and Montreal powerplays. Stewart scored once against Boston and Mosdell once against New York under similar circumstances.

Canadiens had 23 goals scored against them while killing 134 penalties, Rookie Gene Achtymichuk, filling in for an injured Bellveau, was the only Montrealer to score while his team was shorthanded. The only goal of his major-league career was scored against Rangers under these conditions.

Chicago was shorthanded on 115 occasions and the opposition took advantage for 23 goals. No Chicago player scored while Hawks were at a disadvantage. Detroit had the second-best penalty killing to their credit when opposing scored against on 24 of 111 times. Howe fired a goal against Boston with Wings short and Delvecchio got one against New York.

In the entire NHL during the first 105 games, there were 331 goals scored and 115 of those — or nearly one-quarter — resulted from ganging attacks.

Mount up One-Sided Scores Against Air Force Pucksters; Play in Stockholm Thumsch

The night before they belted out a 14-1 win over the players from the RCAF's No. 3 Fighter Wing.

This gives Whitby a 4-0 exhibition record and a hefty 44-7 total of goals for and against.

Flyers haven't had such trouble in long time. The RCAF's record, until it was dimmed by the fast-scoring Ontario side, was 27 runs, two less and lost against opponents from eight European countries.

Comme Broden, centre last year with Montreal Canadiens during the Stanley Cup playoffs, slammed in four goals.

Bobby Attersley, for three years top scorer in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A eastern division, fired three goals in the first game against Flyers he connected four times.

Frank Bonello, George Samolenko and Sid Smith all scored twice. Ted O'Connor, Gordon Myles and Bus Gagnon added singles.

Whitby scored seven goals in the first period, six in the second and three in the last. Ted Brown and Lorne Trottier saved Flyers' from an outright whitewashing.

Whitby's manager, Wren Blair, was in Stockholm Tuesday preparing for the next exhibition here Thursday. The Canadians have seven matches in Sweden and two in Norway before settling down to the serious business of the world championships in Oslo Feb. 28-March 9.

Paul Masnick Named Centre On Aldcorn, Mahovlich Line

By MARTY GOODMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It's been seven tall hockey seasons since Paul Andrew Masnick left the junior Regina Pats for a professional career.

He moved a lot in that time—seven seasons, seven teams.

He's with his eighth team this year but his performance so far has been enough to promise some security in the future.

Toronto Maple Leafs, locked in a grim battle to make the National Hockey League playoffs, had suffered injuries to some centres and seen others not fulfil expectations.

Coach Billy Reay, who had Masnick with Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League last year, drew on the 26-year-old Regina native in an emergency measure.

A HARD WORKER

The idea at first was to use Masnick only as a penalty killer. Paul had proven himself a hard worker during 3½ seasons with Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks.

Masnick hustled so well in the role that he earned spot assignments on offence. Tuesday Reay announced Masnick will go full-time centring Gary Aldcorn and Frank Mahovlich.

Masnick still doesn't make opposition goalies quake—his inability to score has been his weakest point. But he is passing better and setting up plays well.

Reay thinks Masnick can be an offensive threat. He scored 24 goals last season and 29 the year before with Winnipeg Warriors of the Western Hockey League.

But his total NHL production in 191 previous games was only 19 and he wasn't a high scorer in former years in the AHL with Cincinnati Mohawks and Buffalo Bisons and in the Quebec Hockey League with Montreal Royals.

CONSISTENT PERFORMER

It's not too much higher so far a goal and seven assists. But his play has been impressive and Leaf and cold team like Toronto, Paul has stood out as a consistent performer.

It will be tough to keep his job as a regular. Billy Harris and Rudy Migay are the two centres who got themselves on Reay's doghouse after Masnick took over. And Reay still intends to keep Paul on a penalty-killing unit which means Harris will take over on the secondary shift.

But to the now well-travelled veteran, the chance to make good is most important.

Masnick's first appearance in his new role will be tonight, when Montreal Canadiens play at Toronto against the Maple Leafs. It's the only game scheduled.

Gadzooks, Sir The Blighter Was a Pro

LONDON (CP) — The simonpure ranks of British amateur soccer were rocked Tuesday—by an allegation that a wolf had sneaked into the sheep pen.

The targets of the accusation were the little band of underdogs from Wokingham Town who upset West Auckland 4-2 Saturday to reach the Amateur Cup quarter-finals. In a protest filed with the Football Association, West Auckland claimed that one of Wokingham's goals was scored by a former professional.

The player in question, sausage salesman Mike Ashford, looked in a picture of Ray Hancox, who played for Crystal Palace, a Third Division club, in 1951. Ashford protested: "It looks like me, doesn't it?"

Ashford, who has scored 15 goals for the Berkshire club this season, added: "I can't say anything at the moment except that we are all pure amateurs at Wokingham."

Although amateurs are permitted to play for professional clubs as long as they receive no remuneration, there is no provision in amateur cup competition for reinstatement of a professional player.

Hamilton Whips Biltmores 5-2

GUELPH (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cubs came from behind a two-goal deficit to defeat five unanswered goals here Tuesday night and defeat Guelph Biltmores 5-2 in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game.

Ray Preston, scored the tying goal in the second period and counted the winner early in the third. Murray Oliver and Don Blackburn, and Don Wilcox also counted for Hamilton goal. Gord Brown and George Ukitala were Biltmores' marksmen.

The win increased Hamilton's lead on second place to four points over Toronto Marlboros and St. Michaels. The loss left Guelph in the cellar three points back of Barrie Flyers.

Baby Habs Halt McFarlands' March To League Lead With 7-3 Victory

Fast-Skating Canadien Kids Grab 6-1 Second-Period Lead Before Macs Hit Back in 3rd

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

A fast-skating victory-hungry crew of Ottawa-Hull Canadiens caught the McFarlands with their points down last night, handing the Hildebranders their fourth defeat on home ice by a 7-3 score.

The victory strengthened the Canadiens' hold on second place since it gave them three points, and a five-point margin over the Pembroke Lumber Kings. It was their last encounter with the Macs for the season.

The McFarlands used "Turk" Barclay in the nets in place of Gordie Bell, who suffered a back injury during the day. They were also minus the services of Minnie Menard and Bep Guidolin who were in Pembroke playing in the Buchanan benefit game.

While they equalled the Canadiens shots on goal, 29 in all, the McFarlands have played a lot better hockey. They had plenty of chances to score but they were hitting Claude Cyr's pads or the goal posts. The Ottawans outscored them 3-1 in the first period, blasted them 3-0 in the second and yielded two counters to one in the final frame.

The youthful Canadiens play-ed a high-way checking game and they were always dangerous inside the enemy blueline. They were full value for their victory although they drew 26 penalties as against four for the McFarlands.

Billy Carter, Terry Gray and John Rousseau were the Baby Habs scoring stars each netting a pair with Rousseau getting the other. Davey Jones, Jean Claude Tremblay's pass set Bert Bradley were the McFarland's counters. Ralph Brown, Botley, Muretich and Benoit drew assists.

Canadiens drew the first penalty of the game after three minutes and it paid off for the Junior Habs. Billy Carter broke away from a Macs ganging attack, tucked the puck in his left wheelie nets and beat him with a backhand beauty.

Claude Cyr looked good in the Ottawa nets as he kept out Wheelie on one play and it was not until eleven minutes that Davey Jones, playing his first game in months, broke the long pass from Moe Benoit, batting into the clear goal and beat Cyr for the equaliser.

Annable put the Canadiens one up at 18.35 when he poked in Jean Claude Tremblay's pass from the corner with Gillis Tremblay in on the play.

The Canadiens' third goal of the period was an odd one. Barclay came away out of his net, halfway to the blueline, to clear the puck, and two Habs swept in. Barclay fell to the ice and Benoit banked into the net back Rousseau's waist-high drive ricocheted off his body into the nets. Gillis Tremblay was waved off with seconds to go in the period.

The fast-skating Canadiens took up where they left off in the second period, ramming home three unanswered goals although they were outshot 16-9. Macdonald was chased early in the period and Carter followed him three minutes later. Canadiens ripped home the first goal of the period at 14.15 when Barclay stopped Gray's drive but the puck rolled away and over the goal-line.

Boucher drew the official wrath at 15.00, drawing a minor conduct penalty and a minute later Billy Carter scored his second goal of the game unassisted. With less than two minutes to go, Gray put the Canadiens four goals up on a drive with Rousseau.

The Macs were-in on Cyr several times but their shots were hitting the pads and the posts.

The Habs drove hard opening the final period and they hemmed the Macs into their blueline but could do nothing about hitting paydirt. Then Annable was chased for tripping and Bradley and Brown took matters into their own hands. Wiener slipping Brad the pass, Bart drove the puck at Cyr who kicked it out and Bradley whipped in his own rebound to score for his 11th consecutive game, and his 20th of the season.

The Canadiens roared back with one of their gauging attacks and Annable scored his second goal of the game with a backhand shot from ten feet out.

The Habs started to play it cozy, firing the puck to the Belleville area and waiting for the attacks. Hildebrand and Begin started a pushing match that got both minor penalties, and the McFarlands had the better of the five-a-side play. Paul Payette scored a beauty when he took Johnny Muretich's pass on a three-way play with Lionel Botbrand, Bradley, Marineau, Brown, Goyer, Muretich, MacDonald, Kowalchuk, Jones.

All-Star Game Raises $952 For Buchanan

PEMBROKE (CP)—Pembroke Lumber Kings Tuesday night defeated the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A eastern division all-stars 9-6 in a benefit game for injured Pembroke player Ralph (Bucky) Buchanan.

A crowd of 820 paid $952. This plus personal contributions amounting to $453 brought total returns so far to $1,405.

Buchanan suffered a serious eye injury in a game more than three weeks ago at Cornwall. He was flown Monday from Ottawa to Boston where doctors report there is still some hope he will not lose the sight of the eye.

Jim Maxwell and Bruce Giesebrecht each scored three goals to pace the Pembroke attack. Bobby Clarke with a pair and Dennis Menard were the other Pembroke scorers.

Ronnie Muir tallied twice for the all-stars, comprising players from Cornwall, Belleville and Kingston. The other goals were by Bep Guidolin, Brian Anderson, Gerry Moore and Minnie Menard.

SIGN ALL-AMERICAN

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Bob Modjeska, an all - America halfback last year at Arizona State College, signed a contract Tuesday with Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union. Modjeska declined comment on salary terms, but the amount was reported in excess of $10,000.

Junior League Will Arrange Playoff Dates

The OHA Eastern junior "B" hockey league will hold a meeting at city hall here tonight to finalize plans for the group playoffs.

The meeting gets under way at 8.00 p.m. and all clubs will be represented.

Peterborough and Belleville will meet in one playoff series while Trenton and Kingston clash in the other half of the semi-finals. Both series are expected to get under way this weekend and definite dates will be available following this evening's meeting.

The regular schedule was completed last night when Peterborough, who finished in first place, defeated Kingston. Kingston ended in second spot, Trenton in third and Belleville in fourth.

The playoff games postponed early in the season were not played as they had no bearing on the final standing.

Trapper Coach May Lose Sight of Eye

NORTH BAY (CP) — Coach Chuck Scherza of North Bay Trappers will not be able to find out on the OHA-NOHA Senior A season with his team and may lose the sight of one eye as the result of an accident suffered earlier in the season, it was learned here Tuesday.

Scherza injured the eye when he was struck by a stray puck and left the team for several months. He returned to get into the Trappers' ranks but after Monday night's game at Sault Ste. Chatham Maroons increased pain in the eye sent him to a doctor. The doctor advised that an operation, to remove either the lens or the whole eye, may be necessary. Scherza will return here from Chatham today and may coach the team when they play Saturday.

May Be Able To Save Buchanan's Eye

BOSTON (CP) — Specialists said Tuesday they may be able to save the damaged right eye of Ralph Buchanan, hockey player with Pembroke Lumber Kings of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A eastern division who was injured when hit by a hockey stick more than three weeks ago.

Buchanan, 35, first was taken to Ottawa for treatment and later admitted to Carney Hospital here.

Dr. Edward Browne, Boston Bruins team physician, said several doctors have examined Buchanan and that further examinations will be made in the next few days. He explained it was a "day to day" situation and that the answer might be known by Friday.

ROCKET RETURNING

TORONTO (CP) — Coach Hector (Toe) Blake of Montreal Canadiens, said Tuesday he has received word that Maurice (Rocket) Richard will return to action Feb. 20 in the game against Boston Bruins. There had been reports that Richard, out three months with a severed Achilles tendon, might return tonight when Montreal meets Toronto Maple Leafs here.

Eastern Senior 'A' Division Standings, Scoring

Centre-ice stars Billy Colvin of Kingston CKLC's and Barton Bradley of Belleville McFarlands are tied for first place in the OHA Eastern Senior "A" scoring race according to statistics released today.

Bradley surged from a third-place tie with a seven-point week to catch Colvin, each with 57 scoring points, just five less than Whitby's Bob Attersley had when he left for Oslo.

Colvin is the league's leading goal scorer with 30 and has added 27 assists. Bradley has scored 25 goals and assisted on 32 others and has scored at least one goal in the last ten consecutive games.

Bob Boucher of Ottawa-Hull Canadiens is close behind with 54 points on 19 goals and 35 assists. Bert Giesebrecht, Pembroke, has 52 points while Ted Toppazzini, Kingston and Moe Savard of Cornwall follow with 50 each. Toppazzini gained eight points this past week.

Belleville's Gordie Bell is the leading goalie with a 3.59 average in 44 games. He also tops the shutout race with three.

Habs, Not Leafs Miss Banquet

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — It wasn't coach Billy Reay's fault players from Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League didn't attend a father-and - son church banquet here Monday. Leafs weren't invited.

First reports said Reay refused to let the players go because of their poor showing against Boston Bruins Saturday. But Tuesday it developed it was two players from Montreal Canadiens who were supposed to attend.

Montreal coach Hector (Toe) Blake, in Toronto since Monday preparing for tonight's game with Leafs, had decided against letting defencemen Doug Harvey and centre Don Marshall go because driving between Toronto and Peterborough Monday was hazardous.

The players were invited by Ken Brown, cubmaster at St. Giles Presbyterian Church and a part-time scout for Canadiens. The banquet went ahead anyway with films instead of hockey players.

Senior Tops Junior "B" Points Parade

KINGSTON (Special) — Peterborough and Kingston — one-two finishers in the OHA Junior "B" grouping — placed four men among the top 10 individual points getters.

The Frontenacs' Doug Senior enjoyed a healthy lead over his nearest competitors as his 32 goals and 34 assists, both tops, gave him a 20 point margin over Peterborough's Ron Jewell.

Showing the biggest gain in the last game of the season, won by Peterborough 6-4, was Ron Jewell whose one goal and two assists gave him a three point margin over Bud Ardesworth.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort
Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, very striking improvement was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retracting (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months.

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were every variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of surgery, injections, or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) — the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Bio-Dyne is now in wide use for healing injured tissue in all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is now in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for it individually by name. Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Wednesday, February 12

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — See that you look at the pros and cons of any situation that arises today. Given the benefit of your best thought and analysis, arrive at proper decisions. In this way you strengthen character immeasurably.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — The best thing today is to have a conference with the most intelligent experience experts in your field, listen to advice carefully, and follow that which to you seems very wise and good. Follow your hunches.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Much discussion on all relative points with associates today can be most beneficial. Don't hesitate to air your views with those who do not think as you do. In this way you gain respect, admiration and even co-operation.

Moon children (June 22 to July 21) — Nothing could be wiser than to follow in the footsteps of successful and famous persons. Study their lives, and plan to emulate to best of ability now. Work with real love and diligence, be good to your fellow man.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — If you are properly attuned astrologically, almost anything you desire to do or attain today can be realized. Be out of doors a good part of the time, and tonight let romance reign supreme as it is at your favorite sport.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Get your house in the best possible condition, add a touch of paint, cleanliness where needed, a new rug, perhaps; any little touches that make it look like a bandbox, bring out its own personality, cheerful or dignified.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — The letters or telegrams you send out today will bring in fine results...very soon. Also, a good day for studying, cleaning automobile, bringing in groceries, buying little things, effecting a good sale or purchase.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Rivet your activity and thoughts today on practical matters of higher finance, getting real estate or other holdings increased. Get bookkeeping system set up better. Look after your vocal chords. Invest in recordings.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Think of own personal welfare today. There are many fine chances right now to add to your abundance, your social position, too. This will be a fine, incentive day for boosting your energies, outlook on life, vitality.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Silently resolve to get on the beaten track, as suggested by wise friends, for more rapid advancement, financially and socially. Forget impractical ideas. Be certain you lend a helping hand where most vitally needed, too.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Tried and true pals hold the key to your perplexities right now. Be certain to ask for advice, ideas, since nobody knows it all, and their experience combined with your keen mentality and enthusiasm will work wonders.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Here is the perfect day to sit down with that influential associate of yours and discuss lengthily the ways and means by which your joint ventures can show greater profits, more satisfaction. Do some civic deed, also.

If your child is born today . . . The fortunate child born today is within the category of those who can achieve a tremendous success in life, since the mind is such that big enterprises do not frighten him or her. Hence, your guidance and the kind of education given will determine the extent of your progeny's accomplishments in the sky is the limit if the consciousness is right. Fine horoscope for worldwide endeavors, science, etc.

Develop North To Provide Jobs Is PM's Proposal

Diefenbaker Outlines Arctic Empire Program

Ran Red Lights After Elephant Sat on His Car

SALZBURG, Austria (Reuters) — A shaken, white-faced motorist drove through red lights here and was stopped by a policeman.

"An elephant was sitting on my car," he told the officer — and was whisked off to the station house for a drunk-driving test. But he produced a note from a circus official stating an elephant had indeed been sitting on his car.

Police checked and found an elephant, trained to sit on a green stool, had attempted to climb into the roof of the man's small green car when he stopped outside Salzburg to let the circus pass.

The man, freed by police, kept the note for his insurance broker. The elephant had dented his car's roof.

WINNIPEG (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker has started his election campaign with a speech outlining a proposed national development program which he said would make jobs for hundreds of thousands of Canadians.

The impressive Conservative leader, addressing a crowd of some 4,000 people Wednesday night, spoke only briefly in this grain centre on agriculture and indicated his main farm speech would be delivered in Saskatoon, where he was to arrive today.

All 4,100 seats in Civic Auditorium here were filled and some 800 persons listened to Mr. Diefenbaker by loudspeakers in an overflow hall.

For Liberal criticism of the way the Conservatives had handled such matters as unemployment and tax cuts, the prime minister had this explanation:

"Why didn't they do it when?" He reiterated this question several times in a tone suggesting at one point that he meant "Why didn't they do it when they were in power."

REFERS TO PEARSON

Referring to the promises made in the election campaign platform announced Monday by Lester B. Pearson, he said scornfully:

"What was heresy to them in June has become gospel in February."

Mr. Diefenbaker emphasized the North as he talked about Canadian development. He mentioned his plan for a "self-governing North."

Under the development plan would come:

1. Arctic research and exploration of the Arctic archipelago aimed at developing resources that Canadians, little realized.

2. A $100,000,000 roads program in the Yukon and Northwest Territories, for the development of new mineral areas.

3. Increased provincial plan to build access roads to the North, tying in with roads in the territories. To would cost $75,000,000 and perhaps twice that if all provinces joined.

4. Aid to economically sound railway projects, such as the proposed line from Hearn on Lake Superior to Pine Point on Great Slave Lake.

5. A $75,000,000 development at the northern community of Frobisher Bay on Baffin Island.

WOULD PROVIDE JOBS

The program would mean jobs for "hundreds of thousands of Canadians" and would open the way for investment "by Canadians and by foreign investors — hundreds of millions of dollars."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government planned to call a conservation conference late in the fall to map a national conservation policy.

Baby's Cries Save Family

EBERTS, Ont. (CP)—Cries of a five-month-old girl probably saved the lives of a family of three when fire, started by an over-heated stovepipe, destroyed their two-room frame cottage Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hart and their baby daughter escaped with only what they were wearing.

Mrs. Hart said she was awakened by the cries of the baby and when she got up to make the baby's bottle "the whole house was on fire." Eberts is five miles north of Chatham.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: Ontario's weather today will be about the same as Wednesday. A moderating trend in the West will work its way eastward and should start temperatures on a slow upswing in Southern Ontario Friday.

PREMIER FROST ATTACKED ON HOUSING POLICY

CCF Leader Takes 2 Hours for Speech

TORONTO (CP)—The Speaker of the Ontario legislature today was to rule on whether to allow a CCF amendment criticizing government policy on unemployment and agriculture.

CCF Leader Donald MacDonald moved the amendment Wednesday in a 2½-hour speech calling for construction of low-cost homes to provide jobs.

Premier Premier Frost as "a political ostrich sticking his neck in the sand" to ignore unemployment.

Mr. MacDonald's amendment, added to a Liberal amendment to the motion for an address in reply to the throne speech.

Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver's amendment changed the meaning of the Liberal amendment to the motion by adding a plan by Thomas L. Kennedy (PC—Peel). It was ruled by Rex A. W. Downer disallows it the CCF subamendment will not come to a vote. The government's own separate amendment cannot be made.

HITS PREMIER'S SPEECH

Mr. MacDonald said Premier Frost's speech on unemployment once during his speech in the Tuesday after the Liberal leader's criticism on the subject.

Five years ago the government had acquired land for a housing program but no house was built. This was "housing by headlines."

The government could use presently-owned properties and assume more land for housing that not only work will be produced but inflated land values would be cheaper and the cost of homes brought within the reach of a majority of our families."

On agriculture, the CCF amendment criticized the government's meet financing "action as well as words in co-operating with the farm and all commodity groups to build effective marketing machinery."

The government was also criticized for not "dispelling the uncertainty concerning the future marketing plan with an immediate announcement of a postponement for a vote until at least one year after the plan has been in full operation."

Commonwealth Trade Parley Set for Autumn

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Commonwealth trade and economic conference will be held in Canada in September, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Wednesday night.

He said in his opening speech of the March 31 federal election campaign that he had also had criticized Progressive Conservative trade proposals and said they would be carried out.

Canada's exports in 1957 had been the greatest in history.

Trade Minister Churchill, who spoke before the prime minister at a big political rally, said that in the first six months of the 1957-58 crop year more grain had been exported than in the corresponding period of any of the preceding five years.

Mr. Churchill expected the objective of 350,000,000 bushels of wheat exports he had set for the current crop year to be exceeded.

First-Come Sale of Public Land For Cottages Replaced by Auction

TORONTO (CP) — People who want public land for lakeside cottages will have to bid for it under new legislation planned by the Ontario government.

Lands Minister Magedoram introduced an amendment to the Public Lands Act in the legislature Wednesday changing the old system of selling government land on a first-come, first-served basis to provide auctions or the calling of tenders after public notice has been advanced for development.

The measure would make it easier to dispose of land fairly and at the same time give the government more money for it, the minister said. The legislation would include land developed for needs have been met.

3 Inches of Snow in Florida Is Heaviest Fall in History

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Three inches of snow blanketed Florida's capital, Tallahassee, today. The weather bureau called it possibly the heaviest in history.

Students of Florida State University broke from dormitories Wednesday night and began snowball fights, an experience unknown to most of them. Some townspeople had snowmen in their front yards.

Two inches fell at Panama City on the Gulf of Mexico, and Miami shivered as it braced itself for temperatures expected to fall almost to freezing.

At New Orleans, Mardi Gras throngs tossed snowballs after a one-inch fall Wednesday that was New Orleans' heaviest in 59 years. Western Louisiana reported a heavier blanket.

Along the gulf coast in Mississippi the snow produced an odd thin shawl on white sand beaches at Biloxi and Gulfport.

U.K. Conservative Is Third As Labor Wins Byelection

LONDON (CP)—A shattering defeat in a byelection cast a gloom today over Conservative supporters.

The waning popularity of the government headed by Prime Minister Macmillan was pointed up sharply in the Lancashire textile city of Rochdale Wednesday.

The Conservatives not only lost their grip on the district's House of Commons seat but ran a poor third on both the opposition Liberal party and the normally weak Liberals.

Final returns from the voting gave Labor candidate Jack Stonehouse 21,315 votes, Liberal Gervoic Kennedy 17,033 and Conservative John Parkinson 9,827.

Conservative leader had been reconciled in advance to loss of the seat. But the magnitude of the defeat came as a surprise. In a straight Conservative-Labor fight in the last general election the Conservative, who died recently, beat McCann 36,518 to 34,923.

The outcome was no great pleas in the Conservative gathering, since it too lost ground. Most of those who previously voted Conservative obviously switched to Kennedy, the Liberal, in protest against the government, a trend that has been growing in recent Conservative byelections.

The Rochdale result, says the Conservative paper Daily Mail, "shows that the intervention of Liberal candidates at the next election may rob them (the Conservatives) of many seats."

The Times, nominally independent but usually pro-Conservative, says the outcome may force Macmillan to ask for a new general election before the statutory term of his government ends in 1960. The Times calls it the sort of blow that "eats at the confidence of ministries and demoralizes the rank and file."

However, the Conservatives

Liberals Blame Wesley Sweet Of Campbellford

WARKWORTH (CP) — Wesley Sweet of Campbellford Wednesday night was nominated as Liberal candidate in Northumberland in the federal election of March 31. He defeated Charles Clay of Brewdley.

The Northumberland Liberals from Colborg said they will ask the Ontario Liberal Association to call a new convention. They said a 10-inch snowfall prevented 200 from attending the meeting and casting votes.

REJECTS PLAN

JERUSALEM (Reuters) — Israel's Parliament Tuesday night rejected a plan by Premier David Ben-Gurion for electoral reforms designed to produce a two-party system. Members turned down his plan to end the division of Parliament among 10 political parties by a vote of 72 to 42.

Inquest Likely Into Montreal Shotgun Slaying

MONTREAL (CP) — Provincial police said today an inquest will likely be held here Monday, in the shotgun slaying of Mrs. Barbara MacDonald, 35, of nearby Ste. Geneviève, Que.

The woman's husband, Norman, 37-year-old office worker, is being held as a material witness.

He surrendered to police in Cornwall, Ont., Wednesday.

Police in Cornwall said MacDonald drove up to the station in a car and told them his wife's body was in the trunk of the car. He then immediately driven from Montreal.

A police spokesman said the woman had apparently been killed by a shotgun blast. The body was in the car. The body was found wrapped in a blanket, tied with electrical wiring.

Police were told that MacDonald, after eating supper Tuesday, left the house to pick up his wife at work. His parents found a note later, reading simply, "Call the police."

CPR AND UNION OPEN NEW TALKS ABOUT FIREMEN

Company Asks Meet To Alter Contract

MONTREAL (CP) — Another round in the prolonged dispute over diesel firemen opens today between the CPR and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen (CLC).

The CPR asked for the meeting to negotiate amendments in its working agreement with the 9,000-member union in the light of last week's ruling by the Rideau royal commission.

The commission, headed by former justice R. L. Kellock of the Supreme Court of Canada, supported the CPR's contention that firemen—or helpers—on diesel locomotives on mainline freight trains and yard switchers are unnecessary.

It was appointed to study the matter after the railway staged a strike against the CPR in January, 1957.

Union negotiators — led by Canadian Vice-President W. E. Gamble — refused to negotiate or ask for any adjournment of today's meeting.

NO AGREEMENT

The union was expected to argue that any amendments to the current agreement should be proposed in April when negotiations are to start on a new contract. The present agreement expires March 31.

The diesel issue will be raised next week when CNR representatives meet with officials of the Canadian Railway Labor Executive Association to negotiate a new contract. The present agreement expires March 31.

The tourist trade and crops suffered in many southern areas. Schools closed at noon Wednesday in a number of districts.

In southern Florida a grim touch was noted. Editor Robert Lodmell of The Daily Highlander at Lake Wales started a driver to send food and clothing to Seminole Indians hit hard by the inclement weather.

Lodwell said the Seminoles are as badly off as the migratory workers in the winter vegetable sections, but are too proud to ask for help. Private citizens throughout Florida are helping the migratory workers.

In the west, a temporary heating-gas shortage developed in some sections of greater Kansas City today as the temperature dropped to 5 above.

TUNIS (AP)—President Habib Bourguiba said today that he would personally lead the Tunisian people in a guerrilla war if necessary to resist France's maintaining of troops on Tunisian soil.

The Tunisian president, in a radio address warned French authorities that any armed efforts to hold out of their fortified bases in Tunisia would be met by force.

Bourguiba added, however, that he did not dispair of seeing "seldom gain country of the French. He said he still wanted to negotiate with France, but only after the evacuation of the 15,000 French troops now in Tunisia.

INCIDENTS MOUNTING

Bourguiba made his speech while tension mounted throughout his country and the French reported increasing minor incidents involving French troops, bases and civilians.

France had warned the Tunisians through diplomatic channels earlier today that further grave incidents might arise as a result of Tunisian refusal to allow French forces to supply their garrisons.

The warning was contained in an official note which charge d'affaires Jean-Pierre Gorse delivered to President Bourguiba's chief cabinet minister.

At the same time it was announced in Paris that Foreign Minister Couve de Murville and the Tunisian crisis in the National Assembly this afternoon.

PROTESTS BLOCKADE

Although the contents of the French note were not immediately disclosed, it was learned from reliable French sources that the charge d'affaires drew the Tunisian government's attention to the gravity of the situation caused by the blockading of French troops in their posts.

It was understood the Tunisians that the French would do all they could to avoid such incidents but, if they occurred, the sole responsibility would lie with the Tunisians themselves.

The charge d'affaires also protested the Tunisian "encouragement" given by the Tunisians of French farmers and their families from the Algerian frontier region.

Bourguiba ordered the blockade as part of his campaign to force the French out of his country in retaliation for the French bombing of a Tunisian village.

5 Miners Die, Sixth Rescued

MAN, W.Va. (AP)—The bodies of five miners trapped in a huge piece of slate were removed today from the Aracoma Coal Co. mine at nearby Lundale.

A sixth miner, Glenn Birtchett, was taken out alive after being buried under the 960-ton mass for 36 hours. He was taken to hospital with a fractured pelvis.

A mine official said the fall was a "very rare type." He said it happened at an intersection where bolts had been inserted in the heavy slate roof as a safety measure.

Still, the men apparently had only a splintered warning before the roof thundered down. Birtchette's lower body was buried by the slate, but miners detected his head and shoulders.

Bouncing Bottles Blow Their Tops, Wife, Not Scared, Hopes It Stops

SEAFORD, N.Y. (AP)—An executive secretary has entered the case of the bouncing bottles which blow their tops—a 10-day enigma which has the Herrmann family baffled.

On Feb. 3, the first of all sorts of bottles began exploding and going jigs, capsizing or literally blowing their screw-type tops. The alarming outbreak has now held liquids of all kinds, ranging from perfume to washing bleach, to holy water, in all parts of the six-room house.

Suggestions as to the probable cause of the phenomena have poured in on the Herrmanns — James; his wife, Lucille; a daughter, Jucille, 13; and a son, Jerald, 12.

Mrs. Herrmann pinned her hopes of ultimate solution on a test of wiring scheduled for today.

The bottle business, she added, "doesn't scare me because there seems to be a reason for everything."

But at this point, she continued with a flash of humor, even want to know what the reason is. I just want life to be more peaceful."

The family's home on Long Island has been overrun with television crews, reporters, photographers and detectives since the bottle bedlam broke out.

Some of the theories advanced thus far point toward mysterious radio vibrations from planes, an underground stream setting up unexpected vibrations, and a magnetic field set up by the electric wiring.

Officer Foils Bank Holdup, Shot in Attempt

MONTREAL (CP) — Constable Raymond Charbonneau, 23, was wounded by gunfire today when he foiled a holdup attempt by two bandits at an east-end bank.

Charbonneau rushed to the bank after a report that the manager had been tied up by gunmen. As he entered the bank, he heard several shots, one hitting Charbonneau in the left knee.

Constable said he believed the bandits planned to wait until the vault was opened for the day's opening.

It was the second unsuccessful holdup attempt at the Fleury Street branch of the Banque Canadienne Nationale.

An attempt three last September was foiled when two detectives waiting in the bank their pay cheques just as bandits were about to rifle tellers' cages. One bandit was wounded in an exchange of shots with the bandits.

Barbershoppers Hold Liveliest, Singingest Meet

The local chapter of the Society For the Preservation And Encouragement Of Barber Shop Music held the liveliest, singiest meetings ever held. An enthusiastic chorus practice took place in preparation for the singing session "Harmony Nite" to start things off. Then, seemingly from out of nowhere, the Barbershoppers were entertained by no less than three almost unknown quartets, one right after the other. As the "Hometowners Quartet" did sing in times past. All these quartets sang well and received loud ovations.

The part of the meeting that was kept to a minimum to allow for the singing. First, the three guests were introduced and warmly welcomed. These were Clare Priddy, Don Brook, and Glenn Eggleton.

Future engagements were discussed. If demand is a sign of popularity, Barbershoppers must be very popular, because there is a heavy schedule of bookings, which on February 26th in the lower auditorium of St. Margaret's-On-The-Hill Church at 8.30 p.m., as a singing good time is guaranteed.

Police Blotter

With the exception of minor auto mishaps caused in the main by slippery street and road conditions, both city and provincial police have reported a quiet period since the arrival of real winter weather the past weekend.

City police reported a number of minor mishaps yesterday and last night, damage in no case amounting to more than $100.

Last evening a car driven by Marion Browning, 1 South Park street, went out of control and ended up against a house at 43 East Moira Street. There was no damage to the house.

Other mishaps occurred at the corner of Wellington and Parker Streets when cars driven by Mrs. William Munro of Cobourg, and by Mrs. Mary D. Hilkie, R. R. 5 Trenton, and Gordon Bulmer, Sidney township, were involved.

Municipal Board Gives Reasons For Annexation

Growth of the built-up areas in Sidney and Thurlow townships immediately surrounding the city is really a part of the growth of Belleville, members of the Ontario Municipal Board noted in their decision on the city's application for annexation, which was received in the city yesterday.

The Board awarded the city approximately 3,000 acres in Sidney and Thurlow townships effective January 1st, 1959, which will bring the city's area to approximately 5,700 acres and add another five or six thousand to its population.

The application by the city for annexation covered over 5,900 acres and was heard last September.

The board found that industry in the built-up area had been attracted by the city of Belleville and that there had been very little commercial development in the suburban area, it depending on the city to provide for its requirements.

The Board decision noted that "the satisfactory growth as shown by the city for inclusion of the built-up area in the city is conceded.

The city has been co-operative in the development of the larger area, and in view of the re-organization and expansion of the city as a result of it would appear desirable to have the whole area under one governing body," the report stated.

The report noted that this also applied to the planning and the general development of the area, and that further delay would only make it more difficult to coordinate the various views.

FOR HIGHER TAXES

The board noted that from the evidence heard at the annexation application was much larger than would be required or could be developed for many years.

The report noted that in the opinion of the board Highway No. 401 formed a barrier to the north of the city and would add to the cost of the cost of servicing lands beyond that line.

The board felt that the entire area covered in the annexation application was much larger than would be required or could be developed for many years.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market was narrowly higher in the lightest trading in three weeks. The advance thus halted a four-session decline which followed two days of mixed trading.

Industrials were ahead three-quarters of a point on index. Golds, base metals and western oils gained less than one-quarter of a point.

The 11 a.m. volume of 577,000 shares was the lightest since Jan. 28 when 561,000 shares were exchanged in the first hour. Wednesday's sales at the same time totalled 753,000.

Price changes of securities moved in a narrow range. Biggest change among industrials was recorded in Interprovincial Pipe Line, up ¾ to 40¾. Ogilvie, Canadian Breweries and Imperial Bank each gained ½. Canadian Oil and Monarch Corp each lost ¼ while CIL and Trans Mountain were down ½. Other changes were smaller.

Steep Rock featured trading in the senior base metal list, re-sharp loss with a 40-cent gain to $2.80. Int-national Nickel lost ¾ at 71¾ among other seniors but Hudson Bay was up ¼ to 43¼.

Low-priced mines had few changes of more than a few cents. Northspan Uranium, however, lost 15 cents at $4.10 and Placer was down a similar amount at $5.

Western oils were lightly traded in a narrow range. Home Oil A gained ½ at 16¾ and Pacific Pete was up ¾ to 18⅝ Charter lost 10 cents at $1.80 while Consolidated Mic gained 10 cents at $2.50.

Dietary Research Project Under Way at Queen's

KINGSTON (CP) — A group of Queen's University students is eating laboratory - cooked liquid meals for 16 days and although they are prepared with the greatest of care, there is no consideration for their taste buds.

The 71 students are guinea pigs in a dietary research project under Dr. James M. R. Beveridge, head of the department of biochemistry, and Dr. W. Forbes Connell, head of the department of medicine.

Purpose of the experiments is to shed more light on the connection between coronary thrombosis and the composition of human diets. It is based on the theory that coronary thrombosis strikes persons with a high fat content in their blood.

Leaders of the dietary research project are trying to correlate the amount of fat in the blood and the amounts of animal fats and vegetable fats consumed.

Butter and some other animal fats increase fat in the blood. Corn oil and some other vegetable oils reduce it, they say.

MIXED IN WATER

Dr. Beveridge feeds himself and others who can stomach his fat-free diet for the first eight days. The meals contain skim milk powder, casein—a milk protein, dextri - maltose — partly broken-down starch and a little bit of sugar, all mixed in water.

About half of the students continue the same diet for the next eight days and the others get corn fat added in varying degrees.

The present group of students is the 16th. About 450 so far have lived on the diet, which, incidentally, saves them about $25 in food bills. Some take the concoction straight, others with tea or coffee.

They can drink tea and coffee to their stomachs' content as long as they don't add sugar or milk. They have blood tests once every four days.

The 16-day sessions cost $2,000 and if the current Canadian Heart Fund campaign is successful, Queen's University will finance a further three years' experimentation.

Quebec Raises Tax on Incomes

QUEBEC (CP) — The provincial government has introduced legislation to impose an additional tax on personal income in Quebec province for the 1958 calendar year.

In a bill tabled Wednesday in the legisla.ure, an additional three-per-cent tax was proposed to take an extra increase in the amount the federal government permits Quebec taxpayers to deduct from federal income taxes for provincial purposes.

The federal increase was to 13 from 10 per cent. The Quebec provincial income tax imposed in 1954 remains unchanged, averaging 13 per cent of the federal tax on personal income.

Quebec is the only province with a tax on personal income. Other provinces leased rights to the federal government in return for subsidies, which, April 1, will equal 13 per cent of federal personal income tax collections.

The new tax would apply only to persons taxable under the original 1954 provincial Income Tax Act. It would not change the total tax rates payable by the Quebec taxpayers to the provincial and federal governments.

A federal increase of $100 in exemptions for persons with children, or certain categories of dependents under their care, is also matched by the provincial bill.

New Insignia To Be Conferred By His Holiness

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)— The Pope has established a Grand Collar of the Gold to be conferred on "rulers of peoples and other high authorities," an apostolic letter revealed Wednesday.

It takes precedence over the three existing orders of the 111-year-old papal order of Pius IX—Grand Cross, Commander and Officer—and ranks third among the five papal orders of chivalry.

The new insignia consists of a golden neck-chain adorned with the keys of St. Peter and the triple-crowned tiara, flanked by two doves.

The pope's letter, dated last Dec. 31, said the two highest papal orders of chivalry, the Supreme Order of Christ and the Order of the Golden Spur, "are very closely linked with the Catholic religion" and will be awarded only for very special reasons.

This was taken to mean that the Golden Spur, which unlike the Supreme Order of Christ, has been conferred in rare cases on Protestants, will in future be given only to Roman Catholics.

Good Samaritan Act Is Costly

KITCHENER (CP)—A man's desire to be a good Samaritan became his misfortune today.

While driving on Highway 24, Richard Addley of Galt saw another car stuck in the snow. He applied his brakes to stop and help the other motorist. His car skidded into a tree.

In addition to $125 damage to his car, Addley had to call a tow truck to remove the vehicle.

Prince Edward Brucellosis Control Sought

TORONTO (CP) — Agriculture Minister Goodfellow said today he has asked the federal government to start a program for the control of brucellosis in Oxford and Prince Edward counties.

He said cattle owners in both counties have petitioned the Ontario government to have their counties designated as control areas for a test and slaughter plan.

Calf vaccinations for the control of brucellosis, a disease affecting pregnant cows, has been practised in both counties on a voluntary basis for six years and on a compulsory basis for four years.

Mr. Goodfellow said the Brucellosis Act will remain in force even after a test and slaughter plan has been implemented in a county. Compulsory vaccination would be continued with the province bearing the cost.

The minister said several states have been designated as brucellosis-free, with reactors in less than five per cent of the herds and less than one per cent of the cattle. Canadian cattle can be shipped to these states only from similar disease-free areas.

"This pose a threat to our export trade in breeding cattle and we should take every possible step to protect it."

Judge Reserves Decision in Kennedy Case

OWEN SOUND (CP) — The case of William Lyle Kennedy, who is suing his wife, father-in-law and former lawyer for conspiracy to defraud, wound up Wednesday. Mr. Justice T. G. Ferguson reserved his decision.

The case was in its fourth week. Counsel for Kennedy left for Toronto. He said any further said his client was entitled to would have to be presented in writing.

Toronto lawyer Lewis Duncan said his client was defrauded in a conspiracy to get him out of the way while the Kennedy family farm was sold.

Kennedy brought actions seeking $6,200 from his wife, Pearl, for breach of contract; $3,000 from his former lawyer, W. R. Tomlinson, for negligence and breach of contract and $5,000 from his father-in-law, Edward Chappell. Tomlinson and his wife are conspiring to defraud him.

Another action sought $7,500 from Chappell for the penalty causing the plaintiff to lose the help, labor and consortium of his wife and his company he leave him.

Mr. Duncan told the court that it should consider whether other people were added to the conspiracy along the way.

He suggested that Magistrate Thomas McCrea, who convicted Kennedy on a charge of vagrancy last July 4 and had him committed to a mental hospital for 28 days, might be liable, along with the crown attorney in that case, J. W. Freeborn.

Mr. Justice Ferguson objected to the inclusion of these men, saying Mr. Duncan could criticize them but could go no further.

The petit jury on Feb. 5 found that Kennedy had been falsely accused by Constable Ivan D. Wade on the vagrancy charge and awarded him $1,000 damages.

Similar actions against Magistrate McCrea, Tomlinson and Chappell were dropped or dismissed earlier. Mr. Justice Ferguson withdrew from the jury's decision an action against Freeborn.

Faubus Revokes State Licence Of Colored Body

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Governor Orval Faubus Wednesday revoked the Arkansas state franchise of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People as new reports of racial incidents came out of integrated Central High School here.

Faubus recommended the expulsion of a Negro girl from the trouble-ridden school, saying she had violated an agreement and by that act "made it impossible to halt students' harassment.

Florence Callaway, 15, told reporters she was kicked in the knee by the heel of a Negro girl's shoe as they climbed a stair.

SPURNED APOLOGY

The white girl said Thelma Mothershed, 16-year-old Negro, laughed and continued on her way. The Negro girl later offered to apologize, the white girl said, but she refused to accept the apology.

Jefferson Thomas, 15, reported an unidentified white boy seized him by the throat near the gymnasium and threatened him. The Negro boy said the white student accused him of "bumping into me in the hall."

Faubus signed a proclamation taking the NAACP and about 300 other corporations off the roll of they failed to pay 1957 franchise taxes by a Feb. 1 deadline.

SHIP SHOOTS SELF

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Failing to hit a rocket-propelled anti-submarine weapon crashed back on the United States destroyer Eaton last Thursday and killed a sailor, the navy confirmed Wednesday. The 600-pound weapon, known as Alpha, plunged through the boat deck into the ship's lagroom on the main deck. The weapon was loaded with plaster, not explosives.

GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION

Personalities play a bigger role in politics than we sometimes recognize. Rarely is there a greater contrast in personalities than that provided by the leaders of the three political parties represented in the Ontario Legislature. It is, therefore, particularly noteworthy when we find any subject on which Premier Leslie Frost, Farquhar Oliver and Donald MacDonald are in agreement. When this agreement is on such a touchy question as the role of government boards and commissions, it is particularly newsworthy.

We must hasten to add that the three party leaders have not agreed on what this role should be — that might be approaching the millenium — but only on the desirability of investigating the present status of such commissions and endeavoring to chart a course for their operation in future.

Premier Frost expressed the problem as well as could be asked — "in protecting against politics and political interference care must be taken that bodies are not set up which override the democratic rights of the people."

We might add that in our opinion if there has to be a choice between powers and commissions subject to control by political parties and boards and commissions subject to no control whatever, there can only be one reasonable choice and that choice is the former alternative. In the final analysis the people have some control over political parties and so, through them, would exercise some control over boards and commissions subject to political control.

There are, though, a nest of fields in which boards and commissions operate in which such a roundabout control by the people would produce a condition which would be worse than anything except the existence of boards and commissions which were laws unto themselves.

If possible, we need to work out a technique whereby our representatives in the legislature can, in the words of Donald MacDonald, "act as shareholders and examine the general policies of our government commissions without impairing their efficiency of operation."

The goal is clear enough; the paths by which it can be reached are not so plain. It is too much to hope that the three political parties will agree on the route to be followed, but the inquiry now planned should provide the public with a choice of alternative roads.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

That Chinese resident of Vancouver who was jilted by his mail-order bride is kicking up quite a fuss — understandably so — but he is almost certainly not the first man to find himself in this fix. Men of other nationalities besides Chinese have brought girls they have never seen to Canada to be their brides. Yu Tsui Mee from Hong Kong may be the first Chinese mail-order bride to come with a return address, but surely some of the others have changed their minds after seeing their intended mates.

How many young women come to Canada to wed we do not know. Of course, marriage is probably at the back of the minds of 99 per cent of the single women who immigrate to Canada. We are not thinking of the majority of these immigrants who come here hoping that amongst the blessings they will find in their new homeland are a husband and children and a home of their own. Rather we are referring to those who come here expressly to marry, either men they have known in their native lands or men who have "ordered" them by mail. How many of the young women who come to Canada fall in this class? Are there many, and if there are could this be the explanation for a puzzling phenomena in the most recent statistics issued by the Department of Citizenship and Immigration?

During the full year 1957 there were 154,228 male immigrants and 127,938 female immigrants. But during the last quarter of the year female immigrants outnumbered male immigrants five to four, 21,893 to 16,005. Could it be that the reason there were 7,500 young women between the ages of 20 and 29 entering Canada during the last three months of 1957, compared with only 4,500 men, was that many of the men who had immigrated earlier in the year decided that they knew what they wanted for Christmas? And, of course, if this is an explanation then it is probable that many of the young women were not brides coming to meet lovers but young wives being reunited with husbands.

TIME TO CHEER

When the days are gloomiest,
That is the time to try
To wear your brightest, sunniest
smile,
Not when the sun is high.
When the clouds are grayest and
The sun dissdains to shine,
It only makes the day seem worse
If man is heard to whine.

It doesn't help a man a bit
To cheer him when he's up;
But kindly words have wondrous
power
When sorrow fills his cup.
He'll happy be, when fortune comes,

No matter what you say;
But Oh! he needs your help and
love
When all his clouds seem gray.

The dark days are the days to smile,
Likewise, the men to cheer
Are those whom sad misfortune claims;
Not those whose skies are clear.
That man who's up requires no help,
For he has gained the crown.
So save your cheers to help the man
Still fighting, though he's down.

In Search of Fitness

Royal Bank of Canada Monthly Letter.

Are we content to be merely "men of business," or do we wish to be healthy, wealthy and wise? Instead of answering "not so bad" when someone asks us, "How do you feel?", do we wish to reply with an enthusiastic "grand!"?

We are well acquainted with the toll of sickness, the serious, sometimes fatal, consequences of neglect of physical care, the smartness of being half well. Let us try, now, to accustom ourselves to the thought and experience of health and fitness as "business men, sirs, are among the most practical practitioners of health habits, for they are able administrators, well-informed about competent operations, excellent in work systems, and lowest of strength in production, but they tend to be careless and thoughtless with regard to their fitness and neglectful of their responsibility to see that their families learn to enjoy physical effort.

We no longer believe that disease is the result of invading pagan gods, or that it is spread by night air, or that it can be cured by blood-letting. But what are we doing effectively with our present knowledge of how to stay well in these days of pressure?

It is true that by paying taxes we support public services which set up health safeguards, but they cannot do everything for us. Quarantine and isolation and immunization contribute to certain evidences of protection for us from certain diseases. Surely our ambitious minds can find a way to use the state to work toward.

When we raise our standards of physical fitness higher than mere freedom from contagious disease, we find that we are in the realm of personal effort. The responsibility for physically positive good health is upon us individually.

The aim of hygiene is very simple; perhaps that is why it is often neglected or despised. Cleanliness, wholesome diet, moderation in drink and drugs, exercise according to one's needs and strength, and mental attitudes of cheerfulness, hopefulness and calmness: these are the basic laws of health.

The art of healthful living is not being carried into action by people in North America today, for it is being taught effectively to the citizens of tomorrow.

This statement is made on the authority of a report that shocked President Eisenhower into appointing special committee two years ago. The report was that of Dr. Hans Kraus, of the Institute of Rehabilitation, New York University, and Miss Ruth Prudden, of the Institute for Physical Fitness at White Plains, New York. It asserted that the youth of today are the most pitiably deceiving the softest nation in the world.

The tests he held facts revealed by Dr. Kraus: 58 percent of United States children were tested failed in one or more of six tests for muscular strength and flexibility, while only 9 per cent of the European children failed. Overall failed, 44 percent in the United States failed in the one flexibility test (of back muscles) included in the six tests, against only 8 percent of the European children. 38 percent of the United States children failed to pass any two of the five strength tests, compared with only 1 per cent in Europe. Three of these tests, compared with only 1 per dominal muscles, and two the muscles.

There are black-figure entries in our health ledger as well as these red-figure ones. Our balance is fairly struck, said Dr. F. G. Robertson of the Royal Bank, when a study of 12 percent rate of failure among the students. But when physical education teachers added specific exercises to the curriculum — exercises of tumbling and gymnastics. Within five months the rate of failure fell from 12 per cent, and in 11 months it had dropped to 13 per cent.

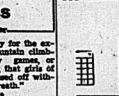
For the first time in Canada's history we have a statistical statement of the causes of illness by age groups. It is given in a report published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in October, of which the following is a very brief extract:



Children under 15 years of age reported a high incidence of the diseases of the respiratory system, and after those came infective and parasitic diseases. Many of the respiratory system dominated in all age groups.

Adolescents, 15 years to 24, were afflicted by diseases of the digestive system, every tenth person having at least one attack.

Young adults, 25 years to 44, following with a rather low rate for persons under 25 years of age, began to show the development of riders and fractures, which became more acute in the age group from 9 to 22 illnesses per 1,000 population.

Middle-aged persons, 45 to 64, showed the increasing prominence of the diseases of the bones and organs of movement, about 42 per 1,000. Diseases of the circulatory were also counted, the rates would be 80 persons and 105 illnesses per 1,000. Diseases of the circulatory

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

At the inaugural meeting of the Belleville Parks Board the officers elected are: Charles H. Symons, who has occupied the position for a number of years, presided and the following officers were elected: chairman, Charles H. Symons; vice-chairman, Charles J. Symons, chairman of the horticulture committee; Ed. I. Shapiro, exhibition park chairman with associates, ex officio, Mayor Jackson Bone and C. H. Clapp and ex officio member Councillor W. J. Wood-ley. Fred Wiggins was re-elected secretary-treasurer. The new members of the Board are ex-Ald. Clarence Clapp, ex. Ald. Thomas Cullen and Councillor Callaghan. The Belleville Parks Board has under its control some 30 acres in public parks. Besides the care of these public parks, it is also looked after the city's residential streets upon which grow the city's trees and the supervision of the construction of the Board and much work is expended annually in an effort to have the trees trimmed, and healthy. This year the effort to have Victoria Park properly lighted will be renewed. The Board has endeavored to have this done for three years or more and the members hope to be successful in doing so this year.

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Springer Lock Manufacturing Company Limited was held at the company's offices on Coleman St. The statement of last year's business was very satisfactory and so far this year business has been excellent, a seven per cent dividend was declared on the first preference stock and ordered to be paid. The following directors were elected: H. J. Wallbridge, Dr. O. A. Marshall, Major A. E. Bywater and Major J. E. Sills. At a later meeting of the directors the following officers were elected: president, Wallbridge; vice-president, W. C. Springer; vice president, C. I. White; secretary - treasurer, Major A. Bird.

system also begins to be important at this age.

Persons 65 and over suffered most frequently from diseases of the circulatory system and diseases of the bones and organs of movement. There were 146 new and recurring attacks of the former and 67 of the latter per 1,000 population.

It is evident that anything that can be done in childhood and adolescence to encourage physical development to help top quality in the bone, joint and muscle structure of the body will be of great benefit in the years of middle and later stages.

Also to encourage physical fitness in childhood should be sought only because it will be beneficial in later life. It is of benefit here and now.

Accidents kill more children of school age than all diseases put together, and, says Dr. Plewes, most of these unfortunate accidents fall within one or more of these categories: they are accidents of speed, they are slow reactors, or they are clumsy because of poor muscular coordination, and some because of lack of basic movement skills. "They are physical illiterates".

"We're paying the price of progress", says Dr. Plewes. "The old order generation was tougher because, it had to undergo adequate physical activity in the normal routine of living. Let's take the sting out of progress."

One way is to get out of our seats. "We Canadians," Dr. Robertson told the Conference on Physical Fitness, "are a nation of riders and spectators, not walkers or active physical participants."

We sit at our desks in school or office all day: we sit on the bus or train or in our automobiles while going to and from school or work; we sit before our television sets, in the stands at hockey, baseball and rugby games; we sit in our cars or on buses on our way to the theatre, where we sit again to watch a play or a movie. We sit in the home, where no housewife will admit work is too much trouble, and a lot of sitting as washing machines, dryers, ironers and the rest do jobs that formerly exercised leg, back and arm muscles. These new tools have to be used with some other kind of vigorous activity.

We in Canada have fallen behind other countries in being aware of the importance of physical and mental efficiency. Canada is the only country of any size in the world that has been an active branch of the International Federation of Sports Medicine. Other countries devote considerable funds and personnel to the development and maintenance of muscular fitness, and conduct a great deal of research into the problems.

On this point Dr. Plewes commented: "A Canadian launch could do much to bring the know-how of top-flight scientists in all related fields to bear on urgent problems of physical efficiency."

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

How's Your Digestion and Nutrition?

In a series of newspaper articles on dental health, by a dentist who is dean of a dental school, the views of the profession of oral pathology at Harvard, recently set forth in the scientific American, are reviewed with approval. The professor stated that the true cause of tooth decay remains obscure.

What! After all this everlasting brushing with soap, powder, odor-destroying soap, our teeth may still decay.

The Harvard professor mentioned several theoretical causes of tooth decay which are being investigated by research, such as the role of heredity, the role of endocrine glands, the role of the saliva, the role of vitamin and — or mineral deficiencies in general nutrition, and finally, the role of germs and food accumulations on and between the teeth.

I am a little ashamed to say that this extraordinary acknowledgment of the truth by the Harvard professor or oral pathology, endorsed by the Southern California dental profession and his dental society makes me chuckle. But right away I think of all the poor souls who never, never forget to brush their teeth many times a day—then for a moment I feel sorry — but not for long. These same demon tooth brushers are the poor souls who get proper dental, mouth, oral hygiene, that is, regular examination and treatment by the dentist—which, brush or no brush is the only way one can insure one's teeth.

The teeth of the inhabitants of Pantan de Cambo Peru, when I was there eight years ago) had the finest teeth in the world, looked as clean as, but no cleaner than any well brushed teeth I ever saw. They never brushed their teeth.

Another chuckle, say, a belly laugh about oral hygiene hokum is choked off by sympathy for the unhappy children who are put through a ridiculous "tooth brush drill" by teacher, nurse or hygienist.

I do not mean to imply that ordinary brushing does any harm, although the use of a sterile new tooth brush each time seems more cleanly than the use of the same old toothbrush day after day for weeks and months.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FELLOW FEELING

Until we are adequately equipped to praise or censure, we have little use for quality — or low feeling.

Usually people criticize the things in others which are very glaringly evident in themselves.

And as easily do we sympathize with those whose sympathy overlooks our touches sore.

Feelings which we share with others must of very necessity be low. It is the high, the rare, the other fellow.

Understanding is feeling — for low feeling.

And it is this fellow feeling — which is a network of power everywhere — that makes us and keeps us human and humane.

If you are large in fellow feeling, you are sure to easily and quickly forget the faults and failures in others. For you are seeing yourself worked out!

It is only when we see the flaws in our friend all too soon. The spirit of an act is so much greater than the act-entire. One's vast character is so much finer than any particular effect.

So frequently a man is appraised quickly for his social or business standing. As though tech, or clothing, or coat of arms, or fortune, or power, is a fitting key to with the size or calibre of a man's heart or brain.

Fellow feeling alone is able to link the world into a social unit lasting and perfect.

When folks get down to feeling with the other fellow, instead of on him, there will be real progress, and there need then be no fear of world chaos.

The job is up to us all. Will you join?

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY. CLARK

Some of the large stores maintain parking lots on or about their premises for the convenience of shoppers. They make a charge for parking fee. And this is justifiable; otherwise all kinds of people in the area, in no way concerned with shopping, would use the parking lot as a free facility, and lets you in and out for a normal half hour visit. A quarter is the average fee.

I was driving out the other day with my fifteen cent piece ready in the car ahead of me, departing, with a fine Cadillac with a uniformed chauffeur. It paused at the gate, the gateman leaned in and saluted kindly, and let them pass without paying.

"Obo" I said, as I paid my fifteen cent, "You let some of us free, eh?"

"Well", explained the gateman, "that's a regular customer. She raised cain with the store. Why, she threatens I should I pay for the privilege of shopping in your store? So we got instructions to let her park free. She really does come in here pretty regular, too."

Naturally, as I drove away, I reflected that there are various kinds of getting Cadillacs. And one of them is to look out for the fifteen cents.

They do add up.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

THE GOAL

You may never be able to attain your goal, but it will be a worthy goal. Said one, "Be ye perfect." No one ever has been perfect, but the whole race has been made better by the perfect example. Unless we aim at perfection we shall probably not escape mediocrity in which we can take the least pride.

Setting a goal is not the whole of the story. Almost everybody has a goal. One may not be proud of a goal, but almost certainly one has a goal just the same. Down in the secret of the hearts every one of us desires something, wants to be or to do. Some accomplished — in other words, has a goal.

The great question, however, is "What kind of a goal?" Is it of petty little something which after we get it will be so disappointing that it will make us sick to think about it? Is it something like Ananias in us and ends in us alone? Is it one dimensional? Is it one dimensional? — perhaps even four dimensional? Is it big enough to satisfy us? Is it so we are big enough to be worthy of it?

The Bible has a good word about this, and here it is. It is found in the 11th chapter of Hebrews: "Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before Him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God."

CONTROVERSIAL ART

Some leading Canadian traditional artists have criticized the paintings Canada is sending to the Brussels World Fair in April as not representative of Canadian art. One traditionalist, Manly Macdonald, has described the collection as a "rehash of foreign abstract painting."

Donald W. Buchanan of the National Gallery in Ottawa, who helped select the paintings, says they emphasize Canadian life, activity, culture and social development. He describes as "expressionistic" the above painting "The Bonspiel," by Kenneth Lochhead of the Regina College of Art, one of the Brussels collection. The reversed figure on the back of the curler in foreground is as in the original.

Mr. Buchanan says there are only six "non-figurative" painters — a term he prefers to "abstract" — among Canada's 22 contributors: Jean-Paul Mousseau, Jean-Paul Riopelle, Emil Borduas, Montreal; William Ronald, Harold Town, Toronto; and Takao Tanabe, Vancouver. (CP Photo).

Britain Now Making Own Hydrogen Bombs

LONDON (CP) — The government announced today that Britain is developing a ballistic rocket "more advanced" than the Americans now possess, and is designing it for launching from underground sites.

The government defence statement also said Britain now is making her own hydrogen bombs and is delivering them to the RAF.

In the annual defence report to Parliament, the government said Britain's strategic bomber force, equipped to carry these bombs, would provide a "mobile and flexible form of military power."

While based in Britain, its four-jet bomber aircraft could be transferred within a few hours to stations overseas and could fly as high and as fast as any bombers in service anywhere.

Alberta Pilot Is Found Dead

EDMONTON (CP) — Federal returning officer Earl Wright of Paxon, Alta., was found dead Wednesday in the wreckage of his light plane by the edge of an unnamed lake in Northern Alberta.

An RCAF para-rescue team which dropped to the scene of the wreck after it was discovered by an air force Dakota said Wright, about 40, had been alone in the plane. An earlier report indicated a person accompanied him when he left Desmarais after refuelling Monday.

The aircraft had been unreported since leaving Desmarais. Wright, who owned the plane, had obtained his pilot's licence only a week ago.

H.S. Annual 'At Home' Dance Well Attended

TWEED — Tweed High school held its annual 'At Home' dance on Friday night, and a capacity crowd packed the auditorium for the "social event of the term."

The young couples were greeted at the door by Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Burns, Miss Denise Cadwell and "Bob" Montgomery.

Dan Fairman's orchestra of Belleville, provided music for the gala formal dance.

The auditorium was decorated in an oriental style with Chinese lanterns strung around a 12 - foot wide, aluminum foil Chinese hat. The hat, designed by the principal, Mr. Hamilton, had a cone centre which was filled with balloons which were sealed in until the cap was taken off during the evening and balloons drifted out to add still more color to the lavish decorations.

The balloon dance was won by Miss Marion Lynn and Frank Thompson, and the spot dance was won by Miss Barbara Dillon and Gary Dion.

Buffet style refreshments were served in the foyer and in one of the new class rooms.

All the proceeds from the dance will be used to make improvements in the school.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

MARRIAGE NOTICE

BUSHNELL—BROOKS—On Friday, February 7, 1958, at St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill by the Reverend Arthur Page, Pictou, Jean Daisy Brooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Brooks, Belleville, to Alan Bushnell, also of Belleville. Mr. and Mrs. Bushnell are residing at Maple Court, Bridge Street.

• • •

Miss Bonnie Rowe, of Frankford, pupil of Mr. Egerton Boyce, has been successful in passing with honors her grade VI singing examination.

• • •

Miss Marilynne Thurgood, a granddaughter of Mrs. J. E. Taylor, attended a surprise birthday party for her grandmother on Sunday at the Pringle Nursing Home.

• • •

Mrs. Ferne Spencer, Foxboro, and Private Lieutenant Eugene Spencer of Trenton and Mr. Carl Spencer of Oakville attended the funeral of the late Mr. Carl Spencer in Rochester on Wednesday.

EUCHRE

Eight tables were in play last evening at the Canadian Legion Hall, sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary.

Prize winners were: ladies, — Mrs. D. Devolin, Mrs. B. Bowes, and Mrs. A. Devolin; men, W. Coles, E. Dafoe, Mrs. L. Quirt, (playing as a man).

Wedding

HASLER — YANCH

St. Paul's Anglican Church, Flinton, Ontario, was the setting for a pretty early spring wedding, when Carolyn Beatrice Yanch, of Flinton, Ontario, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elwin Yanch became the bride of Bruce Wilfred Hasler, also of Flinton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hasler. The Reverend E. E. Hamer, of Tweed, officiated.

Mrs. Arthur Carkner, of Lindsay, formerly of Flinton, presided at the console of the organ and accompanied Mr. Carkner, who sang, " A Marriage Hymn," and "O Perfect Love," during the ceremony.

The lovely bride wore a ballerina-length gown of white nylon and velvet, featuring a fine skirt gathered to the fitted velvet bodice dotted with sequins, enhanced with matching velvet bolero having long, sheath-like sleeves, lily-pointed over the wrists. She wore an elbow-length veil caught to a matching bandeau studded with sized pearls, and carried a bouquet of red roses mingled with white chrysanthemums.

Miss Patricia Salmond, as maid of honor, was attired in blue nylon net over taffeta with ballerina skirt, matching bolero and headdress. She carried pink carnations and white 'mums.

Mr. Glen York, of Kaladar, Ontario, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Fred Hasler, of Flinton, brother of the bridegroom, ushered the guests.

Following the ceremony, a wedding supper was served at the Kaladar Hotel, and later in the evening a reception and dance was held in the Flinton Community Hall, which was decorated with wedding bells and pink and white streamers.

The bridegroom's mother received, gowned in navy blue with matching accessories, and corsage of pink carnations.

For the wedding trip, the bride chose a brown tweed ensemble with brown velvet trim; pink hat and gloves and brown shoes and purse. Her corsage was of white carnations.

Guests attended from Toronto and Lakefield.

Mr. and Mrs. Hasler are residing in Oshawa, Ontario.

Women's Activities

W.M.S. AFTERNOON AUX.

WOOLER — The Afternoon Auxiliary of the Woman's Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. Edward Nelson with the president, Mrs. Newcomb, in the chair. Mrs. A. G. Austin, secretary, gave the minutes and business session and report of activities in the months to follow.

The president read a passage of Scripture and asked for voluntary prayers.

Mrs. Alden Arthur conducted the worship service with Mrs. Angus Gunter reading the Scripture, and Mrs. Lloyd Bell accompanied the hymns on her accordion.

Those who attended the Cobourg Presbyterial at Cobourg laid how they were impressed by the meetings.

Mrs. Alden Arthur said the word need was more important than allocation.

"The best way for a woman to serve is to give, and when one doesn't know what to do, pray. We must have vision."

The subject, "What Doth the Lord Require of Thee" was given by Miss Wilna Thomas of Toronto.

St. Andrew's WMS Hears Talk on 'Japan'

The February meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. was held on Tuesday afternoon in the church auditorium with the president presiding.

The welcome and welfare committee reported 20 calls to the sick and shut-ins.

There was a duet entitled "Christ Lord Jesus," by Hugh Bondy and Francis Rose with Mrs. Boyce at the piano.

Mrs. Kane had the worship period, with Mrs. Yorke, Mrs. Bondy, Mrs. Elvidge and Mrs. Moore assisting. The theme of the worship service was "A Light In the Darkness."

JAPAN

"From the dawn of Japanese history the two nations of Japan and Korea and their peoples have been closely associated. For a thousand years prior to the 16th century there was a steady influx of Korean immigrants into Japan. Repeatedly, military expeditions set out from Japan to subdue Korea. Some of these campaigns ended in disaster and the battle scars still remain after nearly 400 years.

"The Canadian Presbyterian mission conducted a survey of the Korean situation in Japan in October 1927. In the delegation was Dr. Rev. Luther Young, veteran missionary from Korea.

"The work prospered until in 1941 there were five missionaries, 23 ordained, 15 evangelists and 28 Bible women serving the Korean church, twenty-two of the congregations were self-supporting and 58 places of meeting were in use, with a total number of 6,398 Christians in the Korean church in Japan.

"Since 1950 the Korean church in Japan has, under the blessing of God, developed again into a strong and vigorous church. The example of faithful and devoted giving and Christian service on the part of the Korean Christians is an inspiration to all of us.

PERIOD OF EXPANSION

"The Korean church in Japan is beginning a period of expansion which may be beyond our vision at the moment. During the recent meeting of the Presbyteries and General Assembly there has been a deep feeling of thanksgiving to God for His goodness and provision in making possible the restoration of a church from the ruins."

"Because of the influence of Communism in the South Korean Church in Japan is destined to play an increasingly important rule in molding the future of the Korean population in the land of their adoption."

After the meeting closed, refreshments were served by Mrs. Kane and her group.

Background Costume

By VERA WINSTON

Dark grey silk is effectively used for a good through-the-day dress with matching jacket. The frock has a simple sleeveless basice with a square neckline. Three unpressed pleats bell the skirt. Jacket closes with matching buttons and ties in a small bow at the waist. A good costume with matching accessories for the monochrome look, it will also background the beautiful citrus shades now in high style.

Club Activities

C.A.'s

FRANKFORD — The C.A.'s of the Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle held their meeting in the church on February 7 at 8 p.m. with the president, Carl Andrews, presiding.

A vocal duet was rendered by Miss Rhonda Payne and Miss Marlene Wilson.

Miss Elva Locklin, home on furlough from the Holy Land, brought a short message on "How Did I Go To Nazareth," and showed colored films on her work.

Carl Andrews thanked Miss Locklin.

Refreshments were served.

VETERAN DANCERS

HANOVER, Ont. (CP) — Thomas Henry Brigham, 59, was the caller at a square dance at a birthday party held in his honor. He also danced with his 86-year-old sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Livingstone of Toronto.

Twenty B. G. H. First Year Nurses Receive Their Caps

The annual "Capping Ceremony" for the first-year student nurses of the Belleville General Hospital School of Nursing was held on Monday evening at the YMCA. Guests were greeted by the nursing staff of the hospital.

The program commenced with Rev. E. Smith, Christ Church, leading in prayer. Greetings were conveyed to the student nurse body by Miss Fiskle, president, Women's Hospital Auxiliary; Miss E. Boyce, president of the Belleville General Hospital Alumnae; Miss B. McCubbin, president, Student Nurse Association and Miss M. L. Pearl, Director of Nursing. The student nurse choir, under the direction of Mr. A. Evans, rendered two selections.

The remarks extended by Mr. Smith were most stimulating. He spoke of the service the nursing profession offers to fellow men and the worthy contribution the girls are able to make to the community.

The nurses received their caps from their "big sisters" in the School of Nursing. Those capped were: Misses Marion Broad-worth, R.R. 1, Harold; Nancy Chumbley, 45 Graham Street, Belleville; Marjorie Cliff, Inverary, Ontario; Gordenia Cummins, R.R. 1, Carrying Place; Donna Donnan, R.R. 2, Stirling; Donna Grieve, Camborne, Ontario; Ellen Hanthorn, Carrying Place; Judith Holgate, 1 Crestview Avenue, Belleville; Shirley Howes, R.R. 2, Carrying Place; Judith Hoy, R.R. 6, Brighton; Marjorie Ketchenson, R.R. 4, Consecon; Doris Mallett, 943 Ontario Street, Cobourg; Marilyn McFee, Herchimer Avenue, Trenton; Doris Marie Palmer, 163 King Street, East, Bowmanville; Joan Plante, 17 Laird Drive, Trenton; Dorothy Pipe, 14 Purdy Street, Belleville; Marilyn Potter, 105 Humewood Drive, Belleville; Gail Scriven, 171 Dundas Street East, Trenton; Elsie Seward, R.R. 2, Carrying Place and Rose Anne Vanervoort, R.R. 3, Stirling.

Assisting were Mrs. M. Hookings, Associate Director of Nursing Education and Miss M. Kilpatrick, Nursing Arts Instructor.

CANADIAN AWARD

Miss M. Waters presented "The Canadian Nurse Award" to Miss Nancy Chumbley, for having received the highest grade in clinical experience and theory.

Gideon Bibles were presented to the nurses by the Women's Auxiliary of the local Gideon Association.

A delightful social hour concluded the evening. Miss E. Hutchinson, Associate Director of Nursing Service, and Mrs. M. Barrett, health supervisor, presided at the decorative tea table.

Elinor Boyce received guests at the door.

The hostesses in the lounge were: Mrs. Doris Howle and Mrs. Bessie Bonter.

Those pouring coffee were Miss Margaret Perry, Mrs. Ida Campbell, Mrs. Emma Dowsett and Miss Olive Fulton.

Members of Alumnae, who were responsible for the food and arrangements were: Mrs. Isobelle McGee, Mrs. Una Buchanan, Mrs. Mary McCreary, Miss Margaret Kilpatrick and Mrs. Doris Howle.

STILL ACTIVE

SARNIA Ont. (CP) — Mrs. James Daly of nearby Forest marked her 92nd birthday with her family of three sons, a daughter, nine grandchildren and a member of her church group, Mrs. Daly says she was knocking forward to many more happy birthdays.

Graduate Nurses Entertained by Alumnae

The graduate nurses of Belleville and district were entertained at a "Valentine Coffee" on Tuesday evening by the Belleville General Hospital Nurses' Alumnae.

The lounge of the Ritchie memorial residence was colorfully decorated in the theme of Valentine's Day.

The centre of attraction was the serving table, which was festive with its floral piece of red and white carnations and candelabra with red candles.

Graduate nurses were present from various branches of nursing: The Victorian Order of Nurses; The Public Health Department; Red Cross; Occupational Health and the Nurses' Registry, also many out-of-active nurses. Mrs. Marilyn Arnold (nee Hopping) from Saskatoon, Saskatchewan was also present.

Miss Joyce Inch, Mrs. Dorothy Taylor, Mrs. Mabel Beare, Miss Jean

Kiwanis L.A. Sponsors Fine Valentine Party

Entwined red and white garlands, lovers' knots, lacey hearts and little red cupids with bows and arrows combined to form a pretty setting at the Kiwanis Centre yesterday afternoon for the Valentine bridge and tea sponsored by the Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary.

Both auditoriums were filled to capacity with guests whose happy murmurings testified to the pleasantness of the afternoon.

Receiving at the door were the president of the Auxiliary, Mrs. Leonard Reid, and Mrs. C. Lusk, wife of the president of the Kiwanis Club, while Mrs. B. Quincey was the recipient of tickets.

The tea table in the lower auditorium was delightfully arranged with an ecru shade, centred by a vase of large yellow chrysanthemums.

SERVING

Those who served the charmingly arranged plates of heart shaped sandwiches and tiny cakes, decked by a lacey centre adorned with a tiny red heart or cupid, were: Mesdames J. Griffith, R. Irvine, R. Clapp, H. Trepanier, A. Duffy, A. C. McConnell, C. Lloyd, E. Morris, K. Burton, J. Black, P. Emerson, J. Lusk and K. Cook.

Mrs. A. Dustin convened the kitchen, with Mrs. L. Tripp, and assistants, Mesdames P. Domenico, M. Cooper, M. Stanton, E. Ino, M. Clegg, Mrs. A. Finkle and L. Walton.

A hamper of groceries, which would go to the holder of the lucky ticket, was conveyed by Mrs. B. Quincey, Mrs. A. Lloyd and Mrs. B. Walton, went to Mrs. D. Seibert. The door prize went to Mrs. E. S. Fairman and the bridge prizes to Mrs. G. S. Maund, Mrs. A. Hart, and the hidden score to Mrs. L. Blaker.

Mrs. L. Hyde presided at the tea-urer for the afternoon.

There were 23 tables in the upper auditorium and 13 tables in the lower, culminating in a most successful bridge with commendation to the convener, Mrs. Ken Burkett, and co-convener, Mrs. W. Cook.

Party Torte

By Mary Moore

When I go to work and take a hour or two to make a fancy for a celebration, I lament fact that folks expect fruit ice cream or both to be served with it.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

Laura's Fondue (see Wednesday); Fresh Frozen Green Limas; Shoestring Harvard Beets; Generous Tossed Salad; Rosy Baked Rhubarb; Warm Gingerbread; Coffee.

SUNDAY
(Guests)

Baked Chicken Supreme; Apple Jelly; Broccoli; Popovers; Tomato and Cabbage Salad Molds on Lettuce Cups; Cheese French Dressing; Party Torte (see Thursday); Coffee.

When I make what I fondly term a masterpiece cake it should stand alone. This cake will! I can be proud without blushing for I had a strong assist from Eleanor. I think I am one of the luckiest of food columnists for I have a secretary who can cook too.

PARTY TORTE

One and one-half cups each boiling water and pitted dates chopped, 1 teaspoon each baking soda, rum extract, vanilla, 1/2 cup chopped nuts (preferably Brazils), 6 tablespoons each soft butter and shortening (or if desired 1/2 cup shortening and 1/4 cup butter), 1 1/2 cups medium sugar, 2 egg yolks, 2 whole 2 1/3 cups sifted cake flour, 1/2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt. Put dates in medium mixing bowl, pour boiling water over and add the nuts and soda. Cream the butter and shortening until light, then cream the sugar into them until all is light. Add the whole eggs and the egg yolks and beat well again. Add flavoring. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt and add them alternately, 1/3 at a time, with the date mixture, being sure it is cooled to room temperature. Pour into three buttered and floured 8" layer cake tins with paper on bottom only. Spread evenly. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 35 or 43 minutes or until they test firm when touched with finger tip. Let stand 5 minutes before removing from pans. Cool cake racks. Spread unsweetened whipped cream between on top of layers and sides. You will need a little more than 1/2 pt. I swiped some from the top of a cream top bottle. Sprinkle top generously with shaved or chopped nuts — Brazils, almonds and filberts are all good. Chill well before serving. This amount serves 12 people generously.

If this party cake intrigues you, and I hope it will, you could make it for a Valentine party and decorate the outside edge with well drained sliced maraschino cherries, overlapping or so close together they touch. Very effective.

READER CONSIDERS GREENBACK SHOWERS "REVOLTING"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I've just received an invitation to a "Greenback Shower", to be given for a girl I know only slightly, she having worked in my office only a short time before she gave up her position to be married. Not only do I not know her well, but I think asking people to bring money-gifts to a shower is revolting, and also that this name "Greenback Shower" makes the shower sound like a "commercial stunt". Practically all the girls in our office and I think that's just what it is. When she worked in our office we used to wonder what kind of friends she had ... now the "Greenback Shower" tells us. Since the chances are that none of us will be meeting this girl in the future, do you think we should make an effort to go to the shower, take her a money-gift (if so, how much? — the invitation doesn't say), and let it go at that? Or ose't you approve of my point of view? — Office-Worker

I completely approve of your point of view I agree with you that you shouldn't have been invited to this shower, since you are not a friend of the bride-to-be, actually only a casual acquaintance. Also I agree with you that it's a low in taste to ask guests to bring money-gifts to a shower. And I entirely agree with you that the name "Greenback Shower" makes he shower sound like a "commercial stunt", which undoubtedly is just what it is. There absolutely no reason why you and your co-workers should make any effort to go to the shower, no reason to give a money-present. If you decide not to go, simply write a polite note of regret.

THANK-YOU NOTES MUST BE WRITTEN FOR MEMORIAL CONTRIBUTIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Mr. brother died recently, and because he was deeply interested in a certain local charity, worked hard in lis behalf and donated generously to it, we thought we would word the death notice that in lieu of flowers contributions to this charity might be sent in his memory. Relatives, and friends have been very generous about this suggestion, and the charity informs us the givers' names, saying they have acknowledged the contributions. I thought their acknowledgment was sufficient, but my mother and father disagree with me, and are insisting that I write a thank-you note to each giver-of-a contribution. Is this really necessary. — Sister

Yes, really necessary. You or some other member of your family should write a thank-you note to everyone who gave a contribution in memory of your brother. If writing these is too much a burden, and a strain on you, after all the responsibilities I judge you have had, it is entirely proper for you to ask a kind and understanding friend to write these notes for you. The thank-you notes may be brief, but they should express sincere appreciation for this generous memorial gesture to your brother.)

WEDDING USHER SHOULD OFFER RIGHT ARM TO WOMAN GUEST

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A says that an usher at a wedding should always offer his right arm to a woman guest. B says there is no definite rule about this, and that the usher may offer either arm. Who is right about this? — Groom-to-be

A is right about this. B is offbase in what he says. You, as the groom-to-be, should make it definite to each of your ushers that he should always offer his right arm to a woman guest.

Chemise Dress

BY GRACE THORNCLIFFE

The nautical-type chemise dress looms large in the present resort picture and looks like a winner for summer resorts as well. The fabric is rayon with a linen look, white for the body of the dress, navy for collar and bands down each side, with white lacings for good measure. White pearl buttons close the top.

Mrs. L. S. — Jane's life is slipping down the drain, Mrs. L. Jane S. But I've tried everything!

Mrs. L. S. — My husband and I are in despair about our youngest daughter Jane. She made a bad marriage ten years ago when she was only 19 and evidently has never gotten over it.

Jane's marriage lasted only a year. She was miserable every minute of it and now says she never even thought that she was in love with her husband. She says she just took the step to please us and because all her friends were getting married.

Now Jane keeps looking for "the real thing" but she never seems to find it. She belongs to dozens of clubs and keeps going to resorts and social get-togethers to meet men. Many have been attracted to her, but she gets bored after a few dates. Meantime her life is slipping down the drain.

Jane S. — All I hear from my mother is how my best years are slipping away. As if I didn't know it! But what can I do? Risk making another mistake? I know only too well that marriage can be a nightmare if there is no love.

It seems to me my parents should appreciate the fact that I have not retreated into a shell. I'm writing these is too much a burden, and a strain on you, after all the responsibilities I judge you have had, it is entirely proper for you to ask a kind and understanding friend to write these notes for you. The thank-you notes may be brief, but they should express sincere appreciation for this generous memorial gesture to your brother.)

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A says that an usher at a wedding should always offer his right arm to a woman guest. B says there is no definite rule about this, and that the usher may offer either arm. Who is right about this? — Groom-to-be

A is right about this. B is offbase in what he says. You, as the groom-to-be, should make it definite to each of your ushers that he should always offer his right arm to a woman guest.

The Council: It is unfortunate that both Jane and her mother have taken the position that every minute spent unwed spells life slipping down a drain. It was this obsession that led to Jane's first disastrous marriage and it is probably one of the chief factors keeping her from a second marriage.

The truth is that Jane's life is indeed slipping away — but only because she and her mother insist upon eliminating all activity other than anxiously peering and waiting for "the real thing". This watched kettle will never boil.

Jane will point to her many clubs and social activities. But by her own admission these things bore her. This can only mean that she contributes nothing to these activities and takes nothing out of them. She merely carries her body to a specified location and watches for the kettle to boil — that is, desirable men to materialize.

A young woman so totally devoid of interests outside of one obsession must be a mighty dull companion. No wonder she finds so many men boring! Undoubtedly they feel the same.

Jane should stop kettle-watching. She needs to become a part of the clubs she joins, to participate wholeheartedly in activities that she enjoys and to travel with an alert and open mind. She can live happily and vividly while the unwatched kettle goes about its own business.

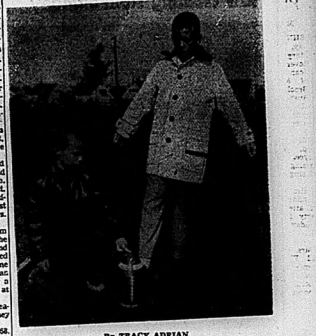
W. A. DINNER

WALLBRIDGE — W. A. monthly pot-luck dinner was held in Wallbridge church hall with a good attendance. The teacher, Mrs. Rukley, and scholars; Mr. Reid teacher at Foxboro, also attended with a number of his scholars, and Mr. Morley Phillips came with a number of helpers, from Foxboro Canning Factory, as well as a number from this neighborhood. All enjoyed a good hot dinner. Mrs. Ivy Ketcheson and Mrs. Harold Garrison were hostesses.

After dinner, the W. A. held its meeting with the new president, Mrs. Douglas Thompson, in the chair.

Mrs. Hudson Ketcheson opened the devotional part. Mrs. Harold Phillips read the Scripture lesson. Mrs. Jim Sine presided as pianist.



Mrs. Thompson opened the business part, with notes of the last meeting given by secretary, Mrs. Cecil Sine.

Cards of thanks were read from Mr. Frank Harris, thanking the members for 'get well' cards and Mrs. Arthur Clare also thanked for being remembered at the time of Mr. Clare's death. Mrs. Allan Spencer added her thanks for a lovely cup and saucer given her at Christmas.

Mrs. Barton Hinchcliffe, treasurer, gave her report of money on hand and dinner proceeds.

Sixteen paid their dues for 1958. Next meeting and dinner to be held the 1st Wednesday in March, with Mrs. B. Hinchcliffe and Mrs. A. Donaldson as hostesses.

Active Sports Jackets

BY TRACY ADRIAN

Though these youngsters are a little out of season for football practice, they couldn't resist a few kick-offs with their new Christmas football.

Both are wearing durable jackets designed for school as well as outdoor sports. The boy at left has a bomber-jacket in cordovan color with a wool-rayon lining. His friend sports a three-quarter varsity coat of white with a black mouton collar. This one also comes in black with a black collar and back with a white collar.

Miss Nellie Clark of Napanee Now Nearing 110th Birthday

MISS NELLIE CLARK

NAPANEE — A lady living in North Frederickburgh, will be 110 years old on March 27. Miss Nellie Clarke was born in Leeds county, England a year before the California gold rush and more than two decades before Canada became a country. Her parents brought her to Canada and settled in Ernestown when she was very young. She has a bright mind.

Until two years ago she was able to get around well by herself. At that time, however, she suffered a broken hip and now spends most of her time sitting in an easy chair or wheel chair.

Miss Clarke is living with Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Howse, RR 1, Napanee, and has been in the home of Mrs. Howse from the time of the latter's childhood.

As a result of a shock she received when as a child she fell through the ice into a creek at Link's Mills in Ernestown, Miss Clarke suffered an impediment in her speech.

Although handicapped in that respect, Miss Clarke spent an active life and until a few years ago was widely respected for her cooking.

For many years she lived at the Cairns Boarding Home at Cannifton. In November, she moved with the Howse family to this district where she is very well looked after by Mrs Howse.

During an interview, Miss Clarke recalled the days of her youth.

As far as the modern times are concerned, Miss Clarke has no use for oil heating and electric stoves. She preferred times when people cooked their food and heated their homes with wood.

Miss Clarke remembers when steam engines burned wood and recalls as a very young child, the building of tracks for the Grand Trunk Railway. In those days, she made candles of tallow dips in her home and carried them with her.

Like many people younger than herself she relives with enjoyable trips on steamers and particularly likes to remember about cruises through the Thousand Islands from Bath.

About politics, she talks with nostalgia through Sir John A. Macdonald, the Tories and the Reform party. "I had quite a time at one," Miss Clarke said.

"I and were Tories. I think," she declared. The last time she visited the polls was in 1949 when she was 102 years old.

Despite her advanced age, she has many old friends left. The acquaintance of her youth in Newmarket. She was the wife of H. E. Hagerman of Bridge street, Kingston, she "must have been quite

Centenary WMS Pay Tribute To Minister

CENTENARY — Centenary church hall was appropriately decorated, Monday evening, when the Women's Association entertained the Ernestown charge of Centenary congregation who had gathered to celebrate and wish the Rev. A. C. MacCallum, their supervising minister, a happy birthday.

After Mr. MacCallum had received the individual congratulations of his friends, everyone partook of a bountiful pot-luck supper featuring the traditional birthday cake.

Mr. Robert Percival was chairman for a short program and led in a sing-song featuring some of Mr. MacCallum's favorite songs. Mrs. Harold Hancock and Eileen played a duet. Mrs. Erwin Hart gave a reading, and Mrs. Percy Sutherland sang.

Mrs. Fred Athens brought the sentiments of the congregation and spoke of the high esteem that Mr. MacCallum holds in the hearts of his friends and congratulated him on reaching another milestone. Mrs. Athens referred to the philosophy by which Mr. MacCallum lived. "All things work together for good who love the Lord." This doctrine he has tried to pass on to his friends. At this time Mrs. Ken Carleton and Mrs. Phil Ray brought in a number of gifts, consisting of a wallet containing money, a brief case and among other things to make his leisure hours more enjoyable, a TV jacket and slippers.

Mr. MacCallum replied, thanking them for the gifts and telling his life story, how he came into the ministry, his coming to Canada, his ministry in the West and how he finally located in the Belleville area. In closing, he used the words of Annie Johnson Flint, "God hath not promised skies always blue, flowers always pathways all our lives through: God hath not promised sun without rain, joy without sorrow, peace without pain. But God hath promised strength for the day, rest for the labor, light for the way, grace for the trials, help from above, unfailing sympathy, undying love."

Mr. Percival then read a poem expressing his feelings on this special occasion.

A most enjoyable evening of fellowship was brought to a close with the Rev. A. C. MacCallum pronouncing the benediction.

CALLS OFF WEDDING

Yu Tsui Mee, 19-year-old from Hong Kong, set Chinatown buzzing in Vancouver when she called off an arranged marriage with Mah Suey Ning, 21-year-old waiter. Miss Yu arrived in Vancouver after a long courtship by correspondence. She refused to go ahead with the wedding because she said their personalities were different. (CP Photo) 1958.

WON'T MARRY

Mah Suey Ning of Vancouver, 21-year-old waiter, has vowed that he will not marry for the rest of his life. He made the vow after Yu Tsui Mee, 19-year-old Hong Kong girl, had called off an arranged marriage, Chinatown leaders said Miss Yu's action was a breach of strict Chinese code and Mah's parents demanded compensation. "Women are all the same — all bad," said Mah. (CP Photo) 1958.

So-Ed Steering Committee Report

By JEAN VICKERS

I attended the monthly meeting of the So-Ed steering committee held at the Y.M.C.A. Tuesday evening. I was impressed with the industriousness of these committees who were sorting and stapling, addressing, stamping and labelling copies of their monthly bulletin known as the So-Ed Steerer in readiness for mailing while they waited for the remainder of the committee to arrive. This steering committee is comprised of the president, Bert Sills; vice-president, Eral Lind; vice-president, Tom Mitchell; and secretary-treasurer, Jean Vickers. In addition to these people, Eunice Thomlinson attended as chairman of the membership and registration committee and Doreen Hollenby as chairman of the advertising and publicity committee.

After the usual format of minutes and financial reports, the group discussed the possibility of attending the Shakespearean Festivals at Stratford this summer; possibly by chartered bus. In preparation, the group instructed the secretary-treasurer to contact Stratford and have So-Ed included on the mailing list.

During the past year, So-Ed has been budgeting a certain percentage of net profit from activities to a leadership training fund. This fund is being formed so that someone from So-Ed who shows aptitude for leadership will be financed by So-Ed to attend the leadership training course held annually at Geneva Park for one week during the summer. Candidates for this training course have yet to be selected by the steering committee.

Active investigations have been under way regarding the forming of a driving school as a spring activity for So-Ed members. Information has been compiled from other Y.M.C.A.'s who have such a course, driving schools, automotive dealers and Provincial Police.

The main topic of discussion for this meeting was the coming spring session which commences on March 12 and runs for eight weeks. A new style of program has been planned for this session which will include skills and craft from 8-9.; discussion groups and a course 9-10.; coffee time 10-10.30, and social from 10.30 to midnight. Planned skills and crafts are: ballroom dancing, handicrafts, photography and possibly swimming instruction. Discussions will be (1) "This Marriage Business," by popular request and (2) general topics of interest to all. There will also be a course on "This Marriage Business" with qualified speakers and a question and answer period. The general topics for discussion will be possibly: one on human relations led by Linton Read; the impact of television on the 30th century led by Harold Bankier; and possibly another on current affairs details of others to be decided.

POSTER POCKETS

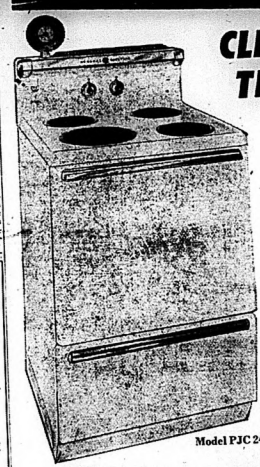
Doreen Holcomby reported that the posters for the session were finished and that a number of them would have pockets in which advertising folders may be put for the convenience of the general public.

The Outdoor Club is planning on trips each Sunday afternoon, one during schools, automotive dealers and Provincial Police.

Will Celebrate 107th Birthday On Friday

PETROLIA (CP) — Mrs. Mary Ford, Petrolia's grand old lady, will celebrate her 107th birthday Friday with a gift of her own to cardiac victims across the country.

That gift is the example she has set during the last 25 years following a severe coronary attack coupled with a stroke at the age of 82.



Mrs. Ford, who arrived in this town 11 miles east of Sarnia from Penzance, England, 80 years ago, offered this advice: "Start looking on the bright side of things, relax and keep an even disposition."

Mrs. Ford is still active and on Sundays regularly sings a clear alto at family sing-songs in her home.

To mark the occasion of her birthday she will help launch Petrolia's campaign for funds for a projected new arena by making the first contribution.

"MAMAN FON FON"

Mme. Claudine Vallerand, better known as "Maman Fon Fon" to thousands of children in Quebec, poses with some of the animal characters she uses on her French-language television show originating in Montreal. Mme. Vallerand receives thousands of letters from children and parents concerning her kindergarten program which features her songs, illustrated stories and special guests. (CP Photo).

Montreal's Maman Fon Fon Wins Hearts of Small Fry

MONTREAL (CP) — Like the pied piper of old, Montreal's Maman Fon Fon has won the hearts of a host of small fry.

Each Saturday morning Quebec province's French - speaking moppets — and many English-speaking ones too — plump down in front of the television screen to see what surprises she has in store.

Maman Fon Fon, otherwise Mme. Claudine Vallerand, with her stories, illustrated stories, special guests—"Anything I can dream up from penguins to cows" — draws from her young audience and their parents ex-pressions of delight in letters that sometimes number 1,000 a day.

"I read every single letter I get," said the photogenic mother of four in an interview. "If I didn't receive those letters I couldn't do the show. Those children are my audience and I imagine them watching me behind those terrible impersonal cameras."

A talent for projecting her personality through the screen is not all that recommends this pretty woman in her late 40s for her role as kindergarten mistress of French-language TV.

Her ambitions to be a doctor or a psychologist thwarted by her old-fashioned father, who said woman's place was in the home, Mme. Vallerand married. Then turned her attention to a career allied with these ambitions.

When aptitude tests showed she had "quite a lot of ability in dealing with children," she began reading psychology under the guidance of an expert.

Her practical application of this reading really began in 1935 when our eldest boy was three. I hunted all over to find a nursery school like the ones I had seen in Europe while visiting friends with my mother.

"Nursery schools were practically unheard of in Montreal. So I decided to found one."

Mme. Vallerand and her manufacturer-husband imported equipment from France and New York and set up a school in the basement of their home in Montreal's fashionable Outremont.

As her reputation became established she began charging fees and hired two girls trained in teaching retarded children. Few nursery school teachers were being trained at that time.

Meanwhile, Mme. Vallerand in 1936 founded a "school for parents," first such organization in the province. The aim was to get fathers and mothers "to assume their responsibilities" in child teaching.

In 1942 she went to the CBC with an idea for a radio school for parents, and the idea was accepted, although the school had to pay expenses. Audience response showed many parents were longing for sound, expert advice, given on the program by doctors or psychologists, she said.

When the CBC in 1955 asked her to do a TV kindergarten, she was doubtful at first, but was soon convinced the medium was interesting to infants.

Now, she says, television has proved its influence. A parent will write to ask her to tell Susanne to stop biting her nails. Madame Fon Fon mentions the child's name, asks her to "do a favor for me," and nearly always succeeds, judging by the letters.

Madoc Junction

MADOC JUNCTION — Mrs. Russell Stapley, of Stirling, spent Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bridges. Mrs. Stapley was able to have an enjoyable visit with Mrs. A. Andrews.

Mrs. Maurice Clancy attended the Belleville Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society annual meeting in Trinity United Church, Napanee, Thursday and Friday, at which Mrs. Lincoln Elliott presided.

Miss Wilma Thomas, M. A., was the speaker at the afternoon and evening sessions, telling of her work while serving as a missionary in Japan.

During the afternoon on Friday, Mrs. Clancy was installed as secretary for Mission Bands in the installation of officers for Belleville Presbyterial.

Eggleton Mission Band received their 3rd year award, also at this same meeting.

Mrs. Bruce Stapley, president of Eggleton WMS and Mrs. Wm. McMullen, attended the morning and afternoon sessions of the Belleville Presbyterial on Friday.

Mr. W. E. McMurray of Sarnia, who has been visiting at the home of Mrs. Carl Clancy, spent Tuesday and Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Clancy and Lloyd.

Mr. and Mrs. William McMullen, Wayne and Keith, also Mr. George McMullen, spent Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geordie Nelson, of Warkworth.

Mr. George McMullt

Mr. George McMullen remained at the home of his daughter, Mrs. G. Nelson and Mr. Nelson for a holiday.

Church service at Eggleton United Church was cancelled due to road conditions and cold weather. There will not be any church service held until February 23rd, when it will be held in the afternoon.

Mr. Murray Martin, in the absence of Mrs. Warren Harlow, Eggleton Sunday School superintendent, presided Sunday morning. There was a small attendance due to the weather conditions.

The regular February meeting of the WMS and WA will be held Thursday at the home of Mrs. Milton Reid at two o'clock.

Miss Grace Clarke spoke Friday evening last at a public speaking contest held at Madoc.

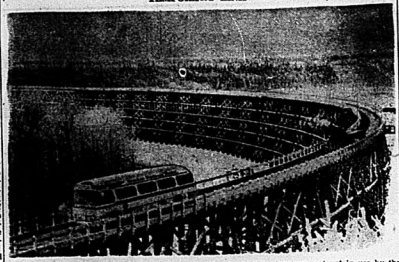
Mr. Carl Reid was elected vice president and Mr. Harold Chambers elected secretary in the new slate of officers for the 4-H Club leaders when the 4-H Club leaders of Hastings county were guests of the Ontario Department of Agriculture at their annual banquet held Thursday night at the Quinte Hotel, Belleville.

Mr. Carl Reid was among the speakers on the morning program of a Junior Farmers meet held in the auditorium at the Kemptville Agricultural School recently. Junior Farmers from Eastern Ontario attended this meeting.

Mr. W. Irwin, Tweed, called Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Clancy.

Denies Reports Queen Mother To Curtail Tour

CANBERRA (AP) — Sir Allen Brown, director-general of the Australian royal visit has said he knows nothing of reports that the Queen Mother's tour of Australia might be curtailed.



Commenting on reports that the Queen Mother is tired from her current New Zealand tour and that Queen Elizabeth, worried about her mother's health, has suggested deletion of parts of the Australian itinerary, Brown said: "I have no official or unofficial information that the Queen Mother is in any way indisposed."

Brown's denial was contained in a press statement in which the royal visit public relations officer Robert Kennedy, who returned today from New Zealand, said the New Zealand tour was much more strenuous than the Australian tour would be. He said reports of the Queen Mother's tiredness in church Sunday were "a little bit exaggerated."

Cyprus Talks Terminate on Gloomy Note

ATHENS (Reuters) — Anglo-Greek talks on the future of Cyprus ended here Wednesday on a pessimistic note.

Greek diplomats said that Greece's pessimism which prevailed since the talks opened Tuesday is "fully justified."

As extra police throughout the city stood by to counter anti-British demonstrations, Britain's Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd conferred with Greek Premier Constantine Karamanlis.

Lloyd, who Tuesday held a four-hour meeting with Greek Foreign Minister Evangelos Averoff, was reported to have brought new British proposals for the future of the Mediterranean island.

The colony's majority Greek Cypriot population insist on union with Greece. The minority Turkish Cypriot group demand partition.

Unconfirmed reports say Britain is proposing a period of self-government of from five to 10 years. After this the Greek and Turkish communities would have the right to self-determination.

PUSHED TO DEATH

NEW YORK (AP) — A seven-year-old girl, Kathaleen Hegmeon was hired to the roof of a brownstone apartment house Tuesday and hurled 13 floors to her death by a teen-aged youth. Police held for questioning 15-year-old Francis Medaille, a suspended high school boy. They said he admitted luring the little girl to the roof, choking her and shoving her over the three-foot parapet.

THREE-JET AIRLINER

LONDON (AP) — A three-jet airliner, with all three engines mounted over the tail, Wednesday was named as Britain's latest challenger for world air travel markets. The state-run British European Airways was given government permission to buy the de Havilland DH-121, a 100 - passenger craft that can cruise non-stop for 1,600 miles at speeds up to 600 miles an hour.

LOST PARTY WANDERED IN CIRCLES

Recovering from his two days in Ontario's Muskoka bush country, Andrew Morton told the story of the disastrous hunting trip that resulted in the deaths of two boys. The boys, he said, were not dressed for cold weather even though he had told them to put on heavy clothing. One fell into two feet of water and never did fully recover. Wind kept driving the snow into their faces so that they never could tell where they were. Morton said he blacked out for a few moments, or hours, in which he had hallucinations of the boys being home with their parents. Robert Peterson, 13, and Tom Duffy, 14, perished on the trip, and two other boys survived. The group was from Toronto.

A few hours after Andrew Morton and the two surviving boys had been found by searchers, the bodies of the two who died were discovered. The party had wandered in circles for two days.

PROPOSED CAUSEWAY

The federal government has ordered a full-scale study of the feasibility of a proposed causeway which would link Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick.

This map shows how the proposed causeway would extend from Cape Tormentine, N.B., to Port Borden, P.E.I., across the narrowest part of Northumberland Strait, a distance of nine miles.

The engineering study is expected to cost $200,000. Estimates of the cost of building the causeway range from $50,000,000 to $60,000,000.

At present a Canadian National Railways ferry running between Cape Tormentine and Port Borden links the island province with the mainland. (CP Newsmap).

Block Dumping Of Frozen Peas

OTTAWA (CP)—Imposition of dumping duties on United States frozen peas being imported into Canada was announced Wednesday by the government.

A statement issued by the agriculture department said the duties were effective from Feb. 12 and were designed to assist the Canadian frozen pea industry to maintain a reasonable market position in the face of an abnormal supply and price situation in the U.S.

The department said frozen peas are being imported from the U.S. at prices about half of those that prevailed in the U.S. over the last five years. This was causing injury to the Canadian frozen pea industry, particularly in Western Canada.

Tweed

TWEED — On Saturday evening Ernest "Nick" Carter and William Geen took 12 senior class members of the United Church Sunday School to Tweed to enjoy a recreation period in the Bol-O-Way. Following the games, lunch was served. Lyle Stevenson, of Tweed United Church, was also at the bowling alley with his class of boys. The groups tentatively discussed a competition game between the two classes sometime in the near future.

D. N. "Neil" Benny, of Crookston, has been allowed to return to his home from the Belleville General Hospital.

Miss Cecelia Courneyea, who has been in Toronto for some time taking a course in hairdressing, has returned to her Tweed home this past week.

Mrs. D. N. O'Keefe, of Campbellford, spent the weekend at the home of her mother, Mrs. M. LaFontaine, and sisters, Colleen and Edna.*

FAIR BOARD

Mrs. Harry Coulter and Mrs. Arthur Albert, were in Belleville on Thursday attending the district fair board. Mrs. Harry Coulter was appointed president of the local fair board for the 1958 term at a meeting held January 25. Mrs. Coulter was appointed to attend the Ontario Fairs convention as a delegate to the Agricultural Society. The convention is to be held in Toronto February 26 and 27.

A meeting of the Tweed Agricultural Society will be held following Mrs. Coulter's trip to Toronto so that the fair list can be revised and a schedule set up for the fall fair.

Mrs. E. J. "Ted" Courneyea is a patient in Belleville General Hospital. She was admitted on Saturday.

President of the Rebekah Lodges will make her official visit to Tweed Rebekah Lodge No. 236 on Friday, February 21 the Noble Grand of the lodge reported.

Harry Coulter of R.R. 2, Tweed, attended the Bay of Quinte fire insurance meeting in Picton on Tuesday.

Gestlin Jewellers are liquidating their stock and closing date is set for March 1.

Mrs. John Cook and her two little sons, of Marmora, are spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Orr, of North Victoria Street.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. McCue spent a week in Syracuse, N.Y. They returned Tuesday.

Mr. Francis Cassidy of Tweed who is a patient in Belleville General Hospital, underwent surgery on Tuesday.

NEW COURSE

Nuclear engineering will be taught in Australia for the first time this year.

Little Benny's Notebook

Pop was shaving his face this morning, and I said, Hay, pop, did you know this was Valentine Day?

Yes gods, I've done it again, I mean I've forgotten to do it again, pop said.

Meening send ma a valentine to prove he was thinking of her, and I said, Do you want me to run up to the big red drugstore and get one for you, pop?

No, that would be cheeting, I'll call up the florist personly and have him rush some flowers around while we're eating breakfist, pop said.

And he herry up finished shaveing and went downstairs and ma was using the telefone, and she put hes hand over the mouthpiece and said to pop, Go and start your breakfist, I'm talking to Lorr's Snood and goodness knows when she'll let me hang up.

Meening Mrs. Snood is a long talker and I went back to the breakfist room with pop, and he said, I wonder if there are any flowers in the refrigerator.

There never have been yet, I said, and he said, There's always a first time.

And he opened the refrigerator and took out some parsley and lettuce and celery and made them look like flowers in the water pitcher and wrote a valentine pocm on a sheet of paper off of ma's kitchin pad, being, As the parsley climbs in the lettuce, May my love grow and nuthing fret us, As long as the sap flows up the celery, My devotion will ring from the top-most belfry.

And he put the poem in the hooks, just when ma got finished telefoning and ma said it was the cutest thing she ever saw and cmutch more original then conventional flowers, but pop sez her some from the florists anyways, being there when I got hoams from school for lunteh.

TRAINED TO SUBDUE COUNTRYMEN

These soldiers of the Communist East German army, manning a machine-gun, are called "interior troops" assigned to halt any anti-Communist uprisings in restive East Germany. They wear Nazi-style helmets and are the only troops in Germany to use this particular type of headgear. The regular East German troops wear Soviet-style helmets and the West German troops wear American helmets.

Navy's $56,000,000 Payroll In Nova Scotia Is Biggest Contribution to Province

HALIFAX (CP) — With all the talk of maritimes industry, or value lack of it, it's odd the navy's $56,000,000 annual payroll in Nova Scotia is so little mention.

Of course, after being here for 200 years it is bound to be taken for granted, especially when there is virtually no possibility of the bases being moved. But if the Royal Canadian Navy ever did decide to pull up stakes in Nova Scotia, it would be the most crushing blow in the province's economic industry.

"Say a blow!" says Mayor Charles A. Vaughan of Halifax. "It would be a catastrophe."

QUEST FOR INDUSTRY

Governments and economic organizations such as the Atlantic Provinces Economic Council carry on a continual campaign to attract new industry to the area and the federal government has termed the economic condition of the region "a special case." But no one says much about the navy.

Now, with the 200th birthday of the Royal Navy at hand, there is no indication of a let-down in naval strength. In fact, the service is tightening its roots by spending about $10,000,000 on construction over a year. Temporary wartime buildings are being torn down to be replaced by modern concrete structures. New jetties are putting out in harbor waters, and new ships are being pushed across the navy's nearby Shearwater air base. For the benefit of the city, the navy is a permanent fixture.

Unlike most Canadian service bases, Halifax didn't feel any sudden lift in economic activity otherwise, with naval occupation. The navy came with the town, or vice versa, and both grew up together.

They started here in 1749. when Halifax was incorporated, and nine years later the navy made the first move — a move that's permanent by building a dockyard. Until 1910, when the Canadian navy took over, it was operated mainly by English workers on a rotational basis.

Then came the First World War and a navy built of troops. After her a brief slackening-off period the Second World War brought 50,000 sailors to Halifax. That's when the service became such a big business.

POST-WAR IMPORTANCE

Manpower levelled off after the war, but the navy remained an important factor in the province's economy. Now, the navy's total payroll in Nova Scotia is as high as the provincial government's total revenue, about $56,000,000 annually.

The payroll is the biggest single expenditure, but the navy's value to the Halifax area is far higher. Its $10,000,000 spent annually on construction during the last few years gives work to hundreds of local contractors, in comparison the value of building permits issued by Halifax last year was $7,508,950.

It has been estimated that one in every three dollars circulated in Halifax comes indirectly from the navy. Some officials say the estimate might be too conservative. The navy spends about $30,000,000 annually in the province for goods and service, and married sailors spend an estimated $15,000,000 for food in Halifax stores. Another $8,800,000 goes for rent, they say.

There is no other Nova Scotia employer to compare with the navy, because the 13,000 sailors and 6,000 naval civil servants in Halifax-Dartmouth are evenly integrated, few people think of tracing the money back to the service.

The navy pointed out that its service personnel and civilian employees own 10,000 automobiles here every year. This can be added to the 3,385,000 for household furnishings.

OTHER ESTABLISHMENTS

Indirectly, the economic push from Halifax sailors and civil servants, the navy pointed out, has built from the 2,000 sailors at Deep Brook, in the Annapolis Valley, to the Sydney area.

Indirectly, the navy supports a big segment of the local business community. Its 117-acre city establishment, Halifax shipyard, which has been contracting out contracts, employs some 1,200 men. The navy's modernization program of $69,000,000 order for three modern destroyer escorts. But the contracts for the electronic equipment had to be imported, only the hulls and engines will be built in Nova Scotia. But the shipyard gets a share of the annual refit of the navy's fleet and the total 100 auxiliary vessels stationed here.

Apart from that, the navy sustains many Halifax clothing stores specialize in navy clothing, sometimes to the exclusion of other business, buses have navy runs, theatres have navy shows, and the railways often have special navy trains for troop movements.

The big navy money flows when navy begins and ends. Majority of its personnel don't spend uniforms off duty, and they have the same pastimes and habits as civilians.

City officials speak warmly about the navy's tremendous contribution to the area. Mayor Vaughan said the navy's "tremendously important" and carried its economic impact to practically every business.

The payroll is the biggest

Polls to Close At Six O'Clock Election Day

OTTAWA (CP) — Voters who may be accustomed to federal elections in voting just before the polls close? had better take notice of what time the polls actually do close March 31.

That warning is given by chief electoral officer Nelson Castonguay.

The reason: The last four federal elections have been held when daylight time was in effect in large parts of Canada.

The law says polls must be open for at least 8 am. and 6 pm. local standard time. In warm weather elections that has meant between 8 am. and 7 p.m. local daylight time. But not this year.

In an interview Mr. Castonguay expressed concern that many voters may not realize the deadline for voting.

The Canada Elections Act states however, that persons who are at—but not actually in—the polling station at closing time will be allowed to vote. This stipulation will cover any cases where last-minute rushes create a lineup of voters.

Airliner May Have Faced Thunder Belt

MONTREAL (CP) — A thunderstorm belt over a wide faced Maritime Central Airways plane already delayed by head winds, it was recounted Wednesday by one of the board members investigating Canada's worst air disaster.

Transport department witnesses said headwinds greater than forecast had slowed the ungrounded plane as it flew from Goose Bay, Labrador, and Quebec City and that the belt of turbulent thunder "cells" was moving across the flight leg to Montreal.

The transport department witness said Wednesday, drawing on flight data from aircraft radio position reports, that the plane was a half-hour behind schedule when it reached Quebec.

It had fuel sufficient for 1½ hours, 30 minutes, on takeoff from Goose Bay, Captain Robert McClellan and Capt. Norman Ramsay estimated to Montreal arrival at about 8:30 p.m.

Ground speed between Iceland and Goose Bay averaged 220 knots from 192 knots to 136 knots.

He said a projection of the 135-knot ground speed at Quebec City would have carried the aircraft to Montreal at 13 hours and 40 minutes—leaving 36 minutes' fuel before landing.

The weather picture was described by transport department meteorologist Harold Hutchon of Montreal, who submitted data including area forecasts and radar weather pictures showing precipitation patches for a 200-mile radius.

Market Controls Feared by Picton Dairy Leader

SASKATOON (CP) — J. M. Hartwick of Picton, Ont., vice-president of the National Dairy Council of Canada, Wednesday expressed fear that compulsory regulations sought by some producer leaders in Ontario will interfere with the freedom of competition and hurt the dairy industry.

He told the Saskatchewan Dairy Association convention that some producer leaders in Ontario in their efforts to obtain higher returns for dairymen, have advocated compulsory regulations and offered threats of interference that could retard progress in the industry.

"Any legislative interference with freedom of competition injures substantial proof of the serious character of the evil it is designed to correct.

"MONOPOLISTIC" THREAT

He said the leaders of some commodity groups in Ontario "openly threaten that if they had monopolistic control of the marketing, and, if need be, of the production and processing of all farm products, they would be in a position to force the farmers prices based on their needs, regardless of the value of their products to the consumers who have to pay for them."

Mr. Hartwick said if proposed marketing boards are granted compulsory powers "the competitive structure of our markets will be eliminated."

The words would "have complete control of the marketing of agricultural products at the provincial, interprovincial and export markets, backed by unlimited powers to obtain financial resources which could be used, without question, by the government of Canadian consumers."

Unemployment Rumbles Heard In Legislatures

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Federal rumbles over unemployment were echoed through provincial legislatures Wednesday.

At Halifax, where the Nova Scotia session opened, Liberal Leader Henry Hicks criticized the speech from the throne regarding employment.

"For every day since they (the Conservatives) overwhelmingly formed the government, more and more people have been going to the rolls of those seeking jobs."

The throne speech described the employment level in Nova Scotia as "relatively stable" despite a general North American business decline.

MARITIMES

Finance Minister Spender said the Newfoundland session under Premier Smallwood's Liberal government will probably adjourn, on a budget basis, about the end of the month to allow members to campaign in the federal election.

A budget would be brought down in May.

At Quebec, the Union Nationale introduced legislation to impose an additional tax on personal income in the province for the 1958 calendar year.

In Manitoba, Edmond Prefontaine, Liberal member, government supporter, moved the reply to the throne speech.

Answering criticism of agricultural policies made on the basis of "agricultural crisis," he blamed "artificial and unrealistic" labor and industry costs.

Nude Young Man In Supermarket Creates Furore

NEW YORK (AP) — A nude young man who ate soap was an unadvertised special in a Manhattan supermarket Wednesday.

A dozen women shoppers screamed and shouted as the youth walked naked and strolled along the aisles loading a shopping cart.

The clamor of the women attracted a big crowd. The store manager called police.

When they arrived they found the youth had eaten a bar of soap, a cake of soap. He fought when they tried to put on handcuffs, but not for him. Finally subdued and covered, he refused to give his name.

PLAN YOUTH CENTRE

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — H. G. Christopher, president of the local Optimists club, Wednesday announced plans to construct a $100,000 youth centre, combining indoor swimming facilities and a gymnasium.

DESERTED FAMILY TO BE DEPORTED

Deserted by her husband, Mrs. Elvira Seepe, and her two children, Judy, nine months, and Christopher, two years, have been ordered deported to Germany. The order came from the immigration department after the husband, Heinz, resisted arrest following a highway accident, and when he was notified he would be deported he left his family in a Toronto flat. Now penniless, Mrs. Seepe hopes she can remain in Canada at least until her husband is found.

Liberal Leader Pearson Sets Off on Campaign Trail

BY ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson set off on the campaign trail Wednesday night in search of his first mandate and promising a "good fight for we have something to fight for."

The 60-year-old party chieftain, elected to head his party just 27 days ago, was aboard a train bound for Ontario points while Prime Minister John Diefenbaker delivered his keynote address at Winnipeg.

All along the trail, the confident Mr. Pearson who has promised to lead the Liberals back to power March 31, will elaborate on his $400,000 tax-cut pledge and unfold a few other ones he now is known to be mulling over.

As he prepared his Parliament Hill 1907 Nobel Peace Prize winner said in an interview he regrets that he has had little time to reorganize the Liberal party, beaten at the polls in June last 1957 election after 22 continuous years in office.

"But I am impressed by the new enthusiasm and spirit in the party. It will be a good fight, for we have something to fight for."

Whatever his tactics, the line taken by Mr. Pearson is sure to be a contrast to the multi-millionaired campaign conducted by his predecessor, former prime minister Louis St. Laurent, in the 1957 fight. Then the elderly Mr. St. Laurent, who is 76, was accused by opposition of "buying votes."

Mr. Pearson introduced legislation to impose an additional tax on personal income in the province for the 1958 calendar year.

In Manitoba, Edmond Prefontaine, Liberal member, government supporter, moved the reply to the throne speech.

Answering criticism of agricultural policies made on the basis of "agricultural crisis," he blamed "artificial and unrealistic" labor and industry costs.

Mr. Pearson outlined a whole raft of vote-catching pledges including lower taxes for the bulk of payers, special tax concessions for the newly - weds and virtually free educations for an army of university students.

He labelled his an "unemployment crash program," to reduce the number of jobless during the economic pump and promised new spending power into consumers' pockets. But he coupled this with promises of new works projects, such as a trans-Canada western trunk highways and a $60,000,000 rail branch in the Northwest Territories.

As he moves ahead in election tinneering, he may outline new Liberal party proposals to increase the provincial share of the Canadian tax pot, along with other measures, for a "fair share of the national wealth."

The Toronto-born world statesman, external affairs minister for nine of the 10 years since he first entered politics, likely will be a large part of the campaign in Ontario for it was in this province that the Progressive Conservatives made their strongest showing in the 1957 polls.

Of Ontario's 85 seats in the 265-member Commons, the Conservatives held 61 and the Liberals 21 in the last Parliament. The CCF had the other three.

Mr. Pearson plans to spend the period of 24 March 1-31 in the West: March 1-8 in Quebec; March 9-15 in the Atlantic and March 17-31 in Ontario and Quebec. Election night, will find him in Ottawa awaiting the result of his first campaign.

John Bassett, Montreal Paper Chairman, Dies

MONTREAL (CP) — John Bassett, the silver-tongued Irishman who influenced the policy of the Montreal Gazette for almost half a century, died Wednesday after a six-month illness in hospital. He was 72.

He had been chairman of the board of directors of the Gazette Printing Company Ltd., since March, 1956, president of the company from 1937 to 1956.

Mr. Bassett was successful as readily as he won friends. A cub reporter for The Gazette in 1910, he rose to become publisher of the paper a year later. In 1913, at the age of 27, he was named to the board of directors of The Gazette Printing Company.

His interest in the newspaper career to serve overseas during the First World War, rising to the rank of major and winning the Belgian government's Ordre de Leopold.

IN WAR AND PEACE

As president of The Gazette Company he steered it through the difficult depression years and the Second World War, and into the prosperous post-war period since the war.

Until he became seriously ill in 1956, he maintained a close interest in the newspaper's affairs and was active in civic duty, presiding at the regular monthly meeting of the directors with which he had been so long associated.

While vice-president of The Gazette in 1936, Mr. Bassett personally acquired the Sherbrooke Record which he sold to his son, John Jr., in 1946.

His son went on to become chairman and publisher of the Toronto Telegram.

Other survivors include his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Bassett Wright Avery of Ottawa, whom he married in 1941, and his daughter, Mrs. Ann Baldwin Smith of Buffalo, N.Y.

All-or-Nothing Positions Taken by Greece and Turkey

British Foreign Secretary Lloyd undertook his round of conferences with Greece and Turkey in the hope of persuading them to accept responsibility for the future of Cyprus.

Both countries took all-or-nothing positions. The Greeks insisted Cyprus must become part of their country. The Turks demanded partition into Greek and Turkish segments.

Lake Prime Ministers Karamanlis of Greece and Menderes of Turkey, Lloyd was under pressure from extremists at home not to make concessions.

The conciliatory policies of Sir Hugh Foot since he took over from the military Sir John Harding as governor have diminished terrorist activity on the island.

But there is a growing conviction that the lull will be temporary unless the problem is tackled at its roots.

Menderes and Karamanlis find their hands forced by nationalistic opposition parties and politically unfavorable conditions at home. Time has served only to intensify the differences of the contending parties.

Frisli, the gifted cartoonist in London's Evening Standard, rums up the dilemma of Cyprus with an appropriate portrayal of Lloyd capsioned by a verse adapted from the late Edward Lear:

There was an old man with a beard,
Who said, "it is just as I feared.
Two Greeks and a priest,
"And four Turks at least
"Have all built their nests in my beard!"

Lloyd has his own policy to thank for the "priest" in his diplomatic whiskers.

Britain's adamant refusal to negotiate with Archbishop Makarios, to whom the Greek Cypriots look for leadership, has contributed the issue ever since the archbishop was deported from Cyprus by the British.

The British decision to release Makarios from detention in the Seychelles Islands brought the resignation of the Marquess of Lansdowne from the cabinet.

Other right-wing Tories, blaming the archbishop for the atrocities of the underground EOKA terrorists, are firm in their refusal to permit him to return to Cyprus.

Lloyd has been searching for a formula acceptable to all parties to bring peace to Cyprus. Success would rank as something close to a diplomatic miracle.

TEHRAN, Iran (Reuters)—An army firing squad executed an Iranian bandit at dawn Wednesday for the kidnap-murder of an American woman last March. Ahmad Shah had been sentenced to death for slaying Mrs. Anita Carroll of Issaquah, Wash.

Requests Fulton To Intervene In Deportation

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Stanley Haidasz, Liberal member of Parliament for Trinity, said Wednesday night he has asked Immigration Minister Fulton to intervene in the proposed deportation of Mr. and Mrs. Heinz Seepe and their two small children.

Mr. Seepe, a 30-year-old German immigrant, disappeared Saturday after a letter arrived from Ottawa telling his appeal from a deportation order against him and his family had been dismissed.

He was convicted last year of assaulting a policeman and of carrying an offensive weapon.

Dr. Haidasz said the circumstances do not warrant deportation and returning the family to Germany is cruel and inhuman since the two children were born in Canada.

KEPT HUNTING KNIFE

He said Mr. Seepe had been questioned by police after a traffic accident in which he failed to render a hunting knife he had on his belt and had also resisted arrest.

Mr. Seepe has been in Canada about seven years. He recently operated a small printing business.

The children are Christopher, 2, and Judy 1.

Mrs. Seepe said although she had earlier signed a document indicating her right to remain in Canada with her husband should he be deported, she now would prefer to go to Germany.

In Ottawa, an immigration official said Wednesday the two children would not be deported until after Mr. Seepe is found.

Federal General Election Campaign Moving From Training Camps Into Ring

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The campaign for the March 31 federal general election has moved from the training camps into the ring.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker Wednesday night in Winnipeg doffed his robe and swung his keynote punch while Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson entertained in Ottawa to take his stance in the campaign scrapping later this week.

Social Credit Leader Solon Low in Edmonton, meanwhile, views the campaign not so much as a fistic-like affair as a "box social affair" with the Liberals and Mr. Diefenbaker's Progressive Conservatives comparatively to see who can promise the most.

CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell still lingered a few final hours in Ottawa, but was to leave by train tonight for Saskatchewan. He will make his initial big speech in his home constituency of Rosetown-Biggar on Saturday.

Mr. Diefenbaker appealed for a return of his government with a majority of members in the 265-seat Commons.

DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

The prime minister said his government wants to go on with a long-range national development program.

It would include a $100,000,000 roads program in the Yukon and Northwest Territories, plus other federal-provincial plan to build access roads to the Mackenzie valley, following the 1957 election can be settled if western voters utilize their right to cast the balance in their hands this election.

"It does not look a great deal of calculation," he said, "to understand that with the two major parties so evenly divided in Eastern Canada, a swing to one party or the other in the West would give a clear majority."

DOUBLES SPENDING

At Montreal Wednesday night, Transport Minister Hees said that transport department expenditures on roads and equipment are being "virtually doubled" this year to stimulate employment and to help alleviate unemployment.

The minister told a Progressive Conservative nominating meeting that the outlay for the calendar year 1958 "will run close to $120,000,000."

He said the government's recently - announced accelerated construction program, devised to cope with the country's mounting unemployment, had been considered inadequate "in view of the delays that take place in getting works projects under way."

"I can understand this criticism from members of the former (Liberal) government who accustomed to the habit had a shelf of public works projects ready for any emergency that might arise, but the important fact is that they did not."

Mr. Hees made no thanks at the Seigniory Club, Que., said that while automatic processes of unemployment relief are the defence of Canada, that won't do away with the need for normal services manpower.

Since 1940, he told the Air Force of Canada, the RCAF alone has more than doubled the number of stations and technical plants required to keep its equipment operational. "Pushbutton warfare" is the new command banquet, needs more than a few men to push the buttons.

Witness Says Traffic Good At Vancouver

TORONTO (CP) — Jack Medrum, 37, confessed drug trafficker, testified Wednesday that a Toronto narcotics ring that netted him $200,000 handled $300,000 in less than a month.

Medrum testified at the trial of five men charged with conspiring to traffic in narcotics in Toronto and the west coast in the years 1956 and 1957.

The men are Vern Epter, 51, said by Medrum to be "top man;" John Lucik, 31; eccil Reid, 37; Jack Beaton, 42; and Albert Levecque, 46, of Toronto. All five pleaded not guilty.

Levecque originally co-charged pleaded guilty last week and was sentenced to eight years concurrent with a 12-year sentence he now is serving. He appeared Wednesday as a Crown witness.

Rocket Expert Says Russians Not Bluffing

CAMP FRIEDLAND, Germany (AP)—A German rocket expert who fled the Soviet Union for 13 years declared Wednesday night the Russians are not bluffing when they say they have intercontinental missiles.

Ernst Steinhoff, who worked on the German V-1 and V-2 rockets, made a statement to newsmen about Russian progress with guided missiles. Steinhoff is specialist on electronic remote control as applied to rockets.

He was taken to the Soviet Union in 1945 with hundreds of other German scientists and technicians. He returned to West Germany Wednesday with 11 colleagues and was here finally allowed after periods of up to 13 years in Russia.

Druggist Can Tell 'Type' of Male Buyers

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — A druggist says he can tell something of a psychologist when it comes to valentine selections. He says there are "type" male buyers of heart-shaped boxes of candy.

If the woman buys the costliest $6.95 boxes, he's just starting to take trust woman out, he says. At $4.95 they've been going steady for a year. At $3.95 they're married three months, while at $1.50 they are hardened married folks of five or six years. The druggist — who is married says he prefers to remain anonymous.

DIES FROM INJURIES

TILLSONBURG (CP) — Neil Wilcox, 22, of Norwich died in hospital Wednesday night five hours after the truck he was driving collided with a Canadian National Railways freight train just north of Springford. Wreckage of the pickup truck was scattered 200 feet east of the level crossing.

3 Men, Woman Charged With Stuffing Boxes

MONTREAL (CP) — Three men and one woman Tuesday pleaded not guilty to charges connected with the stuffing of fake ballots into ballot boxes in Montreal Laurier constituency during the June 10 federal election. They were ordered to appear for preliminary hearing Feb. 18.

Bail of $500 was fixed in the case of the woman, Mrs. Cecile M. Roy, A 40-year - old stenographer, she was charged with forging the initials of a deputy returning officer to counterfeit ballots.

In the case of the men, bail was fixed at $1,000 each. Jean Paul Tremblay, 28-year-old steveedore, and Georges Chevrefils, 23, a laborer, were charged with possession of illicit ballots and with depositing them or causing them to be deposited in ballot boxes.

Gerard Tremblay, 37, another stevedore, was charged with attempting to deposit fake ballots or to have them deposited.

Shortly after the arraignment of the four, court warrants were issued against an election officer and a clerk in another Montreal constituency, charging them with list padding. This resulted in more votes getting into the ballot box at one poll than there were eligible voters.

Mines Minister Denies Statement By CCF Leader

TORONTO (CP) — Mines Minister Spooner Wednesday denied he was elected in Cochrane South through the collusion of the Liberal party.

CCF Leader Donald MacDonald made the allegation in the Ontario legislature in complimenting Mr. Spooner for his appointment to the cabinet since the last session. He said he hoped the minister enjoyed his new job because he was sure it would be a short one—he had been elected in the last election only through the collusion of the Liberals.

The mines minister rose immediately to protest.

"I owe nothing to collusion," he said.

Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver remarked he had no knowledge of any collusion.

Seek Uniform Sentences by Magistrates

TORONTO (CP) — Regional meetings of Ontario magistrates to achieve uniform penalties in court convictions will be launched with a conference in Toronto March 1, Attorney-General Roberts said Wednesday.

Magistrate F. W. Barrett of the Toronto suburb of Willowdale will convene the first meeting, made up of magistrates in Central Ontario.

Other meetings are to be staged in Western Ontario by Magistrate F. G. McAlister of London, in Northern Ontario by Magistrate P. J. McAndrew of Sudbury and in Eastern Ontario by Magistrate Joachim Sauve of Ottawa.

Mr. Roberts said the four magistrates have already held meetings with W. B. Common, director of criminal prosecutions for Ontario, in an effort to establish a better relationship between the penalties for various offenses.

The meetings will concern primarily provincial statutes such as the Highway Traffic Act and the Liquor Licence Act but the magistrates will eventually deal with offenses under the Criminal Code, said Mr. Roberts.

It's Ski Time in Canada!

Crude implements for travel over the snow were known to many nations of antiquity, but the great Scandinavian sport of skiing was introduced to North America less than a century ago. Since then this popular winter pastime has snow-balled in popularity and today Canadian winters have become synonymous with the thrills and delights of skiing. Above, Louis B. de Passille executes a difficult jump-turn on one of the famous Laurentian hills.

One of the reasons for skiing's great burst of popularity has been the improvements made in ski equipment in recent years. Today's skis are scientifically designed of modern materials for maximum control and safety.

Skiing in Canada has become a great family sport, for in the swift swoop of a downhill ride it is not age but agility that matters. Equipment for youngsters is fashioned with the same detailed care as adults' gear.

Both sexes have taken to this great winter-time recreation with equal enthusiasm. While individual downhill running is tops in popularity, the steady growth of ski clubs has given a new impetus to cross-country touring by ski groups. One of the significant factors contributing to today's interest in skiing, has been the establishment of ski schools staffed by competent instructors. Most of Canada's ski resorts and clubs maintain the services of professionals.

The ski-tow, whether a simple device such as a rope propelled by a motor and a rotating wheel, or the leisurely chair-lift, allows for more downhill running, contributes greatly to the pleasures of skiing.

In the Gatineau hills, ouside the nation's capital, a ski class goes through its paces under the watchful eyes of professional instructors.

"Schoolyard Fighter"

Young Ottawa Welterweight Doing Well in Gotham Rings

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — You've heard about street fighters. Well, Gale Kerwin calls himself a schoolyard fighter.

The young Canadian welterweight who now lives in Valley Stream, N.Y. on Long Island, Wednesday was telling about his school days in Ottawa.

"You weren't supposed to fight," he said. "But the older kids would carry you on their shoulders if you won. My, that was a wonderful feeling. Even though the sisters might give you the strap if they found out.

"One day a new boy came in from the West and all the older kids said 'Wouldn't he make a fine match for Kerwin.' This time, instead of fighting barehanded, they decided to use gloves. So I went home and got mitts.

"Then I came back and beat the guy up. You'd beat a fellow until he said 'Mo.' Then you'd stop.

"There was a big fuss about it because the story got around school. I would have had a strapping but my sister, who kind of liked boxing, pleaded for me."

Kerwin, 22, is far removed from his school days at Our Lady of Perpetual Help in Ottawa. Now he's a bright new face in the boxing world. His next match is Friday at Madison Square Garden against unbeaten Stefan Redl, a Hungarian-born boxer who has won 17 straight.

"Every fight I get better," said Kerwin who does not hide his light under a bushel. "I'll beat him, probably knock him out. I don't underestimate him but I think Jimmy Archer (his last victim) takes a better punch."

This was about par for the course for Kerwin. After he had won a decision over Archer, Dec. 20, Gale apologized for not knocking him out.

"I'm a hell of a puncher and I know it," he said.

Kerwin started boxing as a pro in 1954 and moved into the main event class in 1956. His record is 28-5-1. For 31 fights, 3 with merchandise worth $100 staffed in handbags, pockets and shopping bags.

Marlene, Partner Win 1st Round Mixed Golf

JUPITER, Fla. (AP) — Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto and Hillman Robbins of the U.S. Air Force Wednesday defeated Mrs. Charles Spaulding, Greenwich, Conn., and Tom Shevlin, Palm Beach, 5 and 4, in the second round of the U.S. mixed foursomes golf tournament.

The biggest upset occurred when Nan Berry of Quincy, Ill., teamed with Billy Watts of Fort Lauderdale to defeat Barbara McIntire and Dick Chapman of Pinehurst, N.C., 3 and 2.

Defending champions Anne Richardson of Columbus, Ohio and Jack Pearsoe of Miami had little trouble in defeating Mrs. Don O'Brien of Richmond, Va., and Joseph McBride of Paterson, N.J., 4 and 3.

Hockey's Big Seven

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Henri Richard of Montreal Canadiens notched his 23rd and 24th goals of the National Hockey League season Wednesday night to close in on the scoring leader, his teammate Dickie Moore.

The Pocket Rocket jumped his point-total to 65, two less than Moore, who garnered an assist. Moore leads in goals with 30 and Richard, in assists, with 41.

Three Rinks Unbeaten in Ontario Play

OSHAWA (CP) — Three rinks remained unbeaten after second-round play in the Ontario curling championships Wednesday night.

Two of the top favorites, Murray Roberts of Unionville and Dr. Bob Marshall of Toronto Granite, each won their two games in the round-robin tournament, as did Jack Nash of London.

Roberts beat Ayr's Cameron Davidson 8-6. Dr. Marshall downed Jack Eccles of Guelph 12-4. Nash defeated Harry Armstrong's Barrie rink 9-8 and in the other second-round contest Welland's Abe DiMartile beat Mel Stonehouse of Ottawa Glebe 11-6.

In the first round, Roberts beat Armstrong 10-4, Marshall downed Stonehouse 11-5, and Nash shipped Davidson 13-5. Eccles won his opening match by edging DiMartile 7-6 on an extra end.

Favored to take the round-robin championship is Roberts. Two members of his rink, vice-skip Andy Grant and Grant's son Ray are the only ones in this year's competition ever to have reached the Dominion championships.

With Andy as skip, the rink represented Ontario in 1955 at the Dominion bonspiel.

Madoc Defeats Bancroft 13-4; Taylor Gets 4

MADOC (Special) — Madoc's Blue-and-Whites chalked up their 12th OHA Intermediate "C" League victory in Bancroft last night, handing the Pontiacs a destructive 13-4 shellacking before a packed arena.

The league leaders ran wild in the third period piling up seven goals against a single return by the Pontiacs. The Blues led 3-0 at the end of the first period and 6-3 at the end of the second.

Bob Taylor, the league top scorer racked up four goals and four assists for the winners with Shaker Baker getting three and three. Nobber Day had a pair, McLellan, one and two, Smith one and two, and Harry Brown one. Little had three assists.

Jack Green scored three of the Bancroft goals with Mark Crosby getting the other. Ganon had three assists.

Referees Vern Goyer and Tim Williams handed out a dozen penalties eight to the winners.

Minor Hockey

Home and School Association, Booth Radio-TV's and the TPT's advanced into the second round of the city midget playoffs last night by eliminating Big "A". Elliott Motors and Northern Electric respectively.

E. Kellar scored four goals as M. and S. downed Big "A" 5-3 and took the series 8-4. D. Archer scored the other goal and added a pair of assists while Kellar also drew an assist on Archer's marker. L. Moreau helped on one goal. L. Rowbotham, M. Pointer and McKee fired the Big "A" goals with McKee drawing an assist.

Booth's lost last night's game to Elliott Motors 2-1 but still captured the series 6-2. Ted Hook fired the TV crew's goal unassisted. D. Dafoe and B. Durrant were the Elliott marksmen with P. Adams earning an assist.

TPT's blanked Northern 3-0 and won the series 5-3. M. Hunter, B. McGuire and B. Yorke were the goal scorers with J. Dahl getting an assist.

Four regular squirt games were also played.

Maple Leafs whipped the Browns 11-1 with Carl MacFarland scoring four of the Leaf goals. David Emerson followed closely with three while Don Spafford had two. Harold Bawden and George McIntosh added the other Leaf goals while Doug Dickie tallied for the Browns.

Canadiens defeated the Black Hawks 5-3 despite the fact Mike Brennan bagged all three Hawk goals. Canadien marksmen were Warren Woltenden, Gary Pringle, George Mason, Stephen Mason and Jim McKenzie.

Bruins took a 5-3 decision over the Rangers. Paul Ford, Kirk Held, Doug Meagher, John Dorrian and Stephen Morris scored for Bruins. Gerry Lowe, Paul Armstrong and Bill Halts were the Ranger scorers.

Bob Young's two goals paced Barons to a 5-4 victory over the Red Wings. David Herrington, Gary Lucas and Dave Stacey netted the other Baron goals. Jim Pringle fired a pair for the Wings with Don Blakely and Robert Tomaso getting the others.

Wants Battle Crown

It's as Simple as This, Red Top Mays, Musial Aaron Etc.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Red Schoendienst, the Milwaukee Braves' stylish second baseman, said today he has his heart set on winning the National League batting title, about the only baseball honor that has eluded him.

"That's the one thing I'd really like to win before I go out of baseball," Schoendienst said. "I came close once, but not close enough."

Red was referring to 1953 when Carl Furillo of the then Brooklyn Dodgers shaded him .344 to .342. That was the year Furillo missed the last few weeks of the season because of a wrist injury.

Schoendienst, who was 35 on Feb. 2, admitted that the leadoff position and the fact that he seldom draws a base on balls works against him as far as the batting title is concerned.

Schoendienst predicted that the batting race will be a wide open affair with Hank Aaron, Stan Musial, Willie Mays and Eddie Mathews in the running.

"It'll probably take an average of at least .350 to win it," he said. "Of course somebody could sneak in and beat us all out."

Schoendienst said the groin injury that put him out of the series last fall had healed well. He said he figures he has at least three years left in baseball.

"You don't start to reach your peak in this game until you're 27," he said. "Maybe you get smarter. Or maybe it's pride, but the best ball players are the so called old men of 35."

Schoendienst said he thought the Braves' would be stronger this season than last, but he cautioned:

"It'll be no cakewalk for us. The other clubs are bound to be stronger, especially Cincinnati with that pitching help they got."

Lacrosse Body Rejects Request To Lift Ban

TORONTO (CP) — The executive of the Ontario Lacrosse Association has turned down a request by Peterborough Timbermen that the association's one-year suspension of all but four members of its senior team be lifted.

The Canadian Lacrosse Association last September suspended all but four members of Timbermen for five years after the team refused to play Victoria Shamrocks in the Mann Cup series for the Canadian senior lacrosse title. Timbermen had refused because one of their top players, Bobby Allan, was declared ineligible.

The OLA subsequently made the suspension effective in Ontario for only one year.

The OLA executive, at its meeting last Saturday, turned down application by Flerie Tomson of Long Branch for transfer to British Columbia. It said Coleman of Long Branch already has been granted the one transfer-to-branch transfer by one team allowed by the CLA.

Famous Sports Announcer Loses Job With CBS

NEW YORK (AP) — Ted Husing's agent says that the famous sports announcer of yesteryear has lost his $150 a week job at CBS radio which he had held only since last August.

Husing now is at Pasadena, Calif., recovering from a brain tumor which paralyzed and blinded him in 1954.

Mark Hanna, Husing's agent, said Wednesday news of the cancellation was contained in a CBS letter he forwarded to Husing about three weeks ago.

The CBS spokesman said the network released Husing reluctantly because he had not been able to produce anything of usable quality. He said Husing is recovering but has had relapses.

Husing's recent work with CBS had been mainly on a local level on the Pacific coast.

Husing achieved wide popularity with CBS between 1927 and 1946 for his smooth delivery and his knowledge of sports. He left sports to become a $250,000-a-year disk jockey.

The CBS deal represented his first employment since 1954, when he underwent a brain operation. He has made a long stride toward recovery but still can't read.

Badminton Pro Resigns From Canadian Team

MONTREAL (CP)—Stan Cutts, Montreal badminton professional, Wednesday announced his resignation from the Canadian Thomas Cup badminton team, which is to play the United States Feb. 28-March 1.

Cutts quoted Jack Underhill, executive member of the Canadian Badminton Association, as saying association funds don't warrant the cost of sending a coach to Long Beach, Cal., where the matches are to be played.

"So, to save any embarrassment, I'd sooner resign," Cutts said. Cutts, professional at Montreal Badminton and Squash Club, was named to coach the six-man team six weeks ago.

Quebec Hockey

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — Claude Jacques Marcoux of Trois-Rivieres Lions scored the only goal of the game against Chicoutimi Wednesday night as Chicoutimi Sagueneens eked out a 1-0 win over Lions.

The play came while Chicoutimi was short-handed with Pierre Perreault sitting out a penalty and Trois-Rivieres players massed in the Sagueneens' zone.

Roland Leclair of Chicoutimi snapped the puck to teammate Guy Rousseau, who belted it the length of the rink.

The puck was skimming a good 10 feet clear of the Trois-Rivieres nets, and Marcoux batted out to stop it. It glanced off his stick and into the open net.

"Everyone laughed, even the Trois-Rivieres players," said an observer. "But not Marcoux."

Rousseau was credited with the goal and Leclair with the assist.

Giardello Wins Over German, Fails to Impress

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joey Giardello won a fight here Wednesday night but the fourth-ranking middleweight will need to be a lot sharper if he plans to mix it up with tough Carmen Basilio or aging Ray Robinson in the near future.

The 27 - year - old Brooklyn-born Italian won a unanimous 10-round decision over Franz Szuzina, a tough, stocky German club manaker. The verdicts of the referee and two judges read 46-44, 49-41 and 47-45 under the five point maximum per round Pennsylvania scoring system.

After winning the first two rounds handily, Giardello seemed to crowl into a shell. Through the third, fourth and fifth rounds, the 27-year-old Saxuina, bounding across the ring and hanging Giardello with both hands, appeared on the verge of turning in a major upset.

He had Giardello bleeding from a cut above his left eye and another across the left cheek. But Giardello managed to find the range with long left hands and solid combinations in the late rounds to pile up enough points for his 76th win against 13 defeats, 5 draws and one "no contest" decision.

The victory boosted Giardello's winning streak to 15 straight and kept alive his hopes of a summer title fight with the Basilio-Robinson winner.

On the Tracks

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Bill Beasley's Pink Velvet, under a fine ride by Walter Blum, scored by a head over Ada L. Rice's Beau Gillon in the $25,850 Columbiana Handicap Wednesday at Hialeah Park.

Pink Velvet, under 114 pounds, ran the seven furlongs in 1:23 3-5 on a fast track and paid $12.15, $6 and $4.50.

Beautillion, 2-to-1 favorite under 118 pounds with Sammy Boulmetis riding, returned $3.60 and $3.10 while third money went to the D and H Stable's Pardala, which paid $4.60 to show.

Pink Velvet, winner of nine out of 26 races last year, had been out of the money three times in her four starts in Florida this winter but the Prospector - sold daughter of Polynesian out of Bayrose by Sir Gallahad III had gained form this time out.

The race was worth $18,425 to Beasley, a Toronto sportsman who was present to receive the trophy.

Pink Velvet won the Nassau and Toronto cup handicaps, both at Woodbine, last year, and took the Margate and Jersey Belle to her credit this spring ($8 a three-year-old to $84,252.

Chevies Piggy-Back Kingston Wi'l 4-3 Win Over Ottawa

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Windsor Bulldogs were kicked around in an OHA-NOHA Senior A game Wednesday night. A football player did a lot of the kicking. Billy Graham, better known for his hard running with the Grey Cup champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats, got three goals and two assists as Dutchies trampled Bulldogs 7-3-1

The scores ran high in other games too as Sudbury Wolves squashed Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds 6-1 and Chatham Maroons slipped by North Bay Trappers 7-4.

In the other Senior A loop, Cornwall Cherles slipped Hull-Ottawa Junior Canadiens 4-3 in an Ontario Hockey Association east-ern division game.

Ron Howell, Jerry Theberge, Ralph Hosking and Jim Uniac got Kitchener-Waterloo's other goals. Irwin Gresse, Wally Maxwell and Bobby Brown connected for Bulldogs.

The result meant little to Kitchener, solidly in first place with 72 points, 18 ahead of second place Greyhounds. But it dropped Windsor to fourth spot as Chatham moved into third with 46 points, one ahead.

LEADS PARADE

Ted Power of Maroons led the point-scoring parade with a goal and four assists. Other Chatham marksmen were Jim Connelly and Lloyd Ferguson with two each and Vizer Geisdeen and Fred Platsch with singles. John Bobenic scored twice for Trappers with Jack Taylor, Stan Maxwell and Guss Karrys adding one apiece.

The six Sudbury goals were shared by six players—Joe Zorici, Georgs Senick, Jim Logan, Nick Tomluk, Andy Vaykin and Jean Therrien. Jim Ratchford tallied late in the third period to rob Sudbury goaltender Johnny Albani of a shutout.

Cornwall's victory lifted it out of last spot in the eastern division. Cherles now have 36 points, one ahead of Kingston's CFCLs and six behind Pembroke Lumber Kings.

Defenceman John Loogarini scored two of Canadiens' goals and Claude Dubois the eight an-on the first period. Reg Grigg fired a pair for Cornwall and linemate Moe Savard and Neil Burke counted one each.

TICATS INK HALFBACK

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four Football Union Wednesday night announced signing of Harold (Skippy) Giancanelli, a former National Football League player with Philadelphia Eagles. Giancanelli, 27, a 185-pound two-way halfback, played five years with the Eagles and last year was a late Philadelphia cut.

Dunnies Arrive In Stockholm, Play Tonight

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Canada's entry in the world hockey championships arrived here by air early today for an exhibition game tonight with Sweden's national team.

The Whitby squad flew here from Zweibruecken, West Germany, where they defeated the RCAF Flyers in a two-game series 15-2 and 14-1. The victories gave Whitby a 4-0 record in their series of exhibition games leading to the world championships in Oslo Feb. 28-March 9.

'Y' Basketball

In the two games played the Stages came out on top with a double headers defeating the Hoskins 44 to 42 and the Steam Rollers 52 to 41.

Hoskins — Batchelor 16, Foley, Walmsley 6, Boegard — 42.

Second game: Stages — Geard 9, Keene 3, Mulhead 18, Massey 10, Terejko 18 — 52.

Steam Rollers — Allister 16, Gibb 3, Donaldson 4, Graham 19 —41.

YOUTH LEAGUE

The Angels defeated the Tigers 67-45 in the only game played.

Angels — Parkhurst 14, Poste 23, Parker, Suykens 2, McBride 19 — 57.

Tigers — Lucas 13, Marriott 13, Bullock 8, Clarke 11 — 45.

JUNIOR FLOOR HOCKEY

The Purple Pirates won out over the Aces 8 to 5 in the Junior Floor Hockey League.

Purple Pirates — Vance 1, Lacey 5, Pye 2, Armstrong —8.

Aces — Anderson 2, Fisher, Athey, Clapp 3 — 5.

HANDICAP WINNER

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Solid Son won the $28,800 San Luis Rey Handicap Wednesday at Santa Anita. He ran the 1¼ miles on the grass course in 2:30 3-5 and collected $17,250 for owner Carl Roles. Roscoe Maney was second and Whatitoldyou third.

PRESENTATION NIGHT

The handsome gent with the ghost of a smile illuminating his Mephisto-like face gazing at you from the top of this column is the well-known Front Street dispenser of coffee, sandwiches, tasty luncheons, dinners, newspapers, cigars, cigarets, assorted tobaccos, peanuts, popcorns, smiles and stories about everything but his own hockey prowess.

The picture was taken in one of the Maestro Moe Bendoff's happiest moments. It took place in Memorial Arena last season when he was presented with the Bill Green Memorial Trophy for being selected the most valuable player to the McFarlands hockey club.

Again this year the silver memento honoring one of the best hockey players ever turned out in Belleville, and one of the grandest guys sports-or-otherwise, will be presented to the player selected by a panel of five. The selectee will not only hold the trophy for a year, but will be presented with a handsome memento as his own personal possession by the family of the late Bill Green through sons Bobby and Doug. That is the way Bill would want it done.

"Big Moe" who has the honor of winning the trophy in the first year of its new designation, was mighty proud of the silver bauble. He gave it a place of honor in the window of his coffee emporium where it has remained since he secured ownership of the business. And whoever wins the trophy this year will be just as proud as was Moe.

In addition to the Bill Green Trophy, another will be awarded to the most gentlemanly player selected by the panel. The Frank Follwell Trophy presented outright to the winner, was taken by the popular Jean Paul Payette at the end of last season.

This year's award to the McFarlands player voted the "most gentlemanly ice" and on the ice," is being donated by Mr. Lee Grills, former member of parliament. Mr. Grills, a staunch supporter of the Macs, said he was delighted to donate the trophy and sought he just as delighted to present it personally to the winner.

Presentation of both the Bill Green Memorial and Lee Grills trophies will be made in Memorial Arena on Friday, February 21, when the McFarlands engage the Pembroke Lumber Kings in their final home scheduled game of the season. The presentations will be made probably between the first and second periods. A member of the Green family, probably Bobby, will be on hand to present the trophy given to the memory of an illustrious father.

The names of the winners of the trophies will not be announced until the night of the presentations. Manager Drury Denyes of the McFarlands will announce the winners and conduct the presentation ceremonies. The third presentation of the night will be the Carlings silver tankard which will be given the the adjudged player-of-the-week by Harold "Speed" Weller, the company's district representative.

And speaking of presentations, the McFarlands Booster Club can take a bow, President Dick Beare individually and the rest of his red-lammers and butioneers collectively. The Boosters, through their president, made a donation of $25 to the Bucky Buchanan Fund, which was started in Pembroke a short time ago by none other than the McFarlands hockey club itself. The Macs took up the collection which amounted to forty dollars and the fund was order way.

And speaking of the Booster Club, don't forget to get your "Tickets for the Tickets." Five pairs of tickets for home games of the McFarlands in the forthcoming playoffs will go to some lucky patrons. The pasteboards are on sale at the Front street stores of Don Stanton and Jack Diamond.

BANTAM PRACTICE

Coach Emerson has advised this department that the bantam all-star team which will represent the city in the OMHA playdowns will practice in the Stirling Arena on Friday evening starting at 7 p.m. Transportation will be on hand at Memorial Arena and will leave at six o'clock. All players are urged to be at the arena on time.

Scores Twice to Edge Closer To Team-Pal Dickie Moore; Loss Costly to Smythe Crew

By MARTY GOODMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Henri (Pocket Rocket) Richard is moving back into contention for the National Hockey League scoring title.

The younger, smaller edition of Montreal's twin missiles hasn't been far out of the picture all season. But the slumped after a fast start and in recent weeks has been eclipsed by linemate Dickie Moore, the current leader.

But Henri has slowly been edging back and Wednesday night scored two goals against one assist for Moore as Montreal Canadiens defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 5-2.

TRAILS BY TWO

The goals brought Henri's total to 34 and gave him 65 points, two behind Moore. Moore, chosen as the league's all-star left winger in the midway point but now playing right wing in place of injured Maurice (Rocket) Richard, is the only ahead of third place Andy Bathgate of New York Rangers.

With only 16 games remaining, the race appears to have narrowed between Richard, who will celebrate his 22nd birthday next Wednesday, and Moore, now in his seventh season with Montreal.

The game's scoring was typical of the power that has brought the Canadiens to a 27-point lead over the second-place Rangers.

SHARP SCORING

Besides Richard, Montreal scorers were Claude Johnson, Andre Pronovost and Jean Beliveau. Richard's first goal came while Toronto's Dickie Duff was penalized.

Toronto scorers were Ron Stewart and Brian Cullen.

It was a record day for Leafs on the place three points behind Bosse Bruins. Each team has 11 games left to play. Toronto is only two points ahead of Chicago Black Hawks and Hawks have a game in hand.

Last season was the only other Richard and Moore have made it into the league's top 10 scorers. They were only a couple of points apart then too with Moore having 29 goals and 36 assists for 58 points and eighth place. Richard had 12 goals and 36 assists for 54 points and ninth place.

Golf Brothers Favored in Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The golfing Heberts—Jay and Lionel were looked on today as favorites in the 36-hole Texas Open.

The brothers from Louisiana were given top ratings as 150 players of the winter tour moved out in the tournament's opening round. There was justification for it.

Jay is defending champion here and has been playing fine golf all winter, missing two first places by a single stroke in each instance.

Lionel has just won his first medal play tournament—the Tucson Open — and considers himself at the peak of his career.

Both are topnotch bad weather players, too, and rain, sleet and snow loomed over Brackenridge Park's 6,400-yard par 71 course a hazardous place.

Speculation centred around who would be the best player in adverse conditions. Jay won the championship in a driving rain last year. Mike Souchak won it in 1955 while playing three rounds in rain and bitter cold.

And then there's that noted second place finisher—Jimmie Demaret — who is considered the best bad weather player of them all. He has been second here three times.

Others in the field include Dutch Harrison, Jack Burke, Frank Stranahan, and most of the familiar faces of the tournament trail. The leading absentee is Ken Venturi, winner of two tourneys this winter, who is passing up the Texas Open to practice for the National Open at Tulsa, Okla.

Boxer Dies After Fight

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—A 17-year - old Chicago amateur boxer suffered fatal injuries Wednesday night after being knocked out in the first round of a Golden Gloves boxing bout.

Irish Trounce Marlies 4-2; Flyers Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two Barrie Flyers made hay Wednesday night in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A scoring race at the expense of last-place Guelph Biltmores.

Billy Forhan and Pete Panagakko took advantage of the lowly Bills to jump into a fourth-place tie with Matt Ravlich of St. Catharines Teepees.

In addition, Forhan tied league-leader John McKenzie's high of 36 goals as Flyers beat Biltmores 8-3. He, Panagakko and Ravlich have 61 points. McKenzie has 80.

In other action, Toronto St. Michael's defeated Toronto Marlboros 4-2 to move into sole possession of third place ahead of Guelph.

SCORES THREE TIMES

Forhan notched three goals and assisted on another while Panagakko got a goal and an assist as Barrie moved five points ahead of Guelph in the race for the last playoff spot. In sixth spot, Flyers have 31 points.

Bernie Cote contributed two Barrie goals, Bob Blackburn and Danny Patrick rounding out the rampage. Ron Brain, Gard Brown and Dave Monroe scored for Guelph.

At Toronto, Marlboros went into a 2-0 lead on goals by Jack McMaster and Bill Kennedy. Jack Costello banged the marigan in the end of the first period and Bob McKnight got his first of two goals in the second. McKnight and Lou Angotti made it unanimous in the third. McKnight now have 48 points, two behind second-place Hamilton Cubs.

Cub Star May Miss Playoffs

HAMILTON (CP) — If Hamilton Cubs of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series reach the Memorial Cup playoffs, they may have to get along without centre Murray Oliver, now holding down third spot in the league's individual scoring race.

Oliver signed a professional baseball contract with Cleveland Indians last summer and is scheduled to report to the Tribe' and training camp March 22. He signed as an infielder with the American League club after hearing Hamilton Optimist Cardinals tell his Ontario Baseball Association's Junior A title last year.

Cubs close out the present schedule in Toronto March 2 with the league playoffs probably lasting a month.

Tribe's Lane Has No Turning Holdouts Tabbed $100 Daily

NEW YORK (AP) — "The trouble between me and Woodling," Frank Lane said today, "is that Gene is a left and I'm the second baseman. It's nothing for."

Said Mo blasts from Woodling at Lane's contract dispute included all the way home with baseball-on dinner we opened last night," said Lane, general manager of the Cleveland Indians. "Gene drove me home in his car."

The "real" business started when Lane announced the other day that he told the Indians who against accepted 1958 contract terms he'd trim $100 off his offer each day they remained unsigned after the official opening of spring training March 1.

That was followed by a report that Woodling blasted the edict as unfair. Commissioner Ford Frick was drawn into it unofficially, saying he didn't want to interjudge the issue but that it sounded unfair to penalize a player while he was negotiating for a contract.

OFFERING RAISE

Lane said "Gene had a good year last season and we're offering him a substantial raise. We haven't arranged for a contract meeting, but I don't expect any trouble."

As for Frick's remarks, Lane said "we offer a certain amount of money to a player based on his reporting with the rest of the players. Ten days before the start of the first exhibition game is little enough time for a player, particularly a veteran player, to get in shape."

All of the five Indians still unsigned are veterans — Minnie Minoso, Chico Carrasquel, Bobby Avila Jim Hegan and Woodling.

While Lane's "troubles" seemed a bit premature, there was no denying that such clubs as the Milwaukee Braves and New York Yankees may have their hands full trying to corral unsigned players.

25 PER CENT UNSIGNED

An Associated Press survey today showed that about 25 per cent of the players on major league rosters still are unsigned. That number includes Hank Aaron, Ed Mathews, Lew Burdette, Red Schoendienst, Johnny Logan, Del Crandall and Bob Buhl of the Braves and Yankee Mickey Mantle.

The Braves, finding it's always difficult for a club to get its contracts filed after winning the world championship, have 11 unsigned players in all. That total is second only to the Boston Red Sox's 19.

Chicago White Sox Tuesday signed two of their key players, second baseman Nellie Fox for a club record salary of more than $40,000, and pitcher Billy Pierce for an approximate $25,000.

Pierce, with the already-signed Early Wynn, becomes one of the highest paid White Sox pitchers in history at perhaps a shade over $35,000.

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The double life of Ray Hancox is at an end. When play resumes in the Football Association's amateur soccer cup competition, Wokingham Town's inside left will be left outside.

Hancox admitted Tuesday night that he had helped Wokingham reach the cup quarter-finals playing under the name of Mike Ashford, and that he modestly refrained from telling his clubmates about his three-year professional career with Crystal Palace of the Football League's third division.

Wokingham promptly suspended Hancox — Ashford and awaited word from the FA which frowns on participation by former professionals in amateur cup matches.

SHADY PAST

Waiting expectantly in the wings is West Auckland Town, the unimpeachably amateur club Wokingham defeated 4-2 last Saturday with Hancox-Ashford scoring one of the goals. It was West Auckland's protest that unmasked the inside left's shady past.

Hancox explained that the trouble began after he had played two seasons for Dorking, a London area club, and moved on to Chertsey Town early last season, playing under his own name with the FA's permission.

But Chertsey is a long way from Reading, where Hancox works as a sausage salesman. He decided to find a club closer to home and turned out for Reading co-op, giving the name of Ashford to avoid embarrassing the FA, which limits its special permits to ex-professionals to one a year.

SPOTTED BY SCOUT

A Wokingham scout saw him play for Reading and persuaded him to transfer his allegiance.

The trouble began when another Crystal Palace veteran spotted the sausage salesman in a cup match at Orton Woodstock three weeks ago. He told officials of the Woodseats club of his suspicions but they decided they had lost fair and square and did nothing about it.

Then the news leaked out to West Auckland and the fat was in the fire.

"He won't be playing for us again," said Sam Harwood, Wokingham's trainer. "But he's still a good chap as far as I'm concerned."

"It was difficult to stop, once I'd started," said Hancox. "I really enjoyed my year at Wokingham."

PARIS (CP) — The world figure skating championships, a combination of tedious drudgery and sparkling glamor, opened today in a neighborhood rink tucked far away from the public's gaze.

Canada entered 13 men and women including Toronto's Barbara Wagner and Bob Paul, rated favorites to retain their world pairs title.

The United States was expected to repeat in the singles events, Competition opened with the men's singles with 22 entries from 10 countries scheduled to start the compulsory school figures—intricate variations of a figure-eight theme — which count for 60 per cent of the point total deciding the championships.

FAVOR JENKINS

The men took to the ice at the suburban Boulogne rink at an early hour this morning. David Jenkins, a hard man to beat on a compulsory figure and an accolade master of the current crop of free skaters, was expected to retain the world crown he won on his home rink at Colorado Springs, Colo., last year.

Canada's main hope was Charles Snelling, a 20-year-old Toronto medical student, who finished third to Jenkins last year. Two other Canadians, Ed Collins and Don Jackson, 17-year-olds from Ottawa, were competing for the first time in a world championship.

HIGH POINT

The dance couples are scheduled to do their required steps in the afternoon and evening. The high point of the day will be the free skating by couples — who have no compulsory programs — the night opening in the Palais de Sport.

Britain's June Markham and Courtney Jones, the defending champions, were favored among the dance teams with expected tough competition from North American champions Geraldine Fenton and Bill Maclachlan of Toronto, who were second to the Britons last year. Another Canadian entry is the duo of Beverly Orr and Hugh Smith of Toronto.

The women swing into action Friday with their required figures and polish off the three-day event with the free skating Saturday night.

Carol Heiss of New York, a two-time winner, is expected to hang on to her women's crown. Margaret Lingland of Pittsburgh and Sonia Snelling, 15-year-old sister of Charles, are entered in the women's singles.

UPSET AMERICANS

LONDON (AP) — Harringay Racers upset the U.S. entry in the world hockey championships 5-4 Wednesday night. Canada's team in the world championships at Oslo Feb. 23-March 2 whipped Harringay 6-2 last week.

Junior 'B' Loop Playoff Dates Set at Meeting

Belleville Lambert-Rollins will open their OHA junior "B" semi-final playoff series against Peterborough Petes in Peterborough on Friday night it was announced following a league meeting last night.

Both this series and the other half of the semi-finals between Trenton and Kingston are three-of-five affairs. The group finals will be a best four-of-seven series with the winner advancing into OHA playdowns.

All games in the Belleville-Peterborough series will begin at 8:15 p.m. A group winner must be declared by Saturday, March 8.

Following tomorrow night's opening game in Peterborough the clubs will clash here on Monday, February 17, back in Peterborough on Wednesday the 19 with the fourth and fifth games if they are necessary in Belleville on Monday, 24 and in Peterborough Wednesday, 26.

Dates for the first four games of the other set have the Bear Cubs and Frontenacs in Kingston on Monday, Trenton on Wednesday, Kingston on Tuesday and back in Trenton on Saturday, February 22. No date has bee set for a possible fifth game.

The Petes ended in first place in the four-team loop's regular schedule while Belleville finished last. Lambert-Rollins dropped all their games to the Petes in the season's play so far.

Fans are asked to support the local club, consisting of all Belleville players, in their game here Monday night. Game time is 8.15.

Metro Prystai Breaks Leg

EDMONTON (CP) — Metro Prystai, 30-year-old left winger for Edmonton Flyers, suffered a broken leg in a Western Hockey League game against Winnipeg Warriors Wednesday night.

General manager Bud Poile of Flyers announced Prystai is through for the season after breaking a shin bone when he crashed into the Edmonton goal post in the third period.

Prystai has scored 13 goals and 14 assists for Flyers despite a spell with Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League and its earlier injury. Earlier in the season while with Detroit he suffered a hairline fracture of the left ankle.

Gonzales Wins Over Lew Hoad

NEW YORK (AP) — Pancho Gonzales' new tennis strategy—blast, blast, blast—continues to pay dividends and today he is just two victories away from his young professional rival, Lew Hoad.

"I hit the ball with everything I had."

That's the way the tall California native described his 7-9, 6-0, 6-4, 6-2 triumph over Hoad Wednesday night at Madison Square Garden, reducing the Australian's lead in their 100-match pro series to 2-7.

Gonzales, who dropped seven matches in a row to his freshman adversary, has a chance to pull even before the weekend. The troupe invades Washington, D.C., tonight for two matches.

The largest crowd ever to watch a professional tennis match in the United States, 15,257 saw Gonzales take a second straight victory over Hoad.

He did it by reeling off ten straight games, with five straight service breaks, in the second and third sets. During this period he gave a brilliant display of service returns, repeatedly sending blazing placements past the racket of the stunned Hoad.

SPECTACULAR EVENT IN QUEBEC CARNIVAL

Quebec's winter carnival is a spectacular show and the most spectacular item of all is the traditional boat race from Quebec city to Levis across the St. Lawrence. The race is through ice-clogged waters and the boatmen have to leap in and out of their craft to make headway through the ice.

Carnival Queen Michele Lacroix has the right to confer honors on various contest winners during the festival, and here she names Liguori Lachance winner of the St. Lawrence boat race. He had four brothers as crew members.

Wide Wide World Producers Run Into Tough Assignment

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Producers of Wide Wide World (NBC-TV) have undertaken some dangerous assignments in their time, but none has equalled that of Ted Rogers in preparing "the hour in Webster Groves" for next Sunday.

His hazardous mission: To get a Hollywood movie star in her 40s to discuss the problems and rewards of middle age — the themes of the production.

"I never saw so many slammed doors in my life," says Rogers. "I thought one former movie queen was going to crown me with her Oscar."

ASKED SEVERAL STARS

Wide Wide World, which seeks to illustrate its themes largely in terms of people, felt that a former star, whose career had been built on youth and beauty, could tell dramatically of problems and adjustments that come with the passage of years.

With some trepidation Rogers set out to broach the subject of appearing on the program to several stars.

"I found it was better to discuss it in person than on the phone," he said ruefully. "I'd tell them I was a producer of Wide Wide World and they'd be positively enthralled. Finally, I'd explain that the subject of this particular show was the middle years.

"That did it. There would be a deafening silence. And I'd start looking for the door."

ONLY ONE AGREEABLE

Rogers said that the only Hollywood star willing to co-operate in the project was Maureen O'Sullivan, who is married to director John Farrow and the mother of seven children.

"Maureen has the most wonderful philosophy about the middle years," Rogers said. "She told us:

"'It's hard, perhaps, for a woman to grow up. But you're helped by a new kind of wisdom. You get on better terms with yourself. Even about your looks! A reconciliation with yourself—they could be better, they could be worse, and on the whole you're grateful.'"

Rogers said that Miss O'Sullivan expressed so well what the program was trying to say that she would have been ideal.

"She was willing to do it too," he said with a sigh. "But unfortunately she was sailing for Spain. And no other Hollywood actress would do it. So we're just doing the show without one."

Jayne Mansfield Stopping Shows At Las Vegas

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Actress Jayne Mansfield opened a four-week night club engagement Wednesday night, shimmying, singing and whirling about in the air while clinging to the neck of her new husband, Mickey Hargitay.

That routine got the most gasps from a 500-a-plate benefit audience at $25,000 which rewarded her lush show with considerable applause.

In other serial acrobatics, the muscular Mickey flipped his wife around in the air and walked up a ship's gangplank holding her with his head in one hand. This was to climax one of her songs, called I Want Love.

Miss Mansfield will get $25,000 a week for the Tropicana engagement.

Frankford

FRANKFORD — Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Madill, also Mr. and Mrs. Jack Madill, attended the Ice Follies in Toronto, one day last week.

Mrs. M. Simpson, of Whitby, spent the supper hour on Tuesday with the Rev. and Mrs. A. Carson.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric McComb and family, of Toronto, visited Mr. and Mrs. T. Burkitt and Betty, over the weekend.

Mrs. Ada Bush spent Tuesday evening with friends in Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Madill, of Port Hope, spent a few days last week with Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Madill.

Mrs. Carl Andrews and daughter Linda are spending this week with her father, Mr. C. Morgan, in Toronto.

Mrs. Cora Appleby had the misfortune to fall and sustain a torn ligaments in her right arm this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Cherry and family, of Belleville, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Slingerland.

The Frankford Boy Scouts held a box social and dance in the Community Hall last Friday evening.

A Valentine tea and home cooking sale will be held in Frankford Community Hall, on February 15 at 2.30, sponsored by the 1st Frankford Brownie Pack.

SUNBEAM MISSION BAND

The Sunbeam Mission Band was held in Rose Lowery Hall last Friday afternoon. The meeting opened with all standing in a circle around the worship centre of a picture of Jesus and lighted candles. Marjorie Garson read a candle-lighting poem and Susan Chase read the Scripture.

Miss R. Rowe told a story of "A Real Valentine," and Mrs. P. Chase conducted a Valentine project continuing the idea of love given in the worship service.

The leaders served refreshments and games were played.

Double Funeral For Frozen Boys

TORONTO (CP) — A double funeral will be held Friday for two Toronto boys who froze to death during a weekend hunting trip in Ontario's Manitoulin district, relatives said Wednesday.

The funeral will be conducted at St. Stephen's United Church, where both Bob Pottieren, 13 and Jim Duffy, 14, were members of a youth club whose leader took them on the trip.

Norman Morton, 39 - year - old leader, and two other club members were rescued Monday after wandering without food and shelter for two days in the woods about 100 miles north of Toronto.

In Brockbridge Wednesday, Coroner Dr. F. L. Boughen of Gravenhurst opened an inquest into the deaths. It will be held after the survivors have recovered sufficiently to testify.

Charles Heston Continues To Dabble in Television

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — According to the Hollywood code, Charlton Heston should avoid television like the bubonic plague.

After all, he is starring in what will be three of the top six money - making movies of all time. As he enumerates himself:

"The Greatest Show on Earth has a world-wide gross of $50,000,000. The Ten Commandments judging from all available estimates, may go as high as $100,000,000. Ben-Hur — who knows? It could go as high as The Ten Commandments. Even if it does half as much, that will be a pretty good total."

Despite this high finance, Heston continues to dabble in TV, which pays him considerably less than films. Recently he appeared in the Shirley Temple fable, Beauty and The Beast, and a week from tonight he's due starring on Climax!

Mr. Marquand's Point Of No Return.

LIKES TV ROLES

"I like it," he said. "I can't explain why other actors don't do it; perhaps some of them don't have stage training and are afraid of doing live shows.

"I do it because I enjoy doing it, because I think an actor should keep working, because I can reach an audience that I wouldn't be able to reach with a movie. And in TV, I can do roles that I wouldn't get a chance to do in films. For example, Point of No Return is the first time I have been able to play a normal male with modern clothes and everyday problems."

Why is it that Heston has so seldom played contemporary persons but has been chosen for such classic characters as Moses and Ben-Hur? He offered his own theory, concerning actors' faces:

"I think certain faces go with certain periods. Humphrey Bogart had the perfect modern face: he seemed to epitomize the era. For that reason, he was a bad way for two years."

AT THE BELLE — Nurse Officer Anne Francis and Ron Hudson as Navy lieutenant, to fall in love in "Don't Go Near the Water" at the Belle Theatre. Also on the all star cast which includes Gia Scala, Keenan Wynn, Fred Clark, Eva Gabor, Russ Tamblyn, Jeff Richards and Mickey Shaughnessy. "Don't Go Near the Water" starts today at the Belle Theatre.

good in modern subjects only.

"Then and I am active, who seem best in costume stories—Basil Rathbone, for example. He never seems quite right in modern clothes, but he's a great classic type."

So, apparently, is Heston. MGM thinks so, for by time of $250,000 to enact Ben-Hur. The sum is spread over a five-year period, and I am active will put up the actor and his family in a villa near Rome for the eight-month shooting period.

Some actors would shun such a long project, but Heston reasons: "I think this will be a good time to be away from Hollywood. My agents tell me the movie industry is going to be in a bad way for two years."

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

THURSDAY, FEB. 13th.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) In the morning make sure to work out a complete and detailed plan of day's activities of importance. Only in this way will you be able to operate successfully. Be your utmost to interest higher up, in helping you.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Get up very early and contact those of other business aspects regarding to best methods of getting an earlier profit from your ventures. Then work out ideas with clever and accurate associate. Don't be a lone wolf.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Your desires and goals will be impossible to achieve if you don't get the aid of partners, which you can do today. Make sure you know what your share of labor is, then go at it with zim and determination. Work.

Moon children (June 22 to July 22) Take an over-all view of the important tasks that have to be done or completed today in all spheres, get them out of the way quikly and properly, then the fine aspects of the evening and late night can become manifest.

Leo (July 23 to August 21) In the early morning dress to perfection, then you will feel in the mood to start that important in life which needs a more cheery, happy attitude. Have confidence. In P.M. make things hum at home with fine guest there.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) Get all things straightened out within the home before you leave for business today. And with peace of mind you can then be with dearest associate and have a whale of a time. You need relaxation and laughter.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Buying groceries, making those calls, early is the day well! then give you time to make your appearance more up to date, your modus operandi more efficient, and you are on the road to greater success. Grow.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Dig in and straighten out accounts today, see that tax forms are in order, reports accurate to the penny, etc. Early afternoon then is free for a bully time with good friends, new acquaintances who show promise.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Morning is fine for taking those treatments that will improve your personality, bring a glow to your face and eyes. Later, an appointment with powerful personages will bring fine results and increase abundance.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Secret manoeuvrings which will result in getting ahead that much faster are fine during day hours. Tonight, take that trip which will mean greater social standing, fun. Romantic activity will increase your circle of friends.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Your friend gives you ideas how to succeed more readily and easily. Be as honest with him or her and return the favor. Later you will then be able to convince an authority to give you valuable information, too.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) A civic matter will take much of your time today, and right as ever since early you can do the specialized work. Later, your association will work along with you on some successful labors: but yours is the greatest load now.

If your child is born today . . . The child born today is the honest, direct kind of little individual in early life who will say what he or she thinks and pull no punches. This is fine, but teach that society requires a more subtle approach and slower methods for best comprehension and results. Give a fine education and the adult years will be fine for this future citizen who could be a great diplomat and a great American.

WORKS ON ANTI-SUBS
LONDON (CP) — Sir Robert Watson-Watt, 65, the father of radar, disclosed Wednesday he is working on an underwater "eye" designed to track submarines the way radar stalks aircraft. He said the method may provide a sea "frontier" through which submarines could not penetrate without detection. The method is being developed by Sir Robert's predominantly — Canadian staff at a small laboratory in Montreal.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

Little Benny's Notebook

Ma wouldn't let me go out because it was drizzling outside, and she said, For land's sakes quit feel that lung face. You ought to be glad you've got a dry roof over your head. Then she started in order your feet, or your stummick, more usually, for what you learned to count your blessings. I'm sure I do, she said.

But heck, ma, you dont want to go out, I said, and she said, I often want other things, I wouldn't want to get rid of my headake this morning, but I counted the blessing I have in a wonderful considerate husband and a lovely home to stay in and not feel obliged to go out to work like so many women who haven't even a nice home to come back to with or without a headake, she said.

Well G. ma, I have blessings to count, too, I said. How about my good health, for instance? That's not a bad blessing, I said, and ma said, It's the very most important of all for good sakes. Sure, ma, I hardly ever catch a cold, even when I get caught out in the rain, so why should I catch one if I go out in it on perpose, especially when I have lots of warm clothes and even a slicker to wear over them? So G, ma, why cant I go out with my blessings? I said, and ma said, Because you're a dimpled boyche and might as well talk to the wind and the waves.

Hey, G, ma I just remembered I want to puntch holes in my Atomic Cookie Shooter and I have one box left out of them with string, and this is a perfect time to do it, I said. Oh, my, ma, this is what I call a real blessing, I said.

Being the happy end.

New Swine Disease

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ontario veterinarians now are grappling with, what they believe is a new disease among swine in the province.

More than 100 members of the Western Ontario Veterinary Medical Association heard a paper on the subject, Wednesday at the association's annual meeting.

The disease, so new as to be known only by its symptoms—"vomiting in suckling pigs"—has not yet been pinned down to a specific cause.

"However, it is felt that the cause lies in the sow's milk," Dr. C. K. Roe said, "and we are recommending that owners wean affected young pigs immediately."

ASKS SEAWAY STEPS

MONTREAL (CP) — A brief urging "immediate" attention to the future of the port of Montreal in the St. Lawrence seaway era will be handed to the city's executive committee this week, the Montreal Citizen's Committee announced Wednesday night. The committee, says that little time is left before the waterway opens in spring, 1959.

DEVELOP

He said the Progressive Conservative government would press for development of hydro-electric power on the Columbia River in British Columbia, has in mind a possible second trans-Canada railway route across Western Canada through Saskatoon and Edmonton.

The prime minister indicated Progressive Conservative disapproval of American companies that do not give to Canadian plants their fair share of the export business.

The government was not discouraging foreign investment, would encourage "the partnership of the foreign investor with the Canadian people."

DRAWS LAUGHTER

The prime minister drew laughs from the crowd when he said of the Liberal members of the Commons: "They spoke like lions: they voted like lambs."

Members of the opposition had called for an election but after they heard the Winnipeg crowd "they'll wonder why there was an election."

"The Liberals learned to much in seven months of opposition that I ask you how much vaster and greater the improvement will be if you give them four more years."

In a biting comment on the want-of-confidence motion put forward by the Liberals after Mr. Pearson had resigned party leader, the prime minister said he wondered who had "fathered" the resolution.

"No one without assistance could have produced anything equally stupid," he said. "They said to us, 'Resign,' but don't have an election."

Wellington

WELLINGTON — Mr. and Mrs. George Sailor spent several days in Toronto with Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Osterhout and family. While there, they attended the Ice Follies.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Marvin spent Tuesday in Toronto. In the afternoon they called on the latter's aunt, Mrs. Mabel McKnight, Reg. N., who has been a patient in the Private Patients' Pavilion, Toronto General Hospital, since December. Mrs. Marvin found her aunt much better and expecting to go home to her apartment this weekend.

Mr. Eddy Vandusen spent a recent weekend in Toronto with his brother, Mr. Tom Vandusen, Mrs. Vandusen and family.

Mrs. Laura Wight spent last week in Belleville, the guest of Mrs. L. S. Wight.

The W.M.S. members held a quilting party in the United Church Sunday School rooms on Tuesday. Sixteen members and Rev. A. Poulter enjoyed a potluck dinner at noon.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Bovay spent Thursday afternoon in Belleville guests of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Way.

Mr. James Cleminson, Mr. Tom Fillingham and Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Kling were guests on Thursday evening of Stirling Masonic Lodge on its ladies' night, at which time the guest speaker was Rev. C. R. Gale, formerly of Wellington.

Mrs. W. A. Davern spent a few days in Toronto last week.

Miss Barbara Dick, Miss Carol Marvin, Mr. Eddie Vandusen and Lonny Huff were among the P.E.C.I. grade XIII students who enjoyed a bus trip to Kingston on Saturday where they attended "Open House" at Queen's University.

Miss Helen Foster, nurse-in-training at Kingston General Hospital, and Mr. Don Urie, R.C.M.C., Kingston, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Foster.

Wellington friends of little Miss Nancy Bovay of Picton, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Bovay, are sorry to hear that she is a patient in Prince Edward County hospital. All wish her a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Ian Lamb and Miss Lesley Panton, of Prescott, who attended the Educational Council meeting in Belleville on Friday, spent the weekend with the former's mother, Mrs. Cecil Freeman.

Mrs. M. Hayton of Oshawa and Mr. and Mrs. G. Hayton and Gregory of Toronto, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Stoneburg and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baiter of Bloomfield were dinner guests on Saturday evening of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ellis and family.

Weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Jackson were Mr. and Mrs. F. Brooks and Miss Ena Brooks of Oshawa. On Saturday evening they attended the Loney-Calnan wedding in Bloomfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Allison and Carol were dinner guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. C. Thompson, Tweed. They accompanied them to Bancroft to visit their daughter, Mrs. John Allison, of Fort Stewart, who is seriously ill in the hospital, there.

The most outstanding player in the pee-wee league on the ice at Young Canada Night held at Cobourg Arena on February 3 was Blaine Sayers. He was presented with an autographed stick from the Maple Leafs by Ed Chadwick of Picton. Blaine spent all his life here in Wellington until he moved last year to Cobourg with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Sayers. Congratulations, Blaine.

The highlight of the carnival in the arena next Saturday night will be a hockey match played by Dr. Sally Sarles' "girls" against Three, they say, are fast and furious. Also, there will be three floor prizes and 21 prizes for comic and costume dresses.

Mr. Ben Bishop, who has been ill with jaundice for the past two weeks, is still confined to his bed. All hope that he will be able to be up and around again.

COMMUNITY EUCHRE

A good crowd attended the annual community party held in the town hall on Wednesday evening. There were 23 tables of euchre in play. The prizes went to Mrs. Don Morden and Mrs. Clifford McFaul, Mr. Gordon Parks and Mr. Arnold Cunningham, a travelling prize for lone hands went to Mr. Harry Pierson.

The card tables were later all joined together and refreshments were served by the committee in charge of the evening, Mr. and Mrs. George Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Whitney and Mr. and Mrs. Duncan McKenzie.

After the repast, the floor was cleared and all enjoyed a square dance to music by Mr. W. Horton, violinist, and Glendon Sanders at the piano.

The committee chosen for next year's party consists of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Bovay, Mr. and Mrs. William Adams and Mr. and Mrs. Ward Teaching Institute.

18 or 80 You May Feel Tired, Nervous, Rundown
Poor Digestion, Headaches, Backaches, Constipation, Are Common Causes — That is Why Syntona Has Helped Thousands.
Whether you are 18 or 80 you may at times feel tired, listless and rundown. Digestion is impaired, appetite lost, nerves on edge and sleep is neither sound nor restful. At such times, Syntona Herbal Compound has helped thousands of men and women. Mrs. Mabel Waugh, 126 Springbank Drive, London, Ontario, said recently:
"I have been troubled with constipation for the past seven years and sometimes my stomach would become so nauseated my lunch in the office. I had little appetite. Instead of having any energy I was always tired and rundown. My nerves were all on edge, so that my life was ruined.
"Syntona has been the best medicine I have ever taken. It has done me so much more than I ever dreamed it could. I feel much better that I am getting sound, restful sleep and I enjoy all my meals without suffering indigestion or any pain in my stomach."
Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan the Druggist.

Claims Inquiry By-Passes Usual Law Procedures

TORONTO (CP) — Cleve Kidd, president of the Ontario Federation of Labor, says an inquiry into allegations against the teamsters' union by-passes the normal procedures of law.

Attorney-General Roberts Wednesday announced Mr. Justice Wilfred D. Roach of the Ontario Appeal Court is to conduct an inquiry into allegations the union has used violence and coercion to win members and bargaining rights.

Mr. Kidd said Wednesday in a press statement:

"The normal procedure . . . is for the police to investigate complaints that the law has been violated, and if they believe a charge justified, the crown attorney lays a charge or charges.

"The charges are then heard in an open court with the appropriate rights afforded accuser and accused."

An investigation by Mr. Roberts was requested by the legislature's select committee on labor relations last month after it had heard testimony from John Watson, chairman of the Individual Dump-truck Owners' Association.

The attorney-general told the Ontario legislature his department can conduct investigations only through the provincial police and he didn't think this would be satisfactory.

SNOW THAT DIDN'T FALL ON CANADA

Canada is known as the land of snow, but when it comes to sudden snowfalls New York state can, on occasions, match any part of Canada. To prove the point, here is seven-year-old Joe Merlie of Albany standing on a 15-foot mound of snow outside his home. Scenes of snow fell in a few hours on top of 34 inches already piled up from previous snowfalls. Snow has fallen far south in Florida and Louisiana.

Board Asked to Reconsider Plans on 'Give-Aways'

OTTAWA (CP) — Private radio broadcasters today asked the CBC board of governors to test public opinion before adopting regulations to restrict broadcast contest and give-away programs.

The Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, representing 176 privately-owned radio and TV stations, made the request in a brief asking the board to reconsider its plans to impose a new regulation on give-aways, where none now exists.

The board invited representations from interested parties on a proposed radio broadcasting regulation which would "prohibit the broadcasting of any offer of any prize, gifts, or bonuses or any contest except a contest involving skill only, provided that:

"1. All the participants are present in the broadcasting studio and take part in the broadcast concerned, or

"2. Entries are made in writing and the award or size of all prizes depends on the examination and judging on their merits of all such entries."

The board has set down, with private broadcasters' approval, some "minimum standards" governing give-aways. They provided that:

1. That contest participants should not be required to send in boxtops or proof of purchase of the sponsor's product or that they know some information broadcast by the station.

2. That participants should be in the studio and take part in the program or if written entries are involved there should be arrangements for their consideration on merit.

To test public opinion, the CARTB sent a brief to all private and CBC stations broadcast during a period of at least two weeks — announcements inviting listeners to make known their views on give-aways.

Replies would be tabulated — for and against—and the views of advertisers, newspaper publishers and advertising agencies would be sought.

The CARTB said the majority of private broadcasters disapprove of "straight money give-aways", but favor "product give-aways."

It claimed that give-away contests enable small local and regional sponsors to make their products better known and more competitive with nationally-advertised products.

A regulation affecting broadcasting only would be discriminatory because other media such as newspapers would not be affected and could operate contests at their own.

Teen-Ager Pulls Knife on Teacher

TORONTO (CP) — A "scruffy-looking" teen-ager pulled a knife Thursday on vice-principal A. W. Fair of Central High School of Commerce, and threatened to "cut" a student in a corridor, police reported.

The youth fled with three companions when bystanders called police.

Inspector J. Ackroyd said the youths entered the school in west end Toronto around 3:20 p.m., and were making a commotion in the corridor when Mr. Fair, principal came out of his office.

The disturbance continued, Mr. Fair threatened to call police one of the youths, said "I don't think you should do that" and flashed his knife.

Mr. Fair told police the youths were not pupils at the school.

Biggest Para-Drop Clean and Pretty But Not Without Some Close Calls

WAINWRIGHT, Alta. (CP) — One of Canada's biggest mass para-drops, staged near here Wednesday, was a notable striking force exercise, was described by participants as "clean and pretty." But it wasn't without some close calls.

One paratrooper hung in space from a Flying Boxcar for about 15 minutes when he became entangled in the plane's "static" parachute lines after jumping. Two soldier, Pte. Gordon Pantin, 20, of Meadow Lake, Sask., finally was pulled back into the aircraft while it headed for its Edmonton base.

Paper was put in hospital for observation but later allowed to return to his barracks.

Another soldier just got out of his "chute on the snow-covered ground. Pte. Fred Pogue, struck the ground as he jumped clear.

Four supply toboggans fell free and came to the ground when their "chute failed but dropped away as they landed.

In all about 320 officers and men of the 2nd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, jumped from 15 Flying Boxcars from 600 - square - mile Camp Wainwright, 120 miles southeast of Edmonton.

The jump time winds were about five miles-an-hour and the men, floating down in the "chutes on the ground the Patricia's immediately prepared for simulated fighting, moving to rallying points marked by red, green and yellow smoke grenades.

Forming into five-man test groups they were prepared to spend the night on the prairie with the temperatures at 20 below.

At dawn today they were to advance against the exercise "enemy"—110 members of the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, now in possession of the supposed radar station where they have set up a missile guidance and difficult terrain.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — Cold weather continues to grip the heart of the nation's lower cities. Under clear skies temperatures in Ontario's north country plummeted to between 10 and 35 below zero this morning while in the lower lakes regions it was zero to 10 above.

The weather system over the midwestern states appears to be weakening as it moves southeastward and the associated snow area is expected to remain south of Ontario.

There is no sign of any letup to the current cold spell and temperatures will continue well below normal throughout the weekend.

PRIME MINISTER OUTLINES FARM PRICE SUPPORTS

Now on Way Home For Own Nomination

SASKATOON (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker says his government's new farm price supports legislation is "the greatest single advance in farm agriculture ever made in this country."

The Progressive Conservative leader, bidding for support in his CCF - governed home province, presented a vigorous defence of his federal government's agricultural program in a speech here Thursday night.

Today he heads north to his home town of Prince Albert for his personal nomination tonight as candidate in the March 31 election.

His speech here, to a capacity crowd of 800 in a cramped, overheated Legion hall, was in one of the three Saskatchewan constituencies won by Conservatives in last year's election. CCF members held 10 ridings and Liberals four.

Harry F. Jones, Conservative MP for Saskatoon, was elected by 834 votes over former CCF member Roy R. Knight, was nominated again.

RAPS CCF, LIBERALS

Mr. Diefenbaker said the new farm price supports had been misrepresented by the CCF because "that party realized there would be "dire results" if the farmers realized what it would do for them. Liberal MPs had criticized it but "voted like lambs" for it.

He said political opponents had dealt only with the mechanics of the new act — "distress prices"—its guarantee that for nine products the price would not fall below 80 per cent of the average price during the previous five years.

But its major benefit was that it would support prices "which could be established each year, in relation to a 10-year average to bring about a parity ratio" — a fair relationship to the costs of production.

He said the Canadian Federation of Agriculture and the organized farm vote Interprovincial Farm Union Council expressed appreciation of the measure.

IRRIGATION PROJECT

Referring to the South Saskatchewan irrigation power-irrigation project—a prime political issue in the province for years—he said he was pleased to be proceeding for a joint federal - Saskatchewan undertaking. "And I hope that before long we can announce agreement with Saskatchewan on its development."

"We said it could not be done. Now it has been brought into existence."

Mr. Diefenbaker said that last year he had criticized general railway freight rate increases as being unfair to the western provinces.

Inquest Called

MONTREAL (CP) — An inquest will be held Monday into the shotgun killing of Mrs. Barbara MacDonald, 29, of Montreal West, Que., whose blanket-wrapped body was found Wednesday in a snow bank on a farm in Cornwall.

The woman's husband, William, 37, is being held here as a material witness. He surrendered in Cornwall.

Pressure on French Eased Food Trucks Drive to Camps

TUNIS (AP)—Tunisia observed a day of mourning today for those killed by the French bombing of a frontier village, but pressure on French forces in North Africa's country eased.

President Habib Bourguiba appealed to his people to remain calm to demonstrate their maturity as a nation. An all-day general strike was limited by the government to the four hours of lunch and Moslem tabarish prayer "in order not to damage the national economy."

In Paris a French foreign ministry spokesman announced plans for a complaint to the UN Security Council to counter Tunisia's charge that the French attack on Sakiet Sidi Youssef constituted aggression. The French said they would charge repeated violations of the Algerian frontier by rebel forces sheltered in Tunisia.

Officially, the Tunisian order confining 15,000 French troops to their bases still stands. It also prohibits shipping local supplies to them.

But Tunisian authorities looked the other way this morning as civilian bakery supplies for the troops drove up to French camps and unloaded in the pre-dawn darkness. French helicopters made night flights to supply isolated bases.

The barricades were taken from the French military headquarters in Salamba and only four policemen left on guard.

Nevertheless, negotiations between France and Tunisia appear distant. Foreign Minister Christian Pineau said France will not negotiate under such pressure as the Tunisians now are putting on French troops. Bourguiba has said he will not deal with French troops until its troops are pulled out.

Pineau told reporters he would accept U.S. mediation, but newspapers in Paris talked with contempt of the mere idea.

Pineau said today that France will not desire mediation by any power in settling the Tunisian dispute. He reiterated his stand that it is a matter to deal directly with Tunisia.

Contribution to World Peace Issue in Election Campaign

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

In the heat of political attack and counter-attack, the ability to contribute to world peace again has become an issue in the campaign for the March 31 federal election.

Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson, MP for Northern Ontario Thursday night that Canadian voters must decide in this election which party and which leadership "can make the most effective contribution for Canada in the search for peace and security at this time."

Following a day of wintry whistle-stopping across Saskatchewan Prime Minister Diefenbaker defended his Progressive Conservative government's farm prices stabilization legislation before a Saskatoon audience that included prominent members of both of the province's CCF and Liberal parties.

Mr. Pearson and Mr. Diefenbaker had busy days.

Mr. Pearson won the 1957 Nobel peace prize for his efforts as former external affairs minister. He nominated ex-Canadians for his home constituency of Toronto East.

He told his constituents that in addition to the problems of full employment in the election campaign, there is also the issue of world peace.

He wanted to make clear that other parties have no "monopoly" on the same objectives, to preserve peace. The voters would be as effective as the Liberals.

Diefenbaker, speaking at Saskatoon in his farm price stabilization legislation.

He said the bill, passed at the last session of Parliament, "may well find it to be the greatest single advance on behalf of agriculture ever made in this country."

Mr. Diefenbaker said, Opposition parties had misrepresented the bill to farmers.

The prime minister spoke to some 800 persons jammed into a Saskatoon hall while almost 100 more listened by loudspeaker. He was on the last day travelling by train across the province, with frequent platform appearances.

As Mr. Diefenbaker spoke in the Saskatoon hall, there shouted disagreement with one of the prime minister's statements.

"Nonsense," a heckler shouted disagreement with one of the prime minister's statements.

"Negative," the climber yelled from the rim of the crevasse.

They knew then that the crumbly cliff had defeated Cliff Burns and Dan Doody.

On Wednesday, the 13-year-old mountaineers had edge within 50 feet of the summit when a storm was walking along the top of the cliff on towering Mount Temple. He and a school-mate, part of a hiking party, had been roped to a guide and were about to look from the top of a falls that tumbles 700 feet down in two steps.

Donald slipped on a path, swung over the cliff, but fell was instantly protected momentarily by a small ledge about 100 feet down. He climbed back to the path, and he fell another 200 feet to the ledge. Then he began to creep in the middle of the waterfall.

The boy stayed there in falling rain, sleet, freezing, crying out and waving intermittently. Another guide made it down to the ledge to rescue him.

"He is alive, John!" another climber shouted from above.

"Negative," Mathews replied.

For the two dozen men involved in the rescue attempt it had been 24 hours of hand-wringing frustration, caused by ropes being too short, lack of something solid to drive stakes into, long, difficult terrain.

Held in Germany Slayer Admits Toronto Holdups

MANNHEIM, Germany (AP)— The state prosecutor announced today that Karl Schuler, convicted in a robbery slaying here last year, confessed to a series of holdups in Canada and the United States. All but one of the holdups were in the Toronto area.

An announcement said Schuler told Canadian Detective Frank Brown in his cell in the Mannheim prison he committed the holdups in most of the other holdups.

Schuler and Cowell are serving life terms for the slaying of a German policeman during a $11,900 Mannheim holdup.

The holdups in Canada and the United States, Schuler told Brown, about $40,000, the announcement said.

The prosecutor's office listed these holdups as among those admitted by Schuler:

1. June, 1952, box office of a movie theatre in Toronto, about $2,000.

2. Early in 1953, Bank of Toronto, Toronto, about $4,000.

3. April 1953 Canadian Bank of Commerce, Leaside, Ont., $6,000.

4. June 3, 1955, bank in Cleveland, Ohio, $7,000.

5. Dec. 10, 1955, night club in Los Angeles, $4,000.

6. Jan. 17, 1956, Toronto Dominion Bank, Toronto, $20,000.

DUCKS CAUGHT IN ICE

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Firemen answered a strange call for help Thursday. They found four ducks frozen in a pond, unhurt but squawking loudly. An hour of gentle work freed the birds which waddled away from the pond.

Climbers Reach Boy on Ledge, Find He's Dead

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — An expert mountain climber finally got down Thursday to a 14-year-old boy who had been trapped by a splatter waterfall, grotesquely twisted and dead.

"Negative," the climber yelled from the rim of the crevasse.

They knew then that the crumbly cliff had defeated Cliff Burns and Dan Doody.

On Wednesday, the 13-year-old mountaineers had edge within 50 feet of the summit when a storm was walking along the top of the cliff on towering Mount Temple. PEARSON BRINGS WORLD PEACE INTO CAMPAIGN

'Time Running Out' Says Liberal Leader

SUDBURY (CP) — Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson has pledged his "supreme devotion" to help unshackle enslaved people and work to head off a possible third "and last" world war if he becomes prime minister March 31.

"Irresponsible" reckless action in the international field can today mean nothing less than the annihilation of the human race," he told a political rally in this Northern Ontario mining community Thursday night.

The stakes were high, the 1957 Nobel peace prize winner said He did not want to be an alarmist but Canadians had to face the possibility the world might be thrust into the horrors of an atomic war.

Canada was in an effective position to promote world peace through international negotiations, added the former external affairs minister who helped solve the 1956 Suez crisis. He would devote all his might to this responsibility, he said.

TIME RUNNING OUT

"Time is running out," he told the capacity crowd in the packed auditorium.

"If something is not done in the right direction, then we might slide into the wrong direction" Mr. Pearson said he had pushed the issue of peace and international security at the UN because he opened his campaign to reverse the Liberals' defeat of last June.

But he also emphasized trade and unemployment, accusing the Progressive Conservatives of bungling trade relations with the United States and aggravating a serious unemployment situation in Canada.

In his opening speech at nearby Espanola where he was defeated as a federally nominated Algoma East Liberal standard-bearer for the fifth time since 1948, and here in Sudbury, he touched briefly on his $400,000,000 trade deficit with the U.S., cut differences between it and the $500,000,000 tax-cut which he said would be the Conservative leader, George Drew, in the 1953 election.

WOULD INCREASE DEBT

Mr. Pearson would have his cuts financed by increasing the government debt. Mr. Drew had proposed providing the cuts by eliminating "waste and extravagance" in the Liberal government's administration. Mr. Pearson maintained that the Conservatives since taking over office right themselves had failed to find evidence of waste.

His argument, likely to be expanded in his keynote address at Hamilton tonight, is that the cuts would stimulate industrial spending, give the economy a life and reduce unemployment.

The government required "wise and stable" policies, which the Liberals had followed since 1945. The Liberals had reduced the national debt by $2,000,000,000 in the post-war years by budgeting for surpluses in times of inflation. Now it could use some of this saving to provide new jobs for Canadians.

It would have been a "wise" thing for the Conservative government to have brought in a tax - reducing deficit budget, rather than call a winter election.

British Papers Question Wisdom Of Entering Nuclear Weapons Race

LONDON (Reuters)—Two British newspapers have expressed concern over government plans to produce nuclear weapons even by side with the United States.

British plans to develop an advanced type of ballistic rocket, which some papers describe as a new deterrent, were first revealed Thursday in the annual defence department white paper.

Publishing out that nuclear bombs do not necessarily give superiority in land battle, the Manchester Guardian says: "More probably our voice will be heard only when our advice is in itself persuasive and when the Americans, for internal reasons, are ready to listen."

The Manchester Guardian says that nuclear weapons making a mistake in going ahead with a separate British deterrent.

"Is there anything to be gained by adding a British deterrent to the American deterrent?" the Liberal paper's editorial asks.

"Pointing out that nuclear bombs do not necessarily give superiority in land battle, the Manchester Guardian says: "More probably our voice will be heard only when our advice is in itself persuasive and when the Americans, for internal reasons, are ready to listen."

Iraq And Jordan Merge To Form New Arab State

Create Pro-West Rival To Nasser's Republic

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Iraq and Jordan joined today in a new Arab federation — At Ithad al-Arabi—proclaimed shortly after sunrise on the Moslem holy day. Their merger created a pro-West rival to the United Arab Republic Syria and Egypt proclaimed two weeks ago.

King Faisal II of Iraq and King Hussein of Jordan — 23-year-old cousins of the Hashemile dynasty—agreed to merge their countries' finances, economies, and foreign affairs. They will retain separate local governments and their individual thrones, but Faisal was named chief of state.

The federation essentially differs sharply from the UAR, which on paper will reduce Egypt and Syria to provinces of one highly centralized government to be run by Egyptian President Nasser. The Iraqi-Jordanian merger also cements the geographical wedge between Syria and Egypt, posing Nasser the problem of controlling his new province from 120 miles away. Also in between is Israel.

"MORE NATURAL" UNION

Foreign Minister Burhanuddin Bashayan al-Jamali described the Iraq-Jordan federation is a more natural union than Nasser's United Arab Republic.

Leaders of the UAR look to the Communist bloc for military, political and economic aid. Iraq and Jordan look to the West. Both buys Iraqi oil and bolster impoverished Jordan with military and economic aid from the West.

Although the new federation is expected to continue the pro-Western policy which Iraq governments have followed individually, one of the first results is likely to be Iraq's withdrawal from the Western-backed Baghdad Pact. This would pave the way for Saudi Arabia, which borders the federation on the south, to join.

After the signing, the two young Western princes prayed.

The new federation brings together about 5,000,000 people in a land of oil and fertile river valleys—with 1,500,000 Jordanian nationals who are Palestine residents in parched, poverty-stricken Jordan. Together the new Conservative leader, George Drew, in the 1953 election.

Deficit of 100 Million Dollars Is Predicted

TORONTO (CP) — A government member of the legislature has predicted a $100,000,000 deficit for the fiscal year ending March 31, And an additional $140,000,000 deficit in the year ahead.

That assumes there will be no new taxes in the province," said Mr. MacAulay (PC—Riverdale) told the legislature Thursday.

"I don't expect any except for a modest review of the logging tax and perhaps some impost in relation to the hospital plan."

Mr. MacAulay said the deficits would be the result of "our tremendous crash program to help stimulate the economy" in addition to an economic slow-down which is first revealed this winter.

He said he expects lower returns from the mining tax and from the corporation tax in the budget statement to be presented by Mr. Frost. Mr. MacAulay said total be- $600,000,000 "and $615,000,- 000 with revenues for next year forecast at $625,000,000.

A better tax agreement with Ottawa is also necessary, Mr. MacAulay. He proposed a system in which payments to provinces would be tied to their contribution to the gross national products, with regional assistance grants and a minimum revenue provision.

Mr. MacAulay suggested tax grants be three per cent of a province's contribution to the gross national product, which he said would bring Ontario $350,- 000,000.

In another development in the province's debate, Speaker the Rev. A. W. Downer allowed a CCF non - confidence motion against the government but ruled a chance in its form was necessary before it could be voted on by itself before the vote on a Liberal amendment.

Warehouse Burns Loss 8 Million

ERIE, Pa., (AP)—A spectacular fire, punctuated by periodic explosions, destroyed a block-long warehouse Thursday night, causing damage estimated up to $8,000,000.

Firefighters were hampered by bitter 14 degree temperatures. The entire area became a mass of ice.

Drums of gasoline and chemicals exploded like bombs, sending tongues of flames more than 100 feet in the air.

Florida Folk Still Shivering

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Florida's mercury was still low today following the season's fourth hard freeze and a record snowfall.

It has been Florida's worst October on record.

North Florida residents awoke Thursday and found a coating of snow in Georgia and in Mexico to Jacksonville, in the northeast. The snow was described much of it by afternoon.

A record three inches fell at Tallahassee — topping the old mark of two inches set in 1886.

The Manchester Guardian says that nuclear weapons making a mistake in going ahead with a separate British deterrent.

"Is there anything to be gained by adding a British deterrent to the American deterrent?" the Liberal paper's editorial asks.

"Pointing out that nuclear bombs do not necessarily give superiority in land battle, the Manchester Guardian says: "More probably our voice will be heard only when our advice is in itself persuasive and when the Americans, for internal reasons, are ready to listen."

CARELESS DRIVING CHARGE IS LAID AFTER ACCIDENT

Property damage amounting to approximately $275 resulted early today when a car driven by John W. Phillips, 326 Charles Street, struck a parked auto on Moira Street. The parked auto owned by Richard Byrd, 86 Moira Street, was shoved about a tree and was damaged on the left side of about $200. Mr. Phillips was charged by police with careless driving.

AB WRIGHT RECEIVES AUTOGRAPHED VALENTINE

Ab Wright, forward for Lansdowne-Rollins Junior "B" rockey club, received a "huge" valentine today autographed by most 50 of his football and basketball teammates at C.L.V.S.

Ab sustained a fractured skull in a recent Junior "B" fixture and is resting in Toronto General Hospital.

TORONTO SWIMMERS TO VISIT CITY FOR "Y" MEET

A crack team of swimmers from the Toronto Downtown YMCA will be the guests of the Belleville Y natators at a meet scheduled for the Albert College pool tomorrow afternoon.

The Toronto team is rated one of the better swimming organizations in the province. It will be represented by 25 swimmers.

The Belleville team under coach Bill McCausland has been training hard for the event and the four team entries are said to be in good shape for what is expected to be their biggest test of the winter meets.

The first event will get under way at 2.30.

CIGARET SPARK BELIEVED CAUSE

A spark from a lighted cigaret was blamed this morning for a blaze which caused $4,000 damage to a canteen car at the Shell Service Station at 186 Dundas Street and brought firemen on the run.

A service station attendant was said to have been working on the fuel pump when the fire flames caught fire.

Flames leaped to the ceiling and slightly blistered the paint but further damage was averted when the car was pushed outside and a fire extinguisher used to douse the blaze.

MISS EILEEN HANCOCK SECTION CHAMPION IN PUBLIC SPEAKING

Miss Eileen Hancock, Grade 11 student at Quinte Secondary School, was yesterday named section champion in a public speaking contest sponsored by the Industrial Accident Prevention Association. Miss Hancock will now go on to the divisional contest to be staged at Cobourg.

Topic of Miss Hancock's prize winning talk was "Safety on the Farm." She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hancock, R.R. 2, Belleville.

YMCA Role in Asia, Africa Outlined by Canadian Head Addressing 'Y' Annual Meet

Approximately 150 YMCA members, directors and their wives attended the annual dinner meeting of Belleville YMCA in the armouries last night.

Guest speaker was C. F. Basil Tippet, of Toronto, president of the Industrial Y's as well as of the YMCA.

Mr. Tippet, who, with his wife recently completed his third trip around the world visiting YMCAs in 30 countries, spoke on the theme, "This Y'd World."

A native of St. John, N.B., Mr. Tippet has held official positions in such organizations as the Board of Trade, Big Brother Movement, Toronto Rotary and Rotary International, as well as the YMCA.

In his address, the speaker discussed the role of the "Y" in Asian and African countries, and offered advice to Canadian YMCA officials.

SOLVE NATIONAL PROBLEMS

"Asian YMCA organizations have been established primarily concerned with seeking national aspirations for their young people — and helping them to solve their national problems," he said.

In Japan, for example, the hunger for higher education is tremendous. Many eager young students are helped to further their studies by YMCA organizations, he explained. In Hong Kong the "Y" organization is helping refugees with helping refugees from Communist China.

He urged his audience not to be prejudiced against these countries whose ideals differ from ours, because "we've got a lot to learn from them."

HAVE SPIRITUAL ATTITUDE

"Asiatics have a sort of spiritual attitude toward life which carries over to their 'Y' work—for them YMCA service is a privilege."

He said they are accomplishing a great deal with little — but they are looking to us for guidance and this is a great responsibility.

"Second is the institutional-ization of Asiatics. North Americans, with their competitive spirit, are inclined to build bricks and mortar, sometimes forgetting the purpose for which the new building was erected."

The speaker said in the past 10 years Canada has contributed $20,000,000. to erecting new buildings.

CHRISTIAN EMPHASIS

"The third is the secularizing of purpose - - - the getting from the Christian emphasis. In our Y organizations we must spend more time explaining to young people the role Christianity plays in our lives," he said.

"With prayer and self-discipline, anything can be accomplished — and we should govern our efforts by the needs of these young people," he concluded.

The speaker was introduced by J. H. Legate, and thanked by Harold Bankier.

Chairman for the meeting was J. C. McDonald, who substituted for Don Tennant, chairman who was unable because of illness.

Head table guests were introduced by W. J. McDougall, and the president's report was given by D. G. Williams.

NEEDS NEW BUILDING

In a brief address president Williams pointed out in five years "Y" membership here has tripled, and the building is "bulging at the seams."

"The Board is aware of the need for a new building," he said.

Mr. Williams commended general-secretary D. G. Diamantides and the "Y" staff for assisting the Belleville YMCA on the high level it has attained.

Greetings from city council and best wishes for future success were extended by His Worship, Mayor Gerald R. Hyde, who noted that council "is proud of the Y's development over the past few years."

J. G. Dunlop, of Cobourg, vice-president of the National Council of YMCAs, was unable to be present.

The Chorsleers, an offshoot of the "Y"-affiliated So-Ed Club, gave a choral presentation. The group, under direction of Joseph Herdman, choirmaster of Christ Church, sang three selections, "All In The April Evening," "Down By the Salley Gardens," and "Linden Lea."

AWARDS PRESENTED

Following the main address, six leaders' fellowship awards were presented by F. C. McGuire.

Those winning "Y" honors were Harry J. Fuke, Mayor Gerald R. Hyde, Bryson Leslie, C. M. Cawker, So-Ed president Bert Hiles and judo instructors Jim Driscoll, Ramon Fuerne and Canada's black belt champ, Frank Hatashita.

The former chairman of the Physical Education committee, W. A. Beatty, was presented with a gift on behalf on the committee. The presentation was made by present chairman Charles Cawker.

Tribute was also paid the "Y's" oldest member, Joseph Shortt.

The financial report, submitted by treasurer Gerald Hyde, showed the total revenue to amounted to $29,223.60. This was made up of net departmental revenue of $18,616.82, $9,546.53 received from the Community Chest, and $3,060.14 from other income.

Operating expenses amounted to $14,699.37, and administrative expenses were $13,300.79, making a total of $28,000.16.

After allowing $4,113.26 for depreciation of building, equipment and inventory repairs, the operating deficit for the year came to $2,889.82.

INCREASED BOARD'S SIZE

A motion presented by G. B. Scott to increase the number of directors from 24 to 30 was passed.

In a brief address general secretary D. G. Diamantides said "Belleville should be indebted to the YMCA movement for the tremendous work accomplished with local youth."

He commended the staff and said they should share in any praise for the Y's success.

Mr. Diamantides said if the YMCA is to continue to give service, it must grow with the community.

"This is a crucial year — a year when preparations must be made for expansion to meet the predicted large boost in the population expected in the next 10 years," he concluded.

The report of the nominating committee was submitted by Mrs. W. H. Winkle.

New members elected to the board of directors for 1958 were: H. W. Ackerman, F. R. Clarke, F. Gordon Clark, G. B. Scott, J. D. Templeman, J. E. Dickens, J. C. McDonald, D. McKenzie, and F. C. Miller.

In addition three other members were elected later to the list. They are John Chipman, William Wills and Hugh Mackie.

The 30-member Board of Directors will meet in the near future to elect the YMCA president for the Belleville branch.

Three Women Hurt in Crash Near Trenton

Three women were treated at Trenton Memorial Hospital Thursday noon after the cars in which they were riding were involved in a chain reaction rear-end collision on No. 2 highway at the No. 6 R.D. road east of Trenton.

Injured in the accident were Mrs. Lena Yates, 70, of Frankford; Mrs. Verna Smith of Kingston, and Mrs. Josephine Slack of Phillipsville. Mrs. Yates suffered facial lacerations.

The accident occurred when a car driven by Benjamin Yates of Delta failed to stop in time to avoid colliding with the rear of one driven by Campbell T. Smith of Kingston. The Smith vehicle in turn was shocked into a car driven by Black O. Broad of Stirling.

Provincial Constable Bowerman investigated.

In a second rear-end accident in the Trenton area a car driven by Frederick Moore, Trenton, bumped into the rear of a truck driven by John Zebedee of Belleville. There were no injuries.

D. T. Marrocco New Chairman Of Library Board

Election of officers for the Corby Public Library were announced at the annual meeting held Wednesday evening in the library.

Officers are as follows: chairman, D. T. Marrocco; vice-chairman, C. L. Hyde; chairman of finance, W. Kelly; chairman of property, M. M. Hackett and secretary-treasurer, Miss Olive Delaney.

The annual report, submitted by chief librarian, Miss Olive Delaney, showed there was an increase of 2,441 adult books and 11,907 children's books loaned during the year. A total of 145,340 books were in circulation during 1957 as compared with a total of 125,992 during 1956.

Miss Delaney reported in the past seven years approximately one-quarter of the total yearly budget has been spent on the purchase of books in an effort to build up as quickly as possible a diversified and worth book collection. This year 4,409 new books were purchased, bringing the total number to 22,353.

"Our book collection is still below the standard of other libraries set by the Canadian Library Association, and many of our books are worn and have to be drawn and replaced," she said.

Belleville youngsters are a well read lot, 60.81 books last year. A total of 35,539 books were withdrawn from the public libraries in the four schools. A library containing 550 new books is opened each term. Mary School last fall upon the request of the Home and School Association.

Memberships during the year total 2,641 adults and 1,122 students and 714 boys and girls were enrolled.

Miss Delaney explained the majority of those who registered were readers who had just reached the "reading stage."

The Film Library also had a giant stride and the circulation of films surpassed the 1956 total by 1,000. Two courses for the training of volunteer projectionists were held in the library. A total of 210 records were borrowed during the year from the National Film Board, Miss Delaney said. "Fairy Lady" being the most popular with adults and "Tubby the Tuba" with the children's favorite.

The first step in an effort to re-organize the library's greatest obstacle — lack of space — was taken last spring with the installation of a library planning committee. Two meetings were held, one in June and another in the fall, during which Watson and Wiegand, architects were employed in an advisory capacity. Dr. J. S. Stock was appointed council's representative to the committee.

Improvements to the building included the installation of a new cupboard in the washroom, and the addition of an extra trough, for which was fitteneed by city council, she reported. The shortage of space in the basement has not yet been improved, and much valuable material stored there is damaged by water each year, Miss Delaney said.

The resignations of Miss Catherine Kelly and Miss Colleen Lowe and the addition of three new staff members — Mrs. William Dack, Miss Mary Ellis and Miss Ruth Bowen — were noted, also the appointment of C. J. Frederick, retired public school principal, to fill the vacancy on the board resulting from the resignation of Col. R. N. Gray last fall. Mr. Gren had been a member of the Library Board since 1946.

In conclusion, Miss Delaney extended thanks to her staff for their conscientious work during the past year.

scientific publications.

"To Your Good Health" offers additional reader service in the form of leaflets and booklets on a variety of medical subjects.

Less Juvenile Delinquency In County Report Shows

Belleville and the county of Hastings had slightly less juvenile delinquency last year than during 1956, according to the report of the Juvenile and Family Court made available this week by city and city councils.

The report shows that a total of 86 cases were dealt with by the court as compared with 87 in 1956 and 84 in 1955. The number of persons involved in the offences was 43 with two children appearing more than one case in court.

The decrease in the number of offences was considerable for last year, but Deputy Judge T.Y. Wills in commenting on the report said he did not like to see any decrease in juvenile delinquency as it may be a reason to draw conclusions.

The report was submitted by Judge J.C. Anderson.

In his commentary on the report Mr. Wills noted that the general type of offences remained substantially the same and there were no cases of violence last year. He said that probation continued to be the basic and normal method of treatment of juvenile offenders with both city and thoroughly informed appraisal of the situation before each hearing and from the crown attorney. He said the court was indebted to members of the family court committee for their assistance and sympathetic cooperation.

"A juvenile and family court can do its best work when it has the sympathetic co-operation of all citizens and organizations working in similar fields," noted Judge Anderson, adding that he and Deputy Judge Wills, were at all times open to constructive suggestions as to how the court could increase its usefulness in the community.

Breaking and entering and theft were the most numerous of offences charged against juveniles during the year with 28 such cases brought into court. Six juveniles were charged with car theft, three with property damage, and four with theft.

CASES OF PROBATION

During the year probation was given in 39 instances; five juveniles were committed to training school and six charges were dismissed.

The family court report showed that 40 cases involving adults had been heard. This is two more than in 1956 and four less than in 1955. Total number of offences charged against adults in family court was 75, of these 41 were for non-support under the Deserted Wives and Children's Maintenance Act; 11 were for non-support of children only, and 16 were court appearances arising out of driving.

Of amounts ordered for collections actually $643 per cent has been collected. Col. Wills in his commentary said this was a fairly satisfactory ratio, the main causes for deficiency being death, absconding and unemployment of the man against whom the orders were made.

Will Discuss Forming Area In County

Possible establishment of a Brucellosis Control area in Hastings county will be discussed at a series of four meetings to be held in the county next week.

First meeting will be held in the board room of the agricultural office at Stirling on Monday afternoon, with a meeting at Canniton town hall scheduled for Monday evening. Two meetings will be held on Tuesday, one at Tweed in the afternoon and another at Madoc in the evening.

Dr. McDermott of the Ontario Livestock Branch will address all meetings and farmers of the county are invited to attend at least one of the meetings as they may have a true understanding of Brucellosis Control Areas.

Liberals Will Hold Meeting At Marmora

Liberals in the riding of Hastings-Frontenac will hold their nomination convention Saturday evening at the township hall at Marmora when they will name a candidate to contest the riding in the forthcoming federal election.

Hon. J. W. Pickersgill will speak at the convention after his speaking engagement at the Hastings South convention to be held in Belleville tomorrow afternoon.

At the by-election held last fall in which Hon. Sidney Smith, now Minister of External Affairs, was elected as Progressive Conservative member for the riding, the Liberals did not enter a candidate, deciding to wait until the general election before again contesting.

At least three Liberal party aspirants for the nomination are said ready to contest Saturday evening's nomination.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market was irregularly lower in quiet morning trading.

Industrials were ahead less than a quarter point on index but western oils, golds and base metals lost ground on their indexes. Losses held a slight edge over gains.

The 11 a.m. volume of 396,000 shares was a bit heavier than Thursday's 377,000 at the same time but well below the average for most of the recent sessions.

Industrial gains outnumbered losses by a small edge. Ahlfid, Canada Packers A and B, Ford A, Dominion Steel, Shawinigan and Stelco were among the selected winners. Banks were firm section.

Montreal, Nova Scotia and Toronto Dominion ahead fractions.

Great Lakes Paper, Union Gas and Loblaw B were among the losers. Most declines were less than one-half point.

High-priced mines, including golds, were generally easier. Hollinger, Hudson Bay and International Nickel, trading ex-dividend lost fractions. Opemiska was ahead 10 cents at $6.15 among medium-priced mines but Sherritt and Northspan had moderate losses.

Western oils had few changes. Central Del Rio lost 10 cents at $6.70, the biggest change in the Weekend Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Trading of slaughter cattle this week was active at prices fully 50 cents and more a hundredweight higher at the Ontario public stockyards. Veal calves sold readily at firm prices. Hogs gained $1 a hundredweight and sheep and lambs prices were unchanged.

The top grades of steers, cows and bulls were fully 50 cents a hundredweight higher with the inbetween grades of steers and cows selling fully 50 cents a hundredweight. Heifers and feed yearlings held on a strong active basis. Heavily managed cattle continued to show up in appreciable numbers with buyers sharply discounting these kinds at every opportunity.

Cattle receipts were some 700 head more than last week and about the same number of head more than this week in 1957. Receipts from Western Canada totalled 133 head, a decrease of 170 head under last week. No shipments were made to Eastern Canada slaughterers and one load was exported to the United States.

Prices

Slaughter cattle: Choice steers 22-32.75 with one straight load at 22; good 20.50 - 21.50; medium 18.50-20; most common steers (all weights) were sold back to the country for further feeding and finishing. Good for slaughter at 16-18; good heifers 19-20; with odd choice at 20.50; medium 17-18.50; with common at 14.50-16.50; choice fed yearlings 22-23 with odd at 24; good calf selling at 20 good 20-21.50; good cows 15.50-16; medium 14-15; common cows 12-13; canner and cutter cows 10-13; good heavy bologna bulls 17.50-18.50; with common and medium bulls (including fat beef bulls) selling at 15-16.50.

Stocker and feeder cattle: stockers 20-22 with odd light-weights at 23.50; medium 19-20.

Calves: Good vealers 32-34 with the few choice offered selling with it; and fractionally higher; medium 27-31; common 16-26; cull calves 12-15.

Sheep and lambs: Good lambs 23-24 with light weights at 24; stags 12-15.

Hogs: Grade A 30; heavy sows 28 with light sows at 24; stags 15.

The egg market was reported firm with receipts light and the demand fair.

Country dealers are quoted on graded eggs, delivered Toronto, in fibre cases: A large 37; A medium 35; A small 30; B 30; C 25. Wholesale to retail: A large 42; A medium 40; A small 35; B 35; C 30.

Butter prices: Canada, first grade: Ontario 63¼-63½ in export, very light trading; western 62-62½ (nominal).

Mercury Dips To Eight Below, No Change Seen

Like the groundhog who on Candlemas Day ducked back into his hole for another six weeks of winter, the January weather prognosticators who were prophesying a mild winter have done the disappearing act.

And well they might!

For Old Man Winter caught up with a vengeance over the past weekend when he started to dump snow over the Quinte area and since then the mercury each night has dropped close to the zero mark.

Last night a season's record low was established as the thermometer plummeted to eight below in the city with neighboring centres to the north reporting temperatures much lower.

And the weatherman promises no immediate let-up from the current cold spell.

Brrrr, the forecast says continued cold.

Witnesses Hold Assembly

Over fifty Belleville residents journeyed to nearby Trenton today as delegates of the semi-annual circuit assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses. Six months ago this gathering, sponsored by Belleville's Dewey Bible and Tract Society, was held in the Belleville Collegiate Auditorium but this time Trenton was selected for the three-day convention.

One of the features which will see Belleville residents take part on the program is the "Theocratic Ministry School" scheduled for this evening. Students ministers both young and old actively take part, being allowed so many minutes in the pulpit to develop a talk given by their own style and manner. They are then given constructive criticism by the instructor who points out their weaknesses and improvements on a revised sheet which each student keeps.

Firemen and CPR Continue Parley

MONTREAL (CP) — Negotiations aimed at settling a long-standing dispute between the CPR and the firemen's brotherhood over the use of helpers on diesel engines were adjourned Thursday—still at the explanatory stage.

The talks are to resume at 2:30 p.m. EST Monday with representatives of the 9,000-member Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen (CLC) are expected to state their case.

Negotiators—five union officers and four CPR representatives—met privately Thursday to discuss the dispute that brought firemen out on strike 13 months ago. The CPR's transcontinental services were disrupted for nine days by the walkout.

The company says firemen are not necessary aboard diesels in freight and yard service. The union, which represents diesel firemen on lines for railways that says removal of firemen would be contrary to the best interests of safety.

Neither side was willing to comment on the possible outcome of the negotiations.

The union's negotiations with the CPR are expected to influence talks scheduled next week with Canadian National Railways.

Surprise Storm Hits Maritimes

HALIFAX (CP)—A sneak snowstorm that howled up from Maine Thursday, dumping up to 18 inches of snow on the Maritimes, is expected to blow out of the area today.

The storm caught the weather office by surprise. A sunny day had been predicted.

A fire at Wellington Station, P.E.I., caused damage estimated at $100,000. Snow-clogged roads slowed arrival of fire - fighters from the RCAF base near Summerside.

Traffic was slowed. The northern Cape Breton villages of Ingonish and Neil's Harbor were isolated when snow blocked the Cabot Trail at Cape Smokey.

Jury Attaches No Blame in Man's Death

TRENTON — A coroner's jury under Coroner Dr. J. V. Byrne brought in a verdict of accidental death with no blame attached to anyone in the death of John Francis Cane, 42, of 105 Young-mans Street, Belleville, on January 26.

Mr. Cane's body was found lying on the highway near the main gate of the RCAF Station, Trenton, after a car driven by Dr. William McCutcheon of Belleville had passed over it.

Several witnesses were heard by the jury in establishing the movements of the deceased during the evening prior to his death. Other witnesses, medical and police, told of the investigation and the autopsy, testing of blood and x-rays which were taken to determine the nature of the man's death and his condition at Trenton prior to the accident.

Dr. McCutcheon told of his part in the mishap. He testified that he had been proceeding along the highway towards Belleville and was three or four car lengths behind another vehicle. He said when he arrived near the gates of the air base he observed a man's body which was what he thought was a bag of potatoes on the highway. He said he was very close and, unable to swerve around the object, he drove his car over it before he did it. He did, and after bringing the car to a halt and investigating, found it to be a man.

The oncoming car, being driven by George Wright, projectionist at the Odeon Theatre in Trenton, had stopped and after talking to Dr. McCutcheon, rushed to the air station to call police and a doctor. Clarence Whitney of Trenton was a passenger in the Wright car.

In their findings the members of the jury stated the accident was unavoidable and attached no blame to anyone, and the Inquest came to his death while lying on the highway.

Crown Attorney Leon Attorney, questioned each witness concerning the mishap.

Members of the jury were George McIntosh, Monty Barlow, Harry Gillies, McDonald Smith and John Hammond, all of Belleville.

FIS Lengthens Lead in League

TRENTON — The F.I.S. Trenton Team of the RCAF Hockey League standings last night by one point to the front in three points. It also took over lone possession of second spot in the league by virtue of a 6-2 close 2-1 victory over the Rockets. The Comets, who defeated the Falcons last night, took a firm grip on the top spot in the "Big Four" series as the three wins for six points.

The Comets will last night, their first this season, gave them two points in the regular league standings and possession in the "Little Four" series.

FIS Defeats Rockets 2-1 In Overtime

TRENTON — The two top teams in RCAF hockey battled for 50 minutes last night at the Community Centre before the first goal was scored. They went into overtime before the F.I.S. squeezed out a 2-1 victory over the Rockets.

It was termed the best game of hockey played this season and was a battle all the way for both teams. They played close checking, with the checking of both teams leaving nothing to be desired.

J. Miller of the F.I.S. opened the scoring when Dupal, Rocket net-minder, slapped a loose puck away from his net and onto the stick of Miller, who was stationed at the blueline. Miller stepped in a few feet and drove a sizzler back at Dupal, caught the lower corner of the net to turn on the red light.

Bhend, of the Comets, teamed up with Crowder and Godin to equalize later to drive in the equalizer after a brilliant combination play by the fast-skating line.

With the game going into sudden-death overtime, Pelletier of the F.I.S. took a pass from defenceman Ted Voellmecke at the blue line and his team the win.

Three Rockets and two F.I.S. men made the trip to the sin-bin during the game.

Rockets: Dupal, Gillris, Desjardins, Graham, Godin, Ethier, Crowder, Garrow, Loignan, Auld, Haugh, Reid.

F.I.S. — Leslie, Voellmecke, Smith, E. H. Miller, Swanston, Henderson, J. Miller, Audisho, Rhude, Giles, McNaughton, Walton, Pelletier.

Combines Win First Game in RCAF League

TRENTON — The Combines of the R.C.A.F. were glad what everyone thought was nearly impossible, they won a game. Last night at the Community Centre they downed Headquarters 6-2 to register their victory in its starts.

The win still leaves the Combines in the cellar of the regular league standings but it gives them third spot in the "Little Four" series.

Graham and Durst were the main goal-getters for the winners, both slamming in two counters each. Carrol and Jacquemot netted singles.

Gilbert scored both goals for the losers with Brown getting an assist on one of them.

The game was a battle all the way although the Headquarters squad had only eight men dressed. Combines had 14 players on the ice. At the end of the first Combines were ahead 3-0 and when the buzzer sounded at the end of the game they were leading 5-0. Headquarters made their try in the final stanza but only managed two goals with the Combines answering one of them.

Both goalies did outstanding work in the nets.

LINEUPS:

Combines — Pinky, Corby, Bicdon, Beaumont, Hughs, Beland, Stephens, Smith, Graham, Carrol, Rodgers, Cogan, Houser, Durst.

Comets Defeat Falcons 6-4

TRENTON — The Comets had little trouble getting a 6-2 decision over the Falcons in an R.C.A.F. round-robin series game in the Community Gardens last night.

Both teams are playing in the "Big Four" series and the win gives the Comets a total of three victories in the series and boosts them well into third place in regular league standings.

The Comets started the scoring in last night's game at the 9:00 mark of the first period and ended that frame with a 2-0 lead. They outscored the Falcons 2-1 in the second stanza and repeated this in the third. The game saw only three penalties, all coming in the first period.

Wilberforce and Jillett were the big guns for the winners, with both players getting two goals each, Kaulback and Beehler slapped in singletons. Legrand and Spencer got the only goals for the losing Falcons. Legrand also collected an assist.

Falcons — Anderson, Groulx, Spencer, Brown, Diamond, Spence, Fleming, Morrison, Donley, Craddock, Garrow, Legrand.

Comets — LaRush, Finley, Hayes, Jillett, Wilberforce, Davis, Kaulback, Beehler, King.

Probable Date For Hearing Is March 3

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal cutbacks in defence spending of the $125,000,000-a - year dispute between railways and non-operating employees are expected to open early next month with a board hearing.

Informants said a probable date is March 3 at Montreal before Mr. Justice H. F. Thomson of the Saskatchewan Court of Queen's Bench as chairman of the three-man board.

The 72-year-old jurist, experienced in labor cases, took over the chairmanship from Hon. C. P. McTague, Ottawa lawyer, who withdrew before the start of hearings after spokesmen for 15 unions representing 140,000 employees protested his appointment by the federal government because of his business connections.

Medical Body Assails BBC Surgery Show

LONDON (AP) — The British Medical Association took out after the BBC today because it plans to televise cancer, brain and heart operations.

He added that most of the series, including scenes of operations would be televised live from hospitals, with film used only occasionally.

The association's council on medical education and research said the program had the full co-operation of the health ministry—which under Britain's plan of socialized medicine is the biggest employer of doctors—as well as several hospitals.

government network plans to start soon.

The medical spokesman contended that the shots of surgery would upset Britons more seriously and that the British television chiefs "are determined to make people's flesh creep."

A BBC official said the program had the full co-operation of the health ministry—which under Britain's plan of socialized medicine is the biggest employer of doctors—as well as several hospitals.

BELLEVILLE WILL BE BIGGER

Next year Belleville will be bigger.

What other changes will result from the decision of the Ontario Municipal Board that this city can annex 3,500 acres from Thurlow and Sidney Townships may be open to debate.

In some fields, the change will be unnoticed. For instance, annexation is unlikely to make any difference to the everyday working and social life of residents of the area, both present Belleville citizens and Belleville citizens to be. Father will continue to work at the same firm, mother will belong to the same church groups and the children will go to the same schools. Annexation will mean nothing to them — and that fact is the real justification for annexation. The parts of Sidney and Thurlow townships which will become part of Belleville in name are already part of Belleville in fact — in every field except that of the administration of their municipal affairs.

What annexation will mean in this latter field, we can only guess. Many residents of the annexed areas fear that taxes will be increased. But it might well have proven impossible to avoid increased taxes had the townships continued to administer areas which had become essentially urban in character. One might reasonably hope that savings will be possible in some operations by avoiding duplication of equipment and personnel which would otherwise have been required. The present citizens of Belleville, too, have been afraid that the provision of services to the annexed areas will mean their taxes will climb. Once again, though, the proper development of the annexed areas could bring dividends, in the form of increased assessment, new job opportunities and general growth, which could avert a tax increase or, if it occurs, more than offset it by increasing the average incomes of Belleville residents.

In any event, there would be something incongruous about the spectacle of a city growing up in three parts, one part Belleville, one part Sidney Township and one part Thurlow. If this increase in our family does mean some increase in the family budget for a few years, it will be no different from most cases where a family is suddenly enlarged.

A RUM SHOW

A Canadian Press despatch from Ottawa states that Hon. G. R. Pearkes, minister of national defence, has decided against paring defence costs $110,000 by eliminating the traditional rum ration for men in Canada's navy.

One suspects that one factor which may have influenced him in the decision is that elimination of the ration would not have saved $110,000 anyway — not unless he had been prepared to cut navy pay by $1.80 a month. Any pay cut for $1.80 would be difficult to justify, since similar reductions were ordered for men in the army and air force — and if men in all the services took a pay cut they might reasonably expect that civilian employees of the government would also have their salaries sliced.

Reading about the manner in which the rum is dished out, though, one cannot help but wonder whether some changes are not overdue. In the first place, the rum issue is handed out a 11.30 a.m. each day. The sailor must mix the rum on the spot. This involves no complicated ceremony, with ice and coke, or ginger ale, or fruit juices. There is no hot buttered rum for the cold seaman. The mixer is water.

Two and a quarter ounces of rum, at 11.30 a.m., mixed with water! No wonder only half the men entitled to the daily tot accept it. Of those who don't get it, three-fifths are too young. The other two fifths prefer $1.80 a month.

It is true that $1.80 a month would be the sticker in any attempt to save $110,000 annually by abandoning the rum ration. It is one thing to say that the ration of rum mixed with water and served at 11.30 a.m. is something which nobody would miss. It is another thing to argue that a pay cut of $1.80 would go unmourned. If those who take the cash in preference to the rum were to continue to receive the cash, would not their shipmates, suddenly made rumless, have a case for arguing that they, too, should get $1.80 a month. And, if all received $1.80 a month, where is the saving?

Ah, somebody says, but 2 1-4 ounces a day, even for a 30-day month, amounts to two twenty-sixers and a mickey and one does not buy two twenty-sixers and a mickey for $1.80. One does not — but the government perhaps does, after it gets through knocking off taxes from the usual cost.

The question of the rum ration, therefore, does not involve saving in the defence costs but the problem of social drinking. Would not the sailors be happier if they could mix their rum with something else than water and drink it at some other time than at 11.30 a.m.? Perhaps every sailor should get $1.80 and be given the opportunity to buy his rum and drink it when and how he pleases.

Mink may be raised healthfully on canned whale meat, says Dr. A. J. Wood of the University of British Columb'a. Only the fact that the whale is a mammal prevents us from remarking that we always suspected there was something fishy about some of the mink coats one sees.

Names of streets and house numberings, Standardization of house numbers and street names in Belleville will be one of the first efforts of the newly formed Regional Planning Committee of the city council according to Ald. Burton Jennings, the chairman of the committee. Samples of new type, more legible numbers and street name plates have been asked for by the committee and samples have been received at the city engineer's office from several manufacturers. Ald. Jennings says that the new signs and house numbers are badly needed. As it is now only about one quarter of the houses in the city have numbers which can be easily read or even found. The street names are even worse, half of them are practically hidden and only the large sized ones are clearly marked.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WHEREVER YOU HAPPEN TO BE

Can I be of any service in the world? Yes, you can. There is a work which you can do and no body; else in the teeming millions of earth's population can do that work except yourself. There is a plan which has your name on it. It is your divinely appointed task.

But where can I fulfill this mission? I live among humble surroundings. I am a person of most ordinary capabil ies. I'm not a world leader or a person of vast wealth or a scholar of great learning. I might expect really to get something done to the glory of God and the serving of my fellowmen. I do not live where great service is possible, nor is such service possible for me with my com.ricted abilities.

Dismiss such nonsense from your mind — It is worse than nonsense, it is blasphemy. God is a work for you to do, and the place you can do it best is right where you happen to be. The famous Brother Lawrence served God gloriously amid the pots and pans of the kitchen. God spoke to Moses as he was ending sheep in the mountain side. Our Lord was a humble carpenter. Paul was a tent-maker.

Neither ability nor geography has anything to do, fundamentally, with service in the life of God and to our fellow men. We serve God best when we serve Him faithfully wherever we happen to be.

Goin' t' meet my sweetheart now,
Got my good clothes on;
Seems if I'm almost a year
That she has been gone.
Yes, she's comin' home t'day,
Comin' back t' me;
In my arms I'll hold her soon,
Wife of sixty-three.

Time has turned her hair t' white,
Stooped her frame a bit;
But I'm glad she's lovely still,
Hasn't changed a whit.

Through th' years she's been the best
Beautiful an' true;
An' though I'm gittin' old,
Still her love is new.

Been away a month, but law,
Seems a year t' me!
Now she's comin' back again,
Wife of sixty-three.
An' I'm like a kid once more,
Longin' t' greet her;
Put on all my Sunday clothes
Jes' t' go t' meet her.

In Search of Fitness

Royal Bank of Canada Monthly Letter

Perhaps the need for a specific and earnest individual, family and national approach, more toward increasing physical efficiency by building the strength of our muscles rather than by the use of slimits in Canada's 14th National Health Week, sponsored by the Health League of Canada, with the slogan "the health of the nation is the wealth of the nation."

Many people think that physical fitness if by will aim at a worthwhile target. Let's shift our emphasis from "freedom from disease" to "the best possible health."

We might summarize this sort of fitness in this way: ability to fill one's place as an active member of society, without fatigue and with an energy reserve for unexpected stresses.

In the everyday work field, such a state of well-being will have good effects upon our job opportunities, our chances for promotion, and our earnings throughout our working life. More than that, it will extend to give us emotional stability, mental security and social confidence.

A certain amount of what is needed physically we have at birth, a bit for us before our birth, and is ours by heredity: the type of body we have, the size, strength, and length and breadth of our bodies, and the number and pattern of muscles that make up the muscles of the body. But the important thing is not whether we inherit a ten cent or a ten dollar constitution, but what we do with it. An old model car, properly serviced, can give longer and more satisfactory service than a newer and more expensive model care lessly used.

This is an individual challenge to each of us. It is up to us to adjust their bodies to the changing conditions of modern life so as to keep them in reasonably good condition to handle peak loads. What we call "fitness" is a blend of physical and intelligent care: sufficient sleep and rest, a balanced diet, adequate exercise, daily vigorous physical activity.

One sign of a strong body is that the muscles perform their functions properly and with necessary and by making sure that sufficient oxygen is taken to our muscles to produce energy.

While it is the blood that carries the oxygen and other nutrients to the muscles, it is muscular activity that wrests products away from them, it is that muscular organ the heart which performs the work of circulation, and carries the blood to the muscles. And, says Dr. Plewes in an article published by Canada's Health and Welfare, "persons whose muscles are in reasonably good condition are not likely to suffer from heart disease than those whose muscles are relatively only limited physical effort."

In an interview, Dr. Plewes elaborated on the connection between physical efficiency and the ability of the heart and blood to develop strong muscular tissue," she said, "prevents the blood from carrying oxygen to the muscle tissue and removing wastes fast enough. The normally rapid repetition of muscle action and hence the individual lacks endurance, and becomes tired easily, though he may be able to make one short spectacular effort."

Other research teams have pointed out that lack of adequate physical exercise is a major factor to health and even to life. Two British researchers, for instance, found that coronary heart disease occurs with more than twice the incidence among physically less active than it does among the active. And the rate of coronary mortality is much higher among the less active. They illustrated this by comparing British bus drivers and conductors. The drivers, who sit all day long, and who were found to be far more susceptible to coronary heart disease than conductors, who were active colleagues, the conductors, who spent their working days walking up and down the stairs of the double decker buses.

The worth of exercises rests upon a basic principle: Use It or Use. The Father of Medicine, Hippocrates, the first to break away from the belief that disease is due to the anger of the gods, declared: "Exercise gives the body the form which is used develops and that which is not used wastes away."

Exercise is one of other benefits It tends to lessen states of tension and depression, to reduce violent emotions. It contributes to weight control. It helps to keep the joints and muscles of those who limit their daily ration of calories to the amount they can burn with exercise. It wipes away many bad-acked habits of poor posture and of muscular strength and flexibility.

In short, adequate exercise of our muscles contributes to physical fitness, adding to our enjoyment of life and helps us to encourage our zest for adventure, contributes to our courage in tackling problems, and gives us the vigor to do things of consequence A fit person uses 20 per cent less energy for any move he makes than does a flabby or weak person.

As the years pass, physical fitness demands that we constantly adjust to new pressures as well as to aging arteries. "Survival of the fittest" means no more than the survival of those best fitted to cope with their circumstances.

We are masters of our fate only when we have made ourselves fit to meet the new conditions that surround us when we have learned to give in when the situation does not much matter and save our strength and energy for the important things in life.

Physical fitness is easily finds his way out of difficulties that would keep his nerves twanging if he were sick or only half well. It gives birth to business ideas as no sitting man can. He has the grit to carry them into action.

It is a sign of maturity to know when to exercise and when to rest, when to hang on and when to let go. Francis Bacon, Lord High Chancellor of England, writing some 360 years ago, said a man seeking health should be ready to say: "This agreeth not well with me, therefore I will not continue it." If we hurl ourselves against Nature what can ye ex pect but shipwreck? Fitness is not old, so strong, so fixed.

It is a state of mind, then, in our mature life, to add up all the illnesses we do not have, and say "One day somebody will have to feel experience available to us: positive wellbeing. But to feel lacking is a desire so strong that it prompts us to do the necessary things.

The suggestion that we can be fit only in the early years instead of stages of opposition. First, we say that is ridiculous. This is the great lie of our time. Second, we say it is diabelief. Then we say that the proposed betterment is not worth our present-state of fitness is good enough.

But then who push on from feeling "pretty well" to feeling "very well" to feeling "rich enough" and of raising gravestones to mark the spots where noble enterprises died aborning because of the lack of his physical vigor to embody them in deeds. We, on the other hand, rejoice in the strength to do his work and to achieve his highest.

Great Idea If It Worked

Akron, Ohio, Beacon-Journal

They were getting ready for the mass blood-typing program for some 700 school children in the Washington area, and on the day when the father of four children asked the question that summed up the whole thing.

"How," asked this observant lad, "are they going to make the kids keep their own tags?"

Nobody knew if that phase of the program ended right there. They agreed it was a good idea, but it would be one of the plans which was pretty far along before it occurred to anyone that it would trade bracelets or let the boy friends wear them.

Since any intelligent blood type would be worse than none at all, Dr. Clarence C. Langley Park, Md., are not going to be marked for blood types —unless they are willing to accept the risk of using tattoo marks, which can't very well be traded.

Cat and Dog Specialists

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

In an age when it is possible to insure practically almost everything under the sun, it doesn't come as a surprise to learn that a London firm founded in London within hearing distance of Lloyd's, is devoted solely to insuring dogs and cats.

The company underwrites thousands of dogs and cats against accidents, theft, poisoning, disease, whelping, theft and loss. It also does a big business insuring cows and horses against being used by third parties while in the charge of, whose property might be destroyed by a pet.

The largest amount of claims are paid for illness, followed by automobile accidents, whelping, accidental poisoning, theft and strays, in that order.

The highest claim the company has ever paid out was $2,000 for a greyhound which got into a fight with some other greyhounds at a race track and was killed. Incidentally, it was the highest claim ever paid out in England for a dog.

Personal Health Hints

By DR. WM. BRADY

Blue Funk In The Fourth Decade

A Michigan reader reports that last winter, after 46 years of generally excellent health, she found herself in a long period of low energy and "blue funk."

The term "funk" signifies frightened, to shrink from, or to flinch or, as morons say, to "chicken." But it seems evident that "blue funk" in this instance means merely low in spirit, gloomy, melancholy, depressed, moody, hypochondriac or, to coin a word, shmoish.

This is a familiar state, especially in the Great Lakes basin and the golfer belt, occurring much more commonly in women than in men, for what reason we can only conjecture.

A typical instance is that of a thirty-year-old girl who had been under medical care for a year — the doctor was treating her for anemia. Although the treatment corrected the anemia, the girl continued to mope, her constant fatigue kept her from entering junior college.

The girl's mom was a follower of this column, but she had always thought of health suggestions as "cures" here as applying to other people, not to her own family. She says nothing to me about iodin deficiency seemed to apply to her daughter's condition, so she began treating her for iodin ration. Some time later, I happened to know her, but say 1 year, Mom reported:

"The result has been simply unbelievable. I can't thank you enough for telling me to keep right on with it. She is very happy and I am so grateful — she was so tired . . . great lassitude . . . couldn't enjoy life as other young people do. Now she is bubbling over most of the time."

The doctor who told the mother to keep right on with the idin ran knew his business, but knew about that, for before he said so much daily requirement.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

GO THROUGH

I am always interested in reading about the training men run by the athletes who have competed at the Olympic games.

In any race, training and condition count. The unfit have to quit. Prepare to go through!

No road is smooth all the way. Everyone has his share of hardships. The clouds must compete with the sun, fire with water, health with sickness, success with failure.

But if you are determined to — go through — half of the battle is already won.

Go through!

Just remember that every effort of will and work means advancement — has its plus. Do not get discouraged. Hang on. Keep seeing the end farther ahead. Keep your back — and go through.

I awoke one morning last summer in my tent on the shores of a beautiful lake. It was cold and dark. The clouds covered every inch of the sky. But soon a little blue spot peeped from parting waves and the sun began to rise. By the time it was clear and the day was one of perfect beauty.

That is the way of the world. Tears do not flow forever. Dawn comes after the darkest night. You cannot appreciate winning fully— until you have thoroughly experienced failure.

Your run must always be this — I come saw a boy come out of a water skier at a summer dock. He was the last one. But he came on with a smile. Some day he will come up with a bang. He's a winner.

There are alive, the contest is never over. There are always fresh triumphs for you in some — vital — way. And everybody along the line does a good job for a brother?

If not, what are the feelings of an automotive worker when the car he has built reaches you? He won't catch, when doors won't close, window handles jam, upholstery rips and so forth?

Of course, we must remember that we have just come through a fifteen year period in which the emphasis has been, for most of us, not so much on what we give to our job, but what we get out

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of my neighbors has just bought a new low-priced car and he is furious. Low-priced; that is, somewhere between $300 and $1,500, which is the amount 2 million Canadians make in a year for all their work.

He brought me over to see it. The trunk lock has been put on wrong and there's a piece of chromium strip along one side of it not, and what are the feelings of an automotive worker when the car he has built reaches you? He won't catch, when doors won't close, window handles jam, upholstery rips and so forth?

Of course, we must remember that we have just come through a fifteen year period in which the emphasis has been, for most of us, not so much on what we give to our job, but what we get out of apprentices threw this car together!"

The question is: do automotive workers, buy cars the way we do, just going to the showroom and taking what comes? Or have they some secret symbol they chalk onto a car, as it comes along the assembly line, which means: "Hell, we know how it's built. Everybody along the line does a good job for a brother?

If not, what are the feelings of an automotive worker when the car he has built reaches you? He won't catch, when doors won't close, window handles jam, upholstery rips and so forth?

Of course, we must remember that we have just come through a fifteen year period in which the emphasis has been, for most of us, not so much on what we give to our job, but what we get out

Hasty Pees Commander!

Brilliant Military Career Ends With Retirement of Lt.-Col. E. S. Fairman, E.D.

A distinguished military career comes to an active close here on Sunday.

On that day Lieut.-Colonel Everett S. Fairman, ED, commanding officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will hand over his command to his successor, Lieut.-Col. Angus B. Duffy, CD. Col. Fairman took command of the regiment in September, 1954.

A regimental ceremonial parade will mark the change-of-command ceremonies scheduled to take place in the Bridge Street armouries starting at 2.30 p.m.

A distinguished gathering of high-ranking armed services officials, with civil and other dignitaries will witness the ceremonies.

Lieut.-Col. Fairman will lead his regiment for the last time in a march-past with Brigadier Lyle Carr, commander, 13 Militia Group, taking the salute. He will bid farewell to his unit when he takes the salute in another march-past under the command of the new commanding officer.

A post-ceremonial reception will be held in the officers' mess, guests will be admitted by invitation only.

LT.-COL. E.S. FAIRMAN, E. D.

STARTED WITH ALI

Campbellford-born, Col. Fairman received his public and high school education in his native town, graduating from the Peterborough Teachers' College in 1923. While at high school he was a member of the cadet corps commanding the unit in 1921-22.

Coming to Belleville, he joined the Argyll Light Infantry and was commissioned as a second lieutenant on June 1, 1937.

Commensurate with the change of designation of the regiment to a tank unit, he qualified as a lieutenant of infantry tank at Camp Borden on August 5, 1939.

When war broke out, Col. Fairman volunteered for active service and was transferred to the 3/37th Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery on July 17, 1940, with the rank of lieutenant. He was promoted to the rank of captain in June 1941 and proceeded overseas the next month where he took a war gunnery course at Colchester, England.

Two months later, Col. Fairman was appointed second-in-command of the 2/47 Light Anti Aircraft Battery of the 5th LAA Regiment. He served with the British Sixth Armored Division in North Africa at Divisional Headquarters from September until December 1943 He was taken on the strength of the 5th LAA Regiment RCA in January, 1944 and given command the 88th Battery.

The then Major Fairman commanded his battery with distinction through its entire Italian campaign from Ortona, and arrived at the continental service in Belgium and Holland until after VE Day.

He did not sever his connection with the army after he returned to Canada in January, 1945 and was struck off the strength of the active force. He was placed on the reserve list in August, 1945 and two years later was taken on the strength of the 9th Anti Tank Regiment RCA (ALI) reserve force. He was given command of the 34th Battery in September, 1947 a position he occupied with efficiency until October 1949 when he was appointed second-in-command of the regiment.

GIVEN COMMAND

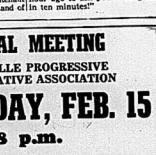
One of the highlights of his military career came when he was promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel and given the command of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment which took over from the ALI under reorganization.

Col. Fairman was awarded the Efficiency Decoration on October 11, 1954.

Civilian life he is the principal of Sir Winston Churchill School. He is past master of The Belleville Lodge No. 122 A.F. and A.M. and a past president of the Belleville Kiwanis Club. He is also secretary of the Hastings County Advisory Board for the Blind, and a member of the session of Bridge Street United Church.

Mrs. Fairman is the former Miss Vera Sheffield. Col. and Mrs. Fairman have a daughter Barbara.

PAYS TRIBUTE



Brigadier Eric Snow, commander, Eastern Area, unable to attend the change-of-command ceremonies, forwarded the following splendid tribute to Lieut.-Col. Fairman:

"I am extremely disappointed because I particularly wanted to participate and publicly thank you for the loyalty and enthusiasm you have demonstrated, and for the excellent work you have done for the militia, and particularly your own regiment these years.

"Since coming to the area two years ago, I have enjoyed tremendously my association with you and I shall always remember your kindness and consideration to me during my visits to the regiment. I want to thank you most sincerely for all you have done to maintain the excellent standard and high morale of your regiment."

Association May Request Appeal Against Report

The executive of the South Thurlow Ratepayers' Association will study the annexation problem and if they feel such a move is warranted, will recommend an appeal against this week's annexation report by the Ontario Municipal Board which gave approximately 2,500 acres of Thurlow township to Belleville.

The decision to have their executive go into all phases of the annexation problem was made at the February meeting of the Association held at S.S. No. 20 school on Wednesday night.

Association president J. Pagel noted that it was the intention to have a member of Thurlow township council attend each general meeting. Wednesday night's guest was Thurlow councillor Carl Thompson, who expressed his appreciation to ratepayers for their support in the last election and promised to serve to the best of his ability.

Thurlow Reeve Alfred Wickett was also present and in answer to a request from South Thurlow ratepayers for council meetings to be held in the evening, explained that due to the volume of municipal business to be carried out it would not be possible to hold evening meetings.

To adopt such a policy would mean many more meetings per month in order that all council business may be carried out, he said

However, he said council was prepared to receive delegations from the Association at any time and if warranted would hold a special meeting in the evening to permit the ratepayers to attend.

PARK AREAS DISCUSSED

Referring to the scheduled replacement of sidewalk along No. 2 highway from Herchimer Ave. to S.S. No. 20 school, Reeve Wickett said the only question holding up the work was the extent to which the sidewalk replacement would be subsidized by the Highways Department.

Jack Devine, chairman of the Belleville Parks Board, conducted a question and answer period on the problem of setting up parks in the South Thurlow area. He explained the procedure to be followed and the fields to be avoided and offered his experience in any parks program to be carried out.

"Stu" Martin expressed the appreciation of the ratepayers to Mr. Devine.

The meeting was adjourned by the president following the reminder of Association meetings on the third Wednesday of each month.

Know Your Heart

M. D.s Keep Abreast of Heart Research by Refresher Courses

By LEA C. STEEVES, M. D.
(Director, Post Graduate Medical Education, Dalhousie University, Halifax, N.S.)

Article 6

No matter how recently your doctor graduated from medical school, the probabilities are that he has learned a good deal about heart disease since then. "Why," you might ask, "didn't my doctor learn all about heart disease before graduating; surely medical schools know, even better than I do, how common heart disease is and how seriously it is regarded."

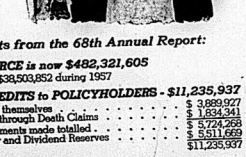
Your doctor will assure you that he saw a great deal of heart disease while in medical school, and learned all he could about it. He also learned that much remained unknown. He learned of research underway, and of much more planned, but shelved for lack of funds. In his practice he sees many similar patients, and their problems are always in his mind. The latest and best answers to these problems, he knows, come from research — findings explained and those answers published in journals before they can be printed in new medical texts. Refresher courses in heart disease are one of the ways these answers are provided.

At this point you might ask what would my doctor learn at such a refresher course? Suppose he graduated twenty years ago, he might have learned at a refresher course that prevention of rheumatic fever is now becoming feasible. This results in marked reduction of crippling of youngsters by rheumatic heart disease. If your doctor is five years younger, and a wartime graduate, while he would have known of the saving of some cases of congenital heart disease by surgery, he could only have learned later, while in practice, the tremendously important antiviral valve operation. Most doctors practising today have learned how to detect heart cases for these operations by post-graduate study. Deep freeze operations and "heart pump" procedures are, today, revolutionizing cardiac surgical techniques that are themselves only five years old.

MAJOR IMPROVEMENTS

Further examples are found in another field, a graduate of ten years ago learned nothing of the versatile "snake root" so useful in the management of high blood pressure. Until he started his post graduate refresher studies, he learned nothing of the powerful drugs have appeared almost yearly ever since. Even new types of high blood pressure with their appropriate treatments in some instances by surgery and then by drugs have been detected since our graduate of ten years ago attended parades.

Many doctors leaving medical school five years ago, saw service in Korea. From fatalities there we have learned how common coronary disease is in young, well nourished men. Even those recently qualified doctors have had to learn, as post graduate students, the importance of fats in the diet. In this very common form of heart disease,



So long as heart diseases remain a threat to health, this cycle of search and discovery will go on, requiring our doctor to be fresh and revise his knowledge frequently.

Some people ask "why don't more doctors take refresher courses in heart disease?" The reason is that they can't leave you at home uncared for while they go miles away to a university. This problem is being met by sending teachers, or teams of teachers, from the medical schools to your community. In many centres this work is sponsored and financed by the Provincial Heart Foundations. This is an expensive method, but particularly valuable to the patient whose doctor is living near at hand for emergency or essential care while learning the latest aids in diagnosis and treatment for that patient's benefit. Further financial assistance for the universities providing this widespread community service will be necessary to allow of its full development. This National Health Foundation of Canada has, as one of its prospects, the provision of "assistance, financial or otherwise, for any programs of study or professional education in the field of heart disease".

STUDY IS IMPORTANT

This problem of keeping abreast of new developments in every form of disease is a tremendous one for your doctor. Examples have been given from the very large and important field of heart and blood vessel disease to show why this is so, and why it is so important that he does keep up to date. As an individual and as a member of organized medicine, your doctor is necessarily receiving much more time to post graduate study now than was formerly required. Your forbearance when he is away on course, or closeted at a teaching clinic in your hospital, will return you dividends in the form of better health.

This is the seventh in a series of articles being published on behalf of the Canadian Heart Foundations. Donations may be made at your local Bank.

Half Million Baby Lake Trout Will Be Planted

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A half million baby lake trout will be planted in Lake Superior this year in an attempt to revive the rich trout fishing industry that disappeared when the sea lamprey took over the Great Lakes.

Lands and Forests Minister Clare Mapledoram said his department is now studying methods of re-establishing commercial populations of lake trout in Lake Superior and Lake Ontario in anticipation of ultimate control of the lamprey.

Lake Superior now is practically ringed with electric barriers to prevent the lamprey from moving up the rivers and streams to spawn. And laboratory tests in the United States of lamprey control chemicals have provided "reasonable grounds for optimism," he said. However there are still problems to be solved before the lampricides can be used with assurance.

Looking forward to the day when the lamprey is wiped out of the Great Lakes the entered from the ocean by attaching its sucker-like mouth to the bottom of ships), the department of lands and forests said almost all known strains of Great Lakes trout in hatcheries across the province, Mr. Mapledoram said.

Scott Jamieson, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Jamieson, Hastings Drive, took part in the Ottawa Music Festival this week. He played "Minuetto" by Mozart, and received first class honors, rating 6th in a class of 60 competing.

Scott began his musical training two years ago with Sister St. Hermaine, of St. Michael's Convent, Belleville.

Dame Pankhurst Dies in Sleep In California

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) Death, in her sleep, has come o the redoubtable Dame Christabel Pankhurst, militant campaigner for women's suffrage.

Premier Diefenbaker read in her chair Thursday in the house she occupied alone. She was 77, but had been in good health and the precise cause of death has not been determined.

More than 50 years ago she began attracting her mother, Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, on speech-making tours in England, where they fought vigorously in behalf of suffrage for women. Often they wound up in jail for creating disturbances.

Her sister, Dr. Richard Pankhurst, also had been an ardent crusader for the women's vote. When Christabel was prime minister Pankhurst drafted the women's disabilities removal bill. It was tabled in committee by Gladstone's order.

HONORED BY KING

Emmeline Pankhurst worked as a suffragette from 1889 until victory was won in England in 1918. Christabel, for her work, received from King George V the honor of Dame Commander of the Order of the British Empire.

Dame Pankhurst came to the United States in the 1920s, lectured widely at Bible conferences and made many speeches favoring improved British-American relations.

In her 20s she had been one of the first British women to pass the bar examination, but England did not then permit women to practise law. She wrote books, among them Seeing the Future.

There are no known immediate survivors.

Christ Church A.B.W.A. Sponsors Most Successful Valentine Tea

The spacious assembly room of the new parish hall of Christ Church was a hive of activity yesterday afternoon when many guests came to enjoy the Valentine tea sponsored by the Afternoon Branch of the W. A. and to take away with them some choice purchases from among the numerous attractions displayed.

Among these were the long table of home cooking; the candy booth, under the auspices of the Girls' Auxiliary; the quilt display; the table of handiwork, and the lovely embroidery work done by Pakistan girls.

Receiving the guests were: — Mrs. J. B. Creegan, wife of the Rector; Mrs. E. Smith, wife of the assistant Rector, and Mrs. R. Godden, president of the W.A.

The tea table, with its snowy-white damask cloth, bearing in relief, a large red Winchester Cross, insignia of the W.A., was centred with a lovely basket of white chrysanthemum on a silver server, flanked by tri-branched silver candelabra holding aloft from lacey-white collars, two red and one white candles, and at either end the silver services from which Mrs. G. G. Wright and Mrs. Wilmot Bell-Wright and Mrs. E. Waterhouse, all life members of the W.A., dispensed the cheering cups of tea.

SERVING

Those who served were Mesdames: Adams, Woodcock, Wallbridge, Hall, Ostrom, Livingston, Kempton, Wilson, Batchelor, Frith, Diment, Walker, and Godden, Replenishing of the teapot was done by Mrs. W. Philp, while Mrs. N. Heard and Mrs. F. Cooke assisted.

Mrs. C. Hayes, and Mrs. W. Batchelor were in charge of the tea room, with Mrs. W. Philp, and Miss F. Ayling acting as treasurers for the afternoon.

Those who assisted in the kitchen included: Mrs. Heard, Mrs. Cook, Mrs. Gild, Mrs. W. Philp, Mrs. Ashton, Mrs. Orser, Mrs. Peterson, Mrs. Carter, Mrs. M. McLaughlin and Miss Gérow.

The fancy work table, convened by Mrs. H. Wright, assisted by Mrs. W. Mould, Mrs. E. Waterhouse, and the Misses H. Thomas and E. Fitzgerald, displayed a lovely variety of little and large articles: a little girls' dress with its similar one for her doll; little evening dresses for dolls in rose, yellow and green satin and lace; children's flannelette pyjamas; fancy bath towels with lace trim; novelty crochet soap bag; embroidered pillow slips and lace-edged slips; bridge covers; baby bonnets and sacques; mitts, socks, aprons in many designs and colors; stuffed toys and three lovely quilts.

One was in white, embroidered flower squares on a pink ground, beautifully quilted; a baby quilt in turquoise blue and pink, and one in patchwork just right for a boy's bed.

The homecooking was a sight for any gourmet with its array of lemon, pumpkin, apple and cherry pies; upside down cakes; jello; layer cakes; lemon tartlets; casseroles of liver, beans and bacon, to tempting on a zero day; macaroni and cheese; chocolate cakes; fruit salads; date squares; relishes; marshmallow rolls; cherry-topped cakes, and some Irish potato scones, delightful with fried bacon. Mrs. J. Chapman, assisted by Mrs. F. Clare and Mrs. W. O'Brien did a thriving business here.

Nearby was the booth of the Girls' Auxiliary, with its white aprons and navy blue hands displayed nicely packaged boxes of various kinds of candy, fudges, chocolate and maple creams, and pink fondant. Those responsible for this booth were: the Misses Linda Whartes; Nancy Longhurst; Mary Longhurst; Linda MacDonald; Beverly Caverly; Marnna Bongard; Claudia Durrant, and Jean McMullen.

FOXBORO W. A. GROUP

An attractive booth was that of the Foxboro W. A. group, convened by Mrs. R. Gay, assisted by Mesdames F. Kinsella; B. Demill; J. Hill; H. Ashton; G. Stephens, and J. Churchill. This display played a fine assortment of home cooking, which included rich crispy squares; angel cakes; chicken pies; sausage rolls; heart shaped cookies; hermits, and pies of several varieties. The other part was of dainty sunbonnets in old-fashioned blue prints; little hot-shaped pin cushions; dish cloths; tea towels; tapestry runners; baby bibs; wash cloths, and quilting squares.

Bringing up the display was that of the Pakistan embroidery, ably in charge of which showed tea cloths embroidered in white, serviette-linen-like scarf, pieces embroidered in colorful bouquets of spring flowers; place mats, and a dainty linen-like scarf, decorated as a cobweb sprinkled with roses. Orders were taken for these. This work is done by the women of India and girls of Pakistan are also in charge of Miss Elsa Peters. The orders are sent to Mrs. E. Evans, wife of Bishop Evans of the ntario Diocese.

Mrs. D. Stewart and Mrs. L. Hutton were the tea conveners to whom go appreciative thanks for a dainty served and successfully culminated St. "Valentine Tea."

Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E. Elects 1958 Officers

The Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E. held its annual business meeting in the armouries on Wednesday evening.

Following the regular monthly business meeting the annual reports were given, all showing an active year.

The slate of officers was read and the incoming officers were invited to take their places.

The recent bridge party was quite successful. Thanks were expressed to all who helped in any way.

The door prize was won by Mrs. G. Anderson. Prizes for high scores were won by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barton. The draw on the luggage was won by Pamela Smith.

Dates for future events were suggested, Tag day, April 18-19 and bridge party in October.

An invitation was extended to all to attend talks by C. P. Cannon and G. C. Goldring in BCI on Sunday evening, March 2, in connection with education week.

A discussion took place re assistance to Children's Aid Society and the Red Cross, this to take the form of contributions was unanimous that this be done in addition to the quota for H.Q.

Following adjournment, tea was served by Mrs. Mac Smith.

War Lunatic Proposition J. B. McGeachy Tells Club

"War is self-defeating and a lunatic proposition," stated J. B. McGeachy, distinguished journalist and news commentator, as he addressed the Women's Canadian Club last evening in Queen Alexandra School, Ann Street, on the subject, "Canada and World Affairs."

Mr. McGeachy, who was introduced by the president, Mrs. E. S. Fairman, began his talk by saying that world affairs today were in a very perilous condition, and that the topic was a relatively new one, as back in the '20s, Canada's position was that of solidarity. She had no commitments; it was almost unthinkable that Canadian boys should go overseas to rescue others in difficulties.

DIFFERENT PICTURE

Today there is a different picture; Canada is now most active in world affairs. She is a member of the United Nations; was a partilioner of Palestine; sent troops to Korea, the best trained and the best equipped of all troops sent. She labored to bring about the Colombo plan, and guards the front between Egypt and Israel. Her former foreign affairs minister, L. B. Pearson, is the greatest diplomat in the world today, and in the last ten years has acted most constructively in the world councils.

The speaker enumerated the various reasons for Canada's greatness, among which were her size and her wealth in coal, iron, uranium deposits, and her vast waterpower, all of which are still not fully developed. Besides her natural resources, Canada has no territorial ambitions, and no grievance with other nations. She has no population surplus, with her 17,000,000 inhabitants. Instead she is offering freedom and security to others, which few other countries are able to do.

CANADA INTERPRETER

Today Canada acts as the interpreter between two great nations, Britain and the United States, serving mutual purposes.

Russia and the United States are far apart in ideology. There has been a lot of false and shallow thinking not having much to do with commerce. While the United States has been pushing westward, Russia has been pushing eastward. Russia is not merely a country, it is an empire. For a long time Russia was in possession of Alaska, and sold it to the United States in 1867 for two cents an acre, when it was known as Russian America.

The real problem between the two countries is not war, because each one is too strong for the other's comfort. Russia's desire is to conquer the world, but not by military means. Russia believes that capitalism will eventually collapse. No attack by Russia would wipe out U.S. military positions. Retaliation would be too destructive with an enormous waste of humanity. The outcome of which would be the end of the human race, which appears to have reached a "dead end.' All are groping for a solution to the existing condition between the two countries.

BY NEGOTIATION MEANS

The future of the Middle East must be settled by negotiations which should be held behind closed doors and conducted by skilled diplomats, who are well trained men. A summit conference should be held, but as a symbol of willingness to negotiate, which must be done patiently, with Canada the conciliator. Her interest is a survival interest.

Following the address, a question period was held, which brought out the fact that Canada had developed a foreign service of high calibre; men were chosen because of their high mental attainments and moral status with qualifications as high as any in the world, who could act as ambassadors, and consuls.

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. H. R. Varcoe, to which the president also added her appreciation.

Coffee was served.

Keen Age Club Plans Future Activities

The Keen Age Club of Tabernacle United Church held the regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Earl Stansfield, 20 MacDonald Gardens, with 23 members present.

The president, Mrs. Gordon Priest, opened the meeting.

Mrs. S. Lathangue conducted the devotional service consisting of two readings, "The Christianity of Christ" and "Good Health."

The business meeting was short. Time was spent in discussing ways and means for raising funds. It was decided to hold a rummage sale at the church early in March, members were asked to collect items for this project. Mrs. S. Lathangue offered her services as a convenor for this occasion.

The president asked the members to work on their pieces for the quilt, which is well on its way. This quilt, when finished, will be offered for sale at the church bazaar.

The Rev. and Mrs. James C. Eastcott were present for the social hour.

Mrs. Stansfield and the social committee served tasty refreshments.

GOOD MANNERS

ABOUT ORDERING WEDDING "CANDIDS"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My family and I must watch our wedding budget very carefully. One thing: I'm not going to have any formal photographs taken; just the candid pictures of the wedding and reception. Of course, we'll order one complete album of these "candids" for ourselves, one for my parents, and one for the groom's parents. Do I have to order any individual prints for our attendants, relatives, or friends? — Bride-to-be

When the bride and her family can afford it, it is customary for them to give several individual prints to each member of the wedding party (the ones in which they appear most prominently). But if this is too much for the budget, I am sure you can make arrangements with the photographer to sell individual prints to any wedding attendant or relative or guest who would like to order them.

EACH USHER PAYS OWN ATTIRE RENTAL CHARGE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are planning our formal church wedding to take place soon. It is to be at 4 in the afternoon and the groom has informed the men in the wedding party that he expects them to wear formal day-time attire (cutaways, striped trousers, etc.). Since the best man is the only one who owns this formal attire, he found out the name and address of the best place here to rent formal attire and gave each of his attendants this information. Two of these ushers asked the best man to ask the groom about who is to be responsible for the rental-charge. The groom had taken it for granted that each attendant would know that he himself is responsible for paying the charge, and I told the groom that I am positive I had read this in your column. Right? — Bride-to-be Right. Each attendant pays the rental-charge for his own attire. In other words, he is expected to provide his own attire-to-the-wedding (as outlined by the groom-to-be), whether he owns it, or buys it, or (as is today most usual in the case of formal attire) rents it.

Question: . . . could you send me instructions on how to sugar cure pork? Mrs. G. D.

Answer: SUGAR CURED PORK: Trim all ragged edges from cooled meat. Rub surfaces thoroughly with salt and let stand in cool place overnight. Following day pack in clean barrel or earthen crock — having heaviest pieces on bottom. For every 6 lbs. meat, measure 10 lb. salt, 2 1-2 lbs. brown sugar, 2 oz. fine saltpeter and mix well. Stir into 12 qts. plus 4 cups (12 4-5 quarts) boiling water until dissolved. Let cool. Pour over meat. Add water if necessary to completely cover meat at all times. Cover; weight down. Light hams and shoulders require 6 weeks. Heavy hams 8 weeks in cure. Tongues and bacons are usually ready in 4 weeks. At this stage it is ready for smoking.

Question: . . . weeks ago you had the recipe for drop cookies made with cooked mashed potatoes I understand and I missed it. I am looking for a recipe for fancy drop cookies (small ones for a golden wedding anniversary) and wondered if you could help me . . . Mrs. H.E.M.

Answer: I'm dumped. I'm fairly sure the mashed potato drop cookie recipe was not one of mine. But here are two beauties that will be lovely on a fancy cake plate for the golden wedding anniversary.

FRUIT NUGGETS: One-half cup each butter, sugar, 1 egg, ½ teaspoon almond extract, 1 1/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ cup chopped maraschino cherries, 1 cup desiccated coconut, ½ cup chopped pecans. Cream butter, add sugar and cream well. Add egg and almond extract. Blend in sifted dry ingredients. Mix well. Add cherries, coconut and pecans. Mix well. Drop by teaspoonful on greased baking sheet. Top each with maraschino cherry quarters. Bake in 375 deg. Fahr. oven 10-12 minutes until light golden brown. These would be colorful for a Valentine tea party.

VICTORIAN BISCUITS: Two cups sifted all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup soft butter or shortening, 2-3 cup sugar, 4 egg yolks, ½ teaspoon anise extract, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 1 cup coarsely ground almonds, ½ cup cherry, 2-3 cup coarsely ground almonds (for coating). Sift together flour and salt. Mix until creamy butter, sugar and yolks. Add anise, rind, 1 cup almonds, mix well. Mix in cherry alternately with flour mixture. Drop by tablespoonfuls onto 2-3 cup almonds; toss until well coated with nuts. Drop 1" apart onto greased cookie sheet; shape with spoon into 1½" rounds, ¾" thick. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. 12-15 minutes until golden. The leftover whites may be used for simple meringues.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Pauline E. — He turns me off like a radio.

Frank E. — She talks drivel.

Pauline E. — My husband and I have been married 12 years and have three youngsters. I suppose we are considered happy. We never had a serious fight. We enjoy going places together whenever we get the chance.

Just the same, I am quite unhappy because we never really talk together. Frank simply does not listen to me. He turns me off like a radio. All of a sudden I look at him and I see he is a million miles away.

Sometimes I suspect there is another woman, but Frank absolutely denies this. But wouldn't a man listen to his wife if he really loved her?

Frank E. — Yak, yak, yak — yak, yak, yak — that's my wife. From the minute I get in at night until I leave in the morning, as an interesting conversationalist in his free evening — unless her husband supplies her with interesting facts and ideas. He is her most important link to the world outside her home. If her conversation is dull, it is probably a reflection of his emptiness or lack of the ability to communicate.

Pauline is not so far wrong when she feels that her husband's failure to listen indicates a lack of love. When we turn someone off like a radio," we really cancel them out as human beings. We close our mind and feelings against them.

Frank should realize that he can find something better than quiet in his home at the end of every waking moment she's balling away. And what drivel! All about what she said to the neighbor and the neighbor said to her.

I have told Pauline a million times I hate gossip. I like quiet when I get home. That's the least a hard-working man can expect in his own home.

As for there being another woman, that's the craziest yet. Where would I get time or money for another woman?

* * *

The Council: Many men are bored by women's "babbling" — yet they fail to recognize that they have any responsibility in the matter.

One reason Pauline is forced to babble is because she has no interchange with her husband. He fails to listen or respond, so she talks in a vacuum, following the apparently aimless thread of her own thoughts.

A woman who is confined to the home and to the talk of youngsters all day can't turn into her hard day's work. He can fill the deep relaxation and renewal that comes with successful interchange with others — in this case Frank's children, as well as his wife. However, he must learn to both give and receive. His shyness, ineptness or lack of the ability to communicate.

Pauline is not so far wrong when she feels that her husband's failure to listen indicates a lack of love. When we turn someone off like a radio," we really cancel them out as human beings. We close our mind and feelings against them.

Frank should realize that he can find something better than quiet in his home at the end of

Mrs. M. Gregg Makes Stab at Learning Arabic

By CAROLYN WILLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Mrs. Milton F. Gregg can think of many things she would like to know about Iraq. But she will do her own exploring.

The silver-haired woman from Fredericton said she's also going to "make a stab" at learning Arabic when she gets to Baghdad, Iraq's capital.

Her husband, former Liberal Labor minister Gregg, 65, is the newly - appointed resident representative of the United Nations Technical Assistance Board in that ancient land.

In Ottawa before leaving with her husband for an initial one-year posting, Mrs. Gregg collected information on Iraq.

A UN directive says Baghdad has a warm summer, and a couple of winter months cold enough to wear a fur coat, Mrs. Gregg said in an interview.

"I didn't realize they had any real winter, and I was really looking forward to that," she said with a chuckle.

She has learned that most houses have summer sleeping accommodation on roof tops, and that most workers need an active hours - cook boy to do the marketing.

"I like to keep house," she said, "but I'd also like a rest. I've had no intensive course in housekeeping since June."

The Greggs left a rented furnished apartment here to return to Fredericton after Mr. Gregg was defeated in the general election last June.

The election results were disappointing, Mrs. Gregg said, but it had been 10 years that Mr. Gregg sat as a member of Parliament, during which time he held three cabinet posts.

ACTIVE IN YWCA

Moving to southwest Asia has forced Mrs. Gregg to resign from such organizations as the Canadian Welfare Council, the Victorian Order of Nurses, the YWCA and the National Council of Women, in all of which she has taken an active interest.

As a vice-president of the council of women she annually found herself, along with other council executives, presenting resolutions to cabinet ministers, including her husband.

A YWCA secretary in Halifax before she married Mr. Gregg — they met at Acadia University in Wolfville, N.S. — she is a past and honorary president of the Ottawa association.

She worked as a wartime YWCA hostess officer in Ontario and Quebec and calls the YW her "first love." She has learned there is a YWCA in Baghdad, too.

Her main hobby is reading, but in the baggage tagged for Baghdad there's not much room for books among winter and summer clothing for two.

However, she's not worried about the books, with her eagerness to learn all she can about "new people, places and things."

Sunday School Lesson

Every Christian a Preacher

By ROY SMITH

If we are to read the Apostle Paul aright, or even Jesus himself, we will find it impossible to escape the conviction that every Christian is a preacher.

It is true, of course, that a relatively small percentage of those who call themselves Christians ever occupy a pulpit or deliver a formal sermon. But each man's daily attitudes of mind, conversation, business dealings, and social behaviour constitutes an expression of his belief concerning the life and teaching of Jesus Christ.

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for February 16: "THE PREACHING MINISTRY OF THE CHURCH," Luke 4:43-44; 5:1-3; Romans 10:14-17; I Corinthians 1:18-31; Ephesians 3:7-19.

There is an old saying to the effect that "What you do talks so much louder that what you say, that I find it difficult to hear what you are talking about." There is a heresy of conduct that is even more serious than a heresy of doctrine.

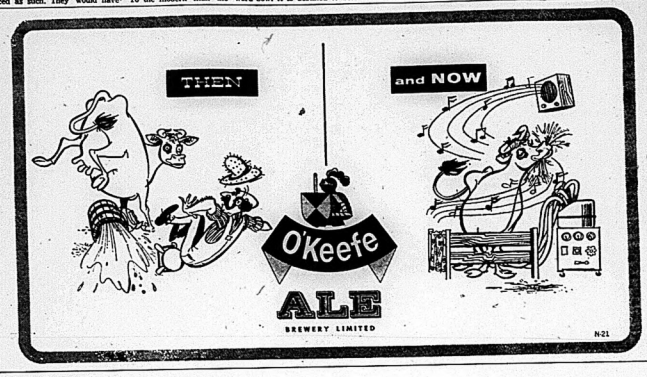
FIRST FUNCTION OF CHURCH

Throughout the book of Acts in the New Testament we come upon evidence of the fact that preaching was the first business of the early Christian Church. The original 12 disciples of Jesus constituted a tiny minority in the midst of a vast number of believers who went everywhere proclaiming their faith in their risen Lord.

Merchants engaged in trading, travellers enroute in other lands, officers of the government on official errands, traders carrying on the commerce of the world — among all these there were those whose lives had been touched by the power of Jesus Christ, and who took advantage of a thousand small opportunities in line with their professions to discuss their faith with those who had no faith.

It is quite probable that few of these early missionaries would ever have consented to be introduced as such. They would have disclaimed all professional status. But their preaching was effective because it consisted of a simple recital of the miracle which had entered upon their lives when they had "believed on the Lord Jesus Christ."

One of the interesting facts in the situation is that no one "ordained" these early preachers. They spoke out of the fullness of their hearts wherever they could persuade anyone to listen. They derived their authority from the fact that they were world authorities; they knew what had happened to them as a result of believing, and no one could tell the story as well as they could.



To the modern man the word "saint" suggests someone of blameless life and unsullied soul. "Sainliness" represents a quality of purity and piety to which few of us are ever able to attain.

But to the New Testament Church the words had no such meaning. As Paul employed the term, it meant nothing more than "one who has set out in an effort to become saintly."

The Hawaiian woodcarvers, for example, will take a block of rough monkeypod (a very rare and beautiful wood), and with a few quick strokes they will strip away the first protrudons reducing the block to something only roughly resembling the beautiful bowl it is destined to be. Certainly no one would call the rude product a "hypocrite" because it was not yet finished. Given time, the carvers will cut and polish until they have produced something very lovely. But it takes time and care.

All Christians are "unfinished Christians." In the New Testament it is said that we do not yet appear to be what we shall be. We are only in the process of becoming.

This is to say, of course, that no Christian is perfect. It is only that he has discovered one who is perfect and is making a more or less serious effort to become like him. The more seriously we try, the better preaching we do in the name of Christ. But there are at least as many poor sermons preached outside the pulpit as from the pulpit.

Most cars have always used horizontal leaf springs — Some use horizontal torsion bars

For 2 decades, Buick has used nothing but upright coil springs — at all 4 wheels for better, softer cushioning.

And to get the most out of these buoyant springs—to bring additional solidity, balance and stability to the ride—

Buick developed a new kind of chassis — This exclusive Buick chassis has the rugged roadability of a massive X-braced frame — and the true-tracking steadiness of Buick's Rotoflow Torque-Tube Drive

Developed and perfected by 20 years of experience with upright springs, Buick's Miracle Chassis today turns out to be "natural" for replacing upright coil springs — with upright air springs — It's this exclusive chassis engineering experience that gives you in Buick the smoothest, most advanced, most experienced air ride in the world.

Unionville Rink Favored for Ontario Title

OSHAWA (CP) — Murray Roberts' Unionville rink looks like a safe bet for this year's Ontario curling championships.

After five rounds of the round robin competition, Roberts has rolled five wins and no losses. His closest rival is Dr. Bob Marshall's Toronto Granite rink with four wins and one loss, that to Unionville.

To win Roberts must drop both his games today and Marshall must take both of his.

Roberts meets Abe DiMartile of Welland in the sixth round and takes on Guelph's Johnnie Eccles in the final draw. Both have three wins and two losses.

In Thursday morning's third round Roberts downed Marshall 7-5. In the fourth round match against Jack Nash of London, figured to give Roberts a tough battle, the Unionville rink led all the way to win 10-4. Roberts had no trouble in the fifth round as he whipped winless Mel Stonehouse of Ottawa Glebe 13-4.

Marshall's fourth and fifth round matches were against DiMartile and Cameron Davidson of Ayr. Welland went down 13-8 against Ayr quartet but 12-7 in their fifth - round matches. Nash defeated Eccles 10-8 and DiMartile beat Harry Armstrong's Barrie foursome 12-8 by virtue of a four on the sixth end.

In the fourth round, Eccles edged Stonehouse 9-7 and Armstrong knocked off Davidson 13-8. Davidson picked up his only win in the morning round by swamping Stonehouse 13-7. In other third-round matches, DiMartile edged Nash 9-8 and Eccles won 10-6 over Armstrong.

"Yeah, your striking out their best batter three times was good pitching. Just remember, it was all in the same inning!"

Bombers Sign Eagle Day

WINNIPEG (CP) — Herman (Eagle) Day, quarterback with Winnipeg Blue Bombers two years ago, has signed with the Canadian Football League Western Division club for the 1958 season, it was announced today.

Day, 34, sat out the 1957 season after suffering a kidney injury in the previous year while with Bombers. He played with the University of Mississippi before coming to Winnipeg in 1956.

The status of Kenny Ploen, Bombers' all-star quarterback of 1957, still is not known. He is slated to be drafted into the U.S. armed services this year.

Amateur Champs Advance to Mixed Semi's

JUPITER, Fla. (CP) — The favored team of Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto, the Canadian amateur champion, and the U.S. amateur king, Lieut. Hillman Robbins of the U.S. Air Force, advanced to the semi-finals of the United States mixed foursomes golf tournament Thursday.

Mrs. Streit, former U.S. and British champion who has lost out twice in the finals of Florida competition this winter, and Robbins defeated Meriam Bailey of Evanston, Ill., and Paul Kelly of Ossining, N.Y., 4 and 3 in the quarter-finals.

Earlier they eliminated Ellen Gerry, Reading, Pa., and George Guy, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., 4 and 3.

In today's semi - final, Mrs. Streit and Robbins meet Clifford Ann Creed and William Hyndman. In the other bracket Mary Ann Downey and Tim Holland meet Pat O'Sullivan and Willie Turnesa. The final will be played Saturday.

DEFENCEMAN INJURED

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. entry in the world hockey championships lost an exhibition match and a star defenceman Thursday night. Eddie Kirrane suffered a broken right wrist during the second period of a 7-6 victory by the professional Wembley Lions over the U.S. team.

Ski Conditions

TORONTO (CP) — Good to excellent ski conditions were reported Thursday from 30 Ontario centres. Woodstock said there will be floodlight skiing Saturday night.

The following conditions were reported with depth of snow shown in inches:

Powder or fresh snow on packed base: Barrie, 6; Hamilton-Cedar Springs, 10; Cobourg, 30; Collingwood, 13; Dagmar, 10; Flesherton-Markdale, 15; Lake of Bays, 13; Larder Lake, 16; Midland, 14; North Bay, 10; all Orangeville reports, 8 and Toronto-Summit, 6.

Packed snow: Bracebridge, 7; Toronto Don Mills, 12; Flesherton-Eugenia, 12; Huntsville, 14; Kirkland Lake, 13; Kitchener, 4; London, 11; Newmarket, 7; Sudbury, 8 and Sundridge, 14.

Injured Players Getting Better

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — Four players and manager Matt Busby of Manchester United soccer team, critically injured in a plane crash last week, were reported improving Thursday.

Twenty - one persons, including seven players of the British team, were killed in the crash.

Duncan Edwards, star United player, has "improved dramatically," a physician said, but he still is "very seriously ill."

Dr. J. Graham Taylor, British physician, said Busby, John Berry, Jackie Blanchflower and Ray Wood also had responded to treatment.

your Carling's guide to skimanship

The ski slopes of Ontario are packed every week-end with skiers of all ages—out to have fun in the snow. If you—the beginner and the expert—will remember these few simple rules of "skimanship", everyone will get more fun from skiing.

FILL UP YOUR SITZMARKS!
When you fall be sure to fill in the hole. It is a menace to other skiers.

SKI UNDER CONTROL
Make sure you can handle your skis. You endanger other skiers when you can't control your own skis.

ALWAYS CLIMB ON EDGE OF SKI SLOPES!
The middle of a slope is for running. Let the other skiers enjoy their runs.

KEEP OFF SLOPES TOO DIFFICULT FOR YOU!
The experts are skiing on the rough ones. You'll only get in their way and perhaps cause an accident.

GIVE THE SLOW SKIER A BREAK!
The slow moving skier always has the right-of-way.

CALL TRACK BEFORE STARTING A RUN!
Yell it out, don't mumble! This is a warning to other skiers that you're about to start a run.

PRACTICE SLOPES ARE FOR BEGINNERS!
A good skier takes care when running on practice slopes. Remember, those skiers are just beginners.

REMOVE OBSTACLES FROM SKI RUNS!
You'll be making a run safe for all skiers.

ALWAYS STAND BY TO HELP A PARTY IN TROUBLE!
If you come across an accident assume you can be of use and remain close at hand.

SOME TIPS ON SAFETY

MAKE SURE YOUR BINDINGS ARE NOT TOO TIGHT!
Slacken your bindings if running in heavy or deep snow. The novice should never have his bindings too tight.

ALWAYS SKI WITH SOMEONE!
If you must ski alone, do so on open, well-populated slopes.

TAKE IT EASY ON BLIND TRAILS!
Don't run too fast, you may suddenly come upon someone traversing or standing on the trail.

WATCH THOSE TOWS!
Don't wear loose clothing that can get tangled in tow ropes. And be sure you get off the tow in plenty of time.

CHEVIES TONIGHT:

The Cornwall Chevies with a decided "forward look" flushing their hockey countenances will be the guests of the McFarlands tonight, and all indications point to an all-out battle between two clubs that are not exactly what you would call on a Damon-Pythias basis.

The Chevies have won five of their last six starts, and at the moment are said to be hotter than the south end of a firefly. They defeated the Ottawa Canadiens 4-3 in their last out, and with their slights lined on second place, will be a tough aggregation to stop.

The Chevies have 36 points, one in front of the Kingston team, with seven games left to play. While they cannot dislodge the Macs from top-spot, they can take over second place in the playoff standing by winning their remaining games providing the Pembroke Lumber Kings drop enough of their six remaining tilts.

The upsurgence of the Chevies has caused hope to beat in many stout Cornwall bosoms, while nostalgic sports writers who used to breathe the air of the riverside city are indulging in some columnar wishful thinking — and hoping.

A Sudbury Star columnist writes: "The boys in the know (whom we do not know) regard lowly Cornwall Chevies as the surprise team in the Eastern League. All the Eastern teams get in the playoffs and Cornwall — if the team gets hot — is given a good chance to take it all."

Seems like Frankie (Ole Iron) Orr is getting in his work away up thar in the wolf country. Frankie who has been adopted to hearing strange sayings all season, has gain contacted mysterious voices, probably those of the misty wraiths of the seaway.

For he comes out with: "The Sudbury writer is just echoing some of the expressions we have heard around the senior hockey circles. Most puck men cannot figure out why the Chevies have been going so poorly with the talent they have. (And get this one). Several of the men around this league say they could easily win it all. We will go along with that. If the team can survive playing hockey the way they can play and all at the same time, who is there to argue they couldn't take it all."

Cool off, Frankie, m'lad. You will find out in lots of time. Better get those pesky Kingston cusses out of the way first.

However, the McFarlands cannot afford to take anything for granted tonight. They had better come up with a better brand of hockey than characterized their play the other night against the Ottawa Canadiens, for these Cornwall guys are not fooling when they have tasted the wine of victory and they'll be all out to take an extra gulp or two tonight, especially against the Macs on the latter's ice. They have yet to record a victory here.

Meanwhile in Kingston, east o' here, one Michael J. Kodden, downcast at the cellar-plight of his beloved CKLC's, relieves his woes with comparisons between western clubs and the McFarlands. El Miguel reports that only two teams in the Eastern League and the OHA-NOHA have played more games than lost, and he points out that "Whitby stood out in this category before going overseas by setting a blistering pace in their own loop with a 27-6-3 mark and a record almost identical to the OHA-NOHA. Belleville McFarlands fall far below Whitby dominance."

He also suggests the Kitchener Dutchmen are much stronger than the McFarlands as are the Soo Greyhounds "who are not likely to get the playoff nod, either."

Mr. Kodden forgets that the "blistering pace" set by the Dunlops, especially at the close of the season, was done with the aid of players like Smith, McKenzie, Brodeur and company, highly touted "imports," who would not have played with the club except for world hockey commitments.

Ottawa newsmen, apparently in an effort to bolster the small crowds attending the Ottawa Canadiens games in both Hull and Bytown, are giving Eastern League sports editors a quiet chuckle.

A six column headline in a recent addition blared "Senior Leadership Still Possible for Habs." When the Baby Habs defeated the Kingston CKLC's the Ottawans paragraphed in the story, "Bay Habs with seven straight. But no mention is made of the facts that the Juniors are playing a 36-game schedule, getting three points for a win, two points for the first tie and one for the second. The "seven straight" arose from the fact that the Ottawa-Hullers have won all seven contests they have played with the Kingston club. Their record to date is 15-16-1 for 47 points, just seven in arrears of the McFarlands. They have five games to play.

The McFarlands should be at full strength tonight. Goetz, Bell and Iaal laid aside by a bad bout with the flu, would be back in harness after treatment for a back strained after too much use of a snow shovel. Bart Bradley who is gunning for the earring championship of the Macs was shaken a bit yesterday after getting the muscles he doesn't use in hockey into action on a broom and stone rink.

Shutout Hoists Beantowners Into 2nd Place With Blues; Lumley Marks Second Blank

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Hefty Harry Lumley, spending his declining years in the relative quiet of hockey's minor leagues, was none too anxious to return to the National Hockey League but a cut of Boston Bruins' playoff money should soothe his frazzled nerves.

Thursday night he made that cut more certain as he shut out Detroit Red Wings 5-0 to lift Bruins into a second-place tie with New York Rangers, a point ahead of Detroit.

The 31-year - old veteran was stopping pucks for Springfield Indians in the American Hockey League when he got a summons from Boston, sliding towards the bottom of the league after an injury to regular netminder Don Simmons.

He had already refused an opportunity to return to the NHL with Chicago Black Hawks, but general manager Jack Adams' offer was attractive so Lumley packed his bags for service with his fourth NHL team.

In 13 games since then the Bruins have lost only five while the 200-pound Lumley has registered two shutouts and owns a solid 2.61 goals-against average.

KEEP TERRY BUSY

He stopped 32 shots Thursday night and was backed up by a defensive display with one of their best offensive efforts this season throwing 41 shots at Detroit netminder Terry Sawchuk.

The goalie-duel in the first and three in the second—came from four of Boston's big men and rookie Bucko McDonald the first of his NHL career.

The others were scored by Vic Stasiuk, his 21st this season, Vic Stasiuk and Jerry Toppazzini, their 19th each, and veteran Leo Labine.

Stasiuk and Toppazzini got the two first-period goals and both were scored on tipped-in long shots by defencemen Allan Stanley and Fern Flaman.

Horvath let a 25-foot slapshot go at 1:16 of the second period and the puck whistled past Sawchuk, grazing the post on the way into the net. Lentry Larry Regan set up Boone for his goal, from 15 feet out at 14:13 and Labine got his sixth this year on Horvath's backhand pass in front of the net.

Lew Hoad Whips Pancho Gonzales

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lew Hoad, the pride of tennis-crazy Australia, nursed a slightly swollen ankle today but he rated the injury as "nothing serious."

There was nothing to indicate the small swelling under Hoad's right ankle bone would keep him from attempting to increase his lead over Pancho Gonzales in their second Washington clash tonight.

Hoad overwhelmed Gonzales, defending king of the pros, Thursday night before 3,978 at Uline Arena, 6-3, 6-2. The victory earned the 23-year-old Aussie a 16-7 edge over Pancho in their 100-match feud.

Hoad twisted the ankle when he stepped on a spot bulging in the canvas surface of the arena court. The split ripped off his shoe.

Hoad replaced the shoe, got up, forced Pancho into errors to run out the game—eighth in the first set. He broke Gonzales' starting serve in the process, a feat he accomplished four times. Pancho, the tall 29-year-old veteran from Los Angeles, lost his serve an many times as he held it, and that proved his downfall.

Score Confident He'll Be Ready For Mound Duty

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Herb Score is more confident than ever that he will be able to resume his place on the mound for Cleveland Indians after giving his vision his stiffest test since he was hit in the eye by a line drive.

The 24-year-old southpaw went through a private session of batting practice Thursday that wiped away any doubt about his depth perception.

Iron Mike, the mechanical pitcher, was cranked up to fastball tension, but Score timed the ball to near perfection.

"It looked as clear and sharp coming up there as it ever did," he said.

Except for a few pepper games late last season, it was the first time Score had had a bat in his hands since he was struck flush in the right eye by a line drive from the bat of New York Yankee shortstop Gil McDougald at Cleveland last May 7.

NEAR-Y ENDED CAREER

To the question of whether he could be "gun-shy" as a result of the accident that nearly ended his career, the young pitcher said:

"I expect I'll be hit by a lot more line drives before I'm done pitching. All pitchers get hit, usually on the leg. But to catch one smack in the eye—that's a million-to-one shot. It happened once."

He confessed he usually loses sight of the ball after it has left his hand because in the follow-through of his delivery his head goes down nearly knee height. But he has no intention of trying to revise his natural delivery.

WON'T CHANGE STYLE

"I have to pitch my way," he said, "and my way is to follow through in a fashion that makes it impossible to follow the ball on its way to the plate. If I tried to change I'd probably lose some of my speed and maybe hurt myarm. I'd rather take that million-to-one chance on being hit on the head by a line drive."

"At best I'm not what you'd call a fancy fielder and I can probably defend myself better by trying to throw the ball past the batter than I could be being a fifth infielder."

Score misses the Indians' spring training camp virtually to himself. His elbow ailment hindered his calisthenics, some batting practice and enough throwing to strengthen his arm.

Hamilton Whips Marlboros 5-3; Petes Trim Habs

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Cubs are making a desperate bid to catch up with runaway St. Catharines Teepees, league leaders in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

Cubs, undefeated in their last nine games, Thursday night defeated fourth - place Toronto Marlboros 5-3 to narrow the gap to five points. Marlboros are two behind third-ranking Toronto St. Michael's.

Fifth-place Peterborough Petes now are five points behind the Marlboros after walloping Oshawa-Bull Frogs 8-2.

Referee Gerry Olinski called 31 minutes in penalties against each team in the Hamilton-Marlboros duel, including three majors in a joke for fighting.

Murray Oliver, with two goals, Ron Blackburn, Jim Cooke and Lloyd Haddon were the Cubs' marksmen. Jim Murchie, Ian Armstrong and Jack McMaster scored for Marlboros.

The Petes went into a 2-1 first-period lead against Ottawa then scored four unanswered goals in the second.

Wayne Connelly and Bill Mahoney each scored twice for Peterborough, Jerry Brisson, Ivy Spencer, Gerry Montague and Guy Black adding singles. Ralph Backstrom and Claude Begin counted for the Canadiens.

Kerwin, Redl Fight Tonight

NEW YORK (AP)—In the eyes of the race track, unbeaten Stefan Redl is moving up in class tonight when he boxes Gerawan's Eddie Kerwin at Madison Square Garden.

Redl, with only two fights since June, had a "tightener" in Holyoke, Mass., three weeks ago when he knocked out Willie Moore in four rounds. He will be carrying more weight than Kerwin but will be giving away height and reach. Kerwin is favored.

They say Redl is moving up because he will be making his first appearance in a Garden main event after building up a perfect record in 17 fights in the small clubs.

Kirwin will be topping the Garden show for the third time. He stepped up from a semi-final as a last minute sub and lost a decision to Johnny Busso, a rugged lightweight, Oct. 25. However, he made such a good impression that he was back Dec. 20 and whipped Jimmy Archer.

WAS IN ARMY

While Kerwin has been making a reputation for himself, Redl was divided his time between the ring and the United States Army. The Hungarian - born welterweight was has taken out his first citizenship papers, recently finished six months in the U.S. N.J.

Redl is a welterweight. Kerwin, now living in Valley Stream, N.Y., is half way in between a lightweight (135 pounds) and a welter (147). He claims he can make the lighter weight if he wants.

Both are on the way up. In this day, such a pairing is unusual. Few managers want to take a chance with an unbeaten product, unless there is the possibility of knocking off a "name" opponent. These fighters are last minute ready to meet the "name" class themselves.

The 10-rounder will be carried on network NBC radio and television starting at 10 p.m. EST. Two judges and a referee will score by rounds under the New York system, using a supplementary point system in case of even rounds.

Dunlops Give European Observers Eyeful In 13-0 Win Over Sweden

Ten Thousand Fans Stunned As Canucks Whip Champions; Jack McKenzie Scores Four

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Manager Wren Blair saved a few kind words for Sweden's defending world hockey champions after his powerful Allan Cup champions from Whitby smothered the Swedes 13-0 Thursday night in the first of seven exhibition games.

Concentrating on "European-style" hockey, where the emphasis is on speed and stickhandling and backchecking in the open, the Canadian scene is frowned on, the Canadian entry in the forthcoming world tournament handed the Swedes their worst drubbing in several years.

A crowd of 10,000 sat stunned in the big outdoor rink while the Canadians piled up three goals in the first period and five more in each of the last two periods.

Super Strategy

Veteran sports writers shook their heads and one of them remarked:

"This Canadian team has everything. Nothing can stop them from winning the championship."

Although they refused to comment, three Russian hockey officials obviously were impressed. For Sweden, which beat the Russians in Moscow last March for the world title, had been rated as one of the contenders along with the Soviets in the 1958 tournament starting in Oslo, Norway, Feb. 28.

The Swedes pulled somewhat of an upset in the 1957 tournament, although Canada, the United States and several Western European countries refused to send teams in protest against the Soviet suppression of the Hungarian uprising.

COUNTED OUT

After the one-sided Whitby win, Blair said he's sure the score won't be so high tonight when the two countries meet again on the same rink.

"Despite our scoring we don't count Canada out in the world championships. They know how to play hockey, but they seemed to have a day off."

It was Canada's fifth straight victory of a European exhibition tour aimed primarily at familiarization with the continent's type of game.

After they landed in Britain earlier this month, the Canadians trimmed two British professional teams—made up mostly of Canadians—by scores of 5-3 and 8-2. Then they journeyed to West Germany for a two-game series with the RCAF Flyers, which turned out to be little more than a workout. Whitby wound up with 14-1 and 16-2 victories.

The 13 goals against the Swedes gave the Canadians a total of 37 in five games against seven allowed.

MACKENZIE STARS

Jack MacKenzie, a Preston teacher, was the star of the Canadian attack with four goals.

Bob Attersley, Ron Gagnon and George Gosselin each scored two goals while Vern Paul Lamarche, Gordon Myles and Sid Smith, the player-coach, had one apiece.

Blair said he was pleasantly surprised with the outcome, particularly since it came about indoors.

"They are not used to playing outdoor hockey, but they sure showed that this is no bother to them," Blair said of his charges.

"Of course some of them felt tired. But we still have six games more here in Sweden. They will be used to open air hockey in time for the championships in Oslo."

Wokingham Gets Another Chance

LONDON (CP) — Wokingham Town, the team that reached the quarter - finals of the amateur Soccer Cup competition with the illegal assistance of a former professional, will get a chance to do it again without him.

The Football Association gave its ruling Thursday on a protest by West Auckland Town that the former professional, Ray Hancock, had played for Wokingham under the name of Mike Ashford when Wokingham beat West Auckland 4-2 in their third-round match last Saturday.

West Auckland's claim that it should be awarded the match was rejected on the ground that Wokingham had been unaware of the infraction. The FA ordered the two teams to replay their match at Wokingham before Feb. 22, the scheduled date of the quarter-finals.

Wokingham did not escape without penalty. The FA ordered the club's share of the gate receipts of the replay to be donated to the FA Benevolent Fund and it directed that Wokingham's share of the cup pool at the end of the competition be divided among the clubs the Berkshire club defeated in earlier rounds with Hancox in the lineup.

Two Big Pro Football Bodies Consider ORFU Draft Idea

MONTREAL (CP) — The two big pro football groups have under consideration a draft proposal from the Ontario Rugby Football Union, it was disclosed today.

President Ted Workman of the Big Four section of the newly formed Canadian Football League said the proposal was presented at a recent meeting in Ottawa of general managers of the Big Four.

Under the proposal the CFL—both Western and Big Four sections—would draft players from the ORFU "in return for financial subsidization."

At present players can be obtained from clubs of the ORFU, a smaller pro circuit, through purchase. ORFU contracts are respected by the bigger circuits; there is no raiding.

Workman said the proposal was discussed in some detail with ORFU representatives at the Ottawa meeting. The Big Four general managers seemed agreeable to the proposal at least to the extent that it merited serious consideration.

The Big Four was asked by the ORFU to pass the proposal along to the western section of the CFL.

Workman said he doesn't think anything concrete can be done yet because the CFL as a group probably won't meet for some time. No date for a meeting has been fixed. All clubs are awaiting a draft of a constitution for the new CFL.

Meanwhile, the Big Four is studying the proposal.

Dave Marr Tops Texas Open By Six Strokes

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (CP)—Texan Dave Marr, one of professional golf's top young prospects, fired a 15,000 Texas Open by a whopping six strokes going into the second round today.

He turned in an eight-under-par 63 under atrocious conditions. The fairways at the 6,400-yard Brackenridge Park course were soggy and many of the greens were frozen.

Marr was close to the pin on practically every hole and was banging in putts from all distances. He had only 27 putts and missed just one green on his tour of the cold and cheerless course.

It was a day that saw only 15 of a field of 150 players able to better par.

Only four shotsmiths bettered 70. They included veteran Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Lafayette, Ind., Tony Holguin of Midlothian, Ill., Dave Ragan of Orlando, Fla., and Bob Johnston of Provo, Utah. All had 69s.

Jerry Magee of Toronto and Bob Wylie of Calgary were two over par with 72s. Lyle Crawford of Vancouver had a 76 and Murray Tucker and Al Balding, both of Toronto, had 77s.

Ray Hebert of Sanford, Fla., the defending champion, had a 74.

Marr does not classify as one of those "unknowns" who often leads a tournament the first day, then fades.

He has bagged $3,364 this winter and is 16th money winner of the year.

PARIS (CP) — Canada's Barbara Wagner and Robert Paul ruled as the world figure-skating pairs champions for the second year in a row today after their almost - flawless performance brought the house down in the huge Palais des Sports.

The young Toronto couple made it seem easy as they blended perfectly in a series of daring movements that thrilled the crowd of some 12,000 Thursday night. The applause the Canadians received was tremendous.

The nine judges awarded the world champions the only high set of markings among the 16 pairs from 10 countries. They received 10 placing points and 101.6 scoring points to beat the runner - up Czech couple, Vera Suchankova and Zdenek Dolezal, by a healthy margin.

CANADIANS THIRD

The Czechs were awarded 52 placing points and 97.6 scoring points while the third-place Canadian brother-sister combination of Frances and Jelinek of Oakville, drew 27.5 and 95.9.

In the over - all judging, the lower the placements the higher the finish. In the scoring system used to break ties—the opposite prevails.

Miss Wagner, a tiny 19-year-old brunette, and Paul, a 20-year-old six-footer, won the title for the first time last year in Colorado Springs, Colo.

The Czechs also were given a fine hand by the crowd which appreciated the fact they had to appear first on the televised program. It was their first appearance in a world competition, although they finished second to the champions in the Canadian pairs championships earlier this year in Ottawa. The youngsters are from Prague.

In the men's compulsory school figures, Californian Tim Brown was awarded a defending champion David Jenkins, suffering from a pulled leg muscle that hampered his training. Brown had 10.5 placing points to 19.5 for Jenkins after the six figures were completed. Although they count for 50 per cent of the overall in deciding the winner, Jenkins was given the edge — provided his muscle pull doesn't hamper him—in the free skating tonight.

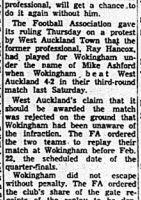
Canadian champion Charles Snelling, a medical student from Toronto, slipped to 11th with 110 placing points.

Don Jackson of Oshawa, 17-year-old runner-up in the Canadian senior championships for the last three years, was ninth with 78 placing points and Ed Collins of Ottawa 12th with 110 placing points — the same as Snelling but his scoring points were lower.

Before the men's final tonight, Carol Heiss of the United States will begin her defence of the women's crown she has won the last two years, skating the compulsory figures. Among the 25 rivals she faces are Canadian senior champion Margaret Crosland of Winnipeg and Sonia Snelling of Toronto, sister of Charles.

Hayman Scouting College Squads For Argo Talent

TORONTO (CP) — Manager Lou Hayman of Toronto Argonauts says he is scouting teams in the southwestern and southern U.S. as preliminary preparations for material for next season's football campaign are underway.



Current choices on the Argo negotiation list are Larry Hickox, halfback, and Paul Dickson, a tackle, both from Baylor, Tex.; Ken Hatt and John Tracy of Texas A and M.

Wray Carlton, Duke's tremendous halfback, and Dave Sherer of Southern Methodist Mustangs are others on the Argo negotiation list.

But Hayman added, "these lists can change overnight. We have them now. Next week we may have a lot different ones replacing these boys."

Hayman also announced that Vic Kristopaitis, the kicking fullback who was turned into an Argo guard, suffered a six-month service duty with the army in Korea but will be available in late July when football practice sessions start.

Pete O'Garro and C. R. Roberts, suffering trick knees at the end of last season, have been examined by doctors in California and given a clean bill of health. Both will report to Argos in the summer.

Glenn FORD was made an honorary plank owner of the U. S. navy cruiser, Rochester, during filming of location scenes aboard the ship for "Don't Go Near the Water." The crew presented him with a piece of timber from the original wood used for the cruiser's deck.

Gia SCALA had to lose her Italian accent when she became a movie star, but in the new Glenn Ford comedy about sailors in a navy PR office, "Don't Go Near the Water," she had to forsake her acquired perfect English—for a South Sea dialect!

Earl HOLLIMAN was voted the man we most like to deliver mail to by the Messenger Girls at M-G-M.

Anne FRANCIS isn't disappointing her male admirers in her role as a glamorous girl (Lt. Ely) in the filmization of William Brinkley's best-seller novel, "Don't Go Near the Water." It's laughs all the way in 1954, skirts are above the knee!

New Electronic Marvels Make Phone Calls More Miserable

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The telephone can actually be a lethal instrument, especially as dealt with in Hollywood.

It's a convenience, all right, but it can also set you to chomping tranquilizers as if they were lemon drops. And things are getting worse all the time. Now comes word science has come up with new electronic marvels to make telephone conversation even more miserable.

Far be it from me to assail a segment of American womanhood—but you've got it coming to you, ladies. I'm speaking of a large body of the switchboard girls and secretaries of Hollywood. Say you ask for a certain man in a studio or office. You get these answers, listed in order of nervine:

1. "Who is calling?"

Naturally, you let Buddy Adler and Sam Goldwyn know who is calling, since they are busy citizens. But even a press agent down to his last client wants his secretary to ask too! Usually I answer with a catchy name like Winston Churchill or Perfin Hussey. (I've had six-year-olds pull the "who is calling?" bit when I've called parents at home, too. It's infecting the younger generation.)

2. "With what organization are you associated?"

Now she wants not only your name but your credentials, all for one lousy little phone call! Here again, I lapse into the realm of fiction and come up with such answers as Unwed Mothers' Society or Alcoholics Anonymous.

3. "What are you calling about?"

This is the crowning insult. It's like to tell the cop that it's none of her business, but that wouldn't solve anything. She'd only call me off. Another common reply when the secretary gives a blank is the curt query, "Are you a friend of Mr. Smith?" I try not to answer: "I was—until I placed this call."

Another virulent telephone type is the so-call-back artist. You can leave messages for this character all over town and never hear from him. In this category are all actors earning over $2,500 a week and all agents. Indeed, one agent who died recently was reported to have left a legacy of $395 and 17,625 unreturned phone messages.

I told you about these new electronic wonders. Beware! One device hooks up the phone to a loudspeaker system. Your voice is broadcast to the whole office, and the fellow on the other end can talk to you from anywhere in the room without holding the receiver.

In the first place, the other fellow always sounds as though he were talking from a stalagmite in mammoth cave. In the second place, it's a nasty invasion of privacy, broadcasting your words to alien ears.

The other device has even more sinister aspects. Top stars and bigwigs are now using recording devices on their calls. You're chatting amiably and suddenly you hear a loud beep-beep that tells you your words are being preserved forever. It's frightening.

All this is another step toward the "big brother is watching you" world, and I say we must fight it!

Wayde Preston Explains Why People Enjoy Western Stories

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—"I've spent nearly all of my life in the west," says Wayde Preston, "and I've done some research in how it used to be. I don't think there ever was one sick cowboy in a million.

"Life was simple. The only thing a cowboy ever worried about was his horse. He didn't get wrapped up in himself. He knew just how small a man can be in a big country and he wasn't always quite sure of himself under every situation."

If this doesnt exactly fit the pattern of some of today's television westerns, Preston nevertheless is an authority on the subject. He's the big guy who plays the role of Christopher Colt, in Colt .45 (ABC-TV, Fridays).

Preston believes that his audience likes Colt .45 because in the series "good is good and bad is bad and people get tangled up in a lot of psychological complications."

A good western, he says, "is pure escape from the dull routine and normal pressures of everyday living."

"It's clean, direct, simple—and that's all there is to it."

Questioned on the theory expounded the FCC department recently, that women are even more enthusiastic viewers of TV westerns than men, Preston replied: "On Colt .45 I receive between 400 and 500 letters a week from viewers. Just about 99 per cent of those letters are from women between the ages of 13 and 80."

He declined to discuss any theories as to why women enjoy westerns except that—like men, they want to escape from present-day pressures and monotony.

The NBC Opera Company will present a two-hour telecast of Verdi's Rigoletto Sunday (5 p.m. EST), starring Igor Gorin in the title role, Kirk Orestes as the Duke of Mantua, and Dorothy Coulter as Gilda, Rigoletto's daughter.

Miss Coulter who received great critical acclaim after her first appearance with NBC Opera," she said recently, "I never even really studied opera singers. I had fun when I auditioned for NBC and they encouraged me to concentrate on studying."

AT THE PARK — American Captain, Bob Hope, assists his comrade-in-arms, Katharine Hepburn, in "The Iron Petticoat", a comedy with Bob and Katie in love with her. That's the hilarious situation in "The Iron Petticoat", co-starring Hope and Hepburn on the first time screen. It's the first co-production between the two stars, and is now showing today and Saturday at the Park Theatre. On the same program in Technicolor "Billy the Kid" starring Robert Taylor and Brian Donlevy.

AT THE PARK — As "Billy the Kid" Robert Taylor, as he appears in MGM's Technicolor western epic, "Billy the Kid", in which he plays one of his most colorful roles as the famed desperado who rode the ranges during the Southwestern cattle wars of the 1870's. Filmed in Technicolor, the spectacular production also features Brian Donlevy, Ian Hunter, Mary Ellenstein, Lon Chaney Jr., Lockhart and Len Chaney Jr., starting at the Park Theatre today and Saturday. On the same program "The Iron Petticoat", co-starring Bob Hope and Katharine Hepburn.

Astro'ogical Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Friday, February 14

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — All affairs in connection with your work, public esteem that come about today will govern the best methods by which to make this an inspiring day. See to worldly activity that increases prestige, too.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Hesitate a good day to come out of the cocoon you often hide in, and let others realize what a great character, mind, and fine spirituality you possess. Then they will release you data you need badly.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — A splendid day for getting your money matters in a more solid, secure condition. Look into everything — social security, bonds, stocks, business arrangements, etc. P. M. learn to appreciate your sensitive partner.

Moon children (June 22 to July 21) — The day is ideal for rolling up your sleeves and getting papers filed, helping with work around the home, painting, painting, scrubbing, writing communications of interest and import, etc. P. M. rest quietly, be happy.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Change your attitude today from the high - tempered, authoritative Leo to the gentle Leo who can and should give praise and love to those who merit it. Then the day is wonderful for you, since many persons will be pleased.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — A great day for a corking good time! If artistic, this is the day to corner that executive, buyer and get what you want now. Retain that bubbling spirit all through the day and evening. See your best friends in P.M.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — It is within your ability today to put home or holdings in the ideal condition impossible to you ere this. Be deliberate and decisive. Then tonight, invite the people you want there and have an inspiring evening.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Making your rounds, buying, selling, etc., is the ideal fashion in which to spend this good day. Also, better plan of operation can be mapped out for the future. Tonight, study your paper as you would the Bible.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Spend a good part of this day polishing that silver, fine mirrors, furniture, etc., so everything gleams, becomes more valuable. P. M. make recordings there, if possible, or invite your movie, TV friends.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — A day for preening and primping, studying yourself to the best advantage with really critical eye. Use all your knowledge how to make needed improvements, especially to hair style. P. M. fine for improving social life.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Your generosity exceeds the bounds of practicality at times, since often you go without in order to give to others. Think of own welfare today and apply to self one of own brilliant ideas! Then you can be more helpful to others.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — You rely so much on a fine, astute friend to give you ideas and suggestions. Contact him or her today and outline your present conditions, get advice how to improve same. Show appreciation by kind words and a little gift.

If your child is born today . . . The interesting child born today is the basically practical type of individual, plus having the ability to absorb and understand all incoming New Thought ideas, thus combining the old with the new for achieving an excellent balance. Outward appearance, however, will deceive, since it appears cool and reserved, when there is a smouldering fire beneath.

PEARSON BRINGS

The conservatives had to take the responsibility for the winter campaign, Mr. Pearson maintained. Prime Minister Diefenbaker had brought the election about necessary because the opposition in the Commons had obstructed the minority government.

Mr. Diefenbaker had also said Mr. Pearson, that the conservatives had brought in a host of new measures in their eight months of office. How could they have done this if they had been obstructed?

He attacked Mr. Diefenbaker's proposal to switch 15 per cent of Canada's imports from the United States to Britain.

It wasn't good business, he said, to tell one customer that it was taking $600,000,000 worth of trade away and handing it to another.

He agreed that Canada should stand up for her rights at Washington, but not in such a way that it would cause a trade war.

For the next 10 years at least, Canada would need the American market for her surplus uranium, nickel and base metals.

The "correct" way to handle the trade situation was by trying to increase exports to the U.S. and by increasing trade with Britain and other Commonwealth countries.

NOMINATING MEETING

Mr. Pearson, who has represented Algoma East since 1948, addressed some 300 party association delegates at the nominating meeting in the Espanola community hall. It was here that the Progressive Conservatives Wednesday picked Basil Scully, 41-year-old Sudbury television announcer to oppose him.

The Toronto born Mr. Pearson, who has a home at Ottawa, said he was surprised that the Conservatives who had labelled him a "non-resident" MP, now should pick a "non-resident" candidate of their own. Sudbury is 40 miles east of Espanola.

PRIME MINISTER

"We act!" The government had "held up" a 3.8 per cent freight rate increase allowed by the board of transport commissioners.

RIDICULES PLATFORM

The prime minister described Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson as "a friend of mine" but ridiculed the policy platform announced by Mr. Pearson last Monday.

"When you read the list of promises made last month, all one can say is: Blessed are the results of adversity.

"As a matter of fact, the things they were voting against last June now have become the cornerstone of their policy."

From breakfast until his late-afternoon rural New Ross address, the prime minister was busy popping out of his railway car to shake hands with groups of people gathered at station stops.

The crowds were predominantly of children, stamping their feet partly for warmth and partly from excitement at the novelty of being let out of school half-day to see the prime minister.

The day's electioneering began at Kamsack, Sask., after an overnight train run from Winnipeg.

With trousers and jacket thrown over his pajamas, Mr. Diefenbaker received about 20 persons in his private railway car, including a half dozen high school girls to whom he gave his autograph.

Education Costs And Tax-Sharing Are Debated

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Education grants, improved federal-provincial tax-sharing arrangements and motions of non-confidence took up the time of six provincial legislatures in session Thursday.

The Saskatchewan speech from the throne proposed increased grants to municipalities, and a revision of the Holidays Act to give three weeks with pay to employees who have worked more than five years with the same company.

At Toronto, Robert Macaulay (PC—Riverdale) said that Ontario needed a better tax sharing agreement from Ottawa.

At Quebec City, Welfare Minister Sauve told the legislature the Liberals' campaign for increased state aid for education is creating new appetites that cannot be satisfied.

HARD WORK URGED

Earlier Premier Duplessis said:

"We should be more intent on installing in our youth a desire for hard work, sacrifice and more responsibility than in trying to make everyone a ward of the state." Free public education was a myth—"in the end, someone has to pay."

At Winnipeg, the Liberal-Progressive solicitor-general of Premier Campbell's government increased grants in provincial aid to school districts and a 25-per-cent increase in unconditional grants to municipalities.

The Newfoundland government proposed two major bills: Payment of bounties on rebuilding and repairing of fishing and coastal vessels; and a bill to incorporate the City of Corner Brook.

At Halifax, Liberal Opposition Leader Henry Hicks brought forward a non-confidence motion criticizing the Progressive Conservative government for its employment, agricultural and forest policies.

Opposition motions of non-confidence also are before the Ontario and Manitoba houses.

5 Pilots Tell Inquiry Board Of Thunderstorm

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Five pilots described Thursday a thunderstorm in the area where a chartered airliner crashed Aug. 11, killing 79 persons in Canada's worst air disaster.

A youthful Royal Canadian Navy Reserve pilot testified he took his single-engined Harvard trainer through the "squall line" in a bone-rattling flight.

Lieut. Georges Lacroix, 21, of St. Georges de Beauce, Que., said he was returning from Montreal when he noted the storm line just off the flight route. He said he dropped down to 500 feet about 7 miles southwest of Quebec City and took the Harvard through severe turbulence and rain.

The Maritime Central Airways plane was coming the other way about the same time on its flight from London, England, to Toronto via Montreal.

It plunged into a bog about 15 miles southwest of Quebec City.

ALTERNATED SPEED

Lieut. Lacroix said he kept alternating the speed of his engine to counteract turbulence.

Also describing the storm—which it was disclosed may have been unreported to the captain of the MCA DC-4 — were three Trans-Canada Air Lines pilots and a private flyer.

Leslie Bacon said he took his hired single - engined plane off from Ancienne - Lorette airport outside Quebec City at 2:28 p.m. but came back in a hurry 15 minutes later because of "violent" turbulence.

Gusts up to 60 miles an hour were reported at the Quebec City airport during the storm, one TCA pilot said. Thunder and lightning were noted with "torrential" rain.

LINK UP TESTIMONY

Company counsel continued to draw out testimony about the severity of the storm. Questioning about the Quebec City air movements around the presumed time of the crash were connected with eye and ear witnesses' testimony heard earlier.

Four witnesses on the Montreal side of the wreck had reported a new flying craft whose engine stopped and started and which seemed going toward Quebec City about the time the Harvard would have been slicing through the storm.

CONTRIBUTION

Three young men at the rear of the hall had hoisted placards. One said "Pearson: Peace, prosperity, progress."

Mr. Coldwell said the CCF party favors tax reductions and advocates them for Canadians on lower incomes.

But "we think that the people of Canada will treat with the contempt it deserves the Liberal and Conservative attempts to buy their votes with extravagant promises of over-all tax reductions."

MUST BE PAID FOR

The CCF was not pretending that its program would cost nothing. It was not trying to fool Canadians.

"We know that the cost of the social measures we are advocating for the benefit of the people of Canada must come out of national production.

"This is as it should be because we believe these measures will build a better Canada in which all Canadians can live that better life to which they are entitled."

Mr. Coldwell said no party "can be honest in advocating huge over-all tax reductions while at the same time supporting expanded public service."

Mr. Low said in a Victoria interview that his party will concentrate on the western provinces where he felt it has a good chance of increasing its Commons representation from the 19 seats it held at dissolution. But it might field fewer than 116 candidates.

"We don't want to spread ourselves too thinly," he said.

He said a Social Credit platform he would announce in Edmonton next week would centre on the belief that the people are "fed up with the sham battle between the old-line parties and are looking for a new approach."

"We think we have it, because we know the people don't want socialism."

"BEGGED" FOR DEFEAT

Mr. Pearson said Mr. Diefenbaker has claimed he did his best to avoid calling this election. But the fact was that the Conservatives had been "begging" for a Commons defeat so that an election could be called.

The prime minister would have to take responsibility for this election, called at a time when Canada was faced with "serious" unemployment problems.

Mr. Pearson said no government could have avoided unemployment this winter, but the Conservatives had created more unemployment with their policies. They had shown a "very uncertain touch" in their trade policies.

At Sudbury, the Liberal leader pledged his full devotion to the supreme task of promoting international understanding if he becomes prime minister.

In Edmonton, Northern Affairs Minister Alvin Hamilton said a letter has been sent to the Alberta government proposing a $15,000,000 program of building roads north for resources development. The federal government would split costs with Alberta over the next five years. A similar deal was available to other provinces.

Pipeline Profits Under Scrutiny Of Energy Board

Westcoast's $5 Shares Cost Promoters Nickel

CALGARY (CP)—The promoters of Westcoast Transmission Limited made millions of dollars in various financial transactions, including purchase of original shares at five cents each, the Borden energy commission was told Friday.

Commission counsel Arthur Pattillo, in examining the financing of the natural gas pipeline company, directed his questioning to three financial developments he said resulted in an $18,000,000 capital gain for shareholders of one company, profits for certain groups which bought $25,000 shares five months apiece that went to the public for $5 and about $9,000,000 for a New York financial group.

His cross - examination was suspended when hearings open in Alberta and Southern Gas Co. to present a brief to the seven-member commission. Mr. Pattillo has already kept Westcoast witnesses, including Premier Manning, on the stand for two full days.

EXECUTIVES SURPRISED

Gas industry executives were surprised at the intensity with which Westcoast was examined. One said he believed it was the first time the company's financing has been investigated publicly.

Mr. Pattillo repeatedly asked Westcoast Managing Director D. P. McDonald the reason for the sale of shares at five cents. He asked what the groups and individuals were to get them.

"They were the original promoters of the company," Mr. McDonald answered. The distribution of shares was a "typical thing that is done in practically all companies distributing to the original shareholders the shares at nominal values."

The groups named by Mr. Pattillo were Pacific Petroleums Ltd. of Calgary; Frank McMahon and his "group"; Eastman, Dillon Union Securities and Company of New York; and Sunray Mid-Continent Oil Company.

Independent Regime Set up In Sumatra

SINGAPORE (Reuters) — Lt.-Col. Achmad Hussein, leader of rebel central Sumatra, tonight proclaimed a new independent government for Indonesia.

The proclamation was broadcast by Padang radio and was monitored here.

The rebel proclamation of a rival Indonesian government was broadcast 3½ hours after expiration of the five-day ultimatum issued by Sumatra calling on President Sukarno and Premier Djuanda in Jakarta to hand over the central government to former vice-president Mohammed Hatta and the Sultan of Jakarta.

Djuanda had rejected the Sumatran demands.

Liberals, PCs Virtually Same States CCF-er

WELLAND (CP)—David Lewis of Toronto national CCF chairman, said Friday night the Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties are virtually the same.

He told a Welland riding CCF nominating convention the two parties are "waging a sham and hypocritical battle" and their policies are the same because they have similar fundamental philosophies and are both financed by large corporations.

Reeve Melvin Swart of Thorold township was nominated as candidate in the federal election March 31.

Cheddar Cheese Production up, Butter Dipped

TORONTO (CP) — Cheddar cheese and processed milk production in Ontario increased in 1957, while creamery butter output dipped slightly.

Cheese production last year totalled 81,313,000 pounds compared with 56,863,000 in 1956. Milk output amounted to 830,650,440 pounds against 222,446,000 pounds the previous year.

Creamery butter dropped to 78,177,600 pounds in 1957 from 79,540,500 pounds in 1956.

December production during 1957 of all three products increased over the same month in 1956, the Ontario department of agriculture reports.

Frost's Executive Assistant Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Col. Ernest J. Young, of North Bay, executive assistant to Premier Frost of Ontario, died Friday night at Sunnybrook military hospital. Col. Young entered the hospital a week ago for a checkup and suffered a heart seizure there.

Today's Chuckle

The greatest achievement of mankind have been accomplished by two types of men — those who were smart enough to know it could be done, and those too dumb to know it couldn't.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: Thin clouds and light snowfalls held night-time temperatures over southwestern Ontario generally above zero Friday night. Over all the rest of Ontario skies were clear and temperatures ranged far below zero. Light snow is expected to continue over Southern Ontario most of today as a weak disturbance crosses this part of the province. Accumulations are not expected to exceed one to two inches at most. Clear, cold weather is expected for last throughout the weekend in Central and Northern Ontario.

UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM CALLED LIBERAL LEGACY

Diefenbaker Claims PCs Inherited It

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) John Diefenbaker has opened his long-distance election campaign debate over unemployment with Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson.

The prime minister said here Friday night his Progressive Conservative government inherited the unemployment problem from a Liberal administration which "failed to act when it was warned."

"We are defeating the problem," he said. Figures for the last few weeks showed a slower rate of increase in unemployment.

He reiterated government plans for a $1,185,000,000 public works program this year and added:

"As long as I am prime minister, no man or woman is going to suffer from unemployment so long as public works will provide them the assistance they require."

His statements were a reply to Mr. Pearson, who in a speech earlier had made his campaign opening speech at Smithers.

INTERNATIONAL TOPIC

Mr. Diefenbaker also made what apparently was his reply to Mr. Pearson's speech earlier this week that voters should decide whether Canada as prime minister could work most effectively for peace.

The achievement of peace "is not a matter of what political party is in power," he said.

As prime minister he had offered to open Canada's polar basin to exploration as part of a reciprocal disarmament plan. He had proposed discussions with Russia, and had extended international obligations through aid to Asia and a plan of long-term credit wheat sales to Colombo Plan countries.

Mr. Diefenbaker spoke to some 800 persons who packed a down-town Prince Albert arena. In 20-below zero weather, Earlier, the meeting had been postponed as the hotel town boy to run again March 31 in Prince Alberta.

JOKES POLISHED

Today he goes campaigning for votes in the riding he has held since 1940.

JOKES POLISHED

At the meeting here the audience laughed at some well-polished Diefenbaker jokes and cheered when he presented Mayor Wes Mikkelsen jacket made by a Mrs. Mususkapow of the Sandy Lake Indian reserve.

Increased Beer Prices Coming Says Paper

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the Ontario government will probably grant a request from the Ontario Hotel Association for increased beer prices.

It says there has been no public opposition to the request.

Ontario hotels have asked for an increase of four cents a bottle in Toronto and three cents a bottle in the northern part of the province. This would bring the price of 20 cents a bottle in beverage rooms throughout the province.

Approval is also sought for a larger draught glass, instead of the present eight-ounce glass, to sell at 15 cents, an increase of five cents a glass.

Pearson Plans 24 Speeches In Next 15 Days

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson will make seven television appearances and deliver at least 24 speeches in Ontario, Quebec, Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan in the next 15 days.

A schedule issued by National Liberal headquarters Friday showed that Mr. Pearson will be in Toronto today, February 19 he will be in the Toronto area, including Oshawa, Peterborough and Port Hope.

Mr. Pearson will speak in Brantford, Guelph and Kitchener Feb. 20, London Feb. 21, and Niagara Falls and St. Catharines and Welland Feb. 22.

Get Half Billion

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has called on the president of the $344,200,000 through governor-general's warrants to transact government business going up to March 31.

This was shown Friday in the Canada Gazette, official government gazette. The order-in-council for the warrant is dated Feb. 7.

Stalin Story Cut 46 to 6 Pages But He's Still Great in Reds' Book

MOSCOW (Reuters)—The latest official version of the life of Stalin depicts the late dictator as a man of greatness, despite faults of character and mistaken judgment.

The new picture of Stalin is presented in the latest volume of the Soviet Union's encyclopedia, which was published here Friday night. The article on Stalin in this biography was cut from 46 pages in the previous edition to six pages in the new one.

Stalin "erred," says the encyclopedia, "in over-estimating the importance of the (1939) Soviet-German non-aggression pact."

He also "erred" when made mistaken decisions in the economic field, and "rejected proposals of the central committee" of the Communist party which resulted in harm to the economic development of the country, especially in the field of agriculture."

Stalin also "committed serious errors in certain questions of foreign policy," it says. The last remark was apparently a reference to Stalin's break with President Tito of Yugoslavia.

And Stalin's "massive repressions" against "so-called enemies of the people" — "unnecessary because those enemies had already been crushed."

However, says the volume, Stalin was chosen to succeed Lenin — despite Lenin's advice to the contrary — "because the situation was grave, because of Stalin's organizational work in preparing and carrying out measures, he would have helped he would help him promise to rectify mistakes."

PARATROOPER HANGS FROM PLANE

Thirteen parachute jumps went without incident or accident for Pte. Gordon Parker, left, of Meadow Lake, Sask., at his 14th, at Wainwright, Alta., during one of the coldest days ever recorded in mid-air in 15-below-zero weather. He was nearly frozen when he was pulled back into the flying boxcar by F/O Moore White right, but after a few hours in hospital he was pronounced in good shape. His static line on the parachute also failed to break and allow him to fall free of the plane.

Premier Frost Announces $5,000,000 Program of Aid

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Frost Friday offered a Valentine surprise for Ontario municipalities and unemployed.

Announcing a $5,000,000 program of aid, Mr. Frost told the Ontario legislature his Progressive Conservative government will pay 70 per cent of direct labor costs for special municipal projects incurred between now and May 31.

He called the program a substitute for direct unemployment relief. It had been worked out by officials of Toronto, Ottawa, Windsor, Thomas, Sarnia, Kitchener, Welland and North Bay.

"The projects must involve additional work by the municipality over and above the municipality's ordinary undertakings, and the wages so subsidized would be paid to unemployed workers who are not entitled to receive unemployment," said Mr. Frost.

He said the program is not designed to provide funds for new projects which would ordinarily be undertaken by a municipality.

The program would finance such projects as repairs to sidewalks, streets, roads and sewers; park and beach clean-up and repair; repair and painting of buildings; renovation of heating and lighting facilities; clearing of sites of redevelopment projects not subsidized by the province, and tree planting and trimming.

Being advanced on an experimental basis, the program might in future years be restricted to municipalities with severe unemployment. It would be up to them to justify federal participation."

French Fight Major Battle With Rebels Near Tunisia

TUNIS (CP)—French troops in eastern Algeria today were reported massing along the Tunisian border, apparently in anticipation of a major fight raging between the French and Algerian nationalist rebels.

The report was made by the Tunisian government at a time of bitter relations between it and France over last week's bombing of Sakiet Sidi Youssef, Tunisian border village labelled by the French a hideout site for Algerian rebels.

The Tunisian information secretariat said the French planes, 10 artillery pieces and 21 troop-carrying trucks had arrived at Sakiet Sidi Youssef. Thirteen more French artillery pieces were a mile to the north, it added.

The battle continued this morning, said French officials in Algiers reporting the death of 102 rebels and 11 French soldiers. Another 41 Frenchmen were wounded, they said.

The battle flared in the Duvier region in the northeast corner of Algeria.

The troop-massing report came on the heels of France's complaint to the United Nations Security Council that Tunisia was aiding the Algerian rebels. Diplomatic sources at UN headquarters in New York said Tunisia will also call on the council to condemn the French air assault on Sakiet Sidi Youssef.

Diefenbaker and Pearson Disagree on Joblessness

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Liberal Leader Lester Pearson have made it plain that they disagree on the causes of Canada's most serious economic problems — unemployment.

Mr. Diefenbaker told an audience in Prince Albert, Sask., Friday night that his government "inherited" unemployment from the former Liberal government. And Mr. Pearson in a keynote speech in Hamilton, Ont., said the Progressive Conservatives must bear responsibility for aggravating unemployment.

The speeches indicated both leaders will stress during the March 31 federal election campaign that the policies of their parties did not create the current unemployment situation.

The prime minister spoke to a home town audience after he had been nominated to contest the election in Prince Albert.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Conservative government was taking action to defeat unemployment, e.g., cut federal taxes, provided $300,000,000 for house - building and provided $80,500,000 for loans of immigration last summer, increased social security payments and provided farm advances to farmers.

Mr. Pearson said the Conservatives manoeuvred for a general election instead of taking quick action by deficit financing and other means to cope with the rising army of jobless.

Mr. Pearson said there should have been a budget "which would have used the taxing and financial power of the state to stimulate employment — even if this had meant a substantial deficit."

SAYS 400,000 JOBLESS

Mr. Diefenbaker said some Liberals were stating that unemployment was about 800,500. It actually was about 400,000, compared with 379,000 in February, 1953, and 308,000 in February, 1956, when a Liberal government was in power.

DECLARES PCs PLAYING POLITICS WITH JOBLESS

Pearson Expects Situation to Worsen

HAMILTON (CP) — Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson has formally kicked off his election campaign with a charge that the Progressive Conservatives have been playing politics with a serious unemployment situation that likely would worsen during the rest of the year.

He maintained also, in a 40-minute keynote speech Friday night, that his $400,000,000 tax-cut plan to create jobs is "an alternative" and, in general, economic way to give the sagging Canadian economy a new and effective lift.

The Progressive Conservatives, he charged, manoeuvred for a general election last fall instead of launching programs, including deficit financing, to overcome unemployment. If it was not for the arbitrariness of the situation, he would not be sponsoring a tax-cut program.

SAYS PCs TOO SLOW

When the Conservatives took over last June, he said, the country was prosperous, fighting inflation. The situation changed, he said, because they were too slow and ineffective in coping with the problem.

Instead of an increase of 25 per cent in unemployment, anticipated by some federal economists for 1957, the country's unemployment increased by 50 per cent.

To the extent that the Conservatives had been ineffective in dealing with the problem, they were "playing politics with what the present situation," Mr. Pearson said.

He spoke to an enthusiastic overflow crowd of some 1,200 in Secondary High School auditorium.

On the stage with Mr. Pearson was former health minister Paul Martin, an unsuccessful candidate for the Liberal leadership, who described the 1957 Nobel peace prize winner as "one of the greatest men living in our generation."

He urged Canadians to get behind Mr. Pearson so that he could bring peace to the world. The Liberal leader, piped into the auditorium after Mr. Martin's speech, pledged to launch the "greatest crusade of all," the crusade "for peace and a decent world."

"As head of the government, I would have greater opportunities to accomplish more than I have ever been able to do," he said in the search for a solution to the ultimate problem of how to avoid a nuclear war which would destroy us all."

He said he made this statement knowing that leaders of other parties had the same objectives.

"I can promise you also a Liberal government's competent government through whom action can be taken to bring the world once at a team; a government of men who will not confuse moving with progress, agitation with action; or platitudes for performance."

Railway Freight Increase Date May Be Changed

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) Prime Minister Diefenbaker has hinted implementation of a railway freight rate increase, suspended until March 1, may be postponed beyond that date pending the hearing of an appeal by the cabinet.

A press conference during a train trip here Friday, he said the March 1 deadline could be extended in the case of the 3.8-per-cent rate increase authorized at the start of the year by the board of transport commissioners.

Three Men Seeking to Save Fourth Are Buried by Colorado Snowslide

OURAY, Colo. (AP) — Three men seeking to rescue a fourth buried in a snowslide were themselves swallowed up and presumed dead Friday in a second slide that burst with the force of an explosion into a shallow canyon.

The first of further slides imperilled rescuers who worked with zero temperatures to locate the lost men.

Even as their long metal probes rasped through a sea of snow, rock and shorn timber 60 feet deep, however, Sheriff Bud Sellers said it would be impossible for any of them to be alive.

The last hope for the four vanished when searchers dug 18 feet to reach a bulldozer on which one of the missing men had been standing when the second slide struck. It was hoped they might have crawled beneath the vehicle and gained safety in an air pocket, but none was there.

Toss Deadlocked Diesel Issue Into Lap Of Minister

CPR Claims Labor Union Repudiated Signed Pacts

MONTREAL (CP) — Labor Minister Michael Starr is to be given the responsibility for the next step in the deadlocked diesel firemen dispute.

The Canadian Pacific Railway announced the matter would be referred to the minister "for appropriate action" after CPR-union discussions aimed at solving the controversy broke off Friday.

The railway claimed the union, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen (CLC) repudiated signed agreements.

The union termed the breakdown a suspension of negotiations and said it will go before the Canadian railway board of adjustment to seek clarification of the agreement it signed with the company in January, 1957, to halt a nine-day rail strike springing from the same dispute.

The union could rule that the board has no authority to deal with the matter since it contains jets into conciliation. In the background hangs the threat of a new strike.

NEED STUDY TIME

Mr. Starr said from his home in Oshawa, Ont., he can comment until he has had time to study the report. He said he will be in a complete report of the discussion from both sides.

In Saskatoon, Prime Minister Diefenbaker declined comment until he has had an opportunity for a report on the dispute.

The report of the deadlock royal commission, brought down last week, held that firemen were not necessary in freight and yard diesels, confirming the company's claim that firemen on passenger diesels and steam locomotives are not involved.

The company outlined proposals for implementing the commission's recommendations. It left the union last Thursday. They were to take effect before the present contract expires May 31.

Discussions broke down Friday in a session in which the union was to outline its position. The meeting lasted only 40 minutes.

Financial Aid Announcement Reaction Mixed

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario civic heads have welcomed Premier Frost's announcement of a $5,000,000 program of aid for municipal works to ease unemployment.

But Douglas Hamilton, secretary - treasurer of the Ontario Federation of Labor, said the money "will not even cover the projects Toronto has in mind—let alone the rest of the province."

"Just a drop in the bucket," commented William Gennard, president of Toronto Labor Council.

Henry J. Rhodes, organization director of the Canadian Labor Congress, said the program is a good idea—if municipalities can take advantage of it at such short notice.

While the labor chiefs were adamantly unimpressed, the announcement got enthusiastic welcome at many city halls.

"Wonderful," Mayor Michael Patrick of Windsor termed it. He said it could be used as a city redevelopment program and a major overhaul of city sidewalks.

Mayor John Franklin of St. Catharines called the announcement was "very welcome news."

In Toronto, acting mayor Jean Newlands said the program will mean the city can undertake a works program of probably more than $1,000,000, employing more than 1,000 men.

Harold Stassen, Disarmament Adviser, Resigns

THOMASVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Harold E. Stassen resigned today as special assistant for disarmament adviser in order to campaign for governor of Pennsylvania.

James Hagerty, White House press secretary, said at the president's vacation headquarters the decision was Stassen's own and that he was not asked to resign.

In accepting the resignation, Eisenhower wrote Stassen: "I deeply regret that you are leaving the disarmament assignment, effective today, and that our five-year association together in government is to terminate."

In recent months Stassen and Secretary of State Dulles have been at odds over disarmament policy. That led to reports that Eisenhower had decided Stassen had outlived his usefulness.

Member Claims Ontario Has Own "Little Rock"

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario has its own Little Rock among the northern Indians, Albert Wren (L—Kenora) charged Friday in the legislature.

The discrimination which exists and the discrimination which is encouraged is sickening to behold."

He said discrimination is practiced by the provincial department of the federal government and called for a special committee to investigate the agency.

"Ontario has no right to look at Little Rock when we have the conditions that exist in this province among the Indians."

Mr. Wren said he knew of white men living in a shack by the hour with free room and board while Indians worked beside them for 50 cents a day and no room and board.

RAPS KELLOCK FINDINGS

In his hour-long speech the independent member also said he disagreed with the Kellock commission's finding that railway firemen are not needed in diesel locomotive freight yard service.

"The CPR is trying to make a monkey out of Canadian railwaymen for the solo benefit of American railroads," he said Friday. The safety factor demanded retention of firemen.

Kingston Curlers Entertained at Curling Rink

The members of the Quinte Curling Club entertained their first visitors in their new rink on Friday evening, when eight rinks from the Kingston Curling Club were on hand for a friendly game. Two draws of eight ends each were played, and although the Kingston club had the top scores, the fine comradeship and fellowship that prevailed erased all thoughts of the counters.

The visitors were surprised and amazed at the new surroundings at the club. The Kingston Club in years gone by, when a club was mooted in this city, lent every assistance, supplying the local club with rocks, when the Arena was used, and this visit was just a reminder that the Kingston Club was still behind the Quinte members in promoting the art of curling in the district.

At the conclusion of the games the assembly gathered in the clubhouse and officially welcomed by Bill Gale, the efficient president of the Quinte curlers. He thanked the Kingston club for their co-operation during the formative years of the club and hoped that the friendly relations would continue for many years. Mrs. Ross Nesbitt, president of the Kingston club and also past president of the Ontario Curling Association, thanked Mr. Gault for the kind words and praised the Quinte club for their beautiful quarters and rinks. "I am sure you will have many happy hours in your new rink and every success to you," said Mr. Ness. The directors of the club present were presented to the visitors.

THANKS ALSO

The thanks of the board is being extended to a number of merchants in Belleville for their kind donations to the club. The International Nickel Company donated all the hardware that has been used in the building and which is a considerable item. Last evening when the members entered the clubhouse they were greeted by the sight of a new Admiral 21-inch television set, kindly donated by the Booth TV-Radio Company. In the clubhouse an electric clock has been placed through the kindness of Ab Wensgarth, Jr., and a member of the club, while on the back wall of the club room, a Coca-Cola clubber electric clock, the kind donation of Jerry O'Connor, another member in the city. The Harry Trepanier Tire Company placed in the clubhouse a fire-hose, in the flooding of the rink, while the Hotel Quinte donated a number of chairs for use in the clubhouse. All these gifts have been greatly appreciated by the directors and will always be a reminder of the interest taken in this curling enterprise.

Certainly the best part of the evening was the scrumptious buffet luncheon that was served for the visitors and members. Mrs. Hilliard was in charge of the arrangements and Jim Cooke of the Cookery in charge of arranging the table. Everything from a large salmon, the centre piece of the table, to the trimmings, such as roast beef, shrimp and other rare foods were in abundance and the gathering did ample justice to the good luncheon. All enjoyed the social evening immensely and as usual some tall tales were heard around the festive board. It was the first evening to remember in the early history of the Quinte Curling Club.

Big Attendance At Convention Of Witnesses

Mr. Ralph Wickerson, spokesman for the Jehovah's Witnesses, delegates who travelled to Trenton yesterday, reports that the attendance at the evening session of the three-day convention was 650, a record for the circuit in this area.

Mr. George H. Saltmarsh, district servant from Toronto, set the convention theme with his talk "Qualified to Endure" which brought forcibly to the attention of his audience the crying need for qualified teachers in this degenerate old world.

The balance of the convention program was a model presentation of two meetings regularly conducted in each congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses throughout the world.

The Theocratic Ministry School opened with a review of the lesson which had been studied in each of the eleven congregations represented in the area this week. This review was of the audience participation type with school instructors taking the various congregations taking the lead.

Mr. Lambert Riedel who headed the delegation from Napanee then spoke on "Organization of the Hebrew Scriptures", giving detailed information on the history of these ancient handwritten copies of the Holy Bible.

Three ministerial servants selected from different centres delivered original sermons before the audience and afterward received helpful counsel on their composition and delivery from Mr. Saltmarsh.

The final student drew much attention inasmuch as he was the youngest speaker on the program, Barrey Cunningham, age 13, of Shannonville, in spite of a sudden cold did admirably well on his Scripture reading of a portion of First Chronicles.

A symposium on four talks stressing ways of increasing praise to God, whose name the witnesses maintain is "Jehovah", concluded the evening.

New Health Column Begins On Monday

Joseph G. Molner, M.D., Detroit's health commissioner and one of nations outstanding public health authorities, authors a new health column, "Your Guide to Health," which will appear as a daily feature in the Ontario Intelligencer beginning next Monday.

Dr. Molner writes with authority on health, but his articles are easy-to-understand language for swift understanding of the layman.

The way to good health, Dr. Molner insists, is to know how to take care of it rather than to worry over the rare diseases which probably will never strike.

Among Dr. Molner's educational affiliations have been postgraduate study at Johns Hopkins University, following his medical degree at Wayne University. Dr. Molner is lecturer at the University of Michigan School of Public Health and has numerous articles for medical journals.

Employers Requested to Help Ease Unemployment Situation

The local office manager of the National Employment Service, Cecil E.W. Hiuser, has issued an appeal to employers in the city to help ease the unemployment situation.

At the most employers know, the direct and indirect cost of unemployment to them, our labor force during the winter months and over-employment during the summer months is considerable", said Mr. Hiuser. He remarked that over the past few years an increasing amount of attention has been given to the problem of business and industry establishing a more even employment pattern between summer and winter.

There are many reasons why businessmen consider it in their own best interest to try to do something about this problem. One reason is the cost of unemployment to the community in terms of loss of wages and purchasing power, welfare costs, and so on. Another is that an industry which operates the year round has a better chance of a stable labor force, whereas such an industry which stops in the winter and starts this problem. winter and starts this problem because of such factors as the hiring and training of new staff.

"Generally speaking," said Mr. Hiuser, "a seasonal pattern contributes to loss of wages and purchasing power, welfare costs, and so on. Another is that an industry which operates the year round has a better chance of a stable labor force, whereas such an industry which stops in the

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

HARDY FINCH

The purple finch is a delight to the eye. Indeed, in singing season he is a delight to the ear, too; but just now we can hardly expect him to make any sound except his characteristic, metallic "tick" call. Although very similar in color to the male pine grosbeak, the greater part of his plumage is a deeper shade. Perhaps the old-fashioned "magenta" or the more modern term "raspberry" would better describe it, though the color is actually "purple" in the original application of that word, as used many hundreds of years ago. The color is most vivid on the bird's head (which, by the way, has the indications of a crest) and on the rump.

His wife might easily be taken for a sparrow, because she is heavily streaked in various shades of brown; but a very light line over the eye and another along the jaw help to differentiate her. These finches are much the size of English sparrows, but their bills are larger and stouter, though not as big as a grosbeak's.

The majority of purple finches migrate to the U. S. for the cold season, yet there are always some that remain in southern Ontario, and very often a flock stays near the southern border of Quebec or New Brunswick, or even Newfoundland. T h e i r sojourn away from us is of short duration. February is none too early for the height of their spring arrival, and November none too late for their fall departure.

ADAPTABILITY

Naturally there must be some good reason why purple finches appear to be so hardy. It really is their adaptability. They eat what is easiest to find according to the season: buds, insects, wild fruit, or seeds. Just now, of course, their diet consists mainly of seeds. Being quite friendly, they frequently visit feeding stations in winter, there to enjoy the sunflower seeds, hemp, and millet put out to attract them.

In erratic wanderings as well as in looks resembling the larger pine grosbeaks, purple finches one year pass through a district in flocks numbering perhaps several hundred, while another year there will be only a few individuals. But your best chance of seeing a flock this year will be for the next month or two. Young males look like their mothers and sisters for some time, t h e n change gradually, acquiring the bright adult male plumage when nearly two years old. Consequently, only the minority of birds you see in winter flocks are dressed in purple — or (shall we say?) raspberry.

200 EDMUND BURKES

Almost certainly, France has sealed its fate in Africa.

There may be few physical resemblances between Sakiet Sidi Youssef and Boston, even the Boston of the mid-eighteenth century, but when French planes raided that small Tunisian village they may have lighted a spark which will flare as violently as did the Boston "tea party."

How badly the French erred is perhaps shown most plainly by the fact that 200 Frenchmen massed around the Tunisian embassy in Paris to express their sympathy with Tunisia and their abhorrence of the act of their country.

It is unlikely that any of these demonstrators will go down in history as did Edmund Burke, for they lack his eloquence, but they outnumber him and their mere presence in the street may be as significant, in its way, as Burke's famous speeches in support of the American revolutionists.

All this will never be understood by the man who says "my country, right or wrong." But the true patriot, we suggest, is the man who, when his country is wrong, does not defend its policies but assails them and tries to change them. If enough Englishmen had listened to Burke, the United States might today be a part of the British Commonwealth of Nations. If enough Frenchmen understood why 200 of their compatriots gathered in front of the Tunisian embassy to express their sympathy for the dead of Sakiet Sidi Youssef, some miracle might still preserve French influence in North Africa — but where Burke's eloquent tongue failed, 200 unknown demonstrators are unlikely to succeed.

In any event, it may well be that the opinion of Frenchmen is no longer of importance, that the time has passed when they have any real control of events in North Africa.

It may also be that the French, or many of them, will be totally unable to understand why this should be true. French settlers have been slaughtered in cold blood, deliberately, for no conceivable military reason. Why then, the French may ask, is the world so shocked that 68 natives should have died in an attack which had a legitimate military objective, the destruction of guns which fired at French planes?

The answer is that the world had thought that the French were civilized.

THE MISSING MILLION

...hat's a million?

Nothing worth bothering about, apparently, if one chances to be talking about the employed and the unemployed.

Amongst those things which we frequently find confusing, and they are legion, are unemployment statistics. Amongst these confusing statistics are the latest figures for the United States. Tuesday an Associated Press despatch from Washington said that the number of unemployed in the U.S. had risen 1,120,000 last month. The same story also said that the number of employed persons fell by 2,158,000. There is a difference of roughly a million people between these two figures.

What happened to these missing million?

First of all, we need to ask ourselves what a person is when he is neither employed nor unemployed. There seems to us to be two answers — he is either retired or dead.

Perhaps we have here located the missing million. But if we have, we have also uncovered a problem to replace our mystery. Generally speaking, those who die are replaced by those who are born and those who retire by those who work. When dealing with employment figures, those who start work have to carry the full load of replacing the retired and the dead, since the new-born will not be ready to start work for several years. Generally, though, the young men and women commencing work have no difficulty balancing the scales. What happened in January?

Part of the explanation, we suppose, is that the influx of new workers into the economy of a modern nation is not evenly spaced out during the year, but is concentrated during the late spring and early summer, when they finish their schooling.

One wonders whether this is the best possible arrangement.

MAGIC OF CHILDHOOD

I never saw a cloud so black
But what some little boy or girl
Could reach right up and roll it back
And make the skies as clear as pearl.
I never knew so great a woe
But what it could be straight forgot,
If, somehow, I could only go
A-rompin' with a little tot.

I do not know a grief, I swear,
So bitter that a little child
Cannot make easier to bear.
For oh, so often I have smiled
When anguish seemed to be my lot
And grim despair had hold of me,
Because a baby, knowing not
My troubles, clambered on my knee.

I never saw a mother's tear
But what a little babe could dry;
And life is never black and drear
But what a laughing child is nigh.
The darkest, sternest words of fate,
A baby magically brightens;
And never burden is so great
But what a laughing toddler lightens.

Oil Sludge Poison to Your Car's Engine

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Help your engine fight off sludge formation and you can save it from ruined oil passages, oil leaks, ruined bearings, etc.

Oil sludge is a pasty mixture of oil, water, carbon, dirt, etc. It will accumulate much more rapidly when engine temperatures do not get high enough to carry off the various and harmful by-products of combustion.

In winter weather, then, this sludge danger is greatest, and it's up to the car owner to take special steps to minimize it. He can best do this by having more frequent oil changes during the cold months and by having a high temperature thermostat installed for faster engine warm-up.

W. O. asks: "What would be the first thing to check when the engine idles too roughly?"

A An overrich fuel mixture is generally first on the list, but, of course, there are many other possible causes, too.

F. E. writes: "My car is equipped with a multiple-throat carburetor. I'd appreciate some tips to guide me in adjusting it for best operation."

(A) Don't touch it. Multibarrel carburetors require the attention of a serviceman equipped with adequate testing equipment.

From E. O.: "Please explain the terms wheel caster, camber and easter."

(A) Caster refers to the outward tilt of the front wheels at the top. With correct camber, wheel bolsters are in the best position to accept the load.

Caster is the backward tilt given the wheels and its purpose is to keep the front wheels pointed straight ahead.

C. B. asks: "If front wheel bearings are too loose, will they affect the brakes in any way?"

(A) Loose wheel bearings can cause brakes to chatter, drag or grab.

Fro[illegible] keep our car [illegible] corroded by salt spread on the roads in rock, snow and ice? The body is undercoated, but what about the top side?"

(A) A good coat of wax on the finish and chrome parts will give a lot of protection. It also important to wash down the car as soon as you can after the car has been exposed to salt, calcium and other corrosive chemicals.

SAFETY IS NO ACCIDENT

Be careful about your driving. Be sure about your car.

UNEMPLOYMENT

There was applause for statements dealing with local topics: the announcement that a modern CNR station would be started in a few months and that a new policy of federal cost-sharing for roads in the north might mean two new roads in the region.

Mr. Diefenbaker noted in his remarks on unemployment for the end of his speech.

"Let me make this perfectly clear," he said. "We inherited the problem."

Last February the Liberal government had received warnings from its economic advisers about increasing unemployment and declining investment. But that government, of which Mr. Pearson was a member, did nothing.

Mr. Diefenbaker poked fun at Mr. Pearson's promise of a special tax exemption for newly-married couples in the first three years of marriage.

"Some of us will have to start all over again," he cracked.

Mr. Diefenbaker, a former widower, married his present wife some four years ago.

SUES TOWN FOR $67,000

GRIMSBY (CP) — William J. Johnston, former chief constable here, is suing the town for $67,000, claiming damages for loss of wages, wrongful dismissal and mental anguish, injuries to character and loss of suitable employment. The claim arises from the dismissal of the former chief in May 1956 by the town council.

Old Houses of the Quinte Area

By Viva Richmond Graham

Editor's note: The author, who is well known in the city for her cultural interests, has lived here for eleven years, having previously resided in Ogden, Utah. One of her main hobbies is old homes and their history and in the pursuit of this interest she has visited some of the more distinctive ones not only in the immediate district but to Kingston in the east and to Colborne in the west. On the request of the editor, Mrs. Graham has written a short series dealing with the more interesting of the houses she has visited. One of the things which made her task so pleasant was the gracious welcome which was extended to her by all owners of the homes she visited. The editor acknowledges with gratitude the wonderful co-operation and hospitality which were given so freely. Pictures of many of the houses will illustrate the articles.

On Dundas Street, in our city, stands a compact, rectangular, gray-stone house. It plays well the role of a gracious, sedate, private residence, with scant heed to the whistle and roar of a train which passes, a block or so away, on ribbon, silver-polished tracks of the railroad — the successor of its vanquished master, the Stage Coach.

For, allegedly, this house originally served as the Stage Coach Toll House. Long was it accustomed to the clatter of horses' feet and the roll of carriage wheels that thundered to a stop before its door, where the stage driver swung down from his seat with all the authority of a ship's captain. In fact, since the first means of travel was by water, the stage driver of the land-going coach always was called Captain and he had to pay the toll, to gather mail, to help the women passengers in or out of the "cabin" the coach's interior was called, and to see that the baggage, or "freight," was safely stowed.

Mr. W. C. Mikel in his History of Belleville, "the roads were rough and dangerous, and stout toll houses to navigate, streams to cross, ruggest hills to climb. The ordinary time for a trip from Toronto to Montreal at some seasons of the year took from five to six days." He mentions, too, that William Weller, who had the reputation of being the best driver in the Province, it was he who drove Lord Elgin from York (now Toronto) to Montreal, in twenty minutes less than the thirty-six hours to be in time to stop a hanging of an innocent man, "way back in 1846: "no one but Weller would have done this"), also knew every inch of the road between Detroit and Montreal," and resided "in the Bay of Quinte District". Weller became one of the largest stage proprietors, and kept numerous stables of horses on the many routes, at short intervals, in readiness for quick changes for fresh teams.

ANTEDATED SERVICE

Even Fancy's highest flight could not dream of that early knight of the road, whose "horse-powered" coaches swept past farm house to town house with mail and passengers were fore-runners of the postal service, the telephone, the telegraph, radio, TV, not to mention, perhaps, the motor car and sorb each as the early brakeman, conductor, ticketman or depot master, even if he is said, as owner, it.

In turn, such men became the heroes of the day, the hero of each adventure ever ride more hand-some and daring than when three of these men met on the road, or reality in the culmination of a trans-Canada railway.

Somehow, the romance and excitement evades Fate's accurate, heavy finger as it traces the route and changes of Canadian travel, so that "three Mr. Mikels — Horne, Lord Mount Stephen and Lord Strathcona remain merely names between the covers of a gathering history text-books for busy pupils.

Being such a pupil, is why it is something of a breath-taking adventure to find, a walk along a street in Montreal and hear some one say: "Look — that's the Van Horne residence!" — "Oh — the large mansion you see over there was built by Lord Mount Stephen!" It is a thrill to have a friend here in town say: "I well remember meeting Lord Strathcona, as a child when travelling with my parents, when he was very well. We were house-guests at his home, near Montreal, when we were visiting England . . ."

To meet and talk with people who actually knew these personalities suddenly brought them into focus, and they became life size in stature, mentally, physically, morally, human beings, warm, vital beings with tremendous creative ability that was stimulated by challenge and whose every whim was fulfilled, hope and wrought opportunity out of the very scarcity of their time.

SAVED BY A LOAN

"Ah, yes," affirmed a former historian of the C.P.R., the late Mr. Murray Gibbon, "and on many times, when it was not easy-going to build their railroad and everything looked black and hopeless. At one time, they were threatened by bankruptcy. A loan from the government could have given that they might carry on. It was needed so urgently, they felt the utmost attention to all details must be looked into to assure success in obtaining it. They went, as far as to place their choice on Lord Mount Stephen to see about asking the government for it. So John A. Macdonald, for one reason, or another, became a valet.

"Perhaps it would make a good impression, they thought, and have given that their strategy worked may be judged by the Prime Minister's acclamation: "Well — if Mount Stephen can afford to keep a man like that, I think we can afford to let him out!" and he ordered the necessary loan to be drafted them from the government!"

Did life hold any interests for them other than railroad goal was reached? Were they each content to be acclaimed Empire builders, or now that fame and fortune had become theirs, had they any private interests or ambition to fulfill? - If so, what were they?

"Ah," Van Horne told us he had always had an unquenchable thirst for knowledge, even back in his youth, when he was said to be lived in Iowa" said a close friend. "He was very poor and one day a boyhood chum lent him a book on fossils. He craved to know more about it, so he proceeded to copy the whole book: by candlelight and all, in the loft of the barn, by candlelight on any paper he could find. The borrowed book, left in place by a piece of an old lead-pipe became well-thumbed and marked. It was practically in tatters when finally returned to its owner.

VICTORIA COLLECTION

"We often visited their home, my husband and I," the friend went on, "I recall the cons tory where Mrs. Van Horne kept her book collection of rare orchids. The adjoining hall hung with priceless rugs led into a large vaulted, tapestried Gothic Library filled with Chinese objects d'art. Mr. Van Horne had a magnificent collection of Chinese porcelain, of which he made an illustrated index. He illustrated each piece by a copy of his own drawing in colored water-proof inks, quite taking work!

"He owned some fine masterpieces and the drawing-room was filled with paintings. But in the dining-room which was furnished in massive mahogany furniture, hung a painting of a railroad yard lighted at night. It was painted by none other than Mr. Van Horne himself.

"As a matter of fact, Dr. Gilbon recalled, "Van Horne painted a great deal. One time I was invited to have lunch with him. This was an honor, indeed, in those days. Upon leaving, I mentioned my interest in seeing more of his pictures. He said to me: 'Come again and if I'm not home, the butler will show you around.' "It so happened, I did go back sometime later. The butler showed me around. We stopped before one picture and I said: 'But this isn't a real master-piece!'

"The butler looked at me. He said: 'Mr. Van Horne painted it himself. It's a copy. He enjoys his trick picture, and keeps it to see who are the critics they claim they are!'

Sincerity, evidently meant a great deal to this man, for Dr. Gibbon spoke of another time, when he was invited to have dinner at the VanHorne home. "Afterwards," he said, "a servant passed cigars around in humidor that contained the five-cent brand of cigars, named after Mr. Van Horne. If anyone made a great fuss over these, Van-Horne immediately considered this person Insincere."

"When Mr. VanHorne died on January 24, 1915, Bliss Carman wrote a poem dedicated to him and which is published in my husband's book of poems. He said Mrs. Lighthall. "Edda, Mr. Van Horne's only daughter, loved her father's paintings so much that, after his death, she opened the library and hall and room on certain days to the public. Many have become completely blind. Yet, so well did she know each painting she personally selected for the visitors . . ."

GREAT LOVE FOR ART

It would seem that Mr. Van-Horne's personal love for art was a thing of long standing and brought pleasure to his city at large. His interest was inherent, and real and he spent much time on this. For the majority, this had been a hobby, which became engrossing. Gibbon explained: "The eighties and nineties were stimulating years in Montreal. The thing to do, at that time, in order to make a name of culture, was to own paintings.

"There was a certain London dealer, a Dutchman by the name of VanVliesling, who was an art critic. Lord Strathcona's pictures of the Barbizan School to Canada. Pictures were duly sent from England to Canada. Also from Canada to United States. So Montreal became an art centre and clearing house.

"Back in 1908, I first came to Canada from England with some other newspaper men. One was an art critic. Lord Strathcona and bought a Corot and had it hung in his home. The critic saw the picture in passing. He was asked up and ushered in a room quite empty except for a veiled picture. When Lord Strathcona unveiled it, he said: 'Corot.'

"But the critic, at once, recognized the picture to be a forgery. So he said: 'It is not as much for it as some others I've seen,' actually as he viewed it.

"Said Lord Strathcona: 'I don't much like it either, but I paid $40-thousand dollars for it!"

Liberalism had the will to win, he said.

"We are working to win—so that we may once again give that leadership to Canada which has been our glory and our privilege in the past."

As far as the Liberals were concerned, he would be a right — waged "decently and fairly", shunning personalities, name-calling and invective . . . the time is not one for mean and petty partisanship in the face of colossal problems, even in the heat of a general election."

At the Wesley Community Centre, converted from the old Wesley United Church where his father preached some 40 years ago, old basketball player Pearson joined some youngsters at the gymnasium. He tried his hand at basketball and scored three out of six shots while his wife looked on with amusement.

While Mr. Pearson received an enthusiastic reception later at the auditorium, he was interrupted once or twice by one or two hecklers at the back of the hall. He gave them no attention.

Earlier that day Transport Minister George Hees had given some "incorrect" figures on unemployment, Mr. Martin maintained that almost 900,000 Canadians were looking for work. Mr. Hees had cited the figure of 386,000. That, said Mr. Martin, was the figure for mid-December, not for mid-February. Even last Jan. 20, Labor Minister Michael Starr had agreed that the country had more than 500,000 unemployed.

FRENCH

French authorities in Algiers charged up to 400 Algerian rebels from Tunisia backed their barbed wire border barrier Thursday night and entered Algeria with a big operation. French troops intercepted the rebels south of the port city of Bone.

In an effort to avert a flare-up at this delicate stage, Tunisian authorities cleared the way for food supplies to be sent to the soldiers barricaded in their bases here by order of President Habib Bourguiba.

BLOCKADED CONSULATES

Bourguiba has clamped a police blockade on three French consulates, at Gafsa, Medjez and Le Kef, thus putting consular officials under the same restrictions as the French military. The French refused to close the consulates on grounds that the accord for their presence-in their former North African protectorate had not been formally ended.

In Paris, Premier Felix Gaillard summoned the United States ambassador, Amory Houghton, to his home for a talk on the situation. Reports from the French capital said they may have discussed a U.S. invitation for Bourguiba has said he would accept U.S. mediation.

Paris (AP) — Police Friday night banned a meeting called up by a group of leftist intellectuals including Jean - Paul Sartre, to protest the French bombing of the Tunisian village of Sakiet Sidi Youssef. The police said it might lead to public disturbances. Another meeting on the left bank, called by a right wing group to voice support for the French armed forces, was similarly banned.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

The Voice of Experience Reveals What a Retirement Trip May Cost

By THOMAS COLLINS

A trip of some sort lies out in your Golden Years. Maybe it is a trip to find a better place to live in retirement. Maybe it is just the trip most people like to take when at last they get their pensions and are free to go.

In either case here is a first-hand account of what you can expect, in costs and accommodations, should you like to take the kind of trip it seemed to me wisest to take.

The area I wanted to visit — to size it up as a home for retirement — was about 1,100 miles from home. The area extended over about 1,000 miles. I visited it, made a pleasant and satisfactory study of it, and returned home after nine days. The cost, for my wife and myself, was $75 — doing it the nice way. Doing it the cheap way would have saved only about $100.

The $75 for the retirement area was by Pullman bedroom and took 22 hours of arrived rested. By car it would have been three days, with a tired arrival.

A rented car, personally recarved, was waiting for us at the destination. We drove it through the 1,000-mile retirement area during the following six days. Then, 1,000 miles back to our home town we got the car, we turned it in to another branch of the rental agency, and took a Pullman home.

The round-trip train fare, for two, was $273, which is standard. The cost of the car, including gas and insurance, was $107.50, figures on the basis of $27.50 per week plus 7c per mile. This is about average, though it may vary in different parts of the country.

The six days in the rented car averaged about $17 a day. And the average $12 per night went to motels and the rest to incidentals and two meals a day, which is about all you want when traveling.

The motels were the best to be had in the area. Some were luxury establishments with 21-inch TV and room service. Some were $8 and $10 per night. One was $5.

One night we tried a city hotel. We had to park the car outside, a desk porter, the room porter, and a guy who brought the luggage up the fellow who brought the car next morning. We decided on motels as the better bargain.

Tipping is coming to the motels, too, slowly. And at some you now pay going out instead of coming in. You think of the tourist cabins you used to rent 15 years ago, many of them operated by retired couples and families who, if you felt a little sad that big business and city ways are wiping them out, found a welcome. The directory of motels on a trip like this is a revelation.

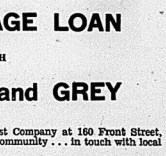
Young Liberals Name Delegates To Convention

A large representation from the Quinte district attended last night's meeting of the South Hastings Young Liberal Association in the Kiwanis Centre.

Acting-chairman John O'Flynn said: "Attendances were very pleased with the number of people who returned cards. We believe after re-organization that we'll have an association that will be organized, every year and not just at an election time."



Mr. O'Flynn announced that 25 delegates and alternates were named to this afternoon's convention in BCIVS.

"We are going to take an active part in the convention and afterward," he said.

Association members hope to hold meetings throughout the riding to recruit more members and to again spark interest in politics.

Present at the meeting last night were Dr. D. C. McVicker, mayor of Deseronto and a candidate to the convention; Irving McCaughey, president of the South Hastings Liberal Association, and Rodger Phillips, secretary for the riding association.

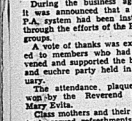
There were numerous door prizes and the P.T.A. wishes to thank all the merchants who so generously donated prizes.

"Changes in PTA" Address Given At St. Michael's

St. Michael's Parent-Teacher Association held its regular monthly meeting in the Academy auditorium on Monday last. President M. J. Lynch welcomed members from St. Joseph's P.T.A., Holy Rosary P.T.A. and St. Anne P.T.A. The guest speaker for the occasion was Mrs. Kathleen McLarnon, Ontario president of the Catholic Parent-Teacher Association.

Introduced by Paul Cleary, Mrs. McLarnon, Peterborough, spoke of the many changes and progress in P.T.A. activities since its inception as a "Home and School" group 16 years ago. She stressed the great need of clergy, laity, teachers and parents working together to instil Christian ideals in the minds of the children and ideals in that of the adults. The Ontario president urged parents and teachers.

STUDENT'S ADDRESS



Another highlight of the meeting was an address by Jamese Murphy, a son of Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor Murphy, a student at St. Michael's Academy, who recently took top award in the junior section of public speaking contest held by the C.O.S.S.A. in Madoc. His address was on "World Crises Precipitated by the Launching of Sputnik I."

During the business agenda, it was announced that a new P.-T. system has been installed through the efforts of the P.T.A. groups.

A vote of thanks was extended to members who had convened and supported the bridge and euchre party held in January.

The attendance, plaque was won by the Reverend Sister Mary Evita.

Class mothers and their assistants served refreshments.

Women's Activities

COLLEGE HILL W. A.

The members of College Hill United Church W. A. met in the church on Wednesday afternoon.

The president, Mrs. Jean Thompson, welcomed the ladies and opened the meeting.

Numerous items of business were discussed and approved and plans passed. Plans were made for a "Spring Tea," to be held in the church hall, prior to the Lenten calls later.

Several ladies had made calls on the ill and shut-ins during the month of January.

Mrs. Allen Smith reported on cards sent out and received, from the ill and bereaved during the month.

The financial report was given by Mrs. Eva Jenkinson.

Mrs. Thomson reminded of the World Day of Prayer at Bridge St. Church, Friday, February 21st.

An inspirational, devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Alda Watson and Mrs. Nellie Green, with the theme being, "The Recognition That They had been With Jesus."

Mrs. Greenwood read the Scripture from Acts. 4: 5-20 and Mrs. Watson gave a reading showing that Peter and John, through an experience with Christ, made them more like their Master. "We also today may be changed, and the closer we live to Jesus, the more we will be like Him."

The beautiful hymn "The Stranger of Galilee," was sung by Rev. W. E. G. Sharp, who closed the meeting by prayer.

Mrs. Eva Jenkinson conducted a contest and then a social half hour was enjoyed over a cup of tea, prepared by the ladies.

EASTMINSTER UNITED W.F.

The Women's Federation of Eastminster United Church held its February meeting on Tuesday afternoon in the church with a good attendance.

The president, Mrs. J. Williams, welcomed everyone, especially the CGIT group of our church, Mrs. Atkins and Mrs. Porter, Point Anne Women's Association.

Mrs. A. Atkin, leader of the CGIT group, conducted the worship service. Her theme was "What It Means to Be A Christian in Japan."

The installation ceremony of the CGIT with the Women's Federation took place with Mrs. Hunt, Auxiliary vice-president for younger groups, the president, Mrs. J. Williams, the missionary treasurer, Mrs. K. Gummo and the CGIT leaders, Mrs. Atkins and Mrs. G. Bucher and the 14 CGIT girls taking part.

Each girl received a World Friendship badge by Mrs. Gummo and Mrs. Bucher. The singing of "In Christ There Is No East or West" brought the impressive ceremony to a close.

Mrs. Gummo, Mrs. H. Brodie, the secretary, Mrs. L. Horning, read their respective reports and the president read letters of thanks for the parsonage. This is to be taken care of by Mrs. H. Beach.

Plans were discussed for the "Spring Tea" with Mrs. H. Beach convening.

Mrs. A. McDowell gave a reading on "Worldwide Friendship Begins at Home."

Miss Nancy Matthews favored the gathering with a solo.

Mrs. M. Reid's group served with tea and cookies and everyone enjoyed a social hour.

Sack, Chemise Dress Style Available in Local Stores

The sack or chemise, as it's now called, is a retread on the style of the 1920's, has been causing quite a controversy both in France and North America.

The Ontario - Intelligencer in a survey of local ladies' wear stores, discovered the "unwaisted dress" is causing just as much controversy in Belleville.

To paraphrase Shakespeare, the question is not "to wear or not to wear the sack', a one-piece dress which can be worn with or without a belt, made its appearance in the city about three months ago, but rather how will our customers, they said, indicated they would wear the dress belted rather than loose in the sack style.

Newer and more modified versions of the chemise, which has its origin in the wasteless sack of the '20's, have been in stock only three weeks, so it is too early to assess their selling potential, store officials state.

They also state that since the January sales, business has been slow, and women haven't begun to think of spring outfits yet.

Local reaction to the chemise is as varied as the new style itself, reviews. It ranges from those who don't like it and say they simply refuse to wear it, to those who hail the advent of the chemise as the biggest fashion news since "Dior's New Look" made it's appearance on the fashion scene more than ten years ago.

Although all ladies' wear stores have the chemise either in stock or on order, the majority claim they will stock them if and only a limited number at first.

WILL HAVE FEW

Some store officials say they will have only a few sacks because "it is the style this year." Others expect the chemise to be the "big thing" in spring and summer fashions, and are willing to gamble on its being a big seller this spring.

The majority of store buyers are taking a "wait and see" attitude to these new fashions once they get used to them.

As one dress buyer put it, "it is something similar to the chemise dress shorter to longer lengths a few years ago. It will just take a little time."

Another store manager stated: "Those who are style conscious will buy it. It will take a little courage to wear them at first."

Other local couturere said: "Women want to look smart without looking conspicuous. These newer modified versions, with a style for everyone, the bill in this respect."

For those who are confused by the names "sack" and "chemise", Style magazine offers an explanation. A sack has no style at all, while "(As one local male described it, "it looks like a pillow case with arm holes and a slit for the head.") The chemise however, has a new kind of fit — hugging the waist, hugging the hips, and tapering from there on down — and lots of style.

The chemise comes in one or two-piece ensembles, one-piece that looks like two-pieces, or vice versa; one-piece that looks like two-piece in the front only and dresses that look like they have been put on backwards. The chemise comes in all manner of bodice and skirt treatments, with hip belts, half belts, hip bands, bows and other style features. The bloused dress with drawstring, and the nautical middy-look are quite popular list versions of these new fashions.

MANY LINES CARRIED

Many of the latest styles from such well-known fashion houses as Miss Sun Valley, Jonathan Logan, Mr. Mort and Naitlynn, Jr., are carried in Belleville stores. They range from the jaunty, nautical look, featuring brass buttons, sailor collars and middies, to the smooth, elegant, long-torso'ed-look, featuring bows, large pockets at the hips and gently bloused backs, for example.

Dresses and suits are by no means the only type of women's apparel that has gone "chemise." Chemise styles can also be found in coats, evening gowns, sportswear and even lingerie. According to Style magazine the chemise silhouette is a natural for this year's fashions, and interprets ions of it vary from the gently bloused to the frankly waistless.

Skirt lengths are shorter this year to balance the narrow line of the chemise . . . how much depends on you, on your figure and on your height.

Although the unwaisted line is kind to midriff rolls, local sales clerks warn a good foundation is necessary. While it neither conceals nor reveals, they state, it looks best on a youthful figure preferably one with a slim-hipped person.

They state, however, there are styles to suit almost every type of figure — unless you are built on Marilyn Monroe lines.

Chemise dresses come in various types of fabric — pure silks, organzas, washable Arnel-nylon, acrylin jersey — and in prices ranging from $9.95 to $45. Popular colors this spring will be new shades of orange, green and navy.

This and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

A weekend thought.

For the want of a pint of blood a life was lost. Wanted, the voluntary gift of our blood. Even an unknown life may be preserved, a child, a young boy or girl, or maybe an adult mother. Your Belleville branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society, commencing March 1st, that is two weeks from today, starts its blood drive in this district. Certainly it is idealism at its finest. Certainly it is realism at the ground root level. What better can serve such a dual purpose than the preservation of life.

Your Red Cross will need the help day by day, month in and month out, year after year help of over fifteen hundred voluntary donors. It is an ambitious undertaking — a challenge — worthy as its devotion to service is limitless. T and it is an interesting fact to contend that your Red Cross needs, solicits and welcomes the co-operation of every women's group in Belleville and the surrounding communities. It is the distinction paid every time a pint of blood is transfused into a life, and to that end the dividends are declared daily and by the hour or minute, not quarterly or yearly. This column welcomes with humility the opportunity it has to lend its small an appeal for the support that we alone can supply. Give blood that others may live. Give them to the hospital.

This venture is a co-operative program, The Red Cross is really offering its services to your hospital in a great effort to assure adequate supplies of blood when required. It is not, emphasizes the Red Cross, patients will no longer have to pay for a blood bank. The only charge is the absolute cost of 5.03 to the hospital for bottles, and to that clerical staff, storage, grouping, typing, cross matching and all the many processes necessary to make the program successful. Your Red Cross will endeavour to secure the donors necessary, to maintain records, to keep schedules, train recruit volunteers for clerical duties at the clinic, to issue appointments, and to see that donors are given refreshments following a donation. Clinics will be held every Tuesday evening at the Belleville General Hospital commencing March 4th from 6.30 to 9.30 p.m.

Although T and T addresses itself specifically to women's groups it must not be assumed that the drive is for women only. They too will be asked to help. Every group that is set up will be included. You will be notified concerning details regarding the clinic, and you will a Red Cross worker.

The record of the Belleville Red Cross Society is encouraged by a great deal of achievement during the last World War, the Korean conflict, and its record would be complete if no musician may claim that music is the great communicator. Another philosopher may suggest that his theory of the universe is the common denominator. Each and any may be correct. We do know how it would seem difficult to find a common denominator that can be seen, but be felt, can be even heard, and can be literally life giving more truly and realistically than blood. There is no race, color or dogma barrier when it comes to blood.

Mr. G. R. Cameron is the convening chairman. Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson co-convener in charge of volunteer staff representing the Red Cross, and Mrs. T. J. McQuaid is in charge of records and donors organizations. Volunteers may telephone Mrs. Ketcheson at WO 2-0675.

We enjoyed an interesting letter from a listening and reading friend at Melrose. She commented on the column one week ago and mentioned the subject of the various interest in the changing scene around us. She enclosed a quotation from an English naturalist whom she doesn't believe would be very happy here today. He is reported as saying "I want the same old road and loved things, the same wild flowers, the same trees, the same turtle doves, the same blackbird, and I want them in the same place." T and T is inclined to agree that poor man would not be very happy in our rapidly changing surroundings, but appreciate such interesting letters from our readers.

Woman Helps Children Learn Of Indian Crafts

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — Mrs. Thor Hill, a young English-born woman now living in northern Saskatchewan, is helping youngsters in this city learn of Indian crafts.

Mrs. Hill has sent samples of Indian work—some usual, many unusual—to the children's room of the public library.

The handicraft collection is made up of gifts from Treaty Mission Indians to Mrs. Hill and her Canadian-born husband.

They have lived in Canada 10 years. Two years ago she and her husband started the tourist business and through their new occupation met many Indians.

Mrs. Hill met her husband following the Second World War and after several years of life on a riverboat near Burnham-on-Crouch on England's east coast, they decided to go to Canada.

Two years ago they went into business at Meadowlake, 100 air miles from La Ronge, about 120 miles north of here.

Mrs. Hill says Northern Saskatchewan is the Canada she had always dreamed of seeing: "It is everything I had hoped for—there is wonderful, wild scenery and they decided to go to the friendliest of the Indian people."

Mrs. Hill loves her outdoor life although there is a lot of hard work attached to running a business and home. Pleasure derived from new faces balances the ledger.

Among the collection she sent to the library is a baby's cradle made by a friend, Jemima Roberts, wife of a 60-year-old Cree Indian from Mission. The cradle was made from the skin of the morials, a fish used only for feeding dogs.

Another is a miniature moss bag intended for a baby or the mother's back. The baby is wrapped in layers of moss, and the bag which is then tied to the mother's back by moosehide thongs.

A fish spoon, another item in the display, is carved from the root of a tree, and is used by the Crees for sucker-head soup, a favorite dish.

(Q) "Could you suggest where I might write to get different states' travel folders?" — Mrs. A. C., Indianapolis, Ind.

(A) In response to many queries about different states' facilities and accommodations, we can say that Changing Times, the Kiplinger magazine, 1729 H St., Washington 6, D. C., maintains an agent in each of the various states' publicity and development bureaus, available for a postcard from the magazine's reprint service at the above address. The groups listed will send you all the information you need free.

(Q) "Last summer while on an automobile trip I had repair work done at two different times. One job was defective, the other not done at all.

"I wrote both the places," enclosing itemized receipts showing the work done and saying it had to be done over. One never answered my letter, the second refused to recognize the validity of my complaint.

"Is there anything that can be done to recover the money paid? It is rarely practical for a transient to return to a place where automobile repair has been done. Do automobile manufacturers ever require that have any sort of association for the protection of the automobile public? Both garages were authorized agencies for my make of car." — L. M. B., Waco, Tex.

(A) Every carmaker has what is known as a regional manufacturer's representative whose job it is to settle complaints from buyers. Ask a local dealer — preferably the one who sold you your car — to put him in touch with you and explain your case. You may get your money back, but more likely he'll arrange to have the work done satisfactorily at a local dealer's.

The fact that you mailed your receipts to the dealers and have no evidence now that you ever took the car to them may complicate things, but the manufacturer's representative may be glib to convince the truth out of them. It's usually best to have face to the representative in person.

If you're wise to take the car into authorized dealers, a fact which gives you some recourse now. These two turned out to be unco-operative, but few of them are that bad and in the long run otherwise you let yourself in for the kind of problem you're facing now.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

HOST. HOSTESS SHOULD PROVIDE NON-ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I know that you always advise the hostess that she must provide non-alcoholic drinks for guests who prefer them. But suppose the hostess (or host) just doesn't take the trouble to do this — this can happen, and unfortunately does. Then what can the "forgotten" non-drinker do? Is it proper to ask for a non-alcoholic drink? In this circumstance, when the hostess doesn't provide anything else, I'd be willing to settle for a glass of water, not only to drink but just to have a glass to hold in my hand. — M.B.

And in this case-of-the-thought-less-hostess, a glass of water is just what you may properly ask for. Then there's a good chance that she will take the hint and offer a non-alcoholic drink whatever she may have on hand. Wouldn't you like some orange juice or tomato juice, or perhaps gingerale?" A host or hostess should provide non-alcoholic drinks, set conveniently and in sight on a separate tray.

Gave up Career In Law to Be Fashion Model

By CHRISTINE STEWART
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal girl who gave up a career in law to become a fashion model says she rarely regrets her decision.

Elaine Bedard, 22, is reputed the highest-paid model in Canada, with a salary well into five figures.

A five foot, six inch beauty, weight 110 pounds, she wears her shoulder-length blonde hair piled high on her head in what she describes as "turn of the century" style. In public, her makeup is dramatic—pale lips, eyes heavily accented with dark brown mascara. She never wears eye shadow.

NATURAL BEAUTY

Asked her beauty secrets in an interview, she had only one reply: "I'm lucky, I guess. I don't peel from the sun, I rarely look tired. I don't have to diet to stay slim, and I love my work."

Her father died when she was young, leaving the family unable to finance her education at Marguerite Bourgeois College, which she was attending. On her sister's promoting, she entered and won a beauty contest and after a few short months she was modelling for top-flight fashion pictures.

Elaine was interviewed wearing what she called a typical outfit—black wool dress with high neck and long sleeves, black pumps, one piece of jewelry—a diamond ring. She prefers black and white to colors.

"I think women look terrible in clothes that with necklaces, rings, bracelets," she said. "It's just too, too much."

Unlike some other models, Elaine says modelling is not a taxing profession. It gets hot under the lights, but one can always relax afterwards.

SKILLED WORKERS

Photographers say it is a pleasure to have Elaine as a model. One said: "You have to admire some models every move to make—what to do with their hands and their feet, what expression to adopt. Not Elaine. She's a natural actress."

She prefers fashions from Paris to clothes from any other country. She modelled in Paris for a few weeks once.

"I would like to go back to Europe, this time not working. I would like to see the sights instead of being seen," she said.

Being constantly on inspection may not seem like a drawback to most women, but they can sympathize with another disadvantage — wearing unconfortable gowns.

Elaine was modelling a line of inexpensive wedding dresses one day. The bills—none too good a quality—gave her a skin rash.

She has no plans to marry at the moment, but has some ideas about the man she would like to marry.

"First I would like intelligence. Then reasonable good looks. A sense of humor is also important."

Would she marry a man shorter than she?

"Of course. It would not matter to me at all."

"Come to think of it, Walter, it would be a challenge trying to make you over!"

A Lift for Living

Where Each Must Walk Alone

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Lent begins next Wednesday. For the 40 days preceding Easter the Christian is urged to search his soul and cleanse his spirit. The length of the Lenten season is fixed by those 40 days in which Our Lord spent alone in the wilderness, fasting and fighting His temptations.

But those days in the wilderness were not the only time when Jesus walked alone. There is no aspect of Christ's life more significant than the periods of solitariness in which He lived.

At the age of 12, the record is that He became separated from His parents on a journey to Jerusalem. When they found Him, He said to them, "Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?" At that early age His mind was rising into a realm not understood by those closest to Him.

The time was to come when His own family would think Him "mad." Himself and His kinfolk townsmen would drive Him out of His home village. He, whose life sensitively craved companionship, was to see His followers melt away one by one, remained when He left His Last Supper and at His trial even they had fled. Judged by appearances, Jesus might well be called "God's Lonely Son."

HE WAS NOT LONELY

Yet He was not lonely. Listen to this statement in the 16th chapter of John's gospel: "Behold, the hour cometh, yea, is now come, that ye shall be scattered, every man to his own, and shall leave me alone: and I am not alone, because the Father is with me." The similar tense He spoke on several occasions. Let us then at the beginning of Lent try to learn the sustaining fact the Lord when He had to walk alone.

However, before we look to Christ for help in loneliness, let us ask whether our aloneness is due to the same cause as that of Christ's. He was left alone because His interests and His vision was above the crowd and His pioneering ideals were ahead of His generation. On the other hand, many find ourselves lonely because we are living in the past and others by decent brotherly behavior.

When we see others drifting away from us, we ought first to give them the benefit of the doubt. Emerson said, "The only way to have a friend is to be one." It is always possible that we are not friendly enough; that we lead the type which lights up our natures from inside and makes us warm and winsome; that we allow our misfortunes to make us morose, our disappointments to make us self-pitying. Our own concerns to make us self-centered

The Christian should first look to Christ for the secret of fellowship before he seeks help to subdue his self in his loneliness. Nevertheless a person does not progress for in life until he comes to those lonely places where each must walk alone.

In fact, growing up involves a certain amount of outgrowing. The time comes when a youth must let go his parents' hands and launch out on his own. The questioning, quizzical spirit of each growing child explores its world like a new Columbus on an uncharted ocean.

Frequently the child feels itself misunderstood by its parents, and sometimes it is, for every child is a uniquely new creature and no parental pattern of thought exactly fits the inquiring mind of a child. However much a child may be surrounded by love, growing up has its times of loneliness and of DECISION

In every life there are hours of decision where others cannot help us at all. Here we may listen to their advice. We should consult them in our prayers. But there are some things others cannot do for us. No one else can eat for us. No one else can sleep for us. And if we are to be real persons, no one else can think and decide for us. These lonely hours of decision are the times by which men's souls, for we not only leave the influence of our counselors but have to run counter to closest friends. Here a person steps out bravely to do the right as God gives him to see the right, when conscience is to pour the price of his convictions, then he begins to find the pretense of a Divine Comrade, as did Moses, of whom it was said, "He endured as seeing Him who is invisible." These days of mess communication and self-consciousness, we need men who think for themselves and with God.

Sometimes the loss of loved ones leaves us to walk alone. Remember that the Father and mother in Nebraska were brutally shot by a gunman. Our hearts ache for the teenage son now left homeless. No doubt many of us have suffered the loss of best Lent. Yet death and sorrow do not leave us utterly alone. We can still commune with Him as the psalmist: "When I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil for Thou are with me."

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE S. POWELL

GOD CALLING YET

God calling yet! shall I not hear?
Earth's pleasures shall I still hold dear?
Shall life's rich passing years all fly,
And still my soul in slumber lie?

God calling yet! shall I not rise?
Can I His loving voice despise,
And basely His kind care repay?
He calls me still; can I delay?

God calling yet! and shall He knock,
And I my heart the closer lock?
He ev'n is waiting to be gracious,
And shall I dare His Spirit grieve?

God calling yet and shall I give
No heed, but still my bondage live?
I wait but He does not forsake;
He calls me still; my heart, awake

God calling yet I cannot stay;
My heart I yield without delay:
Vain world, farewell, from Thee I part;
The voice of God has reached my heart.

Here is a hymn which mirrors the struggle of a soul touched by a call from God.

Its opening stanza reflects a sinner's dilemma as to the value of worldly pleasures when compared with things spiritual and the awakening continues on through the hymn ending at last in triumphant conviction, as he decrees:

"Vain world, farewell,
From Thee I part;
The voice of God hath reached my heart."

The hymn was written original-ly in the German language by Gerhard Tersteegen and appeared for the first time in 1725 in the second edition of his "Spiritual Flower Garden" under the title "Today If Ye Will Hear His Voice". It was translated into English by Sarah Borthwick who joined her sister, Jane, in making many German hymns available to the English-speaking church. The sisters published an early nineteenth century collection of "Songs From The Land Of Luther" which contained several editions and which contained 61 hymn translations by Jane and 53 by Sarah. Sarah Borthwick later married a clergyman, the Rev. Eric John Findlater.

Tersteegen is said to have been a deeply spiritual soul who, when 27 years old, wrote a dedication in himself in his life to God in his own, blood. He said:

"God graciously called me out of the world and granted me the desire to belong to Him and to be willing to follow Him. I long for an eternity. I had it may suitably glorify Him for it."

QUESTION: My husband is allergic to eggs in any form and it is hard to get variety especially in cakes and cookies. I make the usual date squares and shortbread and sometimes I put in the egg out of a recipe and hope for the best. Perhaps you might have a few recipes for the eggs. I'd appreciate any help you could give me. Could you also give me any recipes you have for "dips" served with chips or crackers. — Mrs. H. S.

ANSWER: The following are eggless and delicious:

Chocolate Coconut Chews:—Two-thirds cup sweetened condensed milk, 1 square (1-oz.) unsweetened chocolate, ½ teaspoon salt, 1½ cups shredded coconut, ½ cup chopped nuts. Mix sweetened condensed milk, chocolate and salt in top of double boiler. Cook over rapidly boiling water, stirring often, until thick, about 10 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in coconut, vanilla. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto well-greased baking sheet about 1 inch apart. Bake in moderate 350 deg. F. oven for 10 minutes or until edges are golden brown, about 10 or 12 minutes. Remove from pan at once.

Ham Dip: Whip 1 cup heavy cream. Fold in 4 tablespoons of cream cheese, 1 tablespoon ham, 1 tablespoons horseradish, 1 tablespoon grated onion, 2 tablespoons minced olives.

Cheese and Anchovy Dip: Mix together one 8-oz. package white cream cheese with cream to spreading consistency. Add in 2 tablespoons anchovy paste, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, a dash of cayenne pepper, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon minced onion, 2 tablespoons capers, ½ teaspoon paprika.

QUESTION: Would you kindly send me the recipe for Pineapple Nut Bread which appeared in the paper a few months ago? I had some the other night and it was really delicious . . . Mrs. R. S.

ANSWER: I think this is the recipe you had which pleased you:

Pineapple Nut Bread: Two-thirds cup sugar, ½ cup shortening, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons sour milk or buttermilk, 1 cup crushed pineapple, 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1½ teaspoon soda, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup chopped nuts. Mix in order given: cream sugar, shortening and eggs; stir in sour milk, pineapple, chopped nuts and dry ingredients and mix. Bake in greased loaf pan 50 to 60 min. at 350 deg.

St. Paul's Letter to Philemon

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

Sunday, Feb. 16 — If you want to read one of Paul's "sales letters" ever written get a modern translation of the New Testament and read St. Paul's letter to Philemon. You won't get the full flavor from the King James version, or even from the Revised.

This letter is about a slave named Onesimus, who is honored today in the Church calendar. The name, which means "profitful," was a common one for slaves and servants. In this case, Onesimus had robbed his master, Philemon, and run away from the town of Colossae. He fled Asia Minor, he turned up in Rome, where St. Paul was, and was converted to Christianity. Naturally, after his conversion the only thing a good Christian could do was to get back to Philemon and face the music. The penalty for what he had done was death, but when Philemon read the letter Paul had sent along with the penitent fugitive, he melted and gave Onesimus his freedom. It was a letter no one could have resisted.

What became of the former slave is not definitely known, but it is thought that Colosttians chapter 4 verse 9 refers to him. If this is true, it indicates he had returned to St. Paul and was working with him in the spread of the Gospel.

A DAY FOR STUDENTS

Also Sunday — Since 1895 the third Sunday in February has been a world-wide observance of Student Day. Originally known as Universal Day of Prayer for Students, it is the occasion of gatherings of young people in many countries for fellowship and prayer, and for the consecration of their unity in the Christian faith.

Originated by the World Student Christian Federation, of Geneva, Switzerland, the day is sponsored in America by the United Student Christian Council, a part of the National Council of Churches.

WORLD DAY OF PRAYER

Friday, Feb. 21 — Perhaps the greatest of all world-wide Protestant observances is the women's World Day of Prayer, which occurs annually on the first Friday in Lent. On this day each year millions of women join in spirit to make an unbroken chain of prayer encircling the entire globe.

The figures relating to this 71-year-old custom are most impressive. Last year 146 countries will participate. More than 25,000 communities in the United States and Canada will be represented. The uniform prayer will be said in 60 languages and more than 1,000 dialects.

Born the rising of the sun at the international dateline until its setting in the same meridian there will not be a moment when the voices of Christian women will not be heard offering these prayers.

The statistics are remarkable. The origin of this year's prepared service is even more so. Women of Melanesia, Australia, hearing the chanted prayers of some of the primitive bush people who had become Christians, found to their surprise that these aborigines were praying with depth and dignity for world unity and peace. The simple petitions of these people so lately savage were a complete harmony with the highest aspirations of Christian culture at its best. It was immediately decided to adopted for use on World Day of Prayer.

The most places today an offering is taken. Although the offering is designated for specific use in devotional purpose of the day, it is expected that it will produce funds adequate for new missionary projects on all six continents. This year's theme is "The Bread of Life."

HANDY PLANT

Vanilla is derived from a type of orchid. Another type yields saffron, once used as the base for a nutritious drink.

Women's Activities

ROSLIN W.A.

The February meeting of the Roslin W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. Freeman Howes on Thursday evening with 13 ladies present.

The president, Mrs. Harvey Chisholm, opened the meeting with a poem, "Little by Little." The treasurer, Mrs. Harold Colden, gave her report. A collection of $2.13 was received.

Mrs. Ben Seals had charge of the devotional period. The Scripture was taken from Acts 2:3-20, was read by Mrs. Fargey.

A reading, "Doing the Will of Jesus," was read by Mrs. Seale, which she led in prayer. Other items on the program were: a reading, "Your Life is Contagious," by Mrs. Seale; a story, "With Love From — —", by Mrs. Don Chisholm; a story, "The Dress With Wheels," by Mrs. John Fargey; a poem, "Times Have Changed," by Mrs. Gerald Bailey.

The hostesses served refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Queen Victoria H-S Association Presents Varied Program

The February meeting of Queen Victoria Home and School Association was held Monday evening in the school auditorium. A large number of parents were present.

The routine business was transacted and parents were asked to keep in mind the St. Patrick's Ball in March and Mrs. Boyle and Mrs. Hawk pleaded for help in connection with the Red Cross project which is in charge of Mrs. Hutton, convener, Charles St.

The honor of winning the room count with most parents present went to Mrs. Powell, grade 1, and Mrs. Hawk, grade IV.

At the close of the business, Mr. Bateman, principal, welcomed parents on behalf of the staff, and children of the school.

"Student Night," and the children proudly presented the following program:

Choral speech, a musical dramatization in one continuous scene by the pupils of grade 1 under the direction of Mrs. N. Powell.

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs", a fantasy in five scenes by the pupils of grade IV, Mrs. Hawk directing.

The Ed Dullivan, "Television Show" by grades V and VI. This act presented the talents of several pupils which included, piano playing, dancing, drumbaton and violin. A take-off of the Ed Sullivan show, a variety show, was a huge success. The original material being written by Mrs. Hawk.

A comedy entitled, 'Cold Storage', was presented by grade VI. It was written and directed by Mr. A. Downes, and the humor and talent of the actors and actresses was refreshing.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Savage served refreshments to close a most entertaining evening.

Chemise Worn Before And After Blessed Event

By MARY FRAN BURKE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—The chemise silhouette for young mothers-to-be will soon make its first appearance in Canadian shops.

And what's more the chemise can be worn before and after the blessed event, said Toronto fashion expert Margaret Ness at a recent maternity fashion show.

"The mother-to-be can be as stylish as she wishes with these simple, loose, flowing clothes," commented Miss Ness. "They are designed to hide any expectant woman's spirits."

Outstanding in the collection was a three-piece outfit in navy cocoa shade for street wear. The outfit consisted of a sheath dress with a two-piece, chemise-type coat which had a bloused back and slim skirt. Another suit featuring the chemise silhouette was shown in a rose pink shade.

In beach wear, a cotton blouse with polka dots and red and white stripes worn with black shorts made a cool, comfortable look. The same effect was used in a pretty cotton dress worn with black ankle pants.

For after five, an elegant lace blouse with full sleeves was shown. A row of apricot-colored bows added to the interest.

Evening wear highlighted the collection. An embroidered Swiss organza was lined with pale blue organza and interlined with cotton broadcloth. This stands out. It was worn over a black and white skirt.

For added glamor an eye-catching black and white block organza featured a harem skirt, wearing around shirt tail.

...cientists May Be on Brink ...f Producing an Effective ...emedy for Heart Attacks

by GERALD FREEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — The medical world is interested almost a relentless killer of man may on the brink of producing an effective medical remedy for sudden heart attacks.

Dr. Hans Selye, 51 - year - old head of the Institute of Experimental Medicine at the University of Montreal, is working to prove a theory that could give the world its first effective medical remedy for sudden heart attacks. Pinned to his work with exposed- stress as a relentless killer. Dr. Selye has proved his heart attack theory on thousands of white rats and rhesus monkeys. The next step is to find if it applies to humans.

The theory can be simplified: Sodium salts in the body, fed by hormones similar to cortisone, are a factor in heart disease. Magnesium and potassium salts, familiar to everyday chemistry students, destroy the effects of sodium salts and, therefore save heart attacks.

EXPERT ON' STRESS

If the theory is proved for human, it will be only one in a series of medical achievements for Dr. Selye, multi-lingual scientist from Vienna doctorate who was educated in the capitals of Europe and now is a Canadian citizen. He has directed experimental Institute since 1945. His has shown in books and countless papers that the stress civilized living causes the body's natural defences overtime, exhausting itself and leaving an unbalance and hence unbalance which can inflict heart disease, cancer, arthritis and other ills.

Dr. Selye was led to this theory accidentally while looking at something else in an experiment with white rats in 1936. He was following up one of the endless avenues of research it seemed some connection between hormones and kidney stones—then the white rats, again accidentally, led him to the real work on heart disease.

When his rats were injected with a cortisone - like hormone, old sodium salts they showed red heart lesions that were occurring in men with heart conditions.

DUPLICATES ATTACKS

When the rats were tied to a board on their backs and moved, they died of heart failures caused by severe and sudden stress produced by physical and emotional frustration.

A man whose heart has been weakened by an imbalance of body salts and hormones caused by stress during a crisis, if exposed to a sudden surge of stress, such as shovelling snow, may suffer a cardiac accident and die.

If sodium salts help produce heart lesions in animals, Dr. Selye reasoned, what would happen if they were given salts antagonistic to sodium? Experiments showed they would.

"If you give potassium or magnesium salts, you can get a perfect protection of all animals against this type of cardiac death.

"It saves their life, in other words."

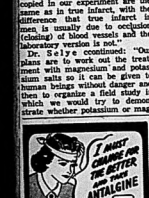
GREAT SIMILARITY

The heart accident produced artificially in laboratory animals is similar in two respects to that of man, Dr. Selye says.

"It is produced by an acute exertion, and if you look at it under a microscope it looks the same.

"It differs only in one respect: Sudden heart failure, sudden cardiac death, is usually a cardiac infarct. Infarct means blood supply to part of the heart is blocked; it doesn't get any nutrients or oxygen, and that part of the heart dies.

"As it does it assumes certain changes in structure which you can detect under a microscope. These changes in structure copied in our experiment are the same as in true infarct, with the difference that true infarct in man is usually due to occlusion (closing) of blood vessels and the laboratory version is not."



Dr. Selye continued: "Our plans are to work out the treatment with magnesium and potassium salts so it can be given to human beings without danger and then to organize a field study in which we would try to demonstrate whether potassium or magnesium salt actually does diminish the incidence of acute cardiac death in predisposed people.

"Even if you just bring it down one per cent," he says, "it is a tremendous thing."

TWEED
Tweed Kinsmen Hold Father-Son Banquet

TWEED — Tweed Kinsmen Club played host to some 49 Kinsmen, fathers and children at their regular meeting Tuesday at Stoco Lake Hotel.

The dinner meeting was presided over by president, Ron Barry.

Entertainment was provided by a lady pianist and a male quartet from Madoc. Two lovely numbers were sung by William Biddle's two daughters. A ventriloquist from Trenton was unable to be present because of the heavy snow storm. The children were treated with candy bars, pop, and potato chips.

The next meeting will be held February 25, and special arrangements for this meeting will be disclosed at a later date.

The condition of Alex McCallum, Sr., who has been a patient in the Belleville General Hospital for some time, is somewhat improved. Mr. McCallum is an employee of the Ontario Hydro and has been stationed at Cloyne for some twelve years, but is well-known in this district.

Mrs. John C. Foster, Sr., is confined to the home of her son, Mr. John Foster, because of illness.

Tweed Rebekah Lodge sponsored a social at the Hungerford Township Hall on Friday. Dancing, cards and other games were enjoyed, and refreshments served.

The three enumerators are busy in the village this week getting the proper voters' names for the coming election.

The Tweed Nursery School is still operating in the basement of St. James' Anglican Church, but the attendance since the Christmas holidays has dwindled because of the prevalence of measles in the village.

Mrs. Jack MacLean and two small children plan to leave on Friday by train for Elliot Lake to visit Mr. MacLean who is employed there.

Wellington

WELLINGTON — The Wellington Couples' Club of the United Church entertained the D.B.C. Club at a skating party at the Wellington rink the evening of February 4th.

A lively game of broom ball was enjoyed by all. After the skating was over, they all gathered at the Sunday School rooms where sandwiches dought, coffee were served by the Wellington social committee.

One sad part of the evening was when it was learned that the Rev. A. Poulter, in a fall on the ice, had broken his arm at the wrist. All wish him a speedy recovery.

PAST MATRONS' PARTY

Mrs. Inga Lazarowick, 71 Inkerman Ave., Picton Heights, was hostess to the Past Matrons' Club of Lakeside Chapter 81, O.E.S., Wellington. The new president, Mrs. Ruby Fleming, was in the chair and welcomed the members and thanked the hostess.

Cards of appreciation were received from Mrs. Doris McFaul, Mrs. Ruby Fleming and Mr. and Mrs. Claude Marshall.

The business meeting followed, after which an impressive memorial service was held for a departed Sister, Mary A. Weir, who was Worthy Matron of Lakeside Chapter 81. Miss Norma Foster rendered the 1st vice-president and Mrs. Ila MacDonald as 2nd vice-president.

The meeting closed to meet April 7th at the home of Mrs. W. A. Davern.

BIBLE GIFT

Miss Norma Foster conducted a Bible quiz with the pretty favor going to Miss Helen Hooper.

Mr. Lazarowick took the assembly in Fort Churchill and surrounding territory as he showed his colored slides which were beautiful and interesting.

The hostess, assisted by Miss Norma Foster, Mrs. Vick, Mrs. Norton and Mrs. Yott served refreshments.

The hostess presented pretty favors to Mrs. William Norton, Mrs. Ruby Fleming and Mrs. V. Saunderfers, fathers and children at their regular meeting Tuesday at Stoco Lake Hotel.

The dinner meeting was presided over by president, Ron Barry.

Entertainment was provided by a lady pianist and a male quartet from Madoc. Two lovely numbers were sung by William Biddle's two daughters. A ventriloquist from Trenton was unable to be present because of the heavy snow storm. The children were treated with candy bars, pop, and potato chips.

The next meeting will be held February 25, and special arrangements for this meeting will be disclosed at a later date.

The condition of Alex McCallum, Sr., who has been a patient in the Belleville General Hospital for some time, is somewhat improved. Mr. McCallum is an employee of the Ontario Hydro and has been stationed at Cloyne for some twelve years, but is well-known in this district.

Mrs. John C. Foster, Sr., is confined to the home of her son, Mr. John Foster, because of illness.

The Week's News

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New and important things were happening in the lands of the Arabs, an area often wracked by upheaval and violence.

Iraq and Jordan joined in a new Arab federation embracing 7- 000,000 people and 600 square miles. The union was announced Friday, the Moslem sabbath, following a conference between Faisal II of Iraqand Hussein of Jordan, 23-year-old "king" cousins of the Hashemite dynasty.

Each king retains his throne but Faisal will be chief of state.

The federation creates a pro-Western unified Arab rival for the United Arab Republic proclaimed two weeks ago by Egypt and Syria, which are friendly with the Soviet bloc. The Egyptian-Syrian union is considerably larger, with 29,000,000 people and 450,000 square miles, but the two countries are separated geographically. Iraq-Jordan and Israel lie between.

Each federation hopes to become the political mecca for many millions of Arabs.

TUNISIAN CRISIS

France and Tunisia engaged in a battle of words over the Algerian fighting spilled over the Tunisian border, with fatal results.

Tunisia bitterly blamed France for the air raids on a Tunisian frontier village, Sakiet Sid Youssef, in which at least 69 persons were killed. An appeal was sent to the United Nations.

France said Tunisia itself was responsible for the reprisal raid since it had allowed Algerian rebels to use the village as a headquarters and a fighting base.

Then the two countries confided head-on over the issue of withdrawal of all French troops from Tunisian territory, demanded by Premier Habib Bourguiba as the price of peace.

BRITISH BOMB

Britain put her H-bomb defence philosophy in blunt language for having the lucky cups.

A vote of thanks to the hostess and her husband was moved by Mrs. Davern and seconded by all present.

ST. ANDREW'S CHOIR

Oh Monday evening St. Andrew's choir sponsored another enjoyable card party in the town hall. Despite the bad weather, nine tables were in play, seven tables of euchre and two of crib.

Euchre prizes were presented to: ladies, Mrs. Ed Parliament and Mrs. O. Moore; men, Mr. Herrington and Mrs. F. Morton, playing as a gentleman.

Cribbage prizes: ladies, Mrs. William Yandt and Mrs. Delbert Boyle; men, Mr. J. Calloway and Mrs. G. Upton.

Mrs. Lyle Leavens was the lucky winner of the hamper of groceries and Mrs. Parliament of the door prize. Extra prizes of groceries went to Mrs. S. Tripp, S. Tripp, Mrs. R. Hoist, Mrs. Davern, Mrs. O. Moore and Mrs. C. Broadbridge.

The ladies served refreshments at which Mr. J. N. Sword had the lucky plate prize and Mrs. Parliament, the lucky cup.

Mrs. John C. Foster, Sr., is confined to the home of her son, Mr. John Foster, because of illness.

Automatic Miners and Other Refinements Used in Battle For Markets Against Oil, Gas

By SANDY CAMPBELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP) — Here in the heart of Eastern Canada's coalfields old King Coal has taken the offensive in the battle for markets against oil, gas, electricity and United States coal.

The Dominion Coal Company has developed and installed automatic miners and other refinements which are beginning to bolster coal's prestige. Production rose from 2.12 tons per man-shift in 1952 to 2.91 in 1957, and was running slightly over three tons for the first month this year.

The company — a subsidiary of Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation which itself joined A. V. Roe (Canada) Limited last fall—operates seven collieries in this area. Another Dosco subsidiary, Cape Sydney Collieries Ltd., operates two pits on the north side of Sydney harbor. Two other coal operation mines are on the Nova Scotia mainland, at Springhill and Thorburn.

IMPROVED OUTPUT

Leading the industry's determined fight for markets are Harold Gordon, vice-president of Dominion Coal Company and general manager of all Dosco coal operations, and his assistant Frank Dorey.

Interviewed in his office at Sydney, 30 miles from here, Mr. Gordon said the industry's position now is "better then it has been for a good many years."

Big and dynamic, Mr. Gordon was born 58 years ago at Leven, Fifeshire, Scotland. His family moved to Canada when he was seven, his father becoming comptroller of the Dominion Coal Company. The general manager has been connected with coal mining all his life, and divides his time between his office and the collieries.

"We had daily outputs last year which were the highest since 1940," he said. "We are pioneers in automatic coal mining, and here in the world's largest submarine coalfield our mines are on the whole as highly mechanized and efficient as any in the world."

SEEK MARKETS

Mr. Gordon declared: "Last year we sold every pound of the more than 5,000,000 tons we produced. Whether we do as well this year depends to a great extent on the state of industry in general.

"Canadian industry is our biggest customer, and our sales hinge on its need for coal."

Company salesmen however are also entering European markets in case Canadian industry cannot absorb all this year's production. They are trying to find markets to which Cape Breton coal has been shipped for the past few years.

Some of the workings here reach as far as five miles out under the ocean. One pit is 2,700 feet below the Atlantic's floor, far mining methods mostly into the depth makes room-and-pic possible, and the distances from the coal face to the pithead push up costs.

SHOWING RESULTS

A mechanization program started in 1948 now is beginning to show results. Automatic miners, conveyor belts and — something what ironically — diesel locomotives are the big items in the program. The dieselization of CNR trains took away an estimated annual market for 750,000 tons of coal. Now diesels are helping out mining costs.

Assistant General Manager Dorey watched with satisfaction as a mechanical miner worked in No. 18 colliery at New Victoria, 19 miles from here. In a 16-second cycle the miner bit into the coal face, stripped off an 18-inch layer and spewed 1½ tons of coal onto a conveyor belt.

The belt carried the coal to a hopper where it was metered into three-ton aluminum rail cars. A diesel locomotive hauled the "trip" of cars to the foot of the main slope. From there they were hauled to the surface by a steel cable, overturned in the "tipple" and the coal was screened and chuted into waiting CNR coal cars for the trip to markets.

The minimum of handling was the cause of Mr. Dorey's satisfaction.

The 52-year-old Yorkshireman has been Mr. Gordon's assistant since 1949, shortly after the mechanization program got under way. Before that he was an area production manager for the National Coal Board, which took over Britain's mines in 1947.

The number of coal miners in Nova Scotia has declined to 10,000 from 12,500 in 1940. Mechanization and closure of at least seven mines caused the decrease.

However the company says its "positive" policy of installing labor-saving machinery, plus the fact it has hired a minimum of permanent employees since 1953, has avoided mass layoffs.

Steve Dolbashy, vice-president of District 26 United Mine Workers of America (Ind.) said: "Although this is probably the case, indeed, there is a dangerously high annual turnover of 7½ per cent among mine employees."

A miner himself until elected to the district executive in 1950, Mr. Dolbashy, 50, said most of those leaving the mines were young men seeking "more security elsewhere." Many join the armed forces.

Before 1950, most of the coal in the province was produced by the "cut, shoot and handload" method. Last year, less than 38 per cent was shovelled.

The proposed $30,000,000 Maritime thermal power system promised a new market for coal. How big a market, depends on the amount of power generated, which in turn depends on the demand.

"It will be a considerable help to the coal industry when everything proposed goes into effect," said Mr. Gordon, "and we will put ourselves into a position to supply all the coal needed."

3,500 Wives Of Servicemen May Lose Votes

OTTAWA (CP) — An unknown number of Canadians, including some 3,500 wives of servicemen who returned from overseas within the last year, will not qualify as voters in the March 31 general election.

Electoral laws require, among other things, a person's residence in Canada before a person is eligible to vote. Servicemen are an exception but not their wives even though the latter may have voted last June 10 while overseas with their husbands.

Under the armed forces voting regulations, servicemen's wives who are 21 or more, Canadian or other British subject and living overseas with their husband may vote in service polls. But once they are back in Canada their status returns to that of ordinary civilian who must satisfy the 12-month residence qualification before voting.

The RCAF estimates that about 1,100 wives of its servicemen returned to Canada from overseas in the last 12 months. None would qualify to vote March 31 if they lived abroad during the 12 months preceding evening day. The army estimates 2,400 wives of its servicemen returned to Canada since last June.

In addition there are those Canadians who are employed in that period in government posts, such as with the external affairs department, and have no foreign countries.

None of these may be enumerated and find their names on the voters' list. But the Canada Elections Act does state that they may be challenged to prove their qualifications at the time a revised list before voting day.

And, if they appear at the poll to cast their vote, they may be challenged and required to take an oath stating that they know the requirements for voting and possess qualifications. An unqualified voter casts a ballot after taking this oath, prosecution could be undertaken.

SCOHARIE — Mr. Fred Hulton received the sad news that his mother, Laura Louise Hulton, has passed away at her home, Norfolk, England on February 1st. She was in her 93rd year. Her husband, Robert, predeceased her 15 years ago. Sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Hutton and family.

Miss Elsie Hutton, who is nursing at the Children's Home at Plainfield, spent a couple of days with her parents, here.

Miss Norma Foster, Mrs. Roland Ireland, Mrs. Harry Foster and Ross were at Bloomfield United Church Saturday evening for the marriage ceremony of Leland Loney and Donna Calnan. This was a candlelight service and very lovely.

Mr. and Mrs. Graydon Calnan, Pontypool, were Saturday evening guests of Mrs. Harold Ruff, Mary and Hudson, following the Loney-Calnan wedding.

Joe Lloyd, Toronto; Bob Lloyd of Camp Ipperwash, and Mrs. Merton Bentley were weekend guests of Mrs. Lloyd Lents, Mr. and Mrs. William Lloyd. Mrs. Ted Lloyd of Kingston, and two little sons, were Sunday supper guests. Little Kenneth Lloyd, who remained with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Wannamaker, at Kingston, returned home with his mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Baxter, Lindley and Jean, and Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Baxter were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Baxter and family, Dunsford, on February 9th, the occasion being Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Baxter's wedding anniversary and Lindley Baxter's birthday.

Garden Notes

How to Grow Gloxinias From Seed

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Growing gloxinias from seed takes no longer than growing petunias from seed, but if they are planted in the winter they will need a little more care to keep the temperature right. Dozens of velvet beauty in rich colors will be your reward and you will have discovered an interesting hobby.

It takes five to eight months to bring the plants to bloom from seed, and the seed may be planted any time of the year. You will need fine sifted sphagnum, or peat moss and sand to start the seeds. Mix the moss and sand, pack fairly firm in flat and moisten with warm water. Wait until the surface has cooled, then mark off in rows and sprinkle seed sparingly along rows. It is very fine. Do not cover but press with your finger and cover top with glass or a piece of plastic to maintain humidity. Try to keep the temperature as near 65 degrees as possible throughout the growing stages.

When the leaves are one-quarter inch across lift with tweezers and place in another flat one inch apart in holes made with a pencil. Use half ground roots, keep slightly damp and grow four to six weeks before transplanting to pots and a half inch pots. Soil should be one-third each of sand, moss and good loam. Have the mixture loose and do not pack too hard. The roots need good drainage and must not be pot bound.

The next move will be to five inch pots. Leave the plants in these pots to complete growth and bloom.

DRIED AND STORED

After the blooms have faded the corms may be slowly dried and stored in sawdust in plastic bags and used again next year.

Gloxinia seed is light and fine. One sixty-fourth of an ounce will cost from $1.75 to $3.75, but most companies put up trial packets which sell from 20 to 50 cents. The latter red is a giant type with all red blooms. Blue wonder is the fastest to bloom. Florists count on this being ready in five months from seeding. This strain is from Dresden. You can buy tigered and spotted mixtures and a special mix which contains the best of German, French and Belgium strains. All these can be had in trial packets.

Have you examined your house plants recently? A gift plant often plays host to some pest that spreads quickly to your healthy plants.

I have also found that prepared soil mixtures bought in plastic bags harbor small centipedes and other unwanted life. A half teaspoon of 5 per cent D.D.T. in a cupful of warm soapy water will treat the soil in a large planter. Soapy water is a cure for red spider and scale on ivies. Do not use detergents, many of them burn the plant leaves. Half a teaspoon of coal oil in a gallon of water will clear up scale on ferns. Be sure you are not mistaking the spores for scale insects. Lay the pot on its side and spray the under side of the leaves thoroughly.

A teaspoon of household ammonia in a quart of water will get rid of earth worms and white fly. An all purpose aerosol bomb does a good clean up job of many plant pests. It will take care of aphids, spider mites, mealy bug, cyclamen mites and scale insects (if you get there early). A five minute fumigation does applied to soil will kill off spring tails, maggots, and earth worms.

Bathgate Puts Broadway Blues Back In Sole Possession Of 2nd Spot

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Things are ominously quiet up around Pembroke way since the Man with the Golden Arm sat in judgment on veteran Bert Glescbrecht and tabbed his star twenty-five bucks for "not producing, indifferent play" or words to that effect. Also M'ales Lenser placed Big Bert on the suspended list when he refused to go with the Lumber Kings to Cornwall. Glescbrecht announced he was quitting the Lumber Kings after the quarter-century tab.

Mr. Lenser algo announced that four other members had been hit in the wallet during the past two weeks for not measuring up to calibre on the ice.

According to the Pembroke Observer story, Lenser stated that Glescbrecht has been suspended indefinitely but he did not say whether he would take him back into the fold in case of a change of mind on the part of the big Petawawa forward. Glescbrecht stated that as far as he was concerned he had hung up his skates for good for the remainder of the season — but — if Lenser would return his twenty-five bucks, he might reconsider the matter.

The answer to which will be forthcoming when the Lumber Kings skate out on the ice against the Cornwall Chevies in Pembroke tonight, the Kings' first tilt since their 3-1 defeat at the hands of the Chevybucks, and the first home game since the player-Lenser schmozzle.

The trouble is in Pembroke we do not know.

We do know that the Lumber Kings during the season have proven they have the potential of one of the best clubs in the circuit. They are not, perhaps, as colorful nor as fast as some of the rest, but they have a lot of savvy and the talent to win hockey games. They have shown that.

Mayhap the fault lies with Lenser in his freshman year as a hockey-club owner and manager. We do not know his modus operandi but handling a team of hockey players plentifully sprinkled with veterans and garnished with the allotted quota of "old pros" is no sinecure, and vastly different to operating a crew of lumberjacks or other hired help who have merely to do what they are told.

The records prove the Kings have what it takes, if they want to bring it to the surface and use it. During the Whitby schedule they were the only club in the league to whop the Allan Cuppers three times. They have held down second and third places consistently with the Macs practically all season.

After Lenser threatened to move or try to move the Pembroke franchise to Hull, Quebec, with the added threat of firing any player who did not come up to scratch, the Kings snapped out of it and trounced Kingston 9-4; Cornwall 4-3; Ottawa 8-3, Kingston again 7-3; Belleville 8-4 while dropping a single game to Kingston 5-7.

Then they went into their "slump" again and have lost six and tied one in their last seven outings. It is hoped that whatever is gnawing at the Kings innards will soon be cleared up, for playoff time is around the corner, and they are assured at least of second or third place, with the very remote possibility of finishing on top, should they win their remaining six games and the Macs lose all theirs. This was written before last night's Cornwall game here got under way.

Meanwhile the McFarlands will wrap up their remaining games of the schedule next week, squeezing in Sunday, February 22. Tonight they trek to Kingston where they will try to improve that four-last one-tie record they had on Kingston ice, while Sunday afternoon they play the Chevies in Cornwall. The Pembroke Lumber Kings will be their last schedule guests next Friday night, and they wind up the shed on Saturday following in Deseronto.

Then for the playoffs — and a brand new league.

The McFarlands, if they did not do it last night against Cornwall, have first spot in the playoff standing virtually clinched since all they need is a single victory, or Pembroke is handed a single defeat.

Almost Won World Crown

Oshawa Youth Tosses Scare Into Figure-Skating Champ

PARIS (CP) — Canada's Don Jackson came close to pulling an upset Friday night in his first try at the men's world figure-skating championships.

David Jenkins of Colorado Springs, Colo., retained his title with a near - faultless performance.

But the 17 - year - old Jackson from Ottawa, Canadian junior champion in 1956, all but equalled him in a polished and lively free-skating exhibition.

Jenkins' performance earned him 7.9.6 scoring points; Jackson had 7.67.8.

Jackson's magnificent show vaulted him into fourth position in the final placings. After Thursday's compulsory figures, which counted for 40 per cent of the scoring, the Canadian boy was down in ninth spot.

STAMP IN APPROVAL

In the final placing points, Jenkins, who had 10,000 spectators stamping their feet in approval at the Palais des Sports, received only the lowest possible score. The placing points are awarded by nine judges. The lowest number decides the order of placing points.

Jackson received 44 placing points.

The two other Canadians were warmly applauded for their free-skating shows — Ed Collins, 17 - year - old Junior Canadian champion who placed ninth with 59 points, and Donald Snelling, runner-up in last year's North American championship, 11th with 91 points.

KEEP TITLE

In another championship decided Friday night, Britain's lovely June Markham teamed with Courtney Jones to defend their world dancing title. They, too, received nine place points.

A sparkling Canadian team, Geraldine Fenton and William MacLachlan, came second with 25 placing points.

Another Canadian dance entry Beverley Orr and Hugh Smith of Toronto, finished seventh with 61 placing points.

finish unless the majority of judges give a skater a better rating.)

Jim Brown of Carmichael, Calif., was second with 28 points. France's Alain Gilleli was third with 30.

Scores Two, Sets up Another In 3-1 Win Over Chihawks; Camille, 'The Eel' Gets Third

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Artistic Andy Bathgate, a throwback to a more subtle style of hockey, has put New York Rangers back into sole possession of second place in the National Hockey League.

Bathgate, an anomaly among the bruising interpreters of today's game, scored two goals and set up a third Friday night as New York downed last-place Chicago Black Hawks 3-1 in Chicago before 9,842 fans.

The win broke Rangers' brief second - place tie with Boston Bruins and gave them a strong advantage in the dog-eat-dog battle for playoff spots.

Fittingly, the third New York goal was scored by dimunitive Camille Henry, whose elusive opportunistic play more than makes up for his lack of bulk. The Hawks' lone goal was scored by veteran rearguard Gus Mortson.

BAD BREAK LEADS

That one gave Chicago a brief first period lead before Henry tied it up and Bathgate came through with his first-period goals, the second with 52 seconds left.

When he scored 27 goals and assisted on 40 more last season— his third with Rangers — the 27-year-old centre was hailed as hockey's most valuable player of super-star honors.

His swift stride, polished stick handling and play-making finesse delighted a generation of fans accustomed to crashing forwards who depended on speed and the goalmouth scramble. And at six feet and 175 pounds he could take care of himself in the clinches.

This year Bathgate got a slow start but his goals Friday night were his 12th, good for 33 points and third place in the league scoring race.

THIRD GOAL SCORER

For Henry, who showed early foot but little off summer and has since progressed, the goal was his 20th this season, pulling him in third place in that department Dickie Moore and Bernie Geoffrion, tied with 22 and 27 respectively.

Both Lorne (Gump) Worsley and Glen Hall turned in sound netminding jobs. Worsley stopped 26 shots in the first hour, as Hall turned aside 29 for Chicago.

Injuries are still taking a heavy toll of NHL clubs and two have called up farmhands for service this weekend.

Canadiens will have the services of 19-year-old Claude Ruel, right winger from Montreal Royals of the Quebec Hockey League, when they play the Bruins in Boston this afternoon. Detroit Red Wings have promoted centre Stewart McNeil and defenceman Dave Amadio from Hamilton Cubs of the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A series for weekend games with Toronto Maple Leafs —Saturday in Toronto, Sunday in Detroit.

There are only two games today. In other games Sunday Canadiens are in Chicago and New York is host to Boston.

Biltmores Nip Teepees 4-2; Irish Beaten

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Top teams met the cellar crews in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A action Friday night. And for a change the underdogs came out best.

Biltmores, in last place nearly all the season, caused the biggest upset of the league-leading St. Catharines Teepees 4-2.

And their partners in trouble, Barrie Flyers, who've also been hanging around the bottom of the standings for some time, let fly an eight-goal blast at third-place Oshawa Generals, winning 8-4.

Bilts' win was only their 12th in 44 games this season. Flyers' was their 15th out of 44. But both still remain at the bottom of the standings.

THREE FOUR PLAYERS

Injury - riddled St. Mike's— they were minus Ross Kraftchick, Don Hook and Tom Micalef—trailed 5-0 in the first period and 7-0 going into the third.

Jack Cole and Pete Panagakis topped Flyers scorers with two each. Tommy Black, Bob Blackburn, Bernie Cole and Billy Forhan added singles. Darryl Sly contributed St. Mike's lone goal.

Referee Gord Favereau handed out 18 penalties in the St. Catharines-Oshawa encounter. Teepees racked up 10 of them.

Both teams drew two majors apiece for fighting. Bills' Rich Tennant and Don Grosso and Teepees' Matt Ravlich and Rino Robanza were the recipients.

Wally Chevrier, George Gallo, Don Grosso and Red Gilbert scored for Guelph. Ed Hoskins and Stan Mikita counting for Teepees.

Ask Television Coverage of Dunlop Games

WHITBY (CP) — Chambers of Commerce from Whitby and three nearby communities and the Toronto Board of Trade have asked for filmed television coverage of Whitby games in the world hockey championships at Oslo, beginning Feb. 28.

J. W. Makelin, general manager of the board of trade, said in a telegram to CBC chairman A. Davidson Dunton that "tremendous national interest and pride in Canada's team justifies television coverage" of games involving Whitby.

The Oshawa and District Labor Council made a similar request to the CBC earlier this week.

Siding with the Whitby chambers were chambers from Alax, Oshawa and Bowmanville.

Bisons Thump Rochester 5-2; Barons Win

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bufalo Bisons are still in the American Hockey League picture but don't count them out of the playoffs yet.

Bisons snapped a five - game losing streak Friday night with a 5-2 victory over fifth-place Rochester Americans and secured with in three points of Rochester and four of the Cleveland Barons for field Indians.

In the only other game, Cleveland Barons took a firmer hold on second place by downing Providence Reds 7-2. Barons now trail the pece - setting Hershey Bears by five points.

A four-goal lead in the first two periods provided Bisons with all the cushion they needed. Norm Corcoran scored two first-period goals and Gerry Wilson and Bob Hassard had singles. Ab McDonald and Eddie Mazur scored for Rochester.

Barons trailed 2-0 in the first period as Paul Larivee and Ted Hampson scored for Providence. Dan Pulidiani narrowed it to 2-1 before the period ended and Cleveland went ahead in the second on goals by Bo Elik, Jackie Gordon and Fred Glover.

Ed Stearns, Jimmy Moore and Pulidiani wound up the scoring in the final period.

Ab Wright May Undergo Surgery Monday

Word received from the Toronto General Hospital last night revealed that the condition of Ab. Wright, 19-year-old hockey player who suffered a fractured skull in a game a few days ago, had taken a turn for the worse.

Art. Wright, brother of the injured player, and a well - known baseball pitcher here, said this morning that physicians stated an operation will be necessary and will likely be performed on Monday.

Young Wright was injured in a junior "B" game with Trenton. He was struck by a puck in the stomach and fell heavily to the ice, striking his head. His mother Mrs. Elizabeth Wright, 34 Hillside St., is in Toronto with her son.

Unionville Rink Wins Ontario Curling Title

OSHAWA (CP) — Murray Robertis and the Unionville rink worked undefeated through seven games to the 1958 Ontario curling championship here Friday night and was the toughest.

It was a case of win the game or die for top honors in the three-day round-robin tournament and Roberts came through to edge Johnnie Eccles' Guelph quartet, 5-4.

If he hadn't won, Roberts would have been tied with Dr. Don Grant of Toronto Granite, who had little trouble knocking off Ken Armstrong's Barrie quartet 13-2. Granite wound up with a 6-1 lost record.

Behind Unionville and Granites in the standings were Guelph, London and Welland, all with five wins and three losses. Ayr, Barrie and Ottawa with one victory and six defeats each.

The seventh-round Eccles-Roberts clash went to the wire with a tie after the ends—the first, second, fourth, fifth and ninth.

Eccles' rink got two ends and counted one on the third. Roberts counted two in the sixth and Eccles matched that on the seventh. Roberts adding one in the eighth.

FAILS ON 10TH

The last for Eccles was the 10th end, in which he failed with his last rock to get shot and Unionville sent in the stone. Both Eccles made a brilliant double takeout—but it was the wrong one they shot. Roberts removed this stone but went out himself.

Unionville scored on the lone Unionville stone with plenty of room to spare. Eccles' stone was dead end and thus the advantage of last rock on the crucial end. The hit in the 10th end stayed to count one, tying the game.

With last rock as their main weapon, Unionville played a cautious, knocked game in the 12th. Eccles left the house empty and Roberts put an Unionville stone but went out himself on his last stone.

The Unionville rink heads for Victoria in early March to represent Southern Ontario in the Dominion curling championships.

Dunlops Defeat Sweden On Rain-Swept Open Rink

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Cautious Wren Blair, manager of Canada's world hockey team, gave a veiled warning today.

"Now," he said after Canada whipped Sweden 6-3 Friday night for its sixth straight exhibition success, "now we know more exactly where we stand for the championships in Oslo."

The Whitby side had its first taste of playing during a downpour in the open-air conditions it will find at the world championships in the Norwegian capital Feb. 28-March 9.

The Canadians have rolled across Europe piling up big exhibition scores—42 and 8-2 in England, 14-1 and 16-2 against an RCAF side in West germany, and 13-0 and 6-2 against Sweden.

CHAMPS LAST YEAR

A Swedish sports writer said on own team, last year's world champions, whipped by the Canadians. Nonling can stop Whitby winning this year, he said.

The Russians aren't starting. But they've been watching the exhibition results.

So has the 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade in West Germany. Army headquarters in Ottawa said Friday the soldiers have chartered a special train at their own expense to cheer Whitby through the last few days of the tournament.

Blair was pleased about a number of things in Friday night's game: his boys played well in the outdoor rink; they still beat a beefed-up Swedish side; and he found it "a good idea" to have even European teams can go for you in rough rugher play."

ADDED POWER

Sven (Tumba) Johansson was added to Sweden's lineup for Johansson, who scored one of his side's three goals, recently returned from pro ranks where he practised with professional teams. He's also competed in past world championships.

The game was harder than Thursday's. Bodychecking was common but only two Canadians and one Swede were sent to the penalty box. The infractions came during the free - wheeling third period when Whitby scored three goals and Sweden two.

Jack MacKenzie again led the scoring with two goals. Bob Attersley, Sid Smith, Ted O'Connor and George Samolenko all had single. Besides Johansson's marker, Sweden's goals were by two goals for Sweden.

Today Whitby travelled to Gavle for another exhibition Sunday. They play at Sodertalje before moving into Oslo for two preliminary games and three more in Sweden.

McFarlands Clinch Top Spot In Eastern League Playoff Standing

Whip Cornwall Chevies 8-0 In Brilliant Easy Fashion; Minnie Menard Scores Three

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The McFarlands dug deeply into their potential last night, coming up with a brilliant two-way performance that easily swept aside the Cornwall Chevies, stumbling block to their first-place ambitions.

The Macs had little trouble clinching the top spot in the playoff standing, handing the Chevies an 8-0 defeat with Gordie Bell registering his fourth shutout of the season.

Bell had a somewhat easy time of it, the Macs outshooting the opposition 39-16 over the game and 16-3 in the final period. They opened up a 1-0 lead in the first period, scored three in the little better than three minutes in the second and added four more in their stride in the last chapter.

Minnie Menard spearheaded the attack with three goals, while aided and abetted by Bart Bradley with a pair. Russ Kowalchuk, Bep Guidolin and Johnny Muretich scored the others. Paul Payette, Wiener Brown, Eddie Marineau and Kowalchuk each had two assists, with Hildebrand, Crawford and Bolley getting one each.

Menard's goals were his 19th, 20th and 21st of the season, while Bradley's two markers brought him within two points of the league-leading point-getter, Bobby Attersley. The Kowalchuk - Muretich - Guidolin line came up with its best effort of the season.

MINNIE MENARD
No's 19, 20, 21

The game was comparatively clean with Referee Jack Shropshire handing out eleven penalties, all minors, six to the Chevies.

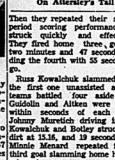
The McFarlands are but two points behind the Smiley Bell line, and Frederick in the respective nets having a comparatively easy time, the Macs edging the Chevies 6-6 in shots on the goal.

Minnie Menard produced the circly goal of the period racing close in to poke in his own rebound after taking Paul Payette's neat pass to blast a blocked drive at Frederick.

Referee Jack Shropshire of Toronto was calling the penalties closely, and sent them on the border line, Kowalchuk drew the first one and he was scarcely back when Guidolin and Aitken got chased for a mild pushing match.

Marineau and Brown drew penalties for the Macs and Pete Payette reduced the top strength for two minutes. Both defences held with no scoring damage being done by either club.

The McFarlands easily dominated the play in the second period outshooting Frederick by 15-7 with Ray Frederick one of the busiest men on the ice.



The Macs struck quickly after four minutes of play ramming home three unanswered goals in three minutes and twenty six seconds. Bart Bradley racked up his twelfth consecutive goal in as many games, driving the puck home with a low hard shot from a difficult angle with Wiener Brown and Eddie Marineau assisting.

Russ Kowalchuk, one of the Macs stars of the night, set up Guidolin perfectly for the second counter, Bep firing from 15 feet out on a McFarland ganging attack.

George Aiken was chased for interference and the Macs again applied the pressure, Minnie Menard scoring his second goal of the period and his twentieth of the season from a goal-mouth scramble after Frederick had kicked out three drives.

Ray LaPlante drew the only other penalty of the period and the Kowalchuk - Guidolin-Muretich line drew the crowd plaudits with sweeping offensives with Frederick again outstanding to keep them off the scoresheet.

The Chevies held off the thrusting drives of the Macs in the third period, including a penalty to LaPlante, until the 12-minute mark.

BART BRADLEY
On Attersley's Tail

Then they repeated their second-period scoring performance and struck quickly and effectively. They fired home three goals in two minutes and 47 seconds, aiding the fourth with 55 seconds to go.

Russ Kowalchuk slammed home the first one unassisted and the second, tallied four aides when Guidolin and Aitken were chased within seconds of each other. Johnny Muretich driving in with Kowalchuk and Bolley struck pay dirt at 15.58, and 47 seconds later Minnie Menard repeated for his third goal slamming home his own rebound.

RUSS KOWALCHUK
Pumped Home Two

The Chevies never gave up trying and battled desperately in an effort to break the ice, but were hummed around Bell briefly in the last minutes until Bart Bradley charging in with Wiener Brown and Marineau backhanded a twenty footer behind Frederick in the second goal and the last of the session. Some 1515 fans saw the game.

Lineups: Cornwall — goal, Frederick; defence, Laplante, Marshall, D. Labelle, R. Labelle; forwards, Savard, Grigg, Burke, Henri, Payette, St. Hilaire, Aitken, St. Jean, Muir.

Wolves Wallop Bulldogs 8-1; Dutchies Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A struggle is shaping up for playoff spots in the OHA-Intermediate Senior A series.

At present, the field is wide open even though Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen and Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds appear to have sewn up the first two places. At the bottom of the standings teams swap places nearly every time they take the ice.

Sudbury Wolves, in and out of the loop's cellar continually during the last month, popped into a fourth - place tie Friday night, whipping Windsor Bulldogs, also in fourth place, 8-1. Wolves' victory dumped North Bay Trappers back into last place.

Dutchmen continued their relentless mauling as they had a rough struggle before taking a 4-3 decision from third - place Chatham Maroons.

Jon Zorzes, a Windsor native, led Sudbury scoring twice. Armand Lemieux, Johnny Gillis, Joe Dubois and Tommy Zim Lo-pez added one each. Kitchener goals. Chatham marksmen were Ted Power and Lloyd Ferguson with two each.

Schoolboy Rinks Start Bonspiel On Monday

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Forty-four of Canada's top teenaged curlers headed for this province's capital city today and a five-day meet starting Monday to decide the nation's top school boy rink.

For the first time in its nine years, the Canadian high school bonspiel will have Newfoundland representatives. Ontario has three rinks, including representatives of Southern and Northern Ontario and the Fort Frances club which won the Manitoba championship.

Ontario won the 1957 bonspiel defeating Northern Ontario in the double-death playoff. Both have strong teams this year. Saskatchewan with seven victories in nine starts will rate as one of the favorites.

The bonspiel will have two rounds Monday, two Tuesday, another two Wednesday, three Thursday and the final Friday. If a playoff is necessary, it will be staged Friday night. All matches are scheduled for 10 ends.

Hibernation Is Complex Process

Creatures of the wild — animals, birds, fish and reptiles — have developed in a chiefly how many things which would come in mighty handy to human beings now and then. When the Christmas holidays are over and we are faced with the doldrums of January and February, would not it be nice to be able to doze off into comfortable slumber, waking up sometime around March 1st?

That's what a bear can do, a bear or a raccoon or a squirrel or a woodchuck or a chipmunk, to name a few. With the advent of cold weather which means food scarcity and uncomfortable living conditions, they simply find comfortable, protected places to rest and sleep until the outdoors once again is a pleasant place to which to live.

Those creatures which . . . equipped to migrate cannot hibernate, such as you and I. But not for example, would freeze or starve during long cold winter months should they attempt to hibernate. Thus, they gather in flocks, take wing over for a week or so (at the cost of much sleep to the peace of us who do not live near the gathering places) and then head southward.

But the creatures which are not equipped to migrate have hibernation as a substitute. Nature, down through countless centuries, has taught them that wintertime is the season of discomfort and food scarcity. They meet the emergency with the simple expedient of going to sleep and staying that way until the warm days of spring notify them that life once more is worth living.

The mechanics of hibernation have long been a special interest to the scientists. Despite many years of study, not too much is known about the process, one of nature's most interesting puzzles.

FUEL FOR LIFE

The first step, of course, is for the hibernator to lay on abnormal layers of fat to serve as fuel for the body later on. Some creatures add as much as 50 per cent to their total weight during the period of hibernation.

Next, eating is done during hibernation and there is no evacuation. Bodily processes simply stop functioning. The temperature of the sleeping creature drops almost to that of the surrounding air. Breathing and heart beat are slowed down, in some species to three a minute; metabolism is reduced, and a state of suspended animation is produced, resembling a condition under which no human could possibly live.

The flow of blood through the circulatory system is so reduced that at times only a deep chill will show little or no bleeding. One scientist removed a toe from the foot of a hibernating squirrel. The flow of blood was enough simply to coat the surface of the protective covering before bleeding stopped.

Some creatures, such as snakes, band together during hibernation to avoid individual chilling. This is true of many of the insects. Animals, however, sleep alone, as a rule, and here nature has set up a protection against freezing. Should the body temperature drop so low that freezing is imminent, nerves start arousing bell and the animal awakes sufficiently to keep the body temperature above the freezing point.

Animals such as skunks, badgers, raccoons and chipmunks indulge only in semi-hibernation, sleeping through the worst winter weather and moving about when the weather moderates. The whole business is a complex, well-regulated operation, the mechanism of which science scarcely to guess.

Some fish hibernate; others do not. The members of the bass family are perhaps the best-known hibernators but here, too, the process varies with conditions. Young bass are more apt to hibernate than are the adults. They find convenient holes in rocks, hollow logs, or even the soft mud of the bottom and there spend the winter cold months. Conversely, the adults indulge only in partial suspension of animation, moving about in the depths of a selected "winter hole."

AESTIVATION

But hibernation, as a process, is not limited to the winter months In times of low water or excessive heat, mud creatures — frogs, turtles, fish, some insects and some few animals — can find themselves comparatively cool quarters and sleep through the adverse conditions. This process is called "aestivation," but it serves the same purpose — to enable the creature in question to survive during abnormal conditions.

Some years ago, a fish hatchery in New York State had a large pond which held several hundred adult bass. The hatchery men drew down the water in the pond, rented out all of the bass (as they thought), then drained the pond completely and allowed the mud bottom to dry under the rays of the sun. This was in late August.

The following spring the pond was filled with water in which were placed several thousand fingerling trout. Shortly thereafter the hatchery men were surprised to see the heavy swirls of large feeding fish, enjoying a diet of fingerling trout. Careful seining with a net of large mesh turned up three big adult bass, fat and sassy from their expensive provender.

There was no way in which those bass could have made their way into the pond from the outside. They had simply buried themselves in the mud of the pond bottom, aestivation giving over to hibernation as the weather cooled.

Maybe the hibernators are lucky, but it's doubtful. Think of the many things that would be missing during a two-months' sleep. Perhaps the better way is to save a few dollars, join the migration and head for a warmer climate during cold weather. The Florida Keys certainly are far preferable to hibernation. Maybe you'll do that next winter.

Marr Retains Six-Stroke Lead In Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (CP) — Dave Marr, former Texas playing like a seasoned professional in golf's annual championship parade, maintained a six-stroke lead entering the third round of the $15,000 Texas Open today.

The young Texan, had a blazing eight-under-par first day 66 but was lucky to emerge with a par 71 Friday. A soggy course and Marr's inability to find the greens in regulation figures caused him to struggle to a 77.

The best scores were 68s, with Tommie Jerry Mapes one of three players to hit that figure. Mapes, Dallas golf professional was tied for fifth place with three other players at 141.

Bob Rosburg, Phoenix, Ariz., both of Toronto, were eliminated. Fielding, who blew to a 77 on the first day, had 75 for a total of 152 and Tucker bowed out with a 77-75—150.

Ray Gariepy Hangs up Gear

BARRIE (CP) — Ray Gariepy, 32, a former member of the Canadian Hockey League player, Friday announced his retirement from the game.

He played one season in the NHL with Boston Bruins and eight seasons in the AHL — two with Buffalo, two with Pittsburgh and four with Hershey.

This winter he was playing coach of Orillia Pontiacs of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A group until the club folded last month.

Buchanan May Regain Partial Sight of Eye

BOSTON (CP) — Doctors said Friday Ralph Buchanan of Penetanguishene, Ont., Boston Bruins hockey rookie, whose right eye was severely injured when he was struck by a hockey stick a month ago, will not lose the eye.

Dr. Edward Browne, Boston Bruins team physician, said Buchanan had undergone examinations for the last week and surgery is not contemplated.

Dr. Browne said Buchanan will return to his Montreal home in about a week and come to Boston for periodic checkups.

While Buchanan has no vision in the eye at present, the doctor said he could recover partial vision in six months or more.

Madoc Defeats Millionaires By 7-3 Score

MARMORA (Special) — First place Madoc Blue-and-White defeated Marmora Millionaires 7-3 in a hard fought tilt in an OHA Intermediate "C" northern league fixture.

Madoc took a 3-2 lead in the first period and made it 6-2 in the second before the clubs split two goals in the final three minutes.

Ken Trumble of Marmora received a cut face on the game's opening faceoff when hit by a flying puck. He retired for repairs but returned to action during the third period.

Bob Taylor once more paced the Blue-and-White scorers, firing three goals and adding one assist. Doug Clay clicked for two goals while John "Shaker" Baker had a goal and two assists. Fred Hicks contributed the fifth Madoc tally while Bob Palmer added one helper.

Earle Cousins, Terrion and Bert Gray fired the Marmora goals. Brooks, LaFrenoise and Bob Maynes had assists.

The winners received nine of the game's 14 penalties including the only three of the first period.

Ottawa's Kerwin Given Nod In Terrific Gotham Brawl

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP) — Ottawa's Gale Kerwin scored a split decision over blood-spattered Stefan Redl of New Jersey Friday night and then offered to fight "anybody on his way to boxing glory."

It was a terrific brawl in Madison Square Garden over the 10-round distance, with Kerwin weighing 142¾ and Redl 145¼.

Kerwin, 23, who now lives in Valley Stream, N.Y., said in his dressing room the fight was especially important to him because he plans on buying a house for his wife, Joyce, and their year-old son, Allen Patrick.

"Her dream is a house, and mine is the championship," Kerwin, who was unmarked in his brawl with the powerfully-built Redl, a Hungarian-born immigrant by way of Germany.

FEARS NO MAN

"I'll fight anybody to get a chance at the championship," said Gale. "I fear no man. I'm one of those old time fighters. I was born before my time."

Kerwin did a cartwheel across the ring following the battle, emulating the custom of the flying Wallenda of Wallenda fame, courver, one of his heroes.

It was an exciting bout from the start. Cries of "cocky" greeted the slim Kerwin from the crowd when he entered the ring confidently.

Redl went to the canvas for an instant after a short right hand from Kerwin in the sixth. Referee Harry Kapp ruled it a knockdown and made Redl take the automatic eight-count, brought boos from the many Redl supporters.

The referee awarded the decision by the margin 5-4-1, but the two judges, Frank Forbes and Artie Aidala, gave the fight to the Canadian 5-4-1 and 6-4 respectively. A ringside poll of boxing writers showed Kerwin the winner on eight of the 11 scorecards.

GASH OVER EYE

Kerwin probably clinched the decision when he picked at Redl's head in the seventh, opening a gash over the left eye, and letting loose a volley of rights to the nose. But all the way he showed superior speed and the savvy, countering Redl's bull-like rushes with sharp and well-timed jabs, especially a left hook.

Among those at ringside was Kerwin's former Canadian manager, George Orwald, who took him to the finals in the Olympic trials in Vancouver in 1952 in the 119-pound division. Orwald said he was going to see Kerwin's present manager, Al Lang, of New York, about an Ottawa bout.

It was the first loss for Redl, ending a 17-bout winning streak. Kerwin's record is 26-5-1 for 23 fights. In one of the best turnouts of the season, 3,500 paid $6,300 to see the bout.

Minor Hockey

The peewee section of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association wound up its regular schedule this morning with four games played at the Memorial Arena.

Maple Leafs had the only shutout of the four-game set, blanking the Bruins 3-0, Terry Culry scored twice and Tommy Locke once while Tony Fox, Gordon Gulley and Paul Sharpe had assists.

Brewers and Rangers fought to a 2-2 deadlock. Bob Ethier and Allan Mott fired the Red-and-White goals Mott also getting an assist. Glen Rainbird and Jimmie Hurst filed the Rangers' goals with Jackie Boyle getting two assists and Richard Herrington one.

Canadiens ended their schedule undefeated, whipping Red Wings 5-4. Peter Thorne with two, Howie Nemtin, Allan Daley and Jim Mairs were the Habs' scorers. Ken Pringle, Rickey Bowler and Bob Skinner had helpers. Bobby Moon and R. DeGenova were the Wing marksmen with Dwight Bathwell assisting on both goals.

Black Hawks shaded the Barrows of Boon Home Bakery, Forrest Smith and Billie Elliott scored single goals for Hawks, Peter Lipes and Perry Soule drawing assists. Freddie Robinson Artie Aidala, gave the ragged unassisted goals for the Barons.

Hockey's Big Seven

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Andy Bathgate of New York smeared three points in Friday night's lone National Hockey League game to regain sole possession of third place in the individual scoring race. He scored the first and 52nd goals and picked up an assist as the Rangers downed Chicago Black Hawks 3-1.

Markle, Pal Enter Finals

JUPITER, Fla. (CP) — Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto and U.S. Air Force Lieut. Hillman Robbins came from behind Friday to defeat Clifford Ann Creed and William Hillman III 2 and 1 to the semi-finals of the United States mixed foursomes golf tournament.

Mrs. Streit, and Robbins, will play Mary Ann Downey and Tim Holland in the 36-hole final today.

The Downey-Holland combination defeated Pat O'Sullivan and Willie Turnesa 3-up.

ARREST SUSPECT

WINDSOR (CP) — Windsor detectives Thursday arrested a man suspect in the $1,500 robbery of the Canadian Bank of Commerce and said a starting pistol and $1,200 was found. The arrest came 48 hours after a "very nervous" lone bandit fled on foot after robbing the bank and attempting to take a teller as hostage. Detectives identified the suspect as 35-year-old Leo Landry, Windsor.

PERTH Australia (AP)—Herb Elliott, Australia's newest mile sensation, ran his third straight under-four-minute mile today. He beat Mervyn Lincoln by a step at Lord Mayor's Oval in 3:58.6. Lincoln was credited with same time but was declared to be world's fastest mile run on a grass track.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was around the corner throwing my tennis ball against the empty brick wall and catching it different fancy ways, and Sherry Judge was standing there watching me and wanting to get in it with me, but I kept on telling him to wait till I got a little more practice, and Reddy Merry came up, saying, Oh my, look who thinks he's a big league pitcher.

Being sarcastic, and I thought, Aw, the heck with him, who's he think he is? I was, so I told him to give him the saddlefaction of an excuse to try to pick a file with me, I thought.

And I just kept on throwing the ball and catching it, and he says, said, Aw, you throw like a girl and catch like a fish.

Making me point near mad enough to say, Oh yeah? Which I didn't, just thinked, darn that guy, I won't even act as if I know he's alive.

Which I kept on not doing, and Reddy said, Do you know what you look like? You look like a chimny flea trying to look graceful, he said.

Me still not giving him the satdisfaction of answering him, and he said, Ah, there's my eyes to look at you, I'm going.

Which he did, and Shorty said, Why didn't you tell him to mind his own bizmess?

Why dost you mind yours if you're so anxious? I quick said, and Shorty said, Hay, G, I am on your side.

Well stay on your own side, see? I said.

Making me feel so mutch better I let him throw and catch with me.

Petes Whip Lambert-Rollins 9-1 In Opening Game Junior Playoffs

PETERBOROUGH (Special) — The Petes beat Belleville 9-1 here last night before a slim crowd in the memorial centre to open their best-of-five OHA Junior "B" central Ontario group semi-finals. Second game is Monday in Belleville, with the third back here next Wednesday. Meantime, Trenton and Kingston are tangling in the other bracket of group semi-finals.

Petes took a 1-0 lead in the first period and stretched a 4-1 bulge into the third of a fair tilt, a bit chippy in the late stages. The winners drew 12 penalties and the losers nine, each drawing one major and one misconduct.

Play was pretty tight till about the halfway mark, and Petes piled up the count from there in for their 21st win in 33 starts this season. The Quinte crew were short a few players for the tussle.

Scoring was well spread around among the Petes, a darker spiece going to George Tinsley, Dave Greenaway, Ron Jewell, Bruce Macklin, Ron Jewell, Paul Parnell, Murray McCormack, Joe English and Frank Daly. The losers' only goal was by Dennis Kerruish from Art Culliston and Gary Coyer, in assists for Petes, Casey was good for two, singles going to Greenaway, Lattrell, and John Horton Jewell, Larry Ferguson, Wm. Greenaway, English.

Horton went off early for elbowing and Rowbotham followed for cross-checking. Roberts hurt his ankle and Gilby took time out for a cut over the eye. Greenaway scored the lone goal of the period on a rebound, Lattrell getting started by English and Casey. Jay got the finger for tripping late in the period.

Roberts got it for holding to open the second and Kerruish counted for the visitors on a neat rush by Greenaway and Culliston. The latter and Parnell then were gated for high-sticking, Jay for elbowing and slashing.

Casey's screened shot caught the mesh but Gill was waved over for slashing, Horton going for a minute later for tripping. Penalties at last in close with McCormack's pass, and then Jewell made it 4-1 on a rest-of fort with Ferguson.

English soloed for one with a backhander starting the third. McCormack blasted in another shortly, aided by Jewell and Horton, as Petes applied the pressure. Jay went for elbowing and Lord got it for tripping, Elliott arguing and drawing a misconduct. St. Louis was no sooner back than he got the air again for slashing and Parnell scored on a good mix up the ice, after an early Armstrong pass. Brown added one from Casey and Greenaway, Jay was penalized for cross-checking and Armstrong for weed for boarding. Jay got back to score the last one on a long rush. Greenaway and Mann went off for roughing and Horton got the re- charging, talking himself into a misconduct. Tilterson and Jay drew majors for fighting, Jewell going for tripping, and later St. Louis for tripping near the finish.

TEAMS:

Belleville: goal, Gilby; defence, Tilterson, Culliodeen, Brennan and Elliott; forwards, Rowbotham, Goyer, Kerruish, St. Louis, Mann, Ron.

Petes: goal, Dobson; defence, Jay, Roberts, Armstrong and Lally; forwards, Ferguson, Parnell, Daly, Martin, English, Greenaway, Jewell, Horton and McCormack.

Referees: I. Locke and B. Kingdon.

Logart, Akins To Meet in Welter Semi

NEW YORK (AP) — Isaac Logart of Cuba and Virgil Akins of St. Louis agreed Friday to meet in the 12-round semi-final bout in the welterweight title elimination tournament at Madison Square Garden Friday, March 21.

Each fighter will receive $20,000 and the winner will meet Vince Martinez of Paterson, N.J. for the vacant 147 - pound title within 60 days. Martinez boldly yielded the title when he won the middleweight championship.

The bout will be broadcast and telecast (NBC).

Logart was established as a 7-to-5 favorite. They met twice in 1956, Akins the first and only Logart won the return. Logart's record is 32-7-6. Akins' record is 25-5.

Head Wins

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lew Head swept through Pancho Gonzales 9-7, 6-2 Friday night to take an 11-7 lead in their professional tennis tournament.

AT THE BELLE — Glenn Ford, a member of the navy purple relations section stationed on a South Pacific island during World War II, falls in love with a native charmer, Gia Scala, in "Don't Go Near the Water", now playing at the Belle Theatre. Also starring in the production are Earl Holliman, Anne Francis, Keenan Wynn, Fred Clark, Eva Gabor, Russ Tamblyn, Jeff Richards and Mickey Shaughnessy.

AT THE PARK — Vengeance — Teenage Style — June Kenney is warned by Jack Sayer that she is marked for death in this tense scene from Allied Artists' "Teenage Doll", shocking story of youthful violence starting Monday at the Park Theatre. Fay Spain, John Brinkley and Ziva Rodan also have key roles in the daring story of a girl who kills and then faces gangland vengeance. On the same program "Undersea Girl", starring Pat Conway, Mara Corday and Florence Marly. Both shockers are first Belleville showings.

Movie Column

The Hucksters Had Little Appeal for New Generation

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Yes, Virginia, there are a' thing called radio."

I can imagine that being said in hundreds of local homes recently if the youngsters were allowed to stay up late to see television showing of the movie The Hucksters. The new generation must have wondered what all the fuss was about in the dog-eat-dog drama of the radio-advertising world.

Not that radio is dead. It is still a thriving industry. But the frantic competition of network radio has all the excitement of the advent of television.

Looking back on the radio era, you find it hard to believe that things were that important. But seeing The Hucksters again makes you realize that they were. Or so they seemed at the time.

IMPACT ON INDUSTRY

Frederic Wakeman's book had a terrific impact on the industry. The soap opera was recognized as George Washington Hill, the late tobacco magnate who had his own ideas about advertising and entertainment.

He popularized the repetitive commercial that drummed its message into a beleaguered audience. He also dictated the kind of music for Your Hit Parade, and other tunes were — loud and with a steady beat.

The picture was one of Clark Gable's first after the war and Deborah Kerr's first in the United States. Despite these values — and Ava Gardner — it was not a success. Looking at it again, I can see why. The big fuss over radio seems footloose now, and it must have had little substance to the general public when it was first released.

TOO SERIOUS

People in show business have a tendency to take themselves too seriously. Entertainment - industry stories can sometimes make the same mistake. But when they get heavy-handed — it's murder!

Take the original A Star is Born. It was the best picture ever made about Hollywood, because it was clever, candid and not overdone. But the Judy Garland remake was done with such a lavish hand that all the charm went out of the tale.

I must confess that I like show-business stories on the TV and theatre screens. But that's because I'm close to the business. I am afraid the general public must say — as they no doubt did about The Hucksters — "what's so important about that?"

TV NOTEBOOK

By JOHN WETTLAUFER

We read a short time ago where the U.S. has developed a device known variously as a "rumberry", telecinic Bronx or "doc" — or "burp" meter. The device, to be installed in 300 London homes, will register a rasmberry if the viewers don't like the show being telecast. Only homes linked directly to the command TV headquarters can set the gadget.

As we understand it, the viewer presses a button on his set if he thinks the show being watched is a flopperoo. Buzzers sound as a red light flashes and the studio which is a signal for the star to do what they can to improve matters.

From where we sit it looks as though the British might be conducting a little trouble yourself if you put off necessary TV repairs too long. Like we have said before: At the first sign of trouble, call CIRCLE TV SERVICE in the double. CIRCLE does the job right — the first time. We have two depots to serve you; in Belleville phone WO 6-6744, and in Trenton phone Zenith 6-3800.

Astro.log.cal Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Saturday, February 15

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Take care that you conduct yourself in such a way that outsiders as well as intimates like and admire you. Great time to put appearance in finest form also to be helpful to others you like.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Here is the right time to take a little trip out of town for fun and nonsense and getting. Bring a really vital friend with you and learn a great deal, too. P.M. study when you return home.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — come and salaries, go out today come an dsalaries, go out today and price the lovely things you would like to buy, the musical apparatus, furniture or statuary. If within your means, invest! Tonight, be loving.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Make a beeline for the individual who means the most to you and show your afregard. Don't be stammering, but come right out with what is on your mind. Hence you clear the air and cement relations for life.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Put in those little gadgets, touches of art, etc, that will make your surroundings more attractive, efficient. Also, get the good will of fellow workers. It may mean some effort, but a pleasant manner will accomplish much.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — A day for dressing in the nicest fashion, great taste, bringing out best points, admiration. Then meet those fascinating persons who can help you, and in P.M. get together with dears: friends for favorite sports, amusements

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Here is the free day you have wanted to devote to beautifying your home and surroundings. Wield the paintbrush, cleanse drapes, venetian blinds, etc. Then in P.M. have a group of artists or friends in for dinner.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—A great many little outside tasks should be taken care of early today and with alacrity. Later you can step out. With friends and enjoy amusements that most uplift and entertain. Be gay.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Your real estate has been neglected of late, run-down. Attend to getting repairs made at minimum expense and maximum of beauty and value. Look to your credit, set up a more flexible budget with a bigger savings account.

Capricorn (Dec. 23 to Jan. 20) — Your dynamism is at its peak today, so that it would behoove you to go after what you desire. Make the fine qualities of others P.M. excellent for being with longtime friends, meeting fine new ones.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Here is a wonderful day for taking inventory of your assets that will give a clear picture of your progress. Also, impress others with your intellectuality, wonderful qualities, and they back you. Give yourself credit for once.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — A good-looking pal is now in the mood to accord you the prestige, help you need and work along with you in some co-operative effort towards assured success. Make other fine agreements, too, in conjunction with this.

If your child is born today—The delightful child born today is the type who knows exactly what will make others like and respect him or her, but also is cognizant of the needs of others and does something to be of help. Only when this youngster knows the value of a dollar, however, will the personality be ideal. Give a formal education, teachine the religious tenets to counteract a tendency towards cold-bloodedness.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Sunday, February 16 ,

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — There may be a series of arguments today with intimates if you pick them up on the slightest provocation, and vice versa. Indicate quickly that your spirit of cooperation and fun will be harmonious.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Take care you do not hurt unnecessarily someone who means much to you but is in need of most instead of enforced activity. Do own work and have patience, as well as secure, and the future will be better.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — While you would prefer to go off with irresponsible, gay persons today, it is far better to attend your church, or study those things that' elevate the soul, bring about greater success. Live right and LIVE.

Moon children (June 22 to July 21) — A certain walk — from — the — ark intuition occurs to you which makes you feel is just what you have been looking for under and reflect seriously, for it may be but the harbinger of your future blessed it, and use commonsense.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — A clever associate today reacts in such a peculiar fashion that it has you nonplussed for a while. But remember that this is one of those days when all sorts of strangeness will be in the air. Perfect equilibrium yourself.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — While mentally you are very eager to get a great deal of work done, the aspects indicate that rest is wisdom, and you will get more efficient methods of operation tomorrow. Force will only cause accidents.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Although a good day, it is not any cost is your goal today. If you persist in following this whim, you will get into a mess, since it leads you into the path of your opposite. Don't permit the vote time to true mate instead.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — If you give those about you any opportunity today, you will be frustrated and annoyed. Give only half an ear to their complaints as you labor diligently. Once they have aired their grievances, all is well.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Particular care must be taken today not to get into any unfortunate accident en route to work or pleasure, walking or driving. Guard your words, too. Show appreciation instead, and confer with kind advisors.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — This day calls for wisdom and tenacity of purpose, since you must decide between carrying through with old - fashioned standards learned at mother's knee, or Go Modern, as the saying goes. Stick to old, put on veneer of new.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Your best is one of those days when those in your immediate orbit all seem bound to effect great changes in you and your mode of living, which would be unfortunate if not well considered. Study deeper into the Truths instead.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — You have real cause for feeling so angry you could pick up any heavy object and throw it, or give off a volley of terrible words today! Your points today will throw the other person instead. Learn a very great lesson.

If your child is born today . . . The rascally little type of young person that will learn to be the individual known as the Person or Corporation making the highest offer.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was listening to Adventures in Space on my Junior Midget Radio while I was doing my homework, and ma came in my room and turned it off, saying, You know you're not supposed to mix the radio with your lessons. That's a strictly unwritten rule and I'm reprpired at you, she said.

Well G, ma, it was on low, I said, and she said, Yes, and probably your mind was on your homework just as low. Nobody can do 2 things at the same time without having them both suffer, she said, and I said, Well G rooster, ma, this afternoon when I ran in for another drink of water you were reading a book while you were watching some mushy pay on television.

Exactly, the play wasn't averth watching and the book wasn't were reading it. If I hadn't started it I never would of finished it, ma said, and I said, Just the same, ma, you were doing 2 things at the same time, weren't you?

Perhaps I was, and perhaps when you get to be my age you will also be able to decide which of 2 things are equally not worth doing, but just now your homework is always of the first and last importance, is that clear once and for all? ma said, and I said, Yes ma, but the radio was on low.

The subject is closed, not just beginning, ma said.

Meaning I said that before, and she went downstairs again and I got on with my homework without the radio, not seeming to make it any harder.

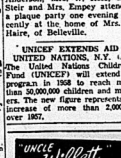
Rossmore

ROSSMORE — The regular weekly euchre was held at the home of Mrs. L. Pullen with a goodly crowd attending. A pleasant evening was enjoyed and prizes awarded according to score.

Mrs. Charles Reddick entertained the members of the W.A. at her home, recently. It was decided to have a quilting and pot-luck dinner in the Sunday School rooms on the 18th. Everyone is welcome providing they bring a donation toward the dinner and a willing quilting hand.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Empey and Mr. and Mrs. R. Heath attended the ice follies in Toronto last Friday and visited friends over the weekend.

Mrs. Rod. Bell has been spending some time this winter with her daughter, Mrs. W. Gerow, of Belleville.



Mrs. W. Ross has been entertaining her grandchildren for a few days while their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Steir, of Belleville, are in Montreal on business.

Mr. Frank Belnap was the guest of honor at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Don Finkle, on the evening of February 4th. A social evening was enjoyed by his family and friends. Refreshments brought the occasion to a close. All join in wishing Mr. Belnap many happy returns of the day and hope he enjoys many more.

Mrs. Anderson, Miss Betty Anderson, Mr. W. Ross, Mrs. Steir and Mrs. Empey attended a plaque party one evening recently at the home of Mrs. H. Haire, of Belleville.

DIEFENBAKER

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government had launched a public works program which would total $270,000,000 in the first three months of the year and $1,185,000,000 for the whole year.

Mr. Pearson reiterated that a Liberal government would not "invite" more public works. It would reduce taxes and put more spending money in taxpayers' pockets so that they could buy more refrigerators and furniture and other products that would create more jobs.

One of the main points of Mr. Pearson's bid for election is a promise to reduce taxes by $400,000,000.

FULTON IN HAMILTON

Justice minister Davie Fulton had something to say about a statement Thursday by Mr. Pearson that voters must decide which party and which leadership "can make the most effective contribution for Canada in the search for peace and security at this time."

Mr. Fulton said Mr. Pearson was "playing upon the emotions of the Canadian people" by making their desire for peace an election issue.

He said a Progressive Conservative nominating meeting in Hamilton that no one denies to be Liberal territory gave him comforts for peace. But "neither by nor any other line can the magnificent contribution made in this field by Prime Minister Diefenbaker, both as a member in opposition and in the seven months during which he has led the government."

Mr. Fulton said Mr. Diefenbaker had in these months made a major contribution to peace by his visit in Europe and about a greater sense of unity in the British Commonwealth. Little was done under the Liberals to strengthen Commonwealth relationships.

LOW IN VANCOUVER

Social Credit Leader Solon Low was in Vancouver Friday attending a British Columbia Alliance conference to plan party election strategy.

Mr. Low told reporters the Social Credit platform will be based on recommendations made at regional meetings. He would announce it at a press conference in Edmonton Feb. 25.

There will be no repeat performance, he said, of the unusually held before the last election in Toronto's Massey Hall.

CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell will arrive in Rosetown, Sask., today to attend a party planning convention in his riding of Rosetown-Biggar. He left Ottawa by train Thursday.

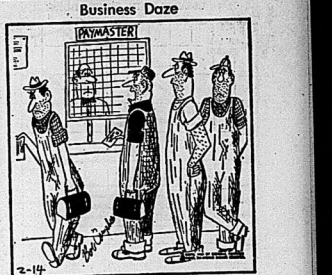
Mrs. Richard Martin and children of Provoust—Alberta, are spending a few weeks visiting Mr. and Mrs. David Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Martin and Mrs. Clayton Eggleton 3rd Line.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ritz and son, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Osland, of Belleville, had Sunday dinner recently with Mr. and Mrs. George Sills and Earl.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Ritz and family spent Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Trevorrow, 6th Line.

Mrs. Ena Wood and Shelby and Mr. Dick Lawrence, of Belleville, were tea hour guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Clarke.

Mrs. Fred Hanesy has been sick with the flu. Mrs. Ming Gardiner, of Toronto, is spending sometime with her.



Mr. and Mrs. Louis Ruckstuhl spent Tuesday evening and called on Mr. and Mrs. Herb Holgate, of Canniton.

Mr. Fred Garrison, of Sarnia, Ont., spent the weekend at his home.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Ritz and family, also Mr. and Mrs. John Ritz, of Belleville, motored to Aylmer, Quebec, on Sunday and called on Mrs. Douglas Cooke.

Miss Nancy Sills entertained her form from school to a hayride party on Friday evening. Afterwards, they had refreshments at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clare Sills.

VOLUME HIGH, PRICES DOWN

Copper, lead and zinc, traditional base metals, are feeling the effects of easier demand and lessened prices.

So far, in Canada, volume of production has remained high, but the price received for it has declined sharply.

These two graphs show the course both of production and of total value to reach of the three metals from 1947 to 1957.

Copper's big year was 1956 when the price at New York reached a high of 46 cents a pound. Lead had a post-war high of 21.5 cents a pound at New York in 1948. Zinc had a post-war high price of 19.5 cents a pound at East St. Louis in 1951. (CP Newsmap.)

Copper, Lead, Zinc Capacity For Production Has Outrun Demand But Tide is Turning

by FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Copper, lead and zinc—known as the traditional base metals—have been caught in the current world economic slow-down, and have some acute pains of their own.

Basically, however, their plight arises from the same cause as most current difficulties.

This is that their capacity for production has outrun demand, that has eased somewhat.

Basically, too, the solution of their problems is part of the general solution.

EXPANSION NECESSARY

This is that world expansion—now seemingly taking a breather—get under way again.

In the meantime some things do have to be suffered: Demand is not enough to use present capacity; prices have dropped accordingly; and both these things are discouraging to marginal operations and to property approaching production.

The downturn after some years of advance is nothing new. Historically, the trend has been upward.

Back of the present plight of copper-lead-zinc are several factors, notably the high demand of post-war expansion, abetted by the special demands of the cold and Korean wars, and by United States stockpiling for defence.

These factors resulted at times in over-high prices which—though nice to get at the time—led to what was probably a too fast step-up in production, to encouragement of the use of substitutes, and generally to conditions not in the long-term interest of the metals.

Copper's plight seems to be a fairly straight-forward one of easier demand and resulting lower prices.

GRAVE THREAT

The difficulties of lead and zinc, however—especially so far as Canadian producers are concerned—are compounded by the fact that the United States, after encouraging Canadian production for some years, now has not only stopped stockpiling but shown signs of increasing tariff barriers.

In an immediate sense, the tariff threat is a grave one.

Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada Ltd., major lead-zinc producer with at Trail, B.C., estimates that if the highest tariff which might be imposed is put on, Canadian zinc production will be reduced one-third.

In the longer-term, however, the imposition of higher tariffs by the United States is not such an unrealistic action that it is difficult to see how the situation it would create could continue.

For, basically, the United States has not enough lead and zinc for its own needs. And, so far as can be seen from the Canadian side, higher tariffs will simply be an appeasement of American marginal producers at the expense of the American smelting industry and public.

A brief by Consolidated Smelters to the United States tariff commission, while outlining these factors at length and giving full emphasis to the effects of a higher tariff on the Canadian industry, nevertheless paints an optimistic long - term picture.

The brief — presented in November—says:

"Despite the adversities facing the industry today, we believe that the long-term outlook is extremely favorable.

"World consumptions of lead and zinc have trended upward for many years and there is every reason to believe these trends will continue."

The brief also said:

"Given time and the absence of outside controls which can distort the situation, there is no question in our mind that supply will balance demand within a relatively short time — perhaps as early as mid-1958."

The lead-zinc industry is not simply standing by until demand increases of itself—it is taking steps to make the demand increase.

SPONSORED RESEARCH....

The Consolidated Smelters brief says that, "encouraged by the results of our own research efforts, it has been our purpose to give leadership in the formation of an international research program to be undertaken by existing American trade associations."

In time with this, the American Zinc Institute said recently it would join with "foreign interests" in a broad program of expanded research aimed at consolidation and expansion of existing markets and discovery of new ones."

For some two years the federal department of mines and technical surveys has been working in its laboratories, in co-operation with private companies, toward increased uses, and will cooperate to the research being undertaken in the United States.

The Consolidated Smelters brief said that on the basis of its studies, an average long-term U.S. price of 16.5 cents a pound for lead (compared with a current 13 cents at New York) and 12.5 cents a pound for zinc (compared with a current 10 cents at East St. Louis) will be required to maintain the balance between future world supply and demand.

VITAL TO N.B.

While all Canadian lead-zinc interests are strongly affected by the present situation, perhaps one where has it a more vital bearing than on the base-metal industry of northern New Brunswick, which now has one producer but which still awaits the greater development.

Mining opinion seems to be confident that northern New Brunswick will become one of the world's great base-metal camps; but, as with virtually all new camps, it has its metallurgical and pre-production problems, and the price situation is no help.

This is an old story to traditional mining areas, but is frustrating to communities relatively unfamiliar with the trials of mine development, and impatient to get under way.

Estimates of the New Brunswick ore have been given at about 5.5 per cent zinc, 2.3 per cent lead and 0.35 per cent copper, with some bodies showing considerably higher.

Eisenhower Hits Power Of Veto In Latest Letter

Replies to Bulganin On Summit Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower, in a new letter to Soviet Premier Bulganin has suggested that both sides work through normal channels for an eventual East-West summit conference. He described present efforts as at an "impasse."

In what was in effect a reply to Bulganin, the assistant Secretary Dulles, Eisenhower said a top preparatory work "would, as far as the United States was concerned, require the participation of our secretary of state."

The White House made public today the text of Eisenhower's six-page reply to letters from Bulganin. It was sent to Moscow Saturday.

Eisenhower expressed "considerable puzzlement" in view of Bulganin's proposals as to "what you think another such (summit) meeting could contribute to a successful settlement of our problems."

HITS VETO' POWER

He stressed Bulganin's demanding "the right to veto discussion" of the proposals Eisenhower put forward for international peace.

Eisenhower said he came to this conclusion because Bulganin has "proposed and insisted on" discussing 10 topics. Eisenhower in turn suggested discussing eight other problems to which Bulganin has objected.

Eisenhower said in reference to earlier exchanges:

"I wrote that, if there were to be a top-level meeting, I would be willing to discuss your proposals in good faith if you would to discuss mine. Your answer is that I must be prepared to discuss your proposals but as regards mine there must, you said, be unanimous agreement of the participants as to the necessity for considering such proposals. In other words you would retain the right to veto discussions of the matters I believe vital to peace."

Eisenhower said he deplored "constantly mounting accusations within the Soviet Union" to the effect that the U.S. is ruled by "aggressive war-minded imperialists."

The Soviet party chief Nikita Khrushchev's Jan. 22 speech in Minsk set the most inflammatory pile of such charges.

What is the explanation of such charges Eisenhower asked, "They seem to fly in the face of established history."

Eisenhower again called for the Soviet Union to consider these proposals:

1. Limit use of the veto in the United Nations Security Council.

2. Agree to devote outer space to peaceful purposes only. Eisenhower said Bulganin seemed to "belittle this proposal" and suggested:

"A terrible new menace can be the result of the satellite. That menace is to be found in the use of outer space for war purposes."

Malton Hangar Swept by Fire, Loss Is Million

TORONTO (CP) — Fire swept through a hangar at nearby Malton airport today destroying six single-engined aircraft, a number of automobiles and causing damage estimated at $1,000,000.

The hangar was owned by Sanderson Aircraft Limited.

Eight aircraft, a truck loaded with high-octane fuel and a number of cars were in the shed. Two of the planes were saved. Four private cars parked outside the hangar were destroyed.

Flames and smoke billowed hundreds of feet into the air and were visible for 15 miles. Cause of the blaze was not known.

Trans-Canada Air Lines and Canadian Pacific Airlines moved parked planes from the area.

ERUPTS QUICKLY

The blaze was first noticed as a wisp of smoke near the office of the hangar. Moments later flames ripped through the building.

Sanderson Aircraft Limited is a Canadian agent for Cessna Aircraft and some of the destroyed planes were reported to be Cessnas.

In addition, Sanderson houses planes owned by other firms. Two DC-3's usually in the hangar were out today.

Airport officials said a change of wind would have caused extremely heavy damage. As it was the wind, while fanning the flames, scattered embers only on the field.

The building was levelled in 40 minutes.

Garratt Aircraft Limited, who shared part of the space, lost two sprilling machines valued at $150,000 each. The machines were used to weld fuselages.

Clinton Payie, Avro Aircraft Limited fire chief said damage would be "well over $1,000,000."

Francé, Tunisia Accept British, U.S. Conciliation

PARIS (AP) — France and Tunisia today accepted the good offices of the United States and Britain in the French-Tunisian crisis.

The move was made this morning to France and Sunday to Tunisia. The French spokesman in Paris said the proposal is worthy of the Tunisian government announced the acceptances.

Negotiations were reported in progress here to determine just how British and the U.S. will step into the dispute.

NEW 100 DEMAND

The offer was made and accepted after Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba announced in Tunis that he had ordered a new demand be made to the UN Security Council for an investigation of French Algerian action.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — Snow and drifting snow is reported over all except extreme eastern sections of Ontario as a result of the intense Atlantic storm that has now moved into Maine. Strong winds coupled with temperatures generally below zero have created bitterly cold weather throughout Ontario. The storm centre is expected to weaken gradually as it tracks slowly northward into Southern Quebec. This will allow the winds over Ontario to diminish somewhat Tuesday.

BRITAIN REACHES PACT WITH U.S. ON MISSILE BASES

Plan Joint Control Of Nuclear Rockets

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Britain have successfully negotiated an agreement for jointly controlled nuclear missile bases. It seems certain to become the pilot pact for joining other Western Allies with medium-range rocket weapons.

U.S. and British officials said the agreement would probably be concluded here today with an exchange of letters between the state department and British Embassy officials. Also some possibility that the exchange might be delayed until Tuesday. In either case, a formal announcement is not expected before mid-week.

The pact is an arrangement, which dates back a year to the Bermuda conference of Prime Minister Macmillan conference at Bermuda, is joint control of the missile system which will be set up on British soil with American-produced weapons.

The 1,500-mile missiles which Britain will receive, according to reports here and in London, will be distributed among four bases in the eastern shores of the British Isles.

WILL PAY COST

Press dispatches said that Britain would pay the $90,000,000 cost of constructing the bases. The United States will supply the missiles by the end of this year and 1959. The British will also handle the weapons at the British bases. As soon as they can be trained, however, British crews will take over.

The hydrogen bomb warheads with which the missiles would be armed will, in wartime, be kept stockpiled at the bases but they will be under United States control.

At the NATO summit conference in Paris in December the heads of the 15 Allied governments decided that the U.S. bases in Europe should be reinforced with U.S. nuclear missiles. They left it up to Gen. Lauris Norstad, supreme Allied commander in Europe, to decide whether the missile bases should be set to work out arrangements with the governments concerned.

Once Norstad's military plans are completed and accepted by the governments directly involved it will be up to those governments and the United States to work out the agreements U.S. officials are sure that the arrangements worked out with Britain constitute a pilot model for the others in future months.

RACE FATAL

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — A 17-year-old expectant mother and a 21-year-old machinist were killed in a crash that, police said, including another pregnant teenager, were involved in a "drag race" Sunday. Robert J. Bruschi of San Mateo, was killed when his car hit a speeding cars in the 90-mile-an-hour race down a residential street. He struck the two parked cars. Mrs. Teddie Jean Hunt, Menlo Park, died in a hospital an hour later.

Plastic Angel Hits Davy Crockett In Bottle-Popping New York Home

SEAFORD, N.Y. (AP) — An angel is mysteriously attracted to Davy Crockett in the latest reported happenings of the bottle-popping phenomenon in Herrmann household.

The house started attracting attention last week when Herrmann said bottles were falling their lives without the aid of human hands.

Police investigations by police, strange occurrences are continuing, Herrmann said. He reported Sunday night:

A plastic angel on a night table in his room at his 13-year-old son, James, flew through the air and hit a statuette of Davy Crockett four feet away on the dresser. Both objects had been knocked over and damaged previously, the father said.

He gave this score for Saturday:

In the afternoon, a bottle of plain water was knocked over in the master bedroom. The cap was unscrewed and some of the water was spilled.

WHIRLYBIRD OVERCOMES WATER HAZARD

An American seven-ton Vertol Whirlybird 44 helicopter is seen, top, landing in the Delaware river at the Philadelphia navy yard. Instead of sinking the Whirlybird settled high in the water and cruised along at a brisk clip — demonstrating a new principle that takes the hazard out of over-water flights for 'copters. The sealed fuselage is supported by streamlined floats inflated under low pressure. In the bottom photo the Vertol rises from the surface of the river as water pours from the metal cages that protect and shape the aft floats and from the flairing around which the forward float fits.

Sumatra Rebels Try to Put Economic Squeeze on Java

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Rebel leaders in Sumatra ordered a new economic squeeze on President Sukarno's shaky government today. His army chief replied with an apparently unenforceable order to arrest the rebels.

In the first major step since it proclaimed its existence Saturday, the rebel government announced all foreign firms in Sumatra must deposit their profits to the central government treasury here.

There was no indication whether the companies would comply. Most of the refineries are in Sumatra, which is largely controlled by the rebels.

If the oil companies comply, it would strike a body blow to the Jakarta government which received millions of dollars annually in royalties and much foreign exchange from the shipments. Motor transport on populous Java also is dependent on Sumatran oil.

The major oil companies affected—the American Caltex and Stanvac and Royal Dutch Shell —operate mostly on rebel Sumatra. Djiman say the government-held sectors of Borneo could no begin to supply Java's needs.

The rebel order underscored the outer islands' main economic complaint against the Jakarta regime. They claim Jakarta is taking all their products but balks at giving them a fair share of the return either in the appropriations or foreign goods.

Their other major complaint is that Sukarno "ruled democracy" fosters communism and corruption.

The arrest order was issued by Maj-Gen. Abdun Haris Nasution, one of the more pro-Western leaders in the Sukarno regime. But it seemed unlikely he could enforce it.

The rebel centre of Padang, Sumatra, is some 600 miles from Jakarta, and the Indonesian navy and air force haven't the craft to transport a sizeable force.

P.M. and CCF Leader Plump For Some Sort of Food Bank

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

There was plenty of disagreement among politicians participating in weekend events of the campaign for the March 31 federal general election. But there was a touch of unity on at least one point.

Both Prime Minister Diefenbaker and CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell plumped for establishment of some sort of international food bank.

Otherwise, however, it was pretty well pure disairement on all sides.

Social Credit Premier Bennett of British Columbia at a party rally in Vancouver said neither the Liberals nor the Progressive Conservatives care a whistle for his province except for the votes it can provide.

The Liberal and Social Credit is the party of action. At the same Saturday meeting, national Social Credit Leader Solon Low called on party supporters to stand united against the opposition in the country.

Speaking Saturday night in Toronto, meantime, let himself in for a little heckling and a lot of applause. He said Conservative policy at the Unipersity of Toronto.

It was supposed to have been a rally of young university Liberals, but a lot of young Conservatives managed to be included among the more than 300 persons crowding into Victoria College Auditorium.

As Mr. Pearson discussed defence, economic, education and other issues, the Conservatives heckled him a bit.

But at the ent they all joined in prolonged applause.

And Mr. Coldwell spent a cold Saturday campaigning in Saskatchewan. Mr. Diefenbaker was in his own constituency of Prince Albert and Mr. Coldwell in his Rosetown-Biggar.

The prime minister said at Nipawin: trat he proposed a NATO food bank at last December's council meeting of the organization in Paris as a defence measure.

Such a food bank could take present agriculture surpluses of member countries, he said. But it would also provide a store of food in case of war.

Mr. Coldwell, in his first major speech of the campaign, said at Rosetown that Canada could help itself by participating in economic programs through the United Nations and a world food bank.

Nations in need could draw supplies from such a food storehouse, he said, instead having to pay cash. But food producers would be paid immediately for foodstuffs product by means of a co-operative fund.

Mr. Coldwell said a CCF government would provide federal aid for construction of homes, schools and hospitals; prices for agricultural products in line—at parity—with production and other costs; national marketing boards, when requested, and a national crop insurance plan.

INCREASE GUARD WHEN PRINCESS RECEIVES THREAT

Letters Warn Her Not to Go to Indies

LONDON (AP) — The Daily Sketch says Princess Margaret's bodyguard of detectives has been strengthened because she has received some threatening letters.

The letters were said to have warned her not to go through with plans for a visit to the West Indies in April.

"Royalty often receives letters like this, usually from cranks," said a police spokesman.

A STAY-AT-HOMET

Meanwhile, a British newspaper columnist says today Princess Margaret is "a prodigy of leisure, a stay-at-home princess."

Columnist Rex North writes in the tabloid Sunday Pictorial that the 27-year-old princess has declined only two public appearances—both at the ballet—this year. She is now joining one family trip to London airport.

That was to say goodbye to Mother Elizabeth when she left for Australia.

"Is the unexpected declining invitations?" North asks. "If so, why? Or is Princess Margaret not being invited so much? If so, why?"

HAS COMMENTED

The British press has commented before on the princess' growing habits.

Last November she stayed away from a royal reception for the the 50th wedding anniversary of her sister, the Queen. She went to a theatre with friends instead.

About that time palace officials denied reports of coolness between the sisters because the queen had refused a new appeal from Margaret for permission to marry Group Capt. Peter Townsend.

The princess has been completely out of the limelight since then.

Nomination Day Will Be March 17 For 242 Ridings

OTTAWA (CP) — Nomination day for candidates in the federal election will be March 17, four weeks before polling day—in 242 of the 265 constituencies.

It will be March 3—four weeks in advance—in the other 21 constituencies, mostly sparsely populated and largely in the Northwest Territories.

The 21 are:

Newfoundland: Bonavista-Twillingate, Burin - Burgeo, Grand Falls - White Bay, Humber - Humber - St. George's, Trinity-Conception.

Quebec: Champleau, Sageunay.

Ontario: Cochrane, Kenora-Rainy River, Port Arthur.

Manitoba: Churchill.

Saskatchewan: Mackenzie, Meadow Lake, Prince Albert.

Alberta: Athabaska, Jasper-Edson, Peace River.

British Columbia; Cariboo, Skeena.

Yukon and Northwest Territories: Yukon, Mackenzie River.

Cities Crippled By 5 Feet Snow In Eastern States

Many Centres Declare States of Emergency

NEW YORK (CP) — A deathdealing storm swirled over the eastern United States Sunday, dropping up to 58 inches of snow and leaving cities crippled by huge drifts from Mississippi to New England.

The storm was centred over Maine today, moving slowly out over the Atlantic. Behind it, polar air moved in.

At least 72 deaths were attributed to the storm.

The snow which fell over the eastern seaboard was accompanied by gales of up to 60 miles an hour. The wind piled the snow into solid drifts, blocking rails, isolating towns and bringing highway travel to a standstill.

Many centres in New Jersey, New York and the New England states declared states of emergency.

STREETS CLOGGED

Civic officials in many cities asked motorists off streets until snow-removal equipment could open the way for normal traffic.

Worcester, Mass., reported no parking ban on downtown streets to aid snow clearing. But New York, with hundreds of cars deserted by stranded motorists, announced parking bans which it said would be ignored until the drivers have a chance to take their cars home.

Lebanon, N.H., recorded 58 inches of snow, Boston and Caribou, Me., reported 19 and 32 inches respectively. The fall on Boston weekend is a 37-year-old record of 16½ inches for a 24-hour snowfall.

At least 11 Connecticut communities declared states of emergency. Similar steps were taken in other New England states. The big problem was clearing highways of drifts—some as tall as a two-storey building—which isolated towns and villages.

The cold air moving in behind the snow caused the temperature at New York to eight degrees.

In the midwest, the thermometer fell to 30 degrees below zero at Bismarck, Mdt., and 29 below at Bemidji, Minn.

FLORIDA ESCAPES

Only the Pacific Coast and extreme southern portions of the U.S. escaped the outbreak. Florida, recovered from a rare spell of worst prolonged cold spells in many years, had cool but fair weather.

MARKS ANNIVERSARY

OTTAWA (CP) — Maj-Gen. D. C. Spry, director of the Boy Scouts International Bureau here, said Friday that the world would be more "confused" if there were no scout movement. Maj.-Gen. Spry sent a message to 8,000,000 scouts in connection with the 50th anniversary celebrations of the founder of the movement, Lord Baden-Powell, Feb. 22.

The three Prairie provinces had cold weather with temperatures dropping down to 40 below at Prince Albert, Sask. The northern parts of Alberta and Quebec were as cold as the Prairies today and the southern portions, just a little warmer.

No immediate letup was seen. Much of Manitoba prevailed, unusually warmer than the rest of Canada, had their own special cold, record breaking snowfall, rain, or both, and freezing temperatures.

Violent and unexpected snowsqualls battered southeastern Manitoba last night, driving temperatures below zero in most areas and paralyzing traffic between London and Sarnia.

From staring into the churning snow, ground crews at service stations and restaurants along Highways 22, 17, 7 and part of 3 west of London. An estimated 200 cars were piled up at Highway 3 and Talbotville, Ont., at 50 Parkhill, more at Arkona and Strathroy.

CITY and DISTRICT NEWS

FIREMEN CALLED TWO TIMES OVER WEEKEND

City firemen answered two minor alarms over the weekend, both for overheated stovepipes. One of the runs was to a Trent Road residence Sunday, and the other this morning to 100 North James Street. Nothing was used by firemen in either case.

Police Blotter

Provincial police reported a quiet weekend, but members of the city police department were kept on the jump Saturday night and Sunday by a rash of motor vehicle accidents.

One of the mishaps, a two-car collision on Main street Saturday night caused extensive property damage and sent two young persons to hospital with cuts. They were allowed to go home following treatment.

Police said the mishap occurred when a jeep driven by Doug McLaurin of Point Anne was in collision with a car driven by Robt. T. Cook, R.R. 2, Bellyille. Following the collision the car side-ded into a parked vehicle.

All Officers PC Association Are Returned

All officers of the Belleville and District Progressive Conservative Association were re-elected at the annual meeting held Saturday evening at Kiwanis Centre.

President Mac Smith was returned for his third term of office, with vice-presidents Ron Cass, R. Gus Porter and Dr. John Stock, also being returned. Secretary is W. J. McCormack and treasurer William Humphreys. Past president is John Lennox.

Approximately 60 Association members attended the meeting which was addressed by Ben Thompson, Progressive Conservative member for Northumberland in the Diefenbaker government, and Lee Grills, member for Hastings South.

Other speakers heard briefly at the meeting were E. "Sandy" Sandercock, MLA for Hastings West, Sam Curry, president of the Hastings South PC Association, and Ray Gunsolus, secretary of the riding association.

Harry Rollins presided over the election of new officers.

Madoc Man Arrested After Store Break-in

Charged with breaking entering Bristol Builders Supply in Madoc, where an unsuccessful attempt was made to open the safe, Clifford Bradeen, 25, of Madoc, was arrested and is being held in custody for court appearance on Friday at Madoc.

The Madoc man was arrested Saturday following investigation of the break-in Friday night, by Provincial Police Cpl Dougias Sears and village Chief John McCann.

The safe at the Bristol Builders Supply was found drilled but the intruder had been unsuccessful in his at'empt to open the strongbox. A high-powered rifle also was said stolen from the office.

LARGE FAMILY

The Canada goose usually lays five or six eggs, which hatch in 28 to 30 days.

Police Arrest Two Northport Men for Holdup

Arrested Sunday afternoon following a provincial police raid at their home in Prince Edward County, two Northport men, Wallace Malloy and Allan Corey, have been charged with the armed holdup of the Bank of Nova Scotia branch at Campbellville last January 23, police at Picton said today.

The men were temporarily lodged in the Prince Edward County jail at Picton.

Headed by Inspector J. Craig of the Criminal Investigation Branch of the OPP, OPP Cpl. Herbert Bolster of Picton, police from Picton and Belleville raided the Northport home and took two men into custody. No fire arms were said found at the home, but a sum of money believed connected with the $17,000 holdup of the Campbellville bank was recovered.

The men were arrested at the home of Charles Malloy, father of Wallace Malloy.

Last January three men armed with a sawed-off shotgun and a knife herded Miss Ella Joyce Carbet, into the office of manager, E. Gus Porter, and Mrs. Hayes to oven the safe. They bound and gagged the manager and tied Mrs. Hayes to a chair before escaping.

W.A. Shannon, Marmora Reeve, Liberal Choice

MARMORA (Special) — William A. Shannon, Marmora village reeve, will be the Liberal standard bearer for the riding of Hastings - Frontenac in the March 31st federal election.

Mr. Shannon was acclaimed as the Liberal candidate at the riding association convention held at the Marmora township hall on Saturday evening. Two other nominees, Mr. Stephen Barrington, Belleville, and Mrs. Ross F. Warner of Yarker, withdrew in favor of Mr. Shannon.

The Marmora townhall was filled to capacity for the nomination meeting which saw Mr. W. J. Pickersgill, former minister of Citizenship and Immigration as the guest speaker. Mr. Pickersgill told his listeners that the Diefenbaker government had shown no solution for the rising unemployment situation and rather than answer for its shortcoming had called the election.

Mr. Pickersgill was introduced by Norman Gilroy of Coe Hill, former riding association president. Mr. Frank Follwell, former Liberal member for Hastings South and Ex-Warden Elmer Wood, were also heard briefly.

Riding association president Frank Andrews of Norwood, expressed his appreciation for the big turnout then turned the meeting over to Jack Davidson of Havelock who acted as chairman for the evening.

A spirited interview with Mrs. Hugh Brady at the piano aided entertainment early in the evening, as did a humorous skit presented by Mrs. Peter Brawley and Miss Mary Hughes of Marmora.

CAN'T FULFILL PROMISES

Mr. Pickersgill said that one of the reasons for election had been called for the end of March is because "the Tories cannot fulfill the promises they could have shot their bolts." He said that it was, perhaps, "good for the Liberal party to be out of office for seven months, because now the Liberals have the ideas that will benefit every Canadian."

"The Conservatives are trying to hoodwink the population to get votes, they say they will fulfill their promises when they go back to Ottawa. They can't," said the speaker.

Those Without Political Affiliation Must Be Reached Liberal Convention Told

Hon. John W. Pickersgill, former Minister of Citizenship and Immigration, told Thursday's convention of the South Hastings Liberal Association in BCIVS that the March 31st elections will "definitely" see the Liberals go back to Ottawa.

"The continuing task of the Liberal party," he said, "is to open peoples' eyes, whereas the Progressive Conservatives throw dust in peoples' eyes. Therefore, the most important thing to remember when entering an election campaign is that it isn't the Tories or the Liberals who decide the outcome. It is the people who don't profess to have any political affiliation. Those are the people we must reach, and we are reaching them, I feel confident that the Liberal party will definitely go back to Ottawa in March."

Mr. Pickersgill said the sooner the Liberals end the P.C.'s "pause" in economic expansion, the better. Some of the things former Finance Minister Walter Harris did when he announced the federal budget last April, although they were in the best interests of every Canadian, cost us votes in June.

"We did things even if we wouldn't get votes the next day. We don't have that kind of government now," he said.

UNEMPLOYMENT ISSUE

Mr. Pickersgill did not blame the Progressive Conservative government for the current unemployment situation, but he did blame it for "not doing anything immediately to stop the trend." He remarked that although unemployment figures are high, it must be remembered that Canada's population increased by 500,000 people last year.

"I hope the Liberals will be fair and honest enough to vote for the things they did not do, but we can rest assured they have done many of the things," said the former Cabinet minister.

He said that the campaign of the Progressive Conservatives in last summer "caught on like napalm."

"In fact", he said, "some of us weren't even aware of it until after the elections were over. We got the kick in the pants we deserved."

He scored the Tories for conducting their current campaign by "smirching the reputations of the members of the good government which gave so much to Canada."

Prime Minister Diefenbaker dissolved parliament on February 1 "without having any money to run the government. The money that is being used to operate the country is coming from orders-in-council."

Mr. Pickersgill, who said the Liberals do not campaign by name-calling, said Mr. Diefenbaker is a "smart fellow . . . a distinguished lawyer who knows only how to present one side of a story, obscuring the other side."

FIGHTING JUNE ELECTION

Mr. Pickersgill claimed the Progressive Conservatives are still "fighting" the June election by referring to the failings of the then newly defeated Liberal government.

"Is that any way to campaign? The Tories can't blame the Liberals for anything that has happened since June, but they only how to say is 'blame the Liberals'."

Referring to Mr. Diefenbaker's caustic speech in Winnipeg last Wednesday, Mr. Pickersgill said that the Prime Minister's speech was the prime minister's proposal to build a "Chinese Wall" around the Arctic Ocean.

"That's a sure way to help the unemployment situation in southern Ontario," he said.

"If Diefenbaker couldn't figure out the unemployment situation between June and election day before he pronounced the so-called 'Nelson Canal' project, then he isn't fit to be prime minister," said the speaker.

Pickersgill said the government's attempts to swing 15 per cent of Canada's trade from U.S. to British markets, Mr. Pickersgill said, "I don't blame the Tories for trying to do something, but I do blame them for their policies which have failed."

EMIGRATION DIFFERENT NOW

Liberal party leader Lester B. Pearson has promised to curb Canadian emigration by $40a million if the Grits go back to Ottawa March 31st. He has made this promise now instead of Mr. Harris making the slice in June.

"It was impossible last April to curb emigration because of the inflationary period the country was experiencing. But now, with the unemployment, if more money is put into circulation, the unemployment situation might be eased."

Mr. Pickersgill said there is nothing wrong with the proposed gigantic works projects of the Progressive Conservatives, but he said those jobs will provide employment in Asia, 12 or 18 months. We want projects that will go into operation now, not next year to help unemployment situations is bad now."

Mr. Pickersgill said that one of the "greatest" things the Liberals did when they were in office was to bring in Newfoundland as Canada's tenth province. Also the construction of the commencement of the St. Lawrence seaway.

WORTHWHILE PERSONALITIES

"One of the biggest issues in this election campaign is the comparison of the characters and personalities of Mr. Pearson and Mr. Diefenbaker. Liberal party leaders have appealed to Canadians so greatly that never in history has a Liberal leader resorted to name-calling. Mr. Pearson, however, is the greatest statesman in the free world."

Perhaps even more important than any other issue is that of maintaining world peace," he said.

"Certainly the Conservatives are Canadians, and most of them are good ones, too, although they may have been misguided. But we must ask ourselves which leader is best qualified to lead the free world war which could wipe out employed and unemployed, Pearson or Diefenbaker? Of course, the choice must be Pearson."

STUART McNEE LOVE
(R. R. 2 Trenton)

Former employee of the Canadian General Electric with which firm he worked for many years, Mr. Stuart McNee Love, R. R. 2 Trenton, died suddenly at his home on Monday. He was in his 77th year.

Born in Dufferin county, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Love, he had lived in the Trenton district only for the past year. He was a member of the Salvation Army.

Predeceased by his wife, the former Hetty Simpson, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Ernest (Dorothy) Lee of Trenton, and a sister Miss Edith Love of Toronto.

The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

MRS. LLOYD KNOX

Ill for only one day, Mrs. Mary Jane Knox, 48 Chatham Street, died Monday at the Belleville General Hospital. She was in her 75th year.

Daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Chris-opher Deyo, she was born at Wallbridge and has lived in Belleville for the past 45 years. She was a member of Bridge Street United Church.

She is survived by her husband, Lloyd Knox, at home; Robert Douglas Knox, of Belleville. She is the last of her family.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home, the funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

MRS. FRANK GUAY

Suffering a fall in her home on Friday, Mrs. Mary Guay, of Benjamin Street, died suddenly at the Belleville General Hospital on Saturday.

Mrs. Guay had hurt her shoulder as result of the fall and had gone to the hospital for treatment. She was in her 78th year.

Born in Marmora, she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Foley and had lived in Belleville for the past two and a half years. Previously she had lived on the farm north of Corbyville in Thurlow township.

She was a member of St. Michael's Church and of the Rosary Society. Predeceased by husband, Frank Guay, died in 1949.

Surviving are four sons, Xavier of Corbyville, Noel, Norman and Jack of Belleville, and three daughters, Mrs. Frank (Roslyn) Nolan, Mrs. Wilfred (Violet) Foley, and Mrs. Kenneth (Veronica) Fox, all of Belleville.

Also surviving is a brother, Joseph Foley of Toronto, and a sister, Miss Madeline Foley of Baton Rouge, La. A son, Vincent, was killed in action while serving with the Royal Canadian Navy during the last war.

Resting at the Hubbard Residence of George F. O'Brien; the funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

WILLIAM NELSON SIMMONS

The funeral of the late William Nelson Simmons, will take place Friday afternoon from the Rowe Funeral Home to Trinity Anglican Church where the service was conducted by Rev. Russell Gale of Stirling, assisted in the sanctuary by Rev. Peter Tett of Trenton, and Rev. W. L. Simmons of Napanee.

Members of Frank Lodge No. 180 I.O.O.F. were at the funeral home on Thursday night.

Interment was in Frankford Cemetery.

The bearers were George Spencer, George Montgomery, Ernest Anderson, Albert Caskey, William Pollard and Ernest Wallace.

ANCIENT TOOLS

Metal saws have been unearthed from graves at Kish, one of the more important ancient cities of Sumer.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

This is Boy Scout Week in Canada.

This week parents of boys and girls in the Scouting movement in Belleville are invited to attend a giant hobby show sponsored by Rovers and Rangers in Christ Church parish hall on Friday evening. Saturday evening the Belleville Boy Scouts Local Association will again play host to the scores of leaders and assistants in the city at a buffet dinner in the same parish hall.

Saturday night is the birthday of Lord Baden-Powell, British founder of Boy Scouts. He was born February 22, 1857, and, in observance of his contributions to the youth of the world, the CBC's network television show, "Holiday Ranch", will be dedicated to Scouting at 7:30 on CKWS-TV, channel 11, next Saturday night.

A despatch from Canadian Scout Headquarters in Ottawa shows that last fall's national Scout Apple Day netted the total profits of $23,674.38. The organization in Belleville netted $1,212, an increase of $103 over the previous year.

The Belleville Cubs pack has graduated five Cubs into the Scout troop. Now Scouts are Richard McCormick, Keith Taylor, Jimmy Williams, Danny Keene and Billy Sproule.

District Commissioner John Townsend and assistant leaders Mrs. Thelma Williams and Mrs. Barbara Clarke, bid the boys farewell and welcomed them coming in the Scout troop under the leadership of Scouter Ralph Bush and his assistants, Jim McBride and Queen's Scout Clarence Morris.

Seven of the 5th Belleville Scouts received Leaping Wolf badges, signifying they had been Cubs who attained all 10 proficiency badges and had overnight camp records. They were Brian McBride, Bob Townsend, Gerald Yates, Keith Smith, Bill Schulham, Howard Thompson and Jay Kiser. Their former Cubmaster, Jim Williams, presented the badges.

Traffic Slowed By Heavy Drifts In Quinte Area

A 4 inch fall of snow coupled with a brisk wind which piled drifts into deep cuts played havoc with vehicular traffic in the Bay of Quinte district over the weekend.

Today provincial police reported highway driving was treacherous with slippery road conditions and drifting snow nearly obliterating the roadways.

Rural roads were reported in an even worse condition with traffic being almost stopped in many sections.

Many rural schools, most of them in wind-swept Prince Edward county, were closed, while others in the district were late.

Lowest temperature for Sunday night was several below zero, and at noon the mercury had risen only one degree to six below. And the weatherman says more of the same to come.

At the city pump house officials stated that the first half of February has been the coldest in 16 years. In 1936 the mean temperature for February was 11.9 degrees, with the first half of February this year having exactly the same average reading.

IN MEMORIAM

GREEN. — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Margaret Eleanor who passed away February 16th, 1954.

Memory is a gift to give you, as time by time you take it down.

Thinking of things we used to do and the fun we had.

Sometimes my memories make me cry.

But they're precious to me alone, such simple things we had.

—Lovingly remembered by husband Reginald and family.

GREEN. — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother who passed away February 16th, 1954.

Eleanor Green, who was called away from us in 1954.

We who loved you really know, how dearly you are missed.

In our lonely hours of thinking, memories bring you near.

You were unselfish in all you did, your son

Murray double-in-law Clara and dear grandchildren Gloria and Dawson.

GREEN. — In loving memory of my dear mother and grandmother, Margaret Eleanor Green, who passed away February 16th, 1954.

What is home without a mother?

Memories of her are dearer still.

But when we lost our darling mother

We lost all.

We miss her and dearest friend, Her memory remembered and loved by Granddaughter Audrey and Grandson Gord and granddaughter Carolyn.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market was irregularly lower in quiet morning trading.

Industrials were one-quarter of a point easier on index while western oils and base metals each lost less than one-quarter of a point. Golds were strong with an index gain of nearly one-half point.

The 11 a.m. volume of 559,000 shares was the lightest in more than three weeks. Friday's first-hour sales totalled 596,000.

Most industrial changes were fractional but Bright added a point at 17½, B-A Oil, Canadian Export, Dominion Steel, Interprovincial Pipe Line and Trans Mountain had fractional gains.

Aluminium, Atlas Steels, Canada Packers B, Canadian Breweries, CPR, Dominion Tar, Gatineau Power, Industrial Acceptance, Moore Corp., Royal Bank, Asbestos, Consolidated Paper and International Paper were each down at least ¼ and generally around ½ and ¾.

Trading among mining stocks was quieter than in most of the recent sessions. Senior base metals moved in a narrow range Denison lost ¼ at 12½ among high-volume changers.

Kerr-Addison was off ¼ at 17 among senior golds but a majority of low-priced stocks in this section scored a 10-cent range. Consolidated Discovery was up 13 cents to $2.90.

Uranium oils were down with Fargo off 15 cents at $5.65 and Denison lost ¼ at 12½ among high-volume changers. Other changes were smaller.

Trenton Takes Two Wins Over BCI Hoopsters

By DONN MARTINSON

Last Friday night the BCIVS basketball teams visited Trenton and only the juniors returned home boasting a victory while the seniors went down and lost their first games of the season.

The Trenton bantams outlled away with a 25-6 win in the first quarter but then the B.C.I squad played their best ball in the second quarter and outscored the home team 9-2 to take a 13-8 lead at half time. The B.C.I. team faltered in the third quarter when they scored just one point to Trenton's five points and then Trenton evened the score at the end of regulation time by outscoring the visitors 5-4 to make the score 18-18. In the three minute overtime period Trenton scored four foul shots while keeping B.C.I. off the score sheet taking the game 22-18. Pete Wertz was top scorer for B.C.I. with 7 points followed by Pete Annis who potted six. Jordan was top man for Trenton with seven points.

For the second quarters of the junior game, the Trenton team kept pressure on the heels of the visiting B.C.I. team but in the final quarter the B.C.I. squad completely dominated the play to give them a 49-30 win. The first half was very close with B.C.I holding a 10-9 scoring edge in the third quarter but had a 6-0 edge in the second quarter to give them a 20-19 lead at the end of the third quarter time the visitors had increased their point total by a whopping a 27-22 score. In the final quarter, B.C.I. used an effective fast break to add to their point total game outscoring the homesters 29-23 for the game. Brian MacKenzie hooped 18 points for the winners followed by Nelson Banting and Don Masters with seven points each. Stewart was top scorer for Trenton with 10 points.

The senior game was the closest game of the night and was a better game of the season. In the first quarter Trenton jumped to an early 23-18 lead but the visitors fought back to take a slim 30-31 lead at half time. In the second half B.C.I. missed several easy "dog" shots to lose the scoring advantage of B.C.I.'s misses and outscored B.C.I. in the third quarter 21-11. B.C.I. outscored the home team 13-11 in the final quarter but fell six points short as Trenton handed B.C.I. its first defeat by a 66-60 count. Roger Brown ringed in 19 points for B.C.I. followed by Gord "Pork" Irwin with 11 points. Hilton and Stewart led the Trenton scorers with 18 points each.

Masked Robbers Tie up Cleaners... And Steal $6,000

TORONTO (CP)—Four masked bandits, two of them armed, robbed a restaurant in suburban Etobicoke early today and escaped with about $6,000.

Police said the four entered the restaurant through a rear door, tied back door and overwhelmed and bound four cleaners. They also tied one, Leo Biggs, 56. He later was taken to hospital and received eight stitches to close head wounds.

Salvation Army Founder's Kin Is Speaker Here

A tall, greying, mild-mannered gentleman, wearing the distinctive uniform of a Salvation Army officer was in Belleville over the weekend to lead services in the Citadel and to meet fellow, Army personnel in Belleville Morgan Manager's command.

He was Commissioner Wycliffe Booth, grandson of William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army.

After speaking to a banquet in the Citadel Saturday evening, Commissioner Booth explained to this reporter that he is in charge of all Salvation Army units in Canada and Bermuda.

His grandfather, William Booth, made the first move to organize in the slums of Nottingham what was later called the Salvation Army.

Late Wiliam Booth was surrounded at the way men and women shut God out of their daily living in that city, he took on the enormous job at the age of 14 years of rehabilitating them in mind and spirit.

Called "Serendelle" the carnival saw the members of the Figure Skating Club tell the story of Cinderella in words, music and flashing skates on Friday and Saturday night at the Community Centre here.

The story was told by Ted Snider, who acted as master of ceremonies, and the music came from recordings. The young members of the skating club provided the acting. Organ music during intermission was played by Willam Long.

Mrs. Isabel Adams, club professional, was in charge of the carnival as well as the teaching of the members. She is also a leading figure in the forming of the Trenton Figure Skating Club, which is not yet a year old.

Violence Flares On Israel Border

JERUSALEM (AP) — Charges of border violence were traded Sunday by Israel and three of Arab neighbors—Egypt, Jordan and Syria.

One involved the alleged killing of a 10-year-old Arab boy along the Gaza truce line patrolled by the UN Emergency Force.

In the Mount Scopus area, Israel charged that three policemen were wounded when they fired warning shots at farmers plowing in the Israeli sector.

Egypt charged that Israelis fired at two Arab boys guarding sheep near Gaza town. They said one boy was killed and the his body and 73 sheep, the Egyptians said.

Israel also charged that Syrians fired on four Israeli policemen in the Huleh reclamation project.

The Syrian army said an Israeli patrol moved across the line in the central sector at the Syrian-Israeli demilitarized zone and fired on an Arab village.

Fourteen High School Teachers Tour Station

TRENTON — A flight over the Bay of Quinte area highlighted a tour of the R.C.A.F. Station, Trenton, for 14 school teachers from seven local communities. The flight was made in a Dakota aircraft supplied by 102 Communications and Rescue Unit on Downsview.

The trip in the twin-engined transport also ended the day at the air station for the interested teachers.

The tour, arranged by FO. R. Russell of the recruiting unit at Toronto, was designed to familiarize the visitors with the RCAF as an aid to counselling.

The group was greeted by Group Captain B. M. Cox, commanding officer and Wing Commander J. F. Easton, chief operations officer, who briefed the teachers on the various types of operations of the huge air station.

"You hear of our operations posting, to the R.C.A.F. Station," with a note of humor being added by Wing Commander Easton. Crowned noisily overhead, four-ton four tour we hope you have a better understanding of us," Easton carried out here. I would like you to know that operations are a community, with over 600 permanent homes, two schools and a hospital and a recreational complex which make up any community."

Mr. Easton explained that here, too group visited the school of instructional techniques, where the RCAF trains personnel for a teaching role in one of the RCAF's training schools.

SEE DEMONSTRATIONS

Next the visitors toured No. 6 Field Technical Training Unit, commanded by W/C H. B. Bettis, where they saw demonstrations in the instructional methods of "mock-ups" of jet aircraft landing gear, radio equipment, ejection seats and other equipment used in the training of jet pilots and ground crew technicians.

Squadron Leader Bert Millikan, officer commanding the communications and rescue flight, briefed them on the operations of the unit's helicopters. The three pilots showed the group the use of the Bell 47 helicopter aircraft and the Vertol helicopter, all used in search and rescue operations.

At No. 6 hangar, where jet fighters are repaired, the teachers watched technicians conduct repairs and tests during the overhaul of a jet fighter engine. Afterwards some of the visitors watched Flight Lieutenant Ken Hamilton, of Hamilton, carried out landing gear tests on a jet mounted on jacks.

After a tour of No. 4 (transport) Operational Training Unit, the visitors returned to the officers' mess for lunch.

The visitors and the schools they represented were: Mrs. Ellis Hwain and K. J. Ferren, of Trenton; Miss Gertrude G. King, principal and W. J. Wade of Cobourg Collegiate; W. R. Hamilton, principal and Miss Ruth of Tweed High School; P. J. Fitzpatrick, principal and Miss Ruth T. O'Brien of Port Hope High School; W. C. Orr, principal and Harold Marchand of Belleville Collegiate Vocational Institute, Miss Jean Sloan of Quinte Secondary School, Belleville and R. Fulton of Brighton High School.

70-Pound Rocket Falls off Plane, Not Yet Found

TRENTON — Airmen of the RCAF Station Trenton were out again today searching for a rocket which was dropped, accidentally, from a Navy Avenger plane coming in for a landing at the air station here on Saturday.

Although the five-foot, 70-pound rocket cannot be detonated, except by heat or electricity, civilians in the area of the air station are warned to give it a wide berth if they find it, and report its location to RCAF officials immediately. The rocket contains cordite explosive.

No one had seen the rocket dropped and it is believed to be in the north, or northwest, side of the airdrome. However heavy drifting snow during the week end is expected to make it impossible to locate the rocket for some time.

The group of Navy planes arrived in Trenton on Saturday for a weekend of training and were under the command of Lieut. Rogers, U.S. Navy, from Toronto.

Commenting on the incident, navy officer, Lieut. Rogers stated he believed the rocket was jarred loose from the plane when the aircraft made a change in speed during its final approach for landing.

He said the navy planes were ordered to Trenton on Saturday because of bad weather conditions at their own base.

FRANCE, TUNISIA

The council is scheduled to debate an earlier Tunisian complaint over the Sakiet Sidi Youssef bomb raid Tuesday. The British-American offer was designed to avert the council debate, which the West feels would give the Communists a new chance for propaganda attacks on the Western powers.

A Tunisian spokesman said the negotiations with the British and American offers would cover have not been decided.

Meanwhile, Tunisia's complaint in the Security Council would continue.

Tupisian President Habib Bourguiba cabled his UN delegate, Mongi Slim, to put the new demand before the council as an extension of Tunisia's previous protest against the French air attack. Feb. 8 on the border village of Sakiet Sidi Youssef. The council is to debate the earlier complaint Tuesday.

Bourguiba said in an interview he enlarged his demand because France countered his first protest to the UN with a demand for a UN investigation of Algerian rebel operations from Tunisian sanctuaries.

FRENCH CLAIMS

The French contended they bombed Sakiet Sidi Youssef because rebels were concentrated there. Tunisia claimed 75 persons, including women and children, were killed.

Western sources termed the new Tunisian move highly embarrassing to the United States. They feared it would give the Communists a new platform from which to attack the West.

A United States conciliation offer, made before the Western diplomatic circles first France and Tunisia, was rejected by the council deadlock by an overwhelming vote. But they were already discussing a solution of their own and were watching attack.

FLFAT REJECTION

Asked if this would happen, Bourguiba in an interview Sunday said: "I do not think the council would be so stupid as to reject the new demand. For the moment, I am not going to stand on Algeria's independence. I am only asking that Tunisian president Habib Bourguiba be given the right to defend his country."

Then the French have charged that the fellegha freedom fighters made their way through Tunisia. Now they want the world to see and discuss the fellegha and not the fellegha.

WAS BEFORE ASSEMBLY

The Afro-Asian group of nations has brought the Algerian fighting before the General Assembly three times but it has not been before the Security Council before. France has previously rejected all UN intervention, contending that the North African territory is her domestic concern.

There was no immediate official comment from Paris on Bourguiba's move, but it was certain to provoke strong French opposition in the council. France is a permanent member of the council and can block an investigation with a veto.

Young Mother Saves Children, Dies in Fire

CAPREOL Ont. (CP)—A young mother Sunday saved both of her children from a fire which destroyed her one-storey frame home.

Dead is Mrs. Eileen Graveline, 26, formerly of Fort Coulonge, Que.

Neighbor Eusebe Lalonde said: "She got them out of the house and had thrown out little Kim."

He found the two-year-old girl on the lawn, broken glass lying around the snow under the window.

Mrs. Graveline reappeared with her son Stephan, 2.

To him, then 3 grabbed Mrs. Graveline by the front of her nightgown but she went down into the window.

Mrs. Graveline's body was found in a kneeling position by the window three hobre later.

Mrs. Graveline's husband, Richard, an employee of Moose Mountain Mine, was at work when the blaze broke out.

Saving Time . . .

This is the age of speed . . . we find it in travel . . . in new manufacturing processes . . . in "paper work" . . . and in a multitude of ways to get things done faster . . . and better. In most cases saving time and money go hand in hand . . . there are exceptions. One exception is the planning of an investment program. Here, too much speed might be harmful. To prepare an investment program suited to your needs requires careful planning.

Because each person's requirements are different, investment becomes a personal matter, a matter which should only be dealt with cares fully and, preferably with the help of experienced people.

Providing investment advice is an important part of our business. If you would like us to help you design an investment program or to select securities for your present program, we may be able to save time for you but, more important, we think we can help you do a better job.

Experienced people in each of our offices will be happy to discuss your investment problems with you in person, or by mail, whichever is more convenient to you:

BRITAIN'S MUSKETEERS ARE BACK

Does anybody read "The Three Musketeers" in these days of science fiction and adult westerns? If they do, and if Alexander Dumas the Elder thrills boys and girls today as he did a generation ago, and for generations before that, we presume that there is still enjoyed today the unique thrill of discovering "Twenty Years After." Perhaps, too, today's reader finds his credulity is strained to discover that, after twenty whole years, D'Artagan, Athos, Porthos and Aramis are not merely still alive but virtually unchanged. It is easier for the writer to accept that situation today, when the names of these four heroes come back over not twenty, but thirty years and tumble off the keys of the typewriter almost without conscious effort, although a distrusting mind may question a point of spelling here and there.

Strange, too, that the memory of "The Three Musketeers" should have been evoked not by witnessing some of the distorted adventures of the Count of Monte Cristo on television, but by the performance of the British Liberal Party in Wednesday's by-election at Rochdale, Lancashire.

Yet there is a resemblance. Here is the British Liberal Party suddenly in action again, more than a score of years after it was written off as a fighting force.

Historians may quarrel with that statement. The Liberal party in Britain, they will tell us, died a slow death after the end of the First Great War, squeezed between the upper and nether millstones of the Conservative and Labor political machines.

That may tell the story for historians, but the day that the Liberal Party disintegrated, along with the Labor party, was the day that Ramsay MacDonald formed his National Government, during the early years of the depression. Because of that act, Labor parties were split. Instead of three parties in the House of Commons, there were five, Conservative, National Liberal, National Labor, Liberal and Labor. The Labor party recovered from this split personality, with the "National Labor" group disappearing. The Liberal party never regained even that shaky status in which it found itself prior to the financial crisis of 1931.

Now, though, the musketeers of the Liberal party are riding again. But whereas D'Artagan, Athos, Porthos and Aramis had an old and familiar antagonist to test their foils, today's world is vastly different from that in which these Liberalism jousted with such success in the years preceding the First Great War.

It sometimes appears as if today's Liberals in Britain are still eager to cross swords with the same old foes, as if they are still dedicated to freedom, of trade and of person. But if this be so, it is difficult to see how they can hope for widespread support at the polls. They are out of step with the times. In a land where even the man who proudly wears the tag of "Tory" will publicly support "cradle to grave" security measures, the age of rugged individualism is obviously dead. What votes the Liberals are getting, at Rochdale and in other recent British by-elections, are obviously for the old liberalism but the protests of those who, while disliking the fruits of the present Conservative government, are fearful that those provided by a Labor regime would be even more distasteful. Nor is this taste which they dislike limited with a distrust of all controls, but rather it is concerned with the twentieth-century ogre of the cost-of-living outracing the price paid for working.

The British Liberals, if they are to reap the harvest of votes which some predict for them, will have to equip themselves with new uniforms more in keeping with present-day conditions. Unlike D'Artagan, Athos, Porthos and Aramis, they cannot enter the lists armed with thought but yesterday's swords and yesterday's memories.

THE YOUNG WISE MEN

We think that wisdom is synonymous with experience, that it is reserved for the aged.

It just is not so.

Sometimes only the young are wise.

Down around King and Melinda streets in Toronto, where two of the nation's biggest newspapers are published, there may be some who will be shocked by this little story.

Nevertheless, we must report that two of the Belleville representatives of these newspapers were caught in the act of co-operation the other day.

"Hey," said the carrier boy for the King Street paper to the carrier in the Melinda Street paper, "are you going to deliver those two for me?"

"What about Mrs. Smith's paper last night; she didn't get it," replied the Melinda Street representative.

But they got that difficulty ironed out and went about the business of delivering the papers with the maximum efficiency, which naturally demands that there be no duplication of routes.

Co-operation like this is a wisdom which will be eradicated by experience, this disappearance coming, we suspect, with sudden swiftness if the experienced men in the industry manage to identify the culprits.

"Single aid and comfort to the enemy," that's what they will call it.

In France the other day a single oak tree, 81 feet high, was sold for the equivalent of $3,204.

"Why should anyone want to pay more than $3,000 for a single dead tree?" wonders the Saint John Telegraph-Journal.

Perhaps because he needed some lumber and could not afford to pay the retail price.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE LINK WE NEED

The closer we get to the link that connects us to others. We cannot be long disconnected from others and be either healthy or happy. We need others, and others need us. All are bound to us. The very stars are a part of our inheritance.

All about us, however, are invisible, and therefore potential, friends. We are akin to all Nature. But that tie can never be too highly displayed. Naturalists live close to the elementariness of life. They look upon it in all its glory. Even the tiniest flower as a place in the scheme of things, as designed by our Creator. We need to be linked to all Nature and to all life. Most of all, however, with our fellow beings, who are o u r friends. When we get out of touch with our friends, we lost something of the precious substance of life itself.

We need that link that will bind the world together and make of this earth one happy family. How unhappy families fighting one another! Peace among nations can be the most treasured plan since man was placed upon the earth. Why should nations fight? What people be gained? Peace and good will among all nations. There could be no greater plan.

Imagine what such a plan could mean to the millions who have craved for a better day Just think what a streamer in all our newspapers would mean. Something like this: No more war. All nations agree to destroy all armaments United Nations to be headquarters for all peaceful pursuits

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WHY NOT BE HAPPY?

Yes: Why not?

Fifty reasons why not, you reply angrily. And we may counter by saying twice or three times fifty so far as we are concerned, for if you give one reason why you are unhappy, almost any one of us can give better reasons why we are justified in being unhappy. The truth of the matter is that happiness and unhappiness do not depend upon the amount of grief, frustration, disappointment, and pain we bear, but on the way we bear it. For there are many whose life has very little in it but trial and are nevertheless quite content, definitely on the happy side of the line, and there are others whose every advantage life can confer and no burdens worth speaking of who nevertheless complain all the time and are to be classed among the most unhappy able of God's creatures.

The difference in mood lies not in the realm of circumstances but in the realm of personality. We should be glad right of that some people are unhappy because of some sub-normal physical condition — inadequate digestion, low blood pressure, the failure of some vital organ to function properly. Others inherit a tendency toward melancholy. But the great mass of people are happy or unhappy depending on whether they cultivate their problems with courage and faith; or with complaining and selfish introversion.

Are you unhappy? Ask yourself who's to blame.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of my acquaintances who is general manager of a fairly hustling organization recently hired one of those cities that is our most business, in which everybody suddenly gets crucial, dovenly, dopey. What brought the crisis to a head was the disappearance of a valuable technical book, one of those loose-leaf volumes with a slippery plastic cover.

The general manager, who had borrowed it from a competitor, forwarded it by office boy to one of his junior clerks in the other company. It never arrived; a matter of about fifty feet in distance. Nobody knew about it. The office boy vowed he had delivered it. The secretaries of the addressee denied they had seen it. A search, not unlike a spring cleaning of the entire premises, failed to discover it. Finally, there it was, sitting on top of the office mail box.

Ah! Then the stenographer who was commissioned to deliver it to its proper destination found it stuck in its slippery cover, undetected, from the bundle of files she was also carrying. When it was finally a desk it was lost again for three days. When it was finally recovered, the boss called a full meeting of all the staff, from stenographer-secretary to office boy.

"Now, her roared, "do you think you are working for? Yourselves? I'm the general manager and what I am not working for myself! Now, snap out of it!"

Then he got the book back, he took it home for safe keeping until he could return it personally a few days later.

His wife threw it out in the garbage, along with a lot of last week's magazines and other junk she found scattered around the living room.

HOUSEHOLD FINANCIERING

Now when it comes to high finance, command me to a wife.
She's keener than a Wall Street wolf and sharper than a knife.
Man gives her so much every week to run the house and buy
The food and pay the bills, and yet, whenever he is nigh
She borrows what she needs from him for laundry or for cake,
Because she only has a bill she doesn't want to break.

She touches him for quarters and for dimes most every night.
If he "had half a dollar" she "could make the change all right."
And as she borrows it from him, but never pays him back;
She stings him for a loat of bread and things the house may lack.
And should he ever make a kick, she mutters: "Goodness' sake!
I'd pay it, but I have a bill I do not want to break."

Man's been up against a lot of games in his life he has to face show;
On raffle tickets he has spent a goodly sum of dough;
He has wagered on the races, and he's bet on prize fights too;
He's tried to draw another king when two would hardly do.
But by far the longest chances are those when wifey has a bill
Are those when wifey has a bill she doesn't want to break.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

February 17th., 1938.

Mr. C. H. Cosse, who has been district manager of the Coca-Cola Company with offices here for close to nine years, is leaving shortly to represent the company in Australia, and a dinner was tendered him at the Queen's Hotel Saturday evening by members of the staff here and in Peterborough. During the evening many expressions of regret were made at his leaving and as a slight token of the esteem of his friends in the company he was presented with a handsome wardrobe and a gladstone bag.

Mr. A. C. McFee of Ottawa, formerly of the Inland Revenue Department here spent yesterday in town.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. McGowan, who have resided here on Albert Street for some time, have left with their family to reside in Trenton where Mr. McGowan has been transferred as C.P.R. agent at that point.

Members of the Argyll Chapter, I.O.D.E., met and officers attended in a body the morning service in St. Thomas' Church on Sunday, when the rector, the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, conducted the service and paid fitting great services to the Empire and to those in the Empire. I.O.D.E. was founded during the South African War.

Mrs. Jas. Bleecker left on Saturday to visit her daughter, Mrs. W. T. Bailey of Toronto; Mrs. W. T. Bailey (Dr.) Binns in Welland.

Miss Ada A. Weese, ex M.P. for Prince Edward-Lennox, and a prominent canner in the district, has been elected from New York City for England on the Republican ticket. Miss Weese is a delegate from the Canners' Association and the Women's Clubs and other business matters pertaining to the canning industry while he is in England.

30 YEARS AGO

February 17th., 1928.

Two hundred head of cattle have arrived at the Corbyville Stock Yards. Cattle are sent there every year to be fattened.

6,000-Yr.-Old Bronze Tools

TORONTO — The early history of nickel has been rolled back some 6,000 years as a result of research findings presented in the paper published in the current issue of the American Journal of Archaeology.

Mr. Stuart Poate is geologist who had previously dated from 3,000 to 4,000 B.C. the copper-nickel coinage was developed in the Kingdom of Bactria, the region between Persia and India back to the ancient civilizations of Mesopotamia and the Land of the Indus Valley. Nickel, the paper notes, is now known to be present in small but significant amounts in certain bronze tools and weapons dating from more than 6,000 years ago.

The authors of the paper are Charles Schwitter, manager of market research of The International Nickel Company, and Dr. C. F. Cheng, formerly associated with Inco's development and research division.

They report in the paper that many Sumerian bronzes contained traces of nickle which was "sometimes associated with copper in the type of ores available to ancient man." At the same time, there existed bronzes, some articles contain nickel in quantities greater than one per cent; and these content cannot be dismissed as "simply a fortuitous impurity." The authors refuse — but do not answer — the question as to whether artisans of the ancient civilizations of Sumeria, Syria and the Indus Valley "deliberately and consciously selected nickel-containing copper ores when fashioning weapons and tools requiring strength and hardness."

Nickel is possible to identify definitely the source of nickle metal for these early bronze smiths of 4000-3500 B. C., the authors feel the sources may have been Oman, a state bordering the Arabian sea, Qualitative spectrochemical examinations of a number of Syrian bronze reamers showed that nickel ranged from negligible quantities to about two per cent. Similar examinations of bronzes from this period show nickel content up to 3.34 per cent.

"Nickel was present in quantity sufficient to exert a hardening effect only in the wrought reamers, and not in several cast reamers," the paper states. The metallurgists Schwitter and Cheng report. At the same time, they point out that there are many wrought and cast bronze objects from this period that "contain little or no nickel" despite the obvious need for strength. For this reason, the authors emphasize that they are merely "speculating" on the deliberate and conscious use of nickel-containing copper ores for certain applications.

"The Odes of Tsin," the oldest Chinese classic dated dating from the eleventh to the seventh century B.C., mentions another early use of nickel bronze. The character "Wu", meaning white, is defined by Wills, defined in an early Chinese dictionary as "bronze or white copper", is used in the Odes to describe the bridle hardware of war chariots. The Chinese world was first introduced to nickel in 1823, when it was "about 1770 B.C.," the article reports. One coin from this period is known to contain 77 per cent copper and 20 per cent nickel. Bactria was a kingdom in northwestern India which was conquered by Alexander the Great in 336 B.C. It is demonstrated that the source of nickel for these early coins originated in China at a time when ordinary trade routes had not hitherto been believed existent.

While the Schwitter-Cheng paper dates the use of nickle back some 6,000 years, the metal was not isolated as an element until some 1,800 years ago (1751), and its greatest usefulness to civilization has been developed in the last 50 years.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

ALLERGY MAY DEPEND ON SENSITIVITY TO FOOD IN VARYING AMOUNTS

"Dear Dr. Molner: I had a bad attack of dizziness and throbbing on top of my head and nausea, and had to stay in bed several days. After that I broke out with sores on my gums, inside my mouth, and on my face around the mouth and chin and neck.

"A skin doctor told me that it was the result of my toothpaste. It was the first time I had used the brand. If something in this paste is so harmful, it shouldn't be sold to the public. — R.G."

Allergy — what an abomination it can be when you are allergic to something. You had a really miserable case of it.

You are entitled to the utmost sympathy for the unhappy experience, but you're not correct in saying that it "shouldn't be sold to the public." It may be a good product which you don't happen to be able to tolerate.

To explain just what I mean, think of all the things which a certain proportion of people cannot touch or handle without breaking out — tomatoes, strawberries, carbon paper, house dust, dog hair, ordinary garden plants, grass, nuts, eggs, soaps, perfumes, nickel-plated or gold objects. The list is endless. Why, even such a "universal" food as bread and milk was three years old. She's been on soy bean milk for two years now. Every time I change her milk she breaks out. Do you think that's because only eczema or is there some other food that is affecting her? R.S.

When you say you "change her milk," I presume you mean that you feed her soy bean milk and tiny cow's milk again.

THE DEGREE VARIES

It is rare for a child to be allergic to only one thing, but the degree of allergy probably will be greatest to the thing which might be the main cause of allergy in this case, but I suggest you be on the lookout for other foods to which she may be sensitive.

When you start adding some new food to her diet, do it cautiously. Give very small amounts, just a taste-at first, since in that way it can soon get used to and build a tolerance for the food.

If she is mildly sensitive to some vegetable, for example, eating a lot of it the first time may touch off the cascade so that she never will be able to eat it. Or not for a long time. Getting used to it gradually, on the other hand, may prevent future trouble with that food.

Remember that allergy depends on two factors, not just one. First, is the person sensitive to the food? Second, in what amount? If the amount is kept smaller than the quantity which will cause an upset, then very gradually the body tends to build up a tolerance. But if you "swamp" the system with too much, then even small amounts in the future again will trigger the reaction.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am a boy 13 years old. My height is four feet, six inches and my weight 70 pounds. I am in the 8th grade. I would like to know if my weight or height is stopping your growth or harms your health or growth. — T. B."

Your height is normal. Your growth is a lot of baloney, even though you may be filled out in a good cause. The plain answer is yes, smoking harms the health, but not in the way you mean. Throat tissues (cigars) cough shows the irritation it causes to your breathing; the nicotine has an effect on your arteries.

There are a lot of other things that harm the health — not getting enough sleep, rest, and exercise, eating the wrong things and others. My best advice to you is not to smoke.

Are you a victim of "vitamin starvation?" To make sure that you're getting adequate proper food, write to me in care of this newspaper for my pamphlet "Vitamin-Alphabet of Health," enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5c coin to cover handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Mediaeval Bird-Watcher

BBC London Letter

Every child today knows about the cuckoo's curious habit of laying its eggs in other birds's nests; but seven hundred years or so ago it was a new discovery, and the man who made it was Frederick II of Hohenstaufen, who lived from 1169 to 1250 and became Emperor of the vast Holy Roman Empire at the age of eighteen. Frederick, who engaged in a life-long struggle for power with the Papal States, was described by his sgalm, came to be known as Stupor Mundi — "World's Wonder". At his Sicilian court the cuckoo was invented, and he studied mathematical and metaphysical problems, animals, plants and birds. The original manuscript of his authoritative book on birds is in the Vatican Library, but it survives as much more than a curiosity of literature, and the latest observations are published in Britain only two years ago.

Miss Gillian Brett, whose life of Frederick II has recently been published, says in the BBC programme "The Eyewitness" about his observations on the cuckoo: "Of course, all he knew was the first man to make a scientific study of it, based on actual observation," she said. "And he did not hesitate to disagree with Aristotle and other established authorities. Thus he pointed out that the calls of migrating cranes, herons, geese and ducks are not, as Aristotle thought, the result of their efforts to fly, but real flight directions from the leader of the group, who, when he is tired will give up his place to another bird. Frederick also found that plantation that the Emperor Nero had cut a have a prophetic instinct about storms, and will delay their departure if a storm is on its arrives, but on the other hand once a favorable wind has arisen they will even leave their food in order to continue their flight immediately."

The Emperor was far too modern in outlook to accept the mediaeval legend that barnacle geese hatched out of barnacles like mussels or rotting shins. "By examining them carefully," he rightly drew the conclusion that the legend arose from the fact that the birds feed in such remote places that no man has ever seen their nests. He recorded experiments in artificial incubation in hot sand, and his methods were observed in this science brought to vitality for the purpose."

Frederick's wife was the sister of King Henry III of England, and his two most trusted falconers were Englishmen, father and son, known as Master Theodore and Master William Anglicus. Frederick noticed, said Miss Masson, that sometimes the falconers they did not call their falcons when luring them back to the perch, but the only explanation that the Emperor could get from them was: "It is an old English custom."

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK — By R. J. SCOTT

Impressive Ceremony, Color Mark Change-of-Command Hastings, Pr. Edward Regt.

Angus B. Duffy who joined the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment at 18, today commands the famous militia unit in which he fought in-the Second World War as a regimental sergeant major.

Two brilliant military careers went their various ways in impressive change-of-command ceremonies of the regiment in the Bridge Street Armouries Sunday.

With their famous "plowboy" regiment on full ceremonial parade, Lieut.-Col. Duffy, CD, formally accepted the command from Lieut.-Col. E. S. Fairman, ED, through the medium of Brigadier Lyle H. Carr, commander, 13 Militia Group.

Lieut.-Col. Duffy joined the regiment as a private in 1930. Lieut.-Col. Fairman, former artillery and anti-tank officer, assumed command of the regiment in September, 1954. Both officers have brilliant overseas records.

The ceremonies were witnessed by a large number of high-ranking armed services officials, civic, municipal and political dignitaries, and the general public.

In his final duty as commanding officer, Lieut.-Col. Fairman led his regiment in a march-past with Brigadier Carr taking the salute. He bade a silent farewell to his "Hasty Pees" when he took the salute in another march-past with the new commanding officer leading his troops as a unit for the first time.

During the ceremonies the regiment was inspected by Brigadier Carr and party, with addresses given by the retiring and new commanding officers, and the brigadier. At the conclusion of Col. Fairman's farewell remarks, the regimental drum and trumpet band played "Auld Lang Syne."

Over 500 all ranks took part in the colorful parade with battalion units present from Millbrook, Port Hope, Norwood, Madoc and Picton. The new regimental blues of the officers contrasted sharply with the sombre khaki battle-dress of the N.C.O's and other ranks. "Petawawa Mutch," huge woolen Indian mascot, looked proudly down on the scene from a point of vantage behind the reviewing stand. The bullet-ripped battle colors of the regiment floated proudly alongside the Union Jack in the color party.

The red-bereted drum and trumpet band of the regiment played for the march-pasts, the general salutes and during the inspection. Also Brigadier Carr during the inspection was Major J. Dale, 13 Militia Group, Lieut.-Col. Alex Cunningham of the Hasty Pees was the brigadier's aide-de-camp.

Representing Brigadier Eric Snow, commander Eastern area, who was unable to be present, was Colonel J. Cowan. Also present were Brigadier G. A. Henderson, commander 17 Militia Group, Hamilton; Lieut.-Col. M. E. Clarke, 13 Militia Group, Peterborough; Air Vice Marshal J. G. Bryans and Air Commodore J. B. Harvey, RCAF Station Trenton. Also present were Hasty Pees were there including ex-commanding officers Lieut.-Col. A. A. Kennedy, Owen Sound; Lieut.-Col. McGregor, Napanee; Lieut.-Col. Bryon Donnan, Belleville.

The mezzanine- balcony was "alive" with the color of regimental uniforms and gay dresses of officers' wives and guests.

In a brief address Brigadier Carr paid tribute to Lieut.-Colls. Fairman and Duffy reviewing their brilliant overseas records and their outstanding contributions to the militia in general and their regiment in particular during their years of post-war service.

Lieut.Col. Fairman in his farewell address to his regiment said that while he was very proud of the artillery unit he commanded through high and low after parts of the continent, he considered it a great honor to have ended his military career by commanding such a famous regiment with an enviable war record. 5,000 men passed through the ranks and 168 paid the supreme sacrifice. The Hasty Pees were awarded 30 battle honors.

He paid tribute to his officers and men for their loyalty and devotion during his tenure of command. "To C.O.'s," he said, "could ask for more solid support."

LT.-COL. E. S. FAIRMAN, E.D.

"We are not only one of the largest militia units in Canada but also one of keen young men of high calibre. The regiment should be justly proud of the numbers that it has sent to the regular force and military colleges."

He urged the regiment to "keep up the good work so that if an enemy should come to our shores to endanger our way of life, men will again gather from the mining areas of Hastings, the farmlands of the county and Northumberland and the sunny fields of Prince Edward. They will go forth under the battle-flag of the regiment with the same patriotic zeal as they did in two previous wars."

In his inaugural address as commanding officer of the regiment, Lieut.-Col. Duffy said: "during my 27 years of service in the regiment, I have known high adventure such as few men are privileged to experience. I have been a comrade of the very finest men of the infantry, men of the Hasty Pees. Within the ranks of the regiment is humble service to my country. I have found complete fulfilment. I would not exchange my years in the unit for any other experience life has to offer.

"Today I take over command of my regiment which I joined as a private, age 15. I could ask for no greater honor.

"In reviewing the terrific personalities who were the 17 commanding officers under whom I have served, I am humbled by my inadequacies. But, I am heartened in the task before me by the knowledge that no unit has better officers. Better NCO's or better privates.

"I want the members of the regiment to know that I am the least among you. That it is the officers and men who are the most vitally important. If they learn discipline, patriotism and loyalty, the regiment will fulfill the two reasons for its 'being'. First the prevention of war by being strong and resolute during the years of peace, Second the winning of battles by high morale and discipline in time of war.

"In conclusion, I ask all ranks, their families and friends to join me in making a wonderful regiment a better one."

A post-ceremonial reception was held in the officers' mess where guests were greeted by Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. Duffy, Brigadier and Mrs. Carr, and Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. Fairman.

Five Provinces Count 18 Persons Killed in Mishaps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Five provinces counted 18 persons killed in weekend accidents.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. local time Friday to midnight Sunday found 14 dead in traffic accidents, one burned to death, two killed by falls in their homes, and one struck by a train.

Ontario had nine dead, three in five, British Columbia two, and Nova Scotia and New Brunswick one each.

Ontario deaths:

Betty Garrie, 18, in a car-truck collision at Kitchener Saturday.

Henry Kron, 32, of Acton, Saturday night when his car rammed into a row of trees after leaving a snow - covered road near Ospringe, 30 miles northeast of Guelph.

Police said Mr. Kron's car went off the road into a ditch and sideswiped a hydro pole before hitting the trees.

Joceline Larocque, 22, of Field died Sunday of injuries sustained Saturday night in a two-car accident on Highway 17 some 20 miles west of Mount Bay.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Lloyd Macdonald of Dowsmarket.

Truck driver Steven Harrison, 24, was killed Saturday when struck by a passing vehicle while changing a tire. The accident occurred on Highway 26 just north of Minden, 35 miles northeast of Orillia.

Walter Wright, 21, of Liverpool, N.S., and Colin E. Smith, 20, in a car smash at Toronto Sunday.

Stephen Harrison, 56, when struck by a car Saturday night at Minden.

Mrs Carol Robertson, 60, of Injuries suffered in a fall at her Hamilton home Sunday.

EISENHOWER

"The time to deal with that menace is now. It would be folly for the Soviet leaders to be blind or indifferent toward this menace as they were apparently blind or indifferent to the atomic and nuclear menace at its inception.

3. Make a start toward disarmament by "checking the use of fissionable materials for weapons purposes."

Eisenhower, as a fullup to last month's cultural exchange agreement with Russia, suggested that influential Russians should visit the U.S. not to acquire technical knowledge but rather to learn at first hand "the feeling of our people toward peace and the working of our popular institutions as they affect our conduct of foreign relations."

Eisenhower said:

"Most of the Soviet citizens who exert an influence are strangers to our country and to our traditional free concepts. Their misconceptions I should like to have corrected in the interest of better relations."

"I can assure you that groups of qualified citizens of the U.S.S.R. coming here for the purpose I describe would receive every facility to learn about our country and our people and the working of our political institutions.

"I think our young people should get to know more about each other. I strongly feel the recent agreement for the exchange of 30 to 40 students a year is a small step in the right direction, but woefully inadequate. I may write 50% further on this topic."

Colorful Saga of New C. O. Reads Like Kipling Story 'From Drummer to Colonel'

By GEO. H. CARVER

Rudyard Kipling's drummer boy who rose through the ranks to become the colonel of the regiment leaps from fictional pages to become a reality.

Lieut.-Col. Angus B. Duffy, newly-appointed commanding officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, epitomizes the qualities of the Kipling hero in a brilliant military career that saw him rise from a humble private in 1930 to his present proud position at the head of his beloved "Hasty Pees".

Lieut.-Col. Duffy took over his new post officially on Sunday afternoon in an impressive change-of-command parade in the Bridge Street Armouries. He succeeds Lieut.-Col. E. S. Fairman, ED, who commanded the regiment since September, 1954, and whose military career adds new lustre to the long line of regimental commanders.

YOUTHFUL athlete

Little did the short stockily-built youngster of 15 realize when he enlisted in the regimental company in Trenton in 1930 that some day he would wear the rank insignia of colonel of the regiment.

Military training was but another active phase in the life of the youngster who in his teens was starring in hockey, skiing, tennis, football and boxing besides taking time out to maintain his boy scout activities.

Private Duffy took to military training like the proverbial duck to the water. In two years he was a corporal. Two years later he wore the stripes of a sergeant. In 1937 he was a company sergeant major.

The war drums, throbbed and in September 1939 he enlisted for active service with his regiment. Two months later he was promoted to regimental sergeant major, a position he held through intensive training years, in Britain, and later on the bloody European battle-fields.

Refusing promotion in Britain, RSM Duffy went back to action upon the beaches of Sicily. He was among the first to land and later rose from one recognition for breaking through enemy lines to another when he penetrated enemy lines three times alone. Later he was wounded but remained in action. He landed with his regiment in Italy in September 1943, remaining with it 'til February 1944 when he was returned to England for instructional purposes. He went back to the continent shortly after D-Day, arriving until he was returned to Canada in 1945.

MANY ACTIVITIES

Back in Canada Duffy served his regiment and community with the same zeal that characterized him overseas. He established his own business in Belleville and joined the Canadian Legion, where he served as president for three years. He was active in forming the H. and P.E. Regimental Association. He was married in 1945, and elected to the Belleville City Council in the same year.

He took an active interest in army cadet corps, helping train the unit of the Belleville Collegiate Institute. He has organized seven regimental reunions, is in charge of all Remembrance Day observances, and other special parades of veterans.

Meanwhile he was back with the regular militia as well. In 1949 he was named district commissioner of boy scouts. He was honored by Peterborough Hasty Pee veterans who named their branch of the association the "Duffy Club."

He served three terms as a city alderman, acting as chairman of welfare and chairman of fire. He took a leading part in the organization of civil defence for the city.

In June, 1951, the Canadian Army sent the 27th Infantry Brigade to fulfil Canada's obligations as part of NATO. The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment was given the job of providing two companies.

Duffy was given the job, and he joined the permanent forces for six months. He filled the companies and was discharged in 1952 he qualified as a captain of infantry at Camp Borden and the next year qualified for his majority.

Last year he completed staff course at the Royal Military College, Kingston, where he emerged a fully qualified lieutenant-colonel.

Diefenbaker Puts In Busy Hour "Mainstreeting"

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) On the coldest day yet this winter John Diefenbaker was busy at his favorite sport anywhere he's in his hometown here. His associates call it "mainstreeting."

With the temperature 35 below zero, the prime minister was out Saturday at mid-morning, walking through the downtown shopping centre, dropping into various stores, shaking hands and chatting with old friends.

In Rwph Miller's men's wear he met two former members of the Prince Albert Minotos hockey team and chatted about their chances of winning the Saskatchewan Junior A title. The team is a second place behind Regina.

In the news room of the Prince Albert Daily Herald he met 13-year old Bob Sheffield, busy writing his weekly contribution for the newspaper's Saturday children's page.

NO MONEY IN IT

Bob couldn't resist the inquiring Mr. Diefenbaker that he doesn't want to become a reporter "because there's no money in it."

He hoped to be a doctor or scientist.

The prime minister laughed and moved on.

He had entered early, at 4:30 a.m. and put in some paper work before breakfast and meeting day night's political meeting, which lasted until 10 p.m.

Asked if he was a rugged guy—an auto trip 90 miles to the east for speaking engagements at Choiceland and Nipawin. He wasn't expected to get back here until after midnight.

But despite this prospect, he was in a busy hour "mainstreeting."

Some Groups Will Vote Before Election Day

OTTAWA (CP)—A few groups of Canadians will be able to cast their ballots before the rest of the country votes March 31.

They are the electors entitled to vote by polls if their work is going to take them away from home on election day. The privilege is limited to members of the RCMP, commercial travellers, fishermen and those working in transportation services.

In last year's election, 11,780 ballots were cast at 230 advance polls.

Advance polls are open on Thursday, Friday and Saturday before the Monday election day, March 31. Ballots from them are counted with the rest on election night.

There have been recurring attempts to abolish the advance poll privilege. At the last parliamentary session, Stanley Knowles' defeated CCF leader, sponsored for the third time a bill to grant the privilege of facilities to all electors who think they will be away from home election day. Like the other attempts, it failed when government supporters talked it out and prevented a public vote.

One argument against the proposal is the cost. It would require a great increase in the number of polling facilities to accommodate about $150 for the three days. Although advance polls are opened only where there is a fairly large demand for them, especially in cities and transportation centres. Some ridings have more than one, others none.

Dr. McVicker, Deseronto, Acclaimed Liberal Candidate For South Hastings Riding

Dr. D. C. McVicker, mayor of Deseronto, Saturday afternoon was named Liberal candidate for South Hastings from the March 31st federal elections. He received acclamation at the riding convention in MCIVS at which Hon. John Pickerssill, former Minister of Citizenship and Immigration, was the guest speaker. About 700 people, including 295 delegates and 25 Young Liberals attended.

Three more men were nominated but they quickly threw their hats out of the ring. Frank S. Follwell, member of Parliament for South Hastings from 1949 until last June, was nominated by Kenneth G. M. Ross, but declined and said he would have "enjoyed fighting in this election." He gave up when Mrs. Follwell withdrew his name from the convention.

Roy Thurlow township councillor, farmer, member and past chairman of the Quinte District High School Board, was nominated by Arthur Duncan of Batawa, but he also declined, out of "men with more experience."

Former Warden of Hastings County, Lorne McGregor, who was nominated by Joseph E. Roy of Tyendinaga township, also withdrew his name to make way for men "with more experience."

In his speech of acceptance, Dr. McVicker paid tribute to his wife, who has been a "tower of strength and understanding" to him. He warned Liberals present that he is "only as strong as the weakest of you" and asked for the full support of Liberal party members in the riding.

Before his election, Dr. McVicker said he would not be lel like a lamb to slaughter by any opposition group. He cited layoffs Saturday at the Northern Electric and impending layoffs at Canada Cement as proof of the seriousness of the current local unemployment situation. Mr. and Mrs. Follwell chosen to stand, the doctor "would have stepped down".

Mr. Follwell, choked with emotion, said, "Never before has it been so necessary to send men to parliament since I was a boy. Perhaps, though, a new face and name of Liberal candidate might be good for this riding." He pledged all-out support behind Dr. McVicker, as did the other nominees.

Dr. McVicker said he might commit political suicide, but as long as he was either the candidate or South Hastings or a member of Parliament at Ottawa, he would speak his mind and would not be "run" by anyone. He holds no fear of riding factions that "like to dictate" to MPs.

Irving McGaughey, president of the South Hastings Liberal Association, which held the convention, was "happy" to see so many Young Liberals present.

They are the strong right arm of the Liberal party," he said.

Friday night the Young Liberals were re-activated at a meeting in the Kiwanis Centre.

Mr. McGaughey sparked a vote of thanks to Mrs. Follwell for her "inspiring help" to her husband, who spent "hard riding" "notably and with distinction."

Storm Strands 150 Motorists At Tiny Hamlet

STRATHROY, Ont. (CP)—The population of Hickory Corners, a tiny hamlet about six miles northeast of here, lose steadily Sunday night as wind-whipped snow kept visibility at zero on Highway 22 to the zero point. Motorists pulled into the hamlet's two service stations to wait out the blow. Less fortunate drivers skidded into highway ditches joining hundreds of others in a long line stretched across the wide area of Western Ontario.

By 10 p.m. as the blowing snow reached blizzard proportions, an estimated 150 motorists had crowded haven at Hickory Corners and were vying for space near the service station stoves. Both service stations were asked by police to stay open throughout the night. Extra sandwiches were prepared for the motorists, many of whom had been without since 8 p.m.

Silas Zawitz, operator of one of the garages, turned over cots beds in a house trailer to four unidentified Londoners, a minister and his wife and their little girl.

Dainty Valentine Tea Held by St. Andrew's WMS

A most attractive Valentine tea was held by the W.M.S. on Friday afternoon in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church parlors. The school assembly room, which was gaily decorated with hearts and plump little red cupids with bows and arrows.

The receiving line were Mrs. R. D. MacLean, wife of the pastor, and the convenors of the Missionary Society, Mrs. F. Parsons.

The tea table was a symphony in red and white with its lovely centrepiece of white Shasta mums mingled with red tulips, white carnations, separated with white candles in graceful holders behind the fragrant fruit punch, added a pretty Valentine touch to the setting. Flanking the floral centrepiece were two branched silver candelabra with tall white candles, while little silver-lace doilies added to the pleasing motif of the season.

PRESIDING

President at the silver services were Mrs. D. Fleming and Mrs. J. B. Sheridan, president of the Evening Auxiliary; Mrs. H. McKay, president of the Women's Guild and Mrs. J. Craig.

Inviting to the tea room were Mrs. W. J. Thompson and Mrs. V. Weir, who were also the general convenors of the tea.

Replenishing plates were Mrs. G. Shaw and Mrs. Mackenzie; Mrs. G. A. Thompson and R. Carmichael. In charge of the arrangement of the dainty plates of sandwiches and cakes, with their dividing lacey doilies, each decked with a little red cupids or love, which centered the quartet of tables, were Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Murray and Mrs. F. Douglas.

Presiding in the kitchen were Mrs. J. Browning, Mrs. A. Kidd, Mrs. Rollins, Mrs. H. M. Connell, and Mrs. Adams, while those in the dining room included Messmer, H. Elvidge, Arnott, Thomson, Shier, Webb, Boyce, Bondy, Kennedy, Mrs. McKay, C. Purcell, E. Pigden and Miss J. Mackinnon assisted by Iris McLean, Carol Anne Davidson, Donna Bacon, M. Mackintosh and Judy Ingram.

MOUTH-WATERING CAKES

A mouth-watering table of homecooking was convened by Mrs. J. Miller, Mrs. H. Yorke and Mrs. D. Kane and included white layer cakes, one of which was adorned with tiny, red hearts; hermits, cookies, raspberry tarts, angel cakes, tea biscuits, date loaves, chocolate nut-topped cakes, orange bread, delicious crocheted chili sauce and pepper relish.

The Explorer Girls, sponsored a candy table of divinity fudge, maple creams, plain and nutted peanut brittle, carmels, Turkish delight and vanilla creams and chocolate fudge, some boxed and others in cellophane bags. Those in charge were Mrs. C. Ryan, Mrs. W. C. Benger and Mrs. R. C. Kelcheson.

The "Variety Table" covened by Mrs. W. Mantle, assisted by Mrs. J. Darvell and Mrs. T. Eggleton, had a lovely assortment of dusting mitts, scarves, boxes of fragrant soaps, a rose bowl, fancy tea towels, handkerchiefs, doilies, hot dish mats, a nylon shopping bag, fancy aprons, in all-over floral design and the popular Paisley pattern; and one in yellow plastic in rose pattern; children's play aprons completed with pockets for oranges and a variety of mitts. Two pretty dolls, one in Valentine red, with lace-edged heart-shaped hat and the other in native Dutch costume with white lacey headdress, drew the attention of the customers.

The treasurers for the afternoon were Mrs. Dimmel and Mrs. Fisher.

"A dainty and delightful Valentine tea.

Christ Church P.G. Discusses Spring Tea

The regular monthly meeting of the Christ Church Parish Guild was held in the parish hall on February 11. In spite of the snow storm, there was a splendid attendance, and the president, Mrs. F. Bosley, expressed her delight at seeing so many.

A number of thank-you notes were read which had been received from parishioners to whom sympathy or get well cards had been sent. Mrs. Kempston reported that 34 such cards had been sent out since last January.

The treasurer, Mrs. R. Griffith, gave a report of the financial affairs.

The question of a spring tea was discussed and it was decided to go ahead with the arrangements for a tea to be held early in the spring.

Mrs. E. Hicken represented the Guild at the vestry meeting and gave an interesting report.

It was decided to hold a corporate communion on March 13 and it is hoped as many members as possible will attend.

A short devotional service was conducted by Miss Florence Fitzgerald who used as her theme, "Listening to God". Her remarks were expressed by Miss Fitzgerald and everyone would benefit from the use of them.

Mrs. J. B. Richardson rendered a piano solo, "Fantasy Prelude on Crimond" by Geehl, which was enjoyed.

Following this Mrs. E. E. Follwell gave an enlightening account of the opening of the new Children's Aid receiving home on Highland Ave.

After the meeting closed the tea hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Boyd Vanner, and Mrs. W Adams.

Child Model Has Dim View Of Can. Boys

MONTREAL (CP) — A tallhaired professional model from England takes a dim view of Canadian boys.

"They throw snowballs at cars," said eight-year-old Glynnis Long in an interview. "At home the boys never do things like that."

Glynnis has worked as a photographer's model and television commercial actress since she was five. She came to Canada with her mother recently to join Mr. Long, who earlier took a job in the draughtsman with a Montreal engineering firm.

In her three-year career she has done advertisements for items ranging from clothes to food. She said she likes working with a business company best "because they let you eat the stuff afterward."

Her photograph in a charming child contest conducted by the Institute o. British Photographers started her off. Naturally curly hair, light blue eyes and a peaches and cream complexion attracted a model agency and she had her first job.

Glynnis still enjoys playing with dolls, but said she enjoys modelling still more because it's fascinating and easy. Four feet tall, she weighs 46 pounds.

In England, she worked only weekends and holidays so that it would not miss school.

Canada's climate has altered her ambition. Until her arrival in Canada she wanted to become a traffic policewoman.

"But it's too cold here," she said. "So I'm going to be a ballerina."

Pretty Valentine Tea Held By St. Joseph's Catholic W.L.

Hearts of all ages were captivated Saturday by the charmingly arranged Valentine motif for the occasion of the annual Valentine Tea in St. Joseph's School Hall under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League of that parish.

The convener for this pretty event was Mrs. R. Chipman.

The entrance hall was enhanced by red and white fringed streamers fashioned in crisscross style. The long tea room, colorfully picturesque with its decorations of red hearts, cherubic cupids and lace-edged valentines, each one distinctively different, provided a delightful setting for the afternoon tea.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. J. Hanley, president, and Mrs. R. Chipman.

LOVELY TEA TABLE:

The beautifully appointed tea table, situated at the end of the room, featured an attractive centre-piece of white 'mums and pink carnations, all among green foliage, and placed on a lovely Irish lace doily cloth. Flanking the centre-piece, were two tri-branched, silver candelabra with white and red tapers, each spiralling silver services graced either end.

Many small doilies were sprinkled with Each one with its crisp white cloth had as a centre-piece an attractive heart of lace-edged heart poised in the middle of a large plate, covered with a paper doily, on which were placed dainty sandwiches, delicious small cakes and cookies.

The tea room hostess was Mrs. S. McKenna.

Presiding at the silver services were: Mrs. B. E. Burley, Diocesan president, and Mrs. P. Mercier, and Mrs. H. O'Neill, and Mrs. M. Bulger.

Serving were: Mesdames T. D. Mavety; D. J. Barrett; C. F. Wallace; E. Hogan; A. Lee; G. Sweet; R. Soaft.

Replenishing were: Mrs. E. T. Hibbs, and Mrs. J. Thorne.

The committee in charge of the tea room consisted of the following: Mrs. B. Bankey, Mrs. E. Lisselle, Mrs. J. E. Perrier, Mrs. C. Craig and Mrs. A. V. Ginley.

This was a most attractive tea and the ladies are to be the convener and her assistants.

H-S Assoc. Celebrates Founder's Day

Members of Queen Mary Public School Association celebrated "Founder's Day" when they met in the Prince Charles School on Thursday night.

The president, Mrs. W. Ironside, called the meeting, and Mrs. J. Hodgson presided at the piano. Mrs. R. Reid gave the secretary's report, and Mr. G. Lee the treasurer's report.

Mr. Frisby announced the Film Council Workshop on February 28 and March 1. He then explained the Belleville school policy concerning homework. It is deemed not necessary nor desirable below grade 7. Intermediate grade pupils need to become accustomed to homework before entering secondary school.

EDUCATION WEEK

Mr. Cousins spoke briefly on Education Week, March 2nd-8th, Belleville has been given the honor of officially opening Education Week in Ontario due to, this year. The slogan being used is, "Education is everybody's business."

"Every parent should positively get to know his or her child's teacher," said Mr. Cousins, in spite of the changing century, boys and girls today are better equipped and more able to meet every day needs then their parents were at the same age.

Mr. H. Cameron spoke on behalf of the modified transportation service being established under the combined efforts of the Canadian Legion, the Belleville Red Cross and Belleville General Hospital. A donor system of 1500 is being aimed at. Clinic will be held every Tuesday evening between 6:30 and 9:00 o'clock.

Banner winners were: Prince Charles Jr., Miss Willis, Morning class, Sr. Miss Tonkin. Queen Mary, Jr., Miss Malcolm; Sr. Miss Frisby.

Mrs. K. Chambers had charge of the program.

A collection was taken for the founder of H-S Associations in Ontario.

Mrs. J. Hodgson was in charge of the "Founder's Day" playlet given by grade 8 pupils.

CONSERVATION FILM

Mr. N. Chubb of the Dept. of Planning and Development in Eastern Ontario showed a film explaining the need for conservation along the Moira watershed. He also presented slides showing work improvements made under conservation efforts.

Mr. Carswell, on behalf of those present, thanked Mr. Chubb.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. C. Whalles and her committee.

Margaret Lally Murray Edits, Publishes Alaska Highway News

FORT ST. JOHN, B.C. (CP)— Silver - haired Margaret Lally Murray, 66-year-old editor and publisher of the Alaska Highway News, delights readers each week with her witty, forthright editorials on the north.

Mrs. Murray has campaigned for time changes, secession of northern British Columbia to Alberta and many other causes in her 13 years as editor and publisher.

Another editor of the north describes her as "a gaudy dasher on the often-grey canvas of Canadian journalism." She prefers to call herself "pr ed."

STAUNCH FIGHTER

When she advocated that northern B.C., base of the Alaska Highway, secede to join neighboring Alberta, bonfollies erupted. Men came from provincial leaders in Victoria.

She waged a successful battle to replace Pacific Time with Mountain Standard Time. "Some men had to do their milking in the dark."

"I'm for against things," she says. "I just don't believe in politics for politics' sake. I don't think will do some good."

Her active political career started in 1945, a year after the first edition of the paper hit the stands—and in the midst of her husband, George Matheson Murray.

OPPOSING PARTIES

George, first elected Liberal member for Lillooet, 150 miles north of Vancouver in 1928, was running for the seat again in 1945. His wife threw her hat into the ring as Social Credit candidate in Peace River. She called it an "unprincipled opposition against a Liberal-Conservative alliance in the province."

"I didn't know anything more about Social Credit than a load of hay," she says with a grin. Both she and George were defeated.

Six years later, George was elected Liberal MP for Cariboo. Mrs. Murray, in the meantime, went into the Yukon to campaign for Liberal candidate Aubrey Simmons, who won. Mr. Simmons was recently defeated in a byelection for the seat by Progressive Conservative Erik Nielsen.

She went to Ottawa to watch George enter the Commons and wrote readers: "In amongst that array of finery was me . . . Chatelaine of the Cariboo . . . gorgeously draped in six of the handsomest mink ever taken by trapper for the Brandt."

Her career on The News has been exciting. A woman reader once entered the editorial office with a whip concealed in her muff. In the 1940s bear-tooth Fort St. John was splashed with blood every week.

"One housewife in one issue was 16 fatalities, including three murders," she reminisced. "Some in the second time around, issues would sell for a dollar."

The News now has a broader and calmer circulation of about 2,800, including trappers, oilmen and prospectors.

Interviewed recently in the office of the one-storey frame building where The News is put together, Mrs. Murray anticipated the question each time her phone jangled: "I'll be out in an hour, dear."

Born in Kansas City, she worked for a saddle firm in 1910 and got acquainted with Canadians by slipping a note with her address into the bags of saddles going to Alberta and Saskatchewan cowboys.

"The answers I received decided me," she says. "I left for Canada."

She was headed for Calgary, but got sidetracked in Vancouver where she took a job with a publishing company paper, The Chinook, and married George Murray in 1913. He was also a reporter. Then came a series of moves to other British Columbia localities.

Describing her policy on the paper, she ewarded, she says: "I was independent. I printed everybody's complaints."

Until the 1930s, the Murrays toured the Orient, and were bombed from their Shanghai home by the Japanese.

Mrs. Murray will be 70 in August, but has plenty of plans "if the sap keeps flowing."

"First off," she says, "I'm going to write the saga of the Alaska Highway."

Women's Activities

CANNIPTON WMS

CANNIPTON — The W.M.S. of Cannilton Women's Missionary Society held the February meeting in the new class room at the church with Mrs. D. Brenton, the president, presiding.

During the business report, Mrs. Helen Brenton was appointed as delegate to the Presbyterial meeting held February 7th at Napanee. It was announced that Mrs. Townsend will be the guest speaker at World Day of Prayer.

Mrs. C. Bird had charge of the worship service.

Mrs. McCrea favored with a solo, followed by the Scripture reading by Mrs. Holgate.

Continuing with the Study Book on Japan, three important thoughts were brought to attention.

Women of Japan: Under the new laws in Japan women have a vote. A few years ago, a wife would have followed along the street a few steps behind her husband. They now walk along together. Still many women are unprepared to meet the new praise and responsibilities and have the Christian Church has a double task of aiding the unfortunate while infusing the ideals and spirit of Christ into the new patterns of life for women in Japanese society.

Youth of Japan: The youth of Japan are much the same as that of this continent. Eighty per cent of the post-war church audiences are in the youth bracket. For the first time in history, the Christian movement of a nation is predominately a youth movement.

The United Church of Christ in Japan or Kyodan: This United Church comprises a union of different church groups and is 16 years old with Rev. Ando as moderator. The coming together of these communions to form a unified church is one of the most significant events in modern missions.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

DON'T BE A SNEEZE-AND-SNIFFLES MENACE!!

If you have a cold, you, no matter how charming you are, will be devastatingly unwelcome guest at a party . . . and so will your sneezes and your sniffles and your cough. Therefore, if you have an engagement to go to a party, do be grown-up and wise and considerate of others . . . and cancel the engagement. The chances are you'll be feeling so miserable that you won't get any pleasure by going to the party . . . and certainly you won't give any. Your hostess and her guests will consider you just what you are, a menace — a menace to their pleasure and, worse, a menace to their health. Don't justify your going by convincing yourself that it would be bad manners for you to cancel the engagement. The fact is it would be lots more unsanitary bad manners for you to go and thus to distress and worry the hostess and guests. Stay home . . . it's where you belong.

GENEROUS GESTURE OF GRATEFUL PATIENTS"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I are deeply grateful to our doctor, who always has given us more than just professional skill, kindness and understanding. And now we would like to give him a "grateful patient" present. Soon we are going on a vacation in Florida, and we are wondering if it would be proper for us to send him a box of fruit or perhaps some of those pretty small glass jars of various kinds of Florida jams and jellies. If you approve of our doing this, should we send this gift to him only, or should we address it to his wife also?

— A "Grateful Patient".

This would be a fine gesture for you and your husband to make to your good doctor . . . entirely proper, very thoughtful, generous. Do address your gift to include his wife.

EMPLOYER'S WEDDING PRESENT TO GROOM

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am the owner of a small store where I employ three young men, and one of them, a very fine and loyal young man, is to be married soon. His bride-to-be lives a great distance from here, in his home city. I have never met her, and I think it would be foolish for me to try to choose a wedding present for them. So I'd like to give him a check. Would this be all right? If so, shall I make it out to him or to the girl?

— W. L.

In this special circumstance I think it would be better, far more practical, for you to give this present to the groom-to-be, and to make out the check in his name, suggesting in your enclosed card or note that "With this will you buy your bride please choose something you would like for your home" And every good wish to you both!"

Pancakes Plain and Fancy—For Tuesday

By Mary Moore

In the back of my mind I know hundreds of you will serve plain pancakes with maple syrup and sausages or bacon for the main course tomorrow noon or night. But for the girls who have their families conditioned to change, I will feature a dessert pancake recipe first and give some variations that will woo you to the dessert pancake idea, I hope.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

MONDAY

Pot Roast of Beef; Brown Gravy; Whole Carrots; Whole Small Onions; Quartered Potatoes; Cole Slaw with Radishes and Dill Weed; Lemon Snow with Custard Sauce; Coffee.

Make them this week for the family and when your technique is perfected have a dessert party and roll them with cream inside, fruit outside, or dream up your own variations.

FRENCH PANCAKES (Crepes).

Three-quarters cup flour, 2 teaspoons sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 3-4 cup milk, 3 eggs. Add sugar and salt to the eggs, beaten slightly, then alternately the flour and the milk and then beat thoroughly with a rotary beater. Lightly grease a small frying pan (6 inches) and pour in about two tablespoons of batter. Move the pan so that the batter spreads to the outer edge of the pan. Brown on both sides and roll, keep in a warm place until ready to serve. (To make Crepes Suzettes in true French fashion: Rub 6 lumps loaf sugar with the white part of the peel of one orange, adding 1 teaspoon of very finely minced outer peel and dissolving the sugar in 1 tablespoon brandy. Combine with 1-4 cup sweet (unsalted) butter. Allow to simmer, in the chafing dish, melt prepared butter, add the cooked crepes and turn. Then add 5 tablespoons brandy and 1-4 cup Grand Marnier Liqueur. Light with a match and when the flame goes out serve your crepes.)

Now comes the perennial favorite. I hear from some of you "best pancakes ever" every time this is printed.

BEST PANCAKES:

One and one-half cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 1-4 cups milk, 1 egg, 3 tablespoons melted shortening or butter. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar into large mixer bowl. Add milk, whole egg and melted shortening. Drop by spoonfuls on hot griddle, cook on one side until puffed and full of bubbles. Turn and cook on other side.

WAFFLES:

These are just corrugated pancakes with extra eggs and shortening, so if you have a waffle iron, tomorrow is the big day to feature it. Pour the smooth batter into your best silver pitcher, stand it on a plate large enough to catch any vagrant drops, and delegate a responsible member of the family to provide over their perfect baking. Two cups sifted all - purpose flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, 6 tablespoons shortening, 1 1-2 cups milk, 3 eggs. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar together. Add shortening to flour mixture. Mix these ingredients until mixture has the appearance of coarse corn meal. Add milk and whole eggs, all at once, and beat until ingredients are well blended. Bake in preheated waffle iron until golden. This makes 6 or 7 waffles.

PERSONAL CHEQUING ACCOUNTS CAN BE A FAMILY AFFAIR!

For the Husband and Wife who both pay bills by cheque, it makes sense to open two Personal Chequing Accounts.

Here are the facts:

1. If you wish, your cancelled cheques will be returned to you every sixty days, along with an itemized account.
2. Your distinctive new cheque books will be issued free and a charge of ten cents per debit entry will be made at the end of each period instead of the higher charge applied to cheques on interest bearing accounts.
3. No minimum balance is required.
4. The Personal Chequing Account is an addition and will in no way interfere with the continued operation of your savings account.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Helen A. — I don't think really love him.

Gerald D. — She can't leave me high and dry.

* * *

Helen A. — I have gotten myself into one terrible mess and I don't know how to find my way out.

Two years ago I fell in love with one of the married men working in my office. We went out on a few dates and then became intimate. He told me he was very unhappy with his wife and he finally left her and we went to live together.

At last his wife agreed to a divorce and things should become final very soon. But now he and I don't know whether we want to get married. We have not gotten along well and I am beginning to see that I don't really love him. But everyone says I'd be a fool if I didn't marry him for the sake of my own reputation.

Gerald D. — I left my wife and baby for Helen's sake and now she talks about walking out and leaving me high and dry. She tells me to go back to my wife. But my wife has found someone else and doesn't want me any more.

It's true that Helen and I have fought like cats and dogs, but I think that's because we've been so nervous not knowing whether or not the divorce was going through and what our status was going to be. Once we are really man and wife things will straighten out.

The way things are now, everyone knows what happened and blames me for the way I treated my wife. If Helen and I don't get married I'll be blamed even more — and we'll both be laughing stocks.

* * *

The Council: Helen and Gerald seem to have gotten the protestation that their decision to marry or not marry runs a close second to Spatnik in the public's interest.

In reality, it is doubtful whether anyone outside of Helen's family cares whether or not she marries Gerald. Those who bother to condemn her conduct will not respect her the minute she flashes a marriage licence.

It is most unlikely that the breakup of the relationship would make a "laughing stock" of anyone. The few persons "in the know" can find funnier stories on TV.

Gerald is also overly concerned about being left "high and dry." If he tries, he can doubtless find another woman foolish enough to become involved with him.

That leaves this childish, self-seeking pair without much reason for getting married. By their own admission they merely wish to use each other for temporary expediency.

The question of whether or not they can ever find a worthwhile relationship and a decent life still rests with them. This depends on whether or not they are ready to make drastic changes in their outlook, their view of marriage, their view of each other. They would have to learn to think in terms of contributing to another's happiness and of building a lasting, emotionally satisfying relationship.

They badly need guidance toward that end from a clergyman or trained social worker.

Detroit Trounces Leafs Twice As Canadiens Tie, Lose Over Weekend

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

The McFarlands are now on top of the heap and nobody can displace them, not even the Ottawa-Hull Juniors. The best the Baby Habs can do is tie the Macs if they win their four remaining games with their three points bonus, providing the Macs drop their two games left, to the Pembroke Lumber Kings.

The Hildebrandts put the league leadership on "ice" over the weekend with victories over Kingston and Cornwall to boost themselves ever the mighty Dunlops by two points. They had to come from behind in Kingston after blowing a two-goal lead but they did just that in short order with Eddie Macentee breaking loose to score the equalizer. Then Minnie Menard went into his ballet dance after 52 seconds of play in the overtime session to notch the winner.

Down Cornwall way the Macs handed the Chevies their second straight defeat by a 4-1 count on Sunday, thus tightening the battle for third place between the Chevies and the Kingston club.

The McFarlands have two games left, both with the Pembroke Lumber Kings who apparently have snapped out of their slump since they defeated the Macs 7-2 on Friday night. The Kings are here Friday in the Macs' last scheduled home appearance while the clubs battle back in Pembroke in the curtain-raiser next Saturday night.

PURELY LOCAL

This department owes an apology and freely offers it to that grand gang of fellows who form the Belleville Hockey Oldtimers Association. To chaps like "Hank" Fenn in particular, Johnny Hibbard, "Toots" Holway and many others in general we proffer our regrets at the omission in this column last week with regards to the Bill Green Memorial Trophy.

The lovely trophy was offered a year ago by the Oldtimers Association as an annual award to the "most valuable player" in the McFarlands Senior "A" hockey club. As such it was presented to the player adjudged the "most valuable" to the club.

The Bill Green Trophy was originally donated by the Oldtimers Association to the memory of one of their better-known members and one of the originators of the club, along with other handsome silver tributes to the late Daw Whalen and Pal Boland. The latter awards are active in other phases of hockey.

This department, along with sportsmen of the city as well as athletes, appreciates the fine gesture of president Fenn and the Oldtimers in offering the Bill Green Trophy to the McFarlands Hockey Club. They will be consulted as to the choice of this year's winner at a panel meeting slated for today.

BOOSTERS AHOY!

President Dick Beare has called a general meeting of the club for Wednesday night at the city hall council chambers starting at eight o'clock. Some mighty important business is on the agenda and the executive would like to see the largest crowd of the season attend the session.

President Beare suggested today that the club should get out in force tonight and support the Junior "B" squad in its battle of the playoffs. The youngsters take on the starry Peterborough Petes in the second game of the best-of-seven final series, and they hope to square matters before the final whistle blows. They want to win this one for Ab Wright.

With the McFarlands the big hockey attraction here, the youngsters have been playing to a lot of empty pews this year, and Beare believes a good turnout of Boosters will help the young players no end. They are deserving of support as are such men as Mel Richards, Bill Brennan, Peter Jones and others who are looking after the squad. So how about a good representation of Boosters tonight—and that goes for non-boosters as well. Game starts at 8.30.

"THE SQUIRTS"

These half-pints of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association, the Squirt All-Stars, will engage in their first out-of-town competition at Memorial Arena on Wednesday night in conjunction with other minor hockey tilts. The kidlets will take on a team from Trenton in an exhibition tilt starting at 7.30 and should be interesting to see how they stack up against the mites from the town to the west. Also on tap that night is the first game of the midget semifinalwith the Home-School team clashing with the PTs. This is a two-game series with goals to count. The winners of this series meet the Booth's TV squad for the city championship.

Dutchies Lead By 20 Points

By The Canadian Press

Mention the name Buddy Horne to Chatham Maroons and you'll get a low rumble in reply.

Twice in two days the Kitchener Waterloo Dutchmen right winger has foiled Maroons' hopes of sweeping Dutchmen, runaway league-leaders in the OHA-NOHA Senior A series.

Friday he scored an overtime goal to give the Dutchmen a 5-4 victory.

Saturday—after Maroons had taken a 2-1 lead—he scored two second-period goals which put Dutchmen on the road to another 5-4 victory.

Saturday's win pushed Dutchmen's lead to 20 points.

Second - ranking Sault Ste. Greyhounds, slipping badly of late, slid again Saturday, dropped a 3-1 decision to Wolves. But Greyhounds still remain 12 points ahead of the third-place Marconis.

North Bay Trappers, fighting for a playoff spot, whipped Windsor Bulldogs 8-3 in the loop's only other weekend game. Windsor and North Bay are tied for fifth place.

Dutchmen's victory over the Maroons stretched their unbeaten streak to 13 games. Scorers, besides Horne, were Ted Hart, Ken Laufman and Don Rope. Chatham marksmen were Bob Chevalier, with two, Lloyd Ferguson and Jimmy Connelly.

Centre Ken Gribbons and left winger Stan Maxwell led the Trapper attack with two goals each. Ches Konecny, Pete Babando, Cleland Morison and Bobby Barlow added singles. Bob Brown, Reg Abbott and Mickey Roth counted for Windsor.

The Joe Malo-George Swick-Johnny Gillis line caused most of the Greyhounds' troubles against Sudbury. Malo scored twice, Gillis once while Swick set up all three. John Olfidani scored the lone Soo goal late in the third period.

Strengthen Hold On 3rd Spot And Trail Blues By Point; Black Hawks Blank Habs 4-0

By Marty Goodman
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It's been a poor statistical year for Detroit Red Wings.

The onetime National Hockey League kingpins brought back goalie Terry Sawchuk to replace all-star Glenn Hall—and Sawchuk has been scored on more than any other goalie.

They revamped their lineup to distribute scoring power — and only one team has scored fewer goals.

But when it comes to the standings the statistics don't mean a thing. Detroit won a weekend doubleheader from their favorite opponents, Toronto Maple Leafs, to take a solid grip on third place.

Wings whipped the Leafs 6-3 Saturday and 4-1 Sunday, with Sawchuk superlative in both games.

BRUINS, HABS TIE

In a second game Saturday Montreal Canadiens and Boston Bruins tied 2-2. Sunday New York Rangers checked Boston 3-2 and Chicago Black Hawks shutout Montreal 4-0.

The result cut Montreal's first place margin over New York to 24 points. Detroit trails the Rangers by one point and leads Boston by two. Chicago jumped into a fifth-place tie with Toronto, six points back.

Detroit league leaders for eight of the last nine years, started slowly and spent much of the season fighting to stay near the bottom.

It would have been right at the bottom except for an ability to beat Toronto. The weekend victories were Detroit's seventh and eighth in 12 encounters, two ending in overtime. Their loss put a big dent in Toronto's hopes for a playoff position.

SPLIT GOALIES

Warren Godfrey, Red Kelly, Gordie Howe, John Wilson, Norm Ullman and Alex Delvecchio scored and George Armstrong replied for Toronto.

Tony Leswick scored Detroit's first goal Sunday, his first since being recalled from Edmonton where the 34-year-old needler has spent 1½ seasons.

Nick Mickoski, Kelly and Howe got the others. Tim Horton scored for Toronto. It was Howe's 25th.

Sawchuk was brilliant, stopping 17 shots in the first period and 36 in all.

New York retained second place with Guy Gendron counted his eighth goal in the final period. Bill Gadsby and Larry Popein got the others.

Fleming Mackell and Bronco Horvath scored for Boston. It was Horvath's 23rd.

KEEP HOPES ALIVE

Chicago jumped on a weakened Montreal team to keep their slim playoff hopes alive. Canadiens, who took the ice an hour and 30 minute late because of a train delay, were missing defencemen Doug Harvey, injured Saturday, Maurice (Rocket) Richard, Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, Bert Olmstead and Jean Guy Talbot.

Ed Litzenberger scored two goals and Ian Cushenan and Ed Kachur scored one each. It was Litzenberger's 24th and 25th NHL goal.

Hall made 31 stops in recording his seventh shutout.

Claude Provost scored his 12th goal to give Canadiens a tie with Boston and near-perfect season record against the Bruins. In 11 meetings Montreal has won eight, tied two and lost one.

Rookie Murray Balfour, making his NHL debut with Montreal, scored the other goal. Horvath and Jerry Toppazzini's 20th goal made up Boston's total.

Back-to-Back Shutouts for Marcel Paille

By The Canadian Press

The American Hockey League spotlight belonged to goalie Marcel Paille over the weekend as he posted back-to-back shutouts over Rochester and Hershey.

The Providence Reds' netminder, who failed to stick with New York Rangers of the National Hockey League when called up earlier this season, blanked the league-leading Hershey Bears 6-0 Sunday night after whitewashing Rochester Americans 3-0 the previous night. They were his first and second AHL shutouts of this season.

Ray Ross and Bill Sweeney led the attack for third-place Providence against Hershey with two goals each. Jim Bartlett and Bruce Cline got the others. The Bears remained four points behind of runner-up Cleveland as the Barons bowed to tail-end Buffalo by 5-2.

In Sunday's other game in the snow - choked East, Rochester defeated Springfield 3-1 and moved into a tie for fourth place with the Indians.

Springfield and Hershey tied 1-1 and Cleveland downed Buffalo 5-2 Saturday night.

ATTENDANCE DOWN

At Rochester Sunday night, the mere 1,397 fans saw Ab McDonald score twice on power plays. Ron Hurst got the other Americ can goal. Coach Cal Gardner counted for Springfield.

At Buffalo Sunday, Pete Conacher, Bob Hassard and Larry Wilson scored for Buffalo, while Fred Glover and Steve Kraftcheck for Cleveland.

Barclay had two goals and Paul Larivee one Saturday as Paille held Rochester scoreless.

Don Cherry scored for Springfield and Arnie Kullman for Hershey in their 1-1 sawoff. Pete Goegan, Jimmy Moore, Fred Glover and Gordon Conacher counland's scorers against Buffalo. Ken Wharram and Conacher connected for the Herd.

Blizzard Deals Sports Big Blow Over Weekend

By The Associated Press

Horse racing, basketball, bowling, soccer, boat racing and horse shows and even such winter sports as skiing, hockey and speed skating were dealt blows by the blizzard which swept the Eastern United States coast over the weekend.

More than a million persons were stranded after Saturday's horse races were run off in a blinding snow storm, cancelled today's program. Weather forecasters said when the track will re-open.

A raging snowstorm in New England routed Boston Celtics to cancel their National Basketball Association game with New York Knickerbockers Sunday. Numerous small college basketball games in the south were also postponed.

Opening of Eastern Parkway in Brooklyn for boxing was postponed until March 1 when several of the fighters were unable to break through the snow barrier.

CANCEL HORSE SHOW

In Bronxville, N.Y. a horse show was cancelled when a judge and many exhibitors were unable to reach the Saddle Tree Farms Club. A soccer game between the first Vienna team of Austria and an all-star American All-star League in New York was cancelled.

An Eastern Hockey League game between Johnstown and Washington was postponed.

High winds and sub-normal temperatures resulted in the postponement of four games in Florida.

The national ski jumping championships at Iron Mountain, Mich. were postponed for the second straight day because of high wind and sub-zero temperatures. The second day of competition in the Tri-State ice skating championships at Grassinger, N.Y., also was postponed.

The NHL game at Chicago was delayed because the blizzard delayed arrival of Montreal Canadiens.

RETAIN CHAMPIONSHIP

QUEBEC (CP) — Five husky brothers from nearby Montmagny manhandled their heavy canoe twice across the floe-filled St. Lawrence River Sunday to win the annual winter carnival canoe race for the fourth straight time. Captain Ernest Lachance with brothers Anselme, Jean Marc, Noel and Paul covered the two-mile distance across to Levis and back to Quebec City in 49 minutes and 46 seconds.

McFarlands Clinch Overall Leadership Eastern Ontario Senior Loop

Top Dunlops by Two Points After Defeating Kingston And Cornwall Over Weekend

Rounding into the home stretch with a weekend surge of speed, the McFarlands took over undisputed top-spot in the Eastern Senior "A" Hockey League.

Following their decisive 8-0 defeat of the Cornwall Chevies on Friday, they snatched an overtime 6-5 victory from the Kingston CKLC's Saturday night and topped it off with a 4-1 defeat of the Chevies on Sunday afternoon.

With two games to play, the Macs rule the roost, two points in front of the mighty Whitby Dunlops with their top pointgetter Barton Bradley in a favorable position to snatch the scoring crown from the Dunlops' Bobby Attersley.

CORNWALL (Special) — The Belleville McFarlands moved into undisputed possession of first place in the eastern division of the Senior OHA when they dumped the Cornwall Chevies 4-1 before 1,000 fans at the Cornwall arena.

The Belleville club led 1-0 after the first period, 2-0 after the second and outscored the Chevies 2-1 in the final frame.

Playing coach Ike Hildebrand scored twice for the Macs with assistance from Russ Kowalchuk and Wiener Brown adding singles, Rene St. Hilaire got the only Cornwall goal.

The Chevies played the game minus three of their defencemen in Don Labelle and Ted Szydlowski, while Bob Bingley, another defenceman, saw action on one shift. The Chevies now have three men with leg injuries plus as the old injury jinx rears its ugly head in the Chevies' camp.

The latest defeat had an advantage in the play and shots, but erratic goaltending was the downfall of some stellar net-minding by Gordie Bell kept them at bay.

Bell was voted the star performer personally for high-sticking and fighting in the last few minutes cutting him badly inside the mouth.

Kowalchuk got the only goal of the first period when he ripped from behind the Chevies net and slid one past Devaney.

Hildebrand made it 2-0 near the end of the second when he poked in a loose disc during a scramble.

The Chevies got their marker in the third stanza when St. Hilaire lifted Labelle's rebound over Bell.

Belleville put the game on ice with two more. Hildebrand poked in Menard's rebound after a breakaway and Brown blasted a steaming 20-footer past Devaney on a partial break.

Bell faced 34 shots while Gerry Devaney blocked 24 as encouraging note for the Chevies was the release from hospital of Ted Szydlowski. His sight is back to normal and he might start skating this week.

Belleville — Bell, defence; Lepine, Benoit, Crawford, Robley; forwards, Menard, Bradley, Martichenko, Hildebrand, Paul Payette, Menard, Goyer, Kowalchuk, Murdoch, Goldick.

Cornwall — goal, Devaney; defence, Legault, Bingley, Ray Labelle, Marshall; forwards, Savard, Grigg, Pete Payette, Muir, Heuri, St. Hilaire, St. Aubin, Albert, Burke.

Referee — Art Casterton of Kingston; linesmen — Gus Lebrun and Wall Garanad of Cornwall.

Northern Electric Hockey

A last minute goal provided the underdog Flyers with a 3-2 tie against the power packed Indians here yesterday in the opening game of the Northern Electric Interdepartment hockey league finals.

The second game in the two-of-three series is slated for next Sunday morning at 11.00 a.m.

Hector and Totten were the marksmen for the Flyers while Howard Skelly drew assists on both goals. Harry Wardhaugh and Gary Little tallied for Indians with J. Semark picking up one assist.

Referees Don Ashley and Ted Hunt handed out 11 penalties in the rough and rugged affair with the Indians' Dave Jones drawing a misconduct while Skelly and Gregory had two minors each.

Teepees Trounce Petes 8-3; Habs Win Pair

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was a sad weekend for three of the four teams chasing St. Michael's Majors in the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A series.

Teepees took care of the fifth-place Peterborough Petes, whipping them 8-3 Saturday. In a second game Ottawa-Hull Canadiens beat Guelph Biltmores 4-3.

Ottawa defeated third-place St. Michael's Majors 4-1 and Barrie Flyers upset the fourth-place Toronto Marlboros 8-4 in Sunday's games.

The results left Teepees seven points ahead of the second-place Hamilton Cubs.

END LOSING STREAK

It was the first victory for St. Catharines Teepees after losses to John MacKenzie and Stan Mikita each scored two goals and Chico Maki, Daryl Wennecker, Wayne Hillman and Bob Hoekstra each scored one.

Terry Connelly, Gary Darling and Larry Babcock scored for Peterborough.

Teepees goalie Bruce Gamble turned in a fine effort but it wasn't enough to keep Ottawa from winning Saturday. Bob Rousseau, Wayne and Jim Claude Tremblay and Bob Boucher once each for the Canadiens.

Rod Gilbert, George Ustalo and Lowell Brown scored for the Biltmores.

Bill Fortran scored three goals bringing his total to 40, to lead Barrie against Marlboros. Pete Panagapka, Tom Desjardins and Blair Chapman scored two each and Bernie Cote one.

Barrie's Murray Davidson received six stitches after a pre-game fight with Roger Cote in which both were handed game misconducts.

Two other Barrie players also were ejected. Panagapka had his cheek in a cut down the side of his nose and Danny Patrick got a stitch above his eye in the first period.

Gilles Tremblay scored twice for Ottawa while Jean-Guy Rousseau and Claude Richard scored the others. Lou Angotti scored for St. Michael's.

Hallas Returns To Coach Bears

CHICAGO (AP) — George Halas, National Football League pioneer, Sunday announced he is returning as head coach of the Chicago Bears after two years of "retirement."

Halas, 63, will replace Paddy Driscoll who takes over as administrative vice - president in charge of team organization. Halas named Driscoll, 52, to succeed him when he stepped out as head coach after the 1955 season.

Halas coached the Bears to the Western Division title in 1956 but lost the championship to New York Giants. Last year, the Bears finished with a 5-7 record after being pre-season favorites to win the title.

Hockey's Big Seven

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens' power line combination of Dickie Moore and Henri Richard had an unusual weekend.

But the gap between the top two point-getters and the other leading scorers remained almost as wide as ever. Moore, with a league-leading total of 30 goals, has 67 points and Richard has 65, including 41 assists; most in the league.

The leaders:

School Curling Tournament Opens in 'The Island' Today

By ED SMITH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHARLOTTETOWN, (CP)— Host Prince Edward Island drew the bye as the 1958 Canadian high school curling championships open here today.

British Columbia opposes New Brunswick, Nova Scotia stacked against Ontario, Manitoba against Alberta, Quebec against Newfoundland and Northern Ontario against Saskatchewan in the opener at 3 p.m. AST.

Another draw at 8 p.m. gives Quebec the bye. Alberta is scheduled against Newfoundland, Northern Ontario against Nova Scotia, New Brunswick against Saskatchewan, British Columbia against Prince Edward Island and Manitoba against Ontario.

All championship matches are 10-enders with two rounds scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday, three on Thursday and one Friday and two on Friday. If there is a tie in the round robin series, there will be a sudden-death playoff Friday night.

FIRST CHAMPIONSHIP HERE

The hospitel is the first Canadian championship in any sport to be held here and the city has warmed to the crew-cut youngsters with its best holiday hospitality. Theatre and department store marquees blaze out Welcome in huge letters. One store has allotted its full display window to an automatic scoreboard.

Lieutenant-Governor T. W. L. Prowse was to deliver the first stone to open the competitions.

The 60,000 five-cage adherents across the nation, won't have too many idle moments. With Newfoundland represented for the first time in the bonspiel's nine-year history, the schedule has been rounded out into 11 rounds.

Prince Edward Island's program committees have inserted a variety of social events.

Groza, Baker Share National Scoring Title

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Lou Groza of Cleveland Browns and Sam Baker of Washington Redskins, a pair of field-goal experts, tied for the National Football League individual scoring title in 1957 and league statistics disclosed Saturday. Groza and Baker each wound up with 77 points.

Baker scored one touchdown, and booted 29 of 30 conversions and 14 of 23 field goal attempts. Groza, who had the edge in the top of the scoring heap for eight seasons, booted 23 of 24 in the extra point department and collected 15 of 22 field goal attempts.

Wolves Whip Darlington 6-1

LONDON (AP) — Wolves Trampton Wanderers rammed in three goals in each half Saturday to defeat Third Division Darlington 6-1 in the fifth round of the Football Association competition—a sign that Wolves are well in line for the English double of cup and league.

It is 61 years since an English team did the league and cup double. It was Preston North End led by Aston Villa in 1890-97 season. Peter Wolves, leading the league standings by three points, have gone into the quarter-finals of the cup. Bookmakers make Wolves 2-1 favorites to take the cup and 3-1 to complete the league and cup double.

LAST ONE TO GO

Second Division Liverpool knocked out the only other surviving third division team in the cup competition, defeating Scunthorpe 1-0.

Other teams who went into the last eight of the cup competition were Bolton Wanderers, Manchester United, Preston North End, Wolves and Sheffield United and West Bromwich Albion ended up in the draw.

Those matches will be replayed this week.

Manchester United, mourning the loss of colleagues in the Munich plane crash, Feb. 6, reopened its match against Sheffield Wednesday. That game will be decided Wednesday under floodlights.

HOAD WHIPS GONZALES

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Challenger Lew Hoad whipped world professional tennis champion Pancho Gonzales 6-4, 6-4 Sunday for his fourth straight victory in their world tour. Hoad's victory before 1,728 spectators gave him a 13-7 edge in matches.

Bill Johnston Wins Top Money In Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)— Club professional Bill Johnston, who plays only on the winter tour and not too much of that—is showing the big names of golf a thing or two. He is the only player who has won money in all tournaments this year.

The Provo, Utah, pro, a deadly swinger off the tee and as imperturbable as a marble statue, Sunday won his first tournament in two starts by tying as he played in with a 3-under-par 68 for a total of 274 on 72 holes and $2,000 first money in the Texas Open.

It vaulted the 33-year-old Johnston from 24th place to eighth in the official money winning list. He has banked $3,313. He got $2,000 for overtaking Dave Marr of Cedarhurst, N.Y., Island, on the final round of the Texas Open and finishing three strokes ahead.

MAGGERT IS SEVENTH

Top Canadian was Jerry Magee of Toronto. He tied for seventh with three other golfers at 280, and won $675. Warm weather spurred Magee to a two-under-par 69 following earlier rounds of 72, 68 and 70.

Ed Oldfield of Napa, Calif., the great stretch runner who shot a sizzling par 34 on the final 9 holes, wound up in second place at 277 and got $1,300.

Marr, who led the tournament by six strokes after the first two rounds, faded to 73 Sunday to finish in a tie for third at 278 with Jimmy Demaret, Bo Wininger and Billy Maxwell.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Lachute, Que., was in a four-way tie at 283 to win $270. His rounds were 69-73-76-71.

Ab Wright Has Operation; Father Stricken

Ab. Wright, young hockey star who suffered a fractured skull during a hockey game, went into the operating room of the Toronto General Hospital at nine o'clock this morning, according to members of the family. Up to press time word had been received from the hospital.

The Wright family was hit again by ill-luck today. Mr. Henry Wright, 58, father of Ab. and Art, was taken to Belleville General Hospital following a severe heart seizure, his third in a comparatively short time.

Mrs. Wright is in Toronto at the bedside of her injured son.

Delany Wins 20th Indoor Mile in Row

NEW YORK (AP) — Ireland's Ron Delany won his 20th indoor mile in a row Saturday night by outsprinting Istvan Rozsavolgyi of Hungary in a slow 4:18 at the New York Athletic Club Games in Madison Square Gardens.

Delany, a tactical race all the way and the slowest of the year for the Olympic 1,500 - meter champion. Rozsavolgyi, world record holder at the 1,000, 1,500 and mile, tried to steal the race by outsprinting Delany the last lap.

Like everyone who has tried it before him, he failed.

The Irishman's margin over the Hungarian was four yards. Rozsavolgyi, who trains in front of Jim Grelle of the University of Oregon.

Fatty O'Brien smashed his own listed world indoor record at the shotput with a heave of 61 feet, 5½ inches. That was just consequence of an inch more than the standard he set in 1956.

However, a week ago Saturday in Frankfurt, Germany, O'Brien got off a toss of 61-8¼. That hasn't been officially accepted yet because the international federation doesn't meet until the end of the year to act on records.

Quebec Hockey

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Royals posted the only victory in the Quebec Hockey League's three - game weekend schedule. The other two games, one a wild, fist-swinging affair, ended in 3-3 ties.

The fourth-place Royals scored three times in the third period to down Valleyfield Braves 4-3 while Cataracts 4-1 Sunday at Shawinigan.

Cataracts, in a Saturday night game at Trois-Rivieres that saw four brawls, played Canada 3-3 overtime tie. Chicoutimi Saguenay-Quebec Aces gained praise to an identical deadlock Sunday at Chicoutimi.

The seven - game loop's first Chicoutimi in first place with 63 points. Cataracts are second with 62 points, Montreal 61, Valleyfield 57, Trois-Rivieres 43.

FINAL SIGNS CONTRACT

NEW YORK (AP)—Sal Maglie, who will be 41 April 26, has signed a contract with the New York Yankees. No salary was announced. Maglie came to the Yanks last Sept. 1 and won two games. Earlier in the season he compiled a 6-6 record with Brooklyn.

Whitby Defeats Sweden 7-0 For 7th Exhibition Victory

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Canada's hockey team rested today, its unbeaten record still intact.

The Whitby squad ran its string of exhibition wins to seven Sunday night with a 7-0 triumph over a local Swedish side at Soedertaelje, south of here.

Bus Gagnon, a veteran left winger who has played four years with Whitby after a five-year stretch with American League teams, dominated the top sided scoring with his four markers.

Charlie Burns, a young centre with Whitby in last year's Allan Cup success, scoring ace Bobby Attersley and Sid Smith, the National League - trained playing-coach, all had goals.

Eight thousand persons turned out in rainy weather to watch the Canadians play in the only regular game of their tour, conditions that will confront them at the world championships in Oslo Feb. 28-March 9.

Throughout their appearances in Europe, the Canadians have been most consistent in the smoothness of their defensive play clearing the puck out of their own end efficiently and sticking consistently to their backchecking assignments.

In addition they are getting superb goal-tending from 20-year-old Roy Edwards who appears to have taken the job away from the more experienced Johnny Henderson.

Weekend Stars

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings continued his prominence in two Detroit victories over Toronto Maple Leafs Saturday night and sitting up two others in 6-3 and 4-1 wins.

Howe, Sidney Balfour of Montreal Canadiens, who scored his first NHL goal in the Habs' Montreal 7-1 victory over Boston Saturday.

Guy Gendron of New York Rangers whose third-period goal gave Rangers a 3-2 win over Boston Sunday.

Goalie Glenn Hall of Chicago Black Hawks who turned in his seventh shutout of the year as Chicago downed Montreal 4-0 Sunday night.

Dodgers Sell Sandy Amoros To Montreal

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers Sunday announced the outright sale of left fielder Sandy Amoros to their Montreal farm club in the International League.

The Dodgers asked and got waivers from the other National League clubs to ship the 26-year-old Cuban back to Montreal Royals where he played for two years before going to the Dodgers in 1954.

Amoros, a lefthand hitter and thrower who stands 5 feet 7 inches and weighs about 165 pounds batted .277 last year. It was his highest mark as a Dodger but well below his five-year mark of .353 in 1953 at Montreal or .317 in 1952 at St. Paul.

Sudbury Wins Ski Trophy

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP)—Sudbury Nickel Trea Ski Club Saturday won the Toronto Ski Club Trophy for the eighth straight year in the Ontario Junior ski championships.

The five-man Sudbury team compiled 1,107.4 points. Laurentian Ski Club of North Bay was second and Kirkland Lake third.

Saturday, at Raven Mountain, 30 miles east of Kirkland Lake, Fort William Collegiate won the Collingwood Cup in the mixed interscholastic team competition. Algonquin Composite School of North Bay won the Munro Cup for boy's teams.

Kirkland Lake Collegiate was second in the Collingwood Cup and third in the Munroe. Port Arthur Collegiate was second in the Munroe competition and Sudbury Tech third in the Collingwood Cup race.

CBC May Film Highlights of World Hockey

TORONTO (CP) — A CBC official says there is a possibility film highlights of the games played by Whitby, Canada's representative in the world hockey championships in Oslo, may be seen on the CBC's television network.

General manager J. A. Ouimet of Ottawa said Friday night in an interview: "It depends if we can get coverage at the scene in Oslo from European cameramen and the commentary to go with it."

Mr. Ouimet said:

"We're working on it now and will try to cover the most interesting parts of some of the games. But right now we don't know whether we'll be successful in getting the film or not."

Minor Hockey

A scoring spree by the Canadiens and a pair of shutouts helped wind up the bantam hockey schedule at Memorial Arena Saturday morning.

Canadiens whipped the Iced Wings 10-3. Cliff McGuinness and Gary Reid each had two goals and an assist while Gary Duvall chipped in with one goal and two assists. Jim Rutherford and Jerry Jones also scored goals each and Bill Sutton had one. Brian Skinner earned two shutouts and Ray Lamour, Barry Dafoe and Don Goodfellow were the Wing marksmen. Cam Wallbridge and Dave Hannah earning assists.

Bill Means recorded a shutout as Bruins downed the Maple Leafs 2-0. Wayne Gilroy and Herbert Burr each had a goal and assist while Dave Blakely assisted on both markers.

Browns blanked the Rangers 3-0 with Jack Hannah registering the shutout. Don Lucas, Doug Bowerman and Dennis Hull fired one goal each while George Turner had two helpers and Kincaid one.

Barons edged the Black Hawks 3-2. Garry Wood and Len Hollas tallied for the winners, with Keith Thompson getting one assist. Richard Jones received the Hawk goal with Lyle Adams and Billy Carson drawing assists.

SWEEP FENCING MEET

TORONTO (CP) — The University of Toronto fencing team made a clean sweep of all honors at the intercollegiate fencing championships Saturday. Toronto beat McGill University 19 bouts to eight, and the University of Montreal 22-5, to win the Charles Walters Trophy for the fourth straight year.

Social Crediters Hear Political Call to Arms

By H. L. JONES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Social Crediters wound up a two-day, policy-making conference Saturday and heard a political call to arms from their national leader and from British Columbia's Premier Bennett for the March 31 federal election campaign.

The 200 odd delegates from British Columbia and Alberta gave a standing ovation and a vote of confidence to National Leader Solon Low when he called on them to get out and put candidates in every constituency in the country.

They gave the same to Premier Bennett who hit at his critics and declared in a 45 - minute speech that the Liberals and Conservatives cared nothing for this province except for the votes they could get.

"They have done nothing for B.C.," the premier declared. "The Liberals and Conservatives fired three for Terrors with one each by Dave Feeney, Lloyd Kelare the Sawdust Twins — still are making promises, but only promises.

The premier reviewed what his government has done in its six years in office.

USE BOXING GLOVES

More than one of the delegates had minature boxing gloves pinned to their coat lapels. One said they were to be "the symbol of the coming campaign so far as Social Credit is concerned."

The B.C. - Alberta conference hammered out a program behind closed doors which Mr. Low described as "a responsible program — not a lot of foolish promises." It will be meshed with other policy resolutions already endorsed at an Ontario-Quebec meeting and those passed a fortnight ago in Saskatchewan - Manitoba meeting at Brandon.

The Quebec national leader said the main result of this "grass-roots" policy-making will be a number of "new approaches." This would be true in new Social Credit policy toward unemployment and foreign trade which he considered critical problems, financial policy, agriculture and resources development.

Mr. Low said in an interview during the meeting he expected his party to do better than the 10 seats it held in the last Parliament. But unless the Conservatives could get at least 30 seats in Quebec they might not get a majority and the election could wind up in another minority-government stalemate in the new Commons.

As for himself, he felt no ill effects from the heart seizure he suffered some two years ago and planned to campaign in every province.

30,000 HEAR GRAHAM

GUATEMALA (AP) — Several hundred persons responded Thursday night to an appeal by U.S. evangelist Billy Graham to "give their lives to Christ." Graham addressed a similar crowd that half-filled Guatemala City's 60,000-seat football stadium.

LEAVES FOR AUSTRALIA

CHRISTCHURCH New Zealand (Reuters)—Queen Mother Elizabeth left here by air today for Australia after a two-week tour of New Zealand.

Industrial Hockey

The final two games of the schedule will decide the playoff positions in the Industrial hockey league next weekend following yesterday's contests.

Don's Delivery defeated Circle TV by a 4-1 score while Point Anne downed the Terrors 5-4. At the present time Hillcrest Motors and Don's are tied for first with 15 points each while Point Anne follows with 14. However Don's have completed their schedule while Point Anne meets Hillcrest next Sunday with the winner taking first place. Circle TV and the Terrors will meet also in a sudden death game for the fourth and final spot with the losers handing up their skates for the season.

Cameron McKenna scored twice in the Delivery crew's victory yesterday while Bud Payette and Phil Cornell had singles apiece. Dick Knaptin bagged the lone Circle TV goal.

Mert Bradshaw, Doug Lucas and Pat Miracle each netted a pair for Point Anne. Bill Govet, Bob Cummings and Jack Horwood also score". Leo Goyer fired three for Terrors with one ley and Bill Stoner.

Playoffs will begin on Sunday, March 2. Semi-finals will be two-of-three affairs while the finals will be a three-of-five set.

Y Swimmers Show un Well Against Toronto

Bill McCormick's Belleville Y swimming team gave a fine account of itself in the Albert College pool on Saturday although it bowed to the crack Toronto Broadview Y team by a 54-33 points count.

Les Hall topped the Belleville swimmers negotiating the 40 yards freestyle in 21.1. Jim Tilker, David Craig and Dave Fisher also performed well.

Tilker, the brothers Paul and John Taylor and youthful Don Pratt were outstanding Paul Taylor swam the 40 yard freestyle in 22.5 secondswith John Taylor winning the junior freestyle. Pratt won the junior breaststroke event.

Charles Cawker acted as starter with J. Peeples and Mr. Gibson judges. Both teams had twelve entries in the meet.

The next meet scheduled for the Belleville team takes place on March 1 when they visit the Ottawa Y.

Betsy Rawls Wins Women's Open Title

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Steady Betsy Rawls won the $7,500 St. Petersburg women's open tournament Sunday when Jackie Pung, the sensational early leader, faded for the second straight day.

Miss Rawls, one stroke back at the beginning of the round, shot a one-under-par 73 for a 72-hole total of 291 and a four-stroke victory.

Miss Pung, the leader every other day by virtue of a first-round 68 and a second-round 70, had one of her worst putting days and took 78. She had an 81 Saturday.

On the Tracks

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Round Table ran to his fourth successive stakes triumph Saturday and tied the world record of six miles in a smashing 3½-length victory in the $56,400 San Antonio Handicap.

Round Table trounced eight rivals in comparative ease to finish ing the distance with a clocking of 1.46 4-5. The time equalled the world mark shared by Noor, Gordon, Swaps and Gen. Duke.

Round Table finished ahead of Battle Eye, with Promised Land third and Porterhouse fourth.

In other major stake races Saturday, Calumet Farm's Tim Tam and Kentucky Field finished one-two in the $31,550 Everglades Stakes at Hialeah Park, Florida and at Bowie, Maryland Moviave won the $15,000 added Miss Maryland Stakes by a length and a half in a blinding snowstorm.

Madoc Trounces Campbellford For 15th Win

MADOC (Special) — Madoc Blue-and-Whites whipped Campbellford 12-5 here on Saturday night for their 15th victory in seventeen games in the OHA intermediate "C" hockey loop.

The Blue-and-Whites are in first place with 30 points followed by Warmington with 17. Campbellford with 13 and Bancroft with six. Only two games remain in the schedule. Campbellford at Bancroft tonight and Madoc at Campbellford Wednesday night.

Semi-final playoffs will be three-of-five affairs with Madoc meeting Bancroft and Campbellford tangling with Marmora. The Bancroft-Madoc series gets under way on Monday February 24 with Madoc getting the first home game. The remaining games will be at Bancroft on February 26, at Madoc on the 28, at Bancroft on March 3 and back at Madoc on March 5. No definite dates for the other series are available here but it is expected to get under way in Marmora this Friday night.

Madoc ran wild during the last two periods in Saturday's game here. They trailed 2-1 at the end of the first but led 6-4 after two periods of play and fired home seven goals in the Campbellford's one in the final heat.

Playing coach Alex Maclachlan paced the victor's with four goals and an equal number of assists. Bob Taylor was close on his heels with three goals and four assists while Fred Nickle had two and three. Doug Day scored once and drew four assists, Glen Hollis had two goals, Whiteman a goal and assist and Shirley Baker two assists.

J. Ruttan and Wilson with a goal and assist each led the Campbellford scorers, Eady, D. Ruttan and Garvey also scored while Harrington and Morrow earned two assists with one for Fildes and Hunter.

All of Madoc team's eleven penalties were minors with Madoc getting the odd one.

TO PROMOTE SAFETY

TORONTO (CP) — A safety-promotion division has been established in the highway safety branch of the Ontario transport department. Headed by Carl E. Laybourn, the division will work with the province's 40-odd local safety councils.

Carol Heiss Wins Third Skating Crown

PARIS (CP) — Carol Heiss of Stone Park, N.Y., skated off with her third world figure skating championship Saturday night. Her perfectly executed freestyle exhibition gave the United States its second gold medal of the championships. Canada and Britain each won one.

Miss Heiss' precise skating won over three of nine judges to give her a points ruling of 4.8—considered perfect skating — and turned in 12,000 points to edge the Hungarian Sonja Morgenstern, who received perfect marks from two judges.

Canada's two entrants in the women's competition finished out of the top 10. Margaret Dowland of Whitby placed 13th and Sylvia Soelting of Toronto was 16th. Ingrid Wendl of Austria, European title-holder, was second and Hanna Walter of Austria was awarded third place.

WON MEN'S TITLE

Canada's Barbara Wagner and Robert Paul captured the pairs title with a near-flawless performance Thursday night.

The British medal winners were June Markham and Courtney Jones who successfully defended their dancing title with a graceful and polished show.

One of the best Canadian efforts was that of Don Jackson, a 17-year-old skater from Oshawa. He came close to upsetting Jenkins in the men's figure skating. Jackson's polished and lively freestyle skating boosted him into fourth position in the final placings. He made the jump from ninth spot where he had been ranked after the compulsory figures which counted for 60 per cent of the points.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Monday, February 17

Aries (March 21 to April 19)—Here is a splendid day for talking over with the right parties the goals and ambitions of your life, and they will help you obtain them. Meet new personalities, too, and in P. M. analyze, study, think, plan.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)—This is the day to contact credit managers, experts, politicians and get all current affairs pertinent to your security and well-being straightened out for the future. P. M. be with closest pal and use same direct methods.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)—Your desire for information today can be satisfactorily attained by digging into vital periodicals, newspapers and going to see authorities on the subject at hand. P. M. make plans and get opinion of close friends.

Moon children (June 22 to July 21) — An ideal way for knowing exactly where you stand with vital persons in your life, putting all matters of property and trusts, mortgages, bonds, social security, etc., in order: P. M. discuss plans with mate.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Many details and a few vital matters must be discussed seriously today with associates if you are to continue partnerships in greater harmony and realize higher success. Clear the air, then do the town arm in arm.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—Both this new week properly by getting many enjoyable, even unobservable chores done well and quickly. Install new gadgets that will make play of work. P. M. ideal for entertaining your fellow workers.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — This week can be started with inspiration by getting the ball rolling on some specialized abilities you possess and have been toying with. Spare time can be very pleasant, too, if you plan it wisely and are clever with money.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—Positive thinking and installation of wise budget, systems of operating can bring about a definite uptrend on this fine new day of the week. See that your home and finances are in order, then full speed ahead!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — This is the right day to write, telephone or wire all those persons whose co-operation you seek. Whether your problems are those of the heart, the nurse, or psychologist, now is the time to get them settled. Start now.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Be careful not to commit yourself today on some far reaching matter. Means venture for the heck of it. While you are anxious to succeed quickly, study of other persons' methods is the first step to take. P. M. tend to moral chords.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Now is the time to think over carefully just what you would like to attain in the future. Once you know, make the right contacts, be precise and direct in approach. P. M. excellent for sociability, fun, prestige.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20)—A good day for meditation or conferences with intimates to decide the activities of the future, best methods of obtaining the good things of life. Tonight, give some time to the invalids, and souls you know.

If your child is born today... The delightful child born today is the very social kind, and it is imperative you give him or her the benefit of rubbing elbows with all the other little fry. There is much kindness and altruism in this soul, so teach in the fields of social service, nursing, medicine, etc., and your youngster will make a mark early. Inventiveness is also here, hence science in all branches is just fine.

HITS ELECTION CALL

In Vancouver, Mr. Low criticized the calling of an election at this time, when weather in many areas would make it impossible for people to get out to meetings and learn the issues and vote on them.

He also considered it undesirable to take Parliament out of action at a time when trade and unemployment were close to being "crisis" issues.

He said the Progressive Conservative government will have spent some $1,000,000 for the country's business before a new Parliament can meet.

Under ordinary circumstances such expenditures would have been subject to parliamentary scrutiny before the money was voted, he said.

Mr. Low attended a meeting of Alberta and British Columbia followers to work out election policies.

MEETS QUESTIONERS

Facing a barrage of questions in Toronto, Mr. Pearson said the conservatives are allowing the United States to exercise control of Canada's air force without having any control over it. He was specifically under what conditions.

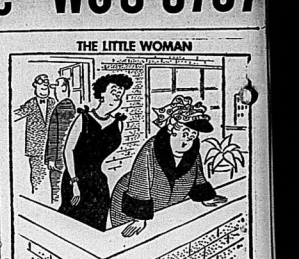
The former external affairs minister said the North American air defence system set up at Colorado Springs under the Army Commander and a Canadian Deputy may be a good thing.

But Canada should have obtained an agreement with the U.S. spelling out the conditions of the arrangement.

Mr. Pearson attended a National Hockey League game between Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings Saturday night and then returned to Ottawa for a couple of television engagements Sunday and Tuesday.

Elsewhere, Labor Minister Michael Starr said at Toronto Saturday night that the number of unemployed in Canada will begin to decrease within weeks.

He said unemployment is beginning to show a slight decrease but last year it had continued to rise until March.



CRITICIZES GOVERNMENT

At Brantford, former finance minister Walter Harris said Saturday the Progressive Conservative government called an election because it was afraid people would find out what it had done in the last eight months if it waited longer.

Address to the Brant-Haldimand Liberal convention which nominated Mr. Maddox as candidate for the March 31 election, Mr. Harris declared that private Conservatives campaigned last year, on charges of Liberal waste and extravagance.

The Conservatives said they were elected they had to admit nothing could be eliminated.
